

When Ague Shakes You

you can shake the Ague by using AYER'S AGUE CURE. It is the one certain and infallible cure for that debilitating disease. It has been tried in many countries and under various conditions, and has never been known to fail. An old veteran writes:—

"You may be interested to know my experience many years ago with Ayer's Ague Cure. The year before the war I was in Kansas. Some twenty of us were engaged in farming, and suddenly all were taken with fever and ague. We tried almost everything without getting any help, till at last I sent to the city and procured a bottle of Ayer's Ague Cure. I recovered at once. The others followed my example, and they, too, recovered. Every one in camp took the remedy and was cured by it. I went all through the war, have lived in thirteen different states of the Union, and have never had the ague since."

O. B. SMITH, St. Augustine, Fla.

There's only one thing to get for ague:

PETERBOROUGH JULY 13, 1898

A HUGE STEAL.

In the State of New York, a commission has just finished uncovering a nest of corruption that might well bring the people to despair. The Erie Canal had need to be enlarged. The Government engineers reported that nine million dollars would do the work. The people voted that amount. When the millions had been spent, so little work was there to show for the expenditure that public indignation forced the appointment of a commission to investigate.

That commission now reports that $12,000,000 more will be required to complete the improvements, and finds that the $9,000,000 already voted has simply stolen. The contractors, for example, have mined and blasted the loose earth, and charged the work on their accounts as rock-blasting.

The whole affair is a gigantic piece of peculation almost incredible to people of this province. We are left to wonder how, under such administration, the State can be managed at all. And if the country is governed so loosely as the state, what a boon this war with Spain will be for the army contractor!

A man named Ace has become the father of twin boys. It is to be hoped that they won't turn out to be knaves.

Everybody read the Times.

A free distribution of the Times will be made in Appleton commencing this week. It will continue while a thorough canvass is being made by circulation manager Couch.

Winter seems to have lingered in the lap of spring this year until it stopped over into the summer.

Editor—"That new compositor is either a blundering fool or a patriot, I'm not sure which." Assistant—"Why?" Editor—"I sent him a note reading 'Admiral Cervera cannot be exchanged because Spain has captured none of our officers of equal rank.' He made it 'equally rank.'"

Yellow journalism has played a disgraceful part in the present war, and has caused the military authorities much annoyance. But they seem to have to confront something yellow now which will be terrible if it obtains a hold. That is Yellow Jack, which is said to have appeared at Key West.

The feat of the famous general who marched his men up a hill and marched them down again was nothing by the side of Camara, who goes through the Mediterranean and Suez canal and then sails back. Pity to have wasted the toll money. What will he do next? The naval lessons taught by this war are not going to be very profitable.

The worm will turn at last. Here is the Madrid Herald declining to be led by the nose any longer. It has risen in revolt against the censorship of the Spanish press in Cuba and announces that it will withdraw its correspondents unless it is permitted to tell the truth. It states—people have no doubt seen it all along—that "all the correspondents are permitted to do is to foster and enlarge the deceptions practiced by Blanco and his officials upon the Spanish people."

Hull voted the Toronto Rubber Company a bonus of $50,000 to establish a factory there. Before the vote it was pointed out that the company gave to forfeit or guarantee that it would go on even if the money were voted. The money was voted, the company is not going on, and Hull is out $500, the cost of the vote. That is the way councils are apt to do such things. Peterborough once voted a bonus to the Patterson Corbin Car Company, of St. Catharines, and the company backed down and did not come to Peterborough. The result was that town threatened proceedings to recover the cost of submitting the by-law, and got their money.

"Where did you spend your vacation?" asked the first flea. "Oh said the other, 'I've been on a tramp for a month or so."

The Spanish Navy seems to be operated on the theory that there's always room at the bottom.

Hawaii this morning, Uncle Sam?

All is lost save honor, and if poor Spain's honour had a cash value it would have been stolen long ago with the other assets of that once great nation.

An original method of raising a church debt comes from Samoa. At the little town of Aip, on the island, they have a cricket match in progress for three months. A fee of one shilling is charged for the privilege of batting, and, if bowled, the batsman can keep at the wicket by the payment of another fee. As a means of collecting money for church purposes the scheme has proven most successful. We have always understood that cricket is a wicked game, but we suppose it increases the revenue of the church. Anyhow, Samoa is along field off.

A few days ago the wife of Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, and her son, Stephen B. Elkins, Jr., made a call at the White House. During a conversation President McKinley said to the young man, "Stephen, what are you going to do in this war?" Young Elkins replied:—"I have already enlisted as a private, and am the only son of a United States senator who has that honor." That was neat, even if somewhat impertinent, when we consider the number of sons of prominent politicians who have been commissioned and assigned to easy offices like those of paymaster and quartermaster.

Blacking.
Liquid blacking, such as is now used, was invented early in the present century. Previously various mixtures were used. There are many allusions in last century literature to shoeblacks and blacking. In the London World of Jan. 31, 1754, Edward Moore, describing the miseries of an author, says that he would rather have started in life as a shoeblack had he but had the money to buy or credit to procure a stool, brushes and blackball. "An old hand of blacking consisted of forty black, very coarse moist sugar and water, with a little vinegar. A mixture of whale oil and soot was used in Gay's time. The author of 'Trivia' has several allusions to the 'black youth' who stood at street corners then, as now:

Mark! The boy calls these to his destin'd stand,
And the shoe shines beneath his oily hand.
De Foe makes his Colonel Jack describe himself when a boy as a dirty vagabond, "like a 'Black your shoes, your honor' a beggar boy, a blackguard boy or what you please, despicable and miserable to the last degree."

Here is another quotation from "Trivia" (1715):
His treble voice resounds along the news,
And Whitehall echoes, "Clean your honor's shoes!"

—Notes and Queries.

Quick Journeys Made Now.
A French statistician has just drawn up an interesting document showing at what periods in what time certain frontier towns could be reached from Paris. The years chosen are 1850, 1783, 1834, 1854 and 1897. In 1850 it took five days to go from Paris to Calais. One hundred and thirty-two years later, in 1783, the duration of the journey had been reduced to 60 hours. In 1834 it had fallen to 38 hours and in 1854 to 6 hours 40 minutes. Today one of the best expresses takes 8 hours 45 minutes.

The journey to Strasbourg took 918 hours in 1850, 108 hours in 1783, 10 hours 45 minutes in 1834 and today a matter of 7 hours 20 minutes.

The difference for Marseilles is still more phenomenal. From 16 days in 1850 the duration of the journey was reduced to 30 hours in 1834, and today it takes 18 1/2 hours. The distance from Paris to Bayonne two centuries ago took 889 hours. Today it occupies 11 hours 11 minutes. Direct can be reached in 13 hours 37 minutes, while in 1850 it took 370 hours. Finally, for Havre, 97 hours was considered quick travelling in 1850. It took 15 hours in 1783 and 17 hours in 1834. Today it is a matter of 5 hours 15 minutes.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Rabbit Industry.
It doesn't take much to start the rabbit industry—a few rabbits and a turnip patch or some other pasture—but it takes a mighty hustling to check it after it gets a good start. We kill about 16,000,000 of them in North Carolina every winter, and there are more here now than there were when Mr. Raleigh brought his immigrants over.—Wilmington (N. C.) Star.

Songs That Sing Themselves.
How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvelous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. SERVANTS' LIVERIES.

They Had Their Origin During the Reign of King Pepin of France.

So far as the present writer is aware, the earliest mention of "liveries" made in history was during the reign of King Pepin of France, who flourished about the year 750 A. D.

A form of amusement to which King Pepin was partial was what were termed cours pléniers. These were assemblies at which, upon the king's invitation, all the lords and courtiers of France were expected to be present. They were held twice in each year—as Christmas and Easter—and generally lasted for about a week at each time. Sometimes these gatherings took place at the king's palace, sometimes in the neighborhood of one of the larger French cities, and sometimes in some rural district. While the festival lasted the king took all his meals in public, bishops and dukes alone being privileged to sit at the royal table. A second table was provided for abbots, counts and other leading men, and at both tables there was shown more profusion of the meats and drinks and the manner in which they were served. Flutes, hautboys and other musical instruments were played before the bearers of each course as it was removed from the tables. When dessert was served, 90 heralds, each holding aloft a jeweled goblet, shouted three times, "Largesse, largesse from the most potent of kings!" As they shouted they scattered among the crowds handfuls of gold and silver coins. Then the trumpets were blown, while the better class spectators shouted and the meaner sort scrambled and often fought vigorously for the money scattered by the heralds.

Charles VII of France put a final stop to the cours pléniers, alleging that the expense attendant upon his wars with England made it impossible for him to continue them. One of the severest causes of expense, it was explained, arose from the fact that, beginning with King Pepin's time, etiquette and custom alike demanded that the king should upon these occasions give an entire suit of new and gorgeous clothing not only to his own servants and retainers, but also to those of the queen and all the princes of the blood royal. The custom was so general that it was called "livery"—that is, "delivered" at the king's expense—and from this word the English word "livery" was derived, as was the custom of providing servants with "livery," from the above mentioned practice of certain of the French kings.—London Herald.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

THE EXCITABLE FRENCH.

Scene in the Chamber of Deputies With the Members Enraged.

Upon arriving at the anteroom of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense usher called in a stentorian voice for "La personne qui a fait demander M. Constant"—or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it usually was—advanced toward the smiling member, who never looked bored, the mask of hospitality being probably the same in this respect throughout the legislative halls of the world. At last M. Talandier appeared and got me a place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representatives' hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little looked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Borel, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Lefts, or radicals, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted and gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and the quieted down last he might put on his hat and adjourn the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the desk or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'état, yet I heard it said about me that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign. One saw at a glance how much profounder political differences must be in France than with us.

Married on Thirty Minutes' Courtship.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once, "but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 a. m. A few miles farther on at another small station a big strapping looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her.

"I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river still of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 35 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want to get hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but 30 minutes, but we both like an she's willin' an so'm I. Whar's the niggest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louis.

The Black Cap.
There is one particular part of the dress belonging to the order of the coffin—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their wigs when passing sentence of death. Little is known concerning this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sergeant Pulling, in his work "The Order of the Coffin," says: "The black cap, or sentence cap, of the judges and sergeants is certainly not the cap, as Lord Campbell repeatedly states. It is, on the contrary, the covering expressly assigned to veil the coffin on the only occasion when the coffin was required to be hidden. By the ancient privilege of the sergeants the royal presence was to be taken off even in the royal presence. The chief insignia of the order was to be so displayed when sitting on the bench or pleading at the bar, but this rule seems always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death.
"The head of the administrator of justice was then covered, as a token of sorrow, by the black sentence cap. This covered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, it is sometimes termed, is a piece of limp black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder, and then the judge places the cap on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Analogous Reasoning.

A poet proffering his work to an editor said:
"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read it the editor put it into a drawer and, handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:
"This is a smallish coin, but I am so bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its parity. It is nearly all silver."—San Francisco Examiner.

"Lay" Plates.

In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to reserve the most valuable or artistic plates for the "lay service." The scheme of providing does not permit the guest to be without a plate before him, and between the courses plates are laid at each cover, one laid down while the used plate is removed. Caudon Copeland and Royal Worcester china are much liked for "lay plates."—Philadelphia Press.

SHERMAN WAS KIND.

A SOUTHERN POET'S RECOLLECTIONS OF THE GENERAL.

Frank L. Stanton recalls some incidents of the closing days of the war—General Sherman's Goodness to the Elder Stanton, Who Was Very Ill in Savannah.

Frank L. Stanton, the popular Georgia poet, always speaks up for General Sherman when he hears any severe criticism of that famous commander's methods. The story told by Stanton has never found its way into print, but it deserves a place among the minor incidents and reminiscences of the war period.

"When Savannah fell," said Stanton, "I was a little chap about 8 years old. The confusion and tumult in the streets frightened me, and I was afraid to go very far from the house.

"Young as I was, I understood that something very serious had occurred. Instead of seeing Confederate soldiers parading the streets with a few Federal prisoners I saw thousands of Federals swarming through the town, and they had a great many Confederates under guard.

"The situation had been reversed. That was plain, even to a child.

"My father was very ill, in the last stages of consumption, and my mother was worn out with anxiety and the cares of the household. Our neighbors were panic stricken, and everybody seemed to be expecting some awful calamity.

"Pinned up there as we had been for a long time, without supplies and without any money except worthless Confederate currency, the outlook was gloomy enough. How was my sick father to get the things he needed? That was the problem with my mother.

"Somebody told General Sherman about my father and mentioned the fact that he was a kinsman of a very distinguished and powerful officer on the Union side.

"One day when I entered my father's room I found three Federal officers sitting there in pleasant conversation with the invalid and my mother.

"I was scared and started to run, but one of the strangers, a middle aged man with a roughly trimmed brown beard, called me back. He asked my name, and before I knew it had me on his knee, and he said so many nice things to me that I took quite a fancy to him.

"He was General Sherman, and he had called with two of his staff officers to see my father. When the visitors left, the general told my mother at the door that he knew all about the inconveniences of a siege and insisted upon sending from the army stores something that would suit a sick man.

"Under the circumstances such an offer could not be declined. It was a picnic for the children of the family, I can tell you.

"After that, while the general was in the city, something was sent to the house every day. Brandy, wine, loaf sugar, lemons, beef, chickens, coffee, vegetables and I don't know what else came in generous quantities. We had plenty for the family and for our nearest neighbors.

"Nor was that all. The general sent one of the best physicians in the hospital service, and the last days of my father were made far more comfortable than we had hoped for under the adverse conditions of those dark days.

"General Sherman came to the house once more before he left Savannah. I cannot remember what he said, but he was sympathetic and he said something about the pleasure it gave him to aid a relative of his distinguished friend at Washington.

"At that time I was very fond of a showy uniform, and it vexed my childish mind to see my friend the general always dressed so shabbily. His staff officers presented a better appearance, and some of them were really gorgeous in their spectacular rig.

"The other boys and the negroes agreed with me that the commander must be in very hard luck or he would certainly dress better. Still, I was then convinced that he was a wonderfully wise man. With my pockets full of his loaf sugar, which I had surreptitiously abstracted from the pantry, I would have been ungrateful if I had formed any other opinion.

"Sherman left the city and marched onward through the Carolinas, and that ended the war.

"No, I never saw him again. My father died, and I lived in different places, my work keeping me so busy that I had no time to think of the general or anybody else not connected with my immediate business. I wish now that I had seen him before he passed away. As it is, I can only recall him as he appeared to my boyish and wondering eyes, under circumstances which did not give me an opportunity to study him. No matter what may be said of his conduct in war, I cannot help liking him. He was a good friend just when we most needed one."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Doubtful Compliments.

The compliments paid by the poor are often put in an amusing way. One old woman who was very fond of the rector said to Mr. Bernays: "You know, sir, we like the rector; 'is ears are so clean." "Surely an odd reason for parochial affection. Another admirer once declared with regard to the whole staff of clergy, 'You are all so plain' (a word of high commendation), 'but as for the vicar, 'e's beautiful.' The greatest compliment, though at the same time the most curious Mr. Bernays ever heard, was paid by a workingman to a certain bishop, famous for his simple kindliness. 'What I likes 'bout the bishop is 'e's not a gentleman.'"—Westminster Gazette.

Ethnologists, apropos of the statement that the original inhabitants of America were Asiatics, tell of a Chinook Indian woman found in the last century by Father Hak wandering in the far interior of Asia.

Good Fishing.
Friday Mr. Bernard Matchake, of New York, who is paying a visit to Peterborough, and Mr. H. Nesbitt went down the Ottonabee on a fishing expedition. They fished the river from Campbellton to Rice Lake and made a magnificent catch. They bagged 19 splendid bass all of good size, but the daddy of them all was a monster of the large weight of five pounds. He required the efforts of both fishers to land him. Mr. Matchake, who is delighted with the scenic beauties and fishing resources of the river, leaves tomorrow morning for New York to resume his duties as captain of the fire brigade. He is well pleased with his visit to Peterborough this season. This is the fourth summer he has spent in Peterborough, and of all this present visit furnishes the most pleasant recollections of the enjoyment of our splendid fishing and the hearty hospitality and unvarying courtesy of the many who have been citizens he has come in contact with.

BIG ORANGE CELEBRATION

Many Lodges of Orangemen Take Part in the Celebration

A Splendid Spectacle—Vast Crowds Witness the Demonstration—A Most Successful Day for Lindsay

Yesterday the Orangemen were favored with ideal weather for the celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, won by King William of glorious, pious and immortal memory. All the Orangemen in the county of Peterborough appeared to have assembled in Lindsay to show their devotion to the principles asserted at the point of the sword by that great monarch. From an early hour of the morning the townspeople had begun to congregate in great crowds in the Central Park and along the proposed line of march. The Orangemen's procession is undoubtedly the most popular of all Peterborough's spectacular parades. The great variety of many-colored uniforms, the singular contrasts presented by the different lodges, the beauty and richness of the bannets, the numerous bands, all combine to make it the most picturesque and attractive of all the processions with which the district is favored. The spectators showed as much interest in its success yesterday as those taking part in it. The crowds that filled the park and lined the street sported the Orange colors; many of the women wore dresses of Orange hue; men and boys innumerable displayed ribbons of mingled blue and orange in their buttonholes; onlookers in carriages had their horses crowned with orange plumes; and the bicycles, too, flaunted everywhere through the throng with a reckless disregard of the pedestrian, had his wheel hub dressed in the prevalent color. On all sides was to be seen the Orange lily, mingled with other flowers, yellow and blue. It was King William weather, and though the demands of the ripened harvest kept many at farm duties, there was a large turnout. Col. Standerford L.O.L. No. 321 was the first to leave the town. They were headed by the Fire Brigade band, and escorted by Mr. Hiram S. Armstrong, County Master, and marched up with bannets waving to the rendezvous, Central Park. Here there was a short wait for the contingents from the Lakefield and the north. The Fire Brigade Band met the Lakefield train at McDonnell street, where the brethren disembarked and played them to the park, where the procession was formed in the following order:—
Banner.
Queen's Own Lodge, No. 48, L.T.B. George Collins, Master.
Banner.
Diamond L.O.L., No. 60. George Collins, Master.

Samuel Norbury, Master.
Mr. J. B. McWilliams was marshalled the day, mounted; Mr. H. S. Armstrong, County Master, and Mr. Robert Campbell, District Master, were also mounted in the procession which left the park with banners waving and a playing. The procession though only a fraction of the grand parade in Lindsay, was a large one, the cortege extending on George street from Brock to Charlotte streets, by way of the Grand Trunk station where reached, where a special train awaited them, upon which the brethren embarked, having been joined by some of the brethren from Fraserburg. A large number of citizens accompanied the brethren, between 400 and 500 occupying the seven coaches of the special train.

AT LINDSAY.
The Local Reception Committee met the various trains and steamers on arrival.

The Grand procession was formed on the market square at one o'clock in the following order:—
Durham County.
Northumberland County.
Peterborough County.
Ontario County.
Hilburton County.
Victoria County.

The lodges then marched up Cambridge a feet to bond, thence west to Albert, south to Russell, east to Lindsay, north across bridge to King, east to St. Paul, north to Queen, west across bridge to William, south to Kent, east to Lindsay and counter-marched to market square.

The return trip of the local lodges was without incident.

AN EARLY DEATH.

and Demise of Miss Margaret Breckenridge at Westwood

The funeral of Miss Margaret T. Breckenridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Breckenridge, of Ottonabee, took place to the Westwood cemetery on Sunday afternoon last. Miss Breckenridge had been confined to her bed since March with weakness of her heart, till on Friday morning last, death released her from her long illness.

The deceased had just entered upon the twentieth year of her life. During her brief life, cheerful disposition, and unselfish aims had won for herself a warm place in the hearts of her many acquaintances and had become a general favorite among her more intimate friends. During the many weeks of her illness she bore with Christian patience and meekness the burden laid upon her and through an unflinching trust in her Saviour, whom having not seen yet she loved, was quite prepared when the great change came.

The deceased will be greatly missed throughout the community, while at her own home the vacant chair must remain unfilled. In this sad hour of bereavement the tenderest sympathy of their many friends is extended towards the sorrowing family.

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 14 1898

PRICE TWO CENTS

A DECISIVE MOVEMENT

Will be Taken Against Santiago To-day at 12 o'clock Unless Surrendered Before that Time

Washington, July 13.—The War Department this afternoon made public the following statement concerning the condition of things in the hospitals. Near Santiago on the 11th of July a telegram was received from Lt. Col. Pope, chief surgeon of Shafter's army, informing the Surgeon-General that there were fourteen cases of yellow fever in the field hospital which had been established for the care of such cases. Since that time information has been received that a number of additional cases have occurred. Every effort will be made to arrest the progress of the disease by the establishment of isolation hospitals in which the sick will be treated by immune surgeons and cared for by immune nurses.

GERMAN OPPOSITION.
Washington, July 13.—The Navy Department has received from Admiral Dewey the following despatch.—

Agustino informs me his troops have taken all of Subey Bay except Isla Grand, which he was prevented from taking by the German man-of-war Irene on July 7th. The Raleigh and Concord went there, took the island and about 1300 men, with arms and ammunition, with no resistance. The Irene retired from the Bay on their arrival. I shall send the boat on to Cape Engano about July 16 to second army detachment. It is not practicable to send to Juamu. No transport vessel is available. (Signed) Dewey.

INCENDIARY PROJECTILES.
Madrid, July 13.—The newspapers here publish a statement to the effect that the Spanish Minister of Marine has secured proofs that the Americans used incendiary projectiles, the burning of the Spanish ships at Cavite and Santiago de Cuba. Some of the papers urge the Government "not to protest to the powers on this subject, but to use the same weapons on Spanish ports against American ships."

CRISIS AT HAND.
Washington, July 13.—While the large expected fall of Santiago. Did not take place to-day it is evident that the crisis has been reached. Within the next twenty-four hours Santiago will either surrender or receive such a baptism of fire as seldom falls to the lot of a besieged town. If he refuses I will open on him at 12 noon, to-morrow with every gun and I have the assistance of the navy, which is ready to bombard the city with 13-inch shells.

This is the program laid down by Gen. Shafter and it is to the latter according to the War Department officials, although despatches have been received from Major-General Miles, signed Major-General, commanding. It is said that he has not displaced Gen. Shafter in direct charge of the operations.

The public, in one of these telegrams from Gen. Miles, was given first notice that the Government in the course of negotiations with Gen. Toral had offered to send the Spanish forces in Santiago back to Spain. A few days ago it was stated that the President would insist upon unconditional surrender, but it appears that conditions had been modified. This was done from a desire to avoid useless bloodshed, for Gen. Toral's army removed to Spain would be harmless to prevent further operations in Cuba and would serve as good a purpose as would the destruction of the Spanish army. To allow the Spanish General to withdraw to the interior and fall back on Havana, on the other hand, would put the Americans under the obligation of overcoming that additional force when it comes to the siege of Havana.

as dictators in her place. The present Queen Regent, however, cannot be said to have any share in the present misfortunes of Spain. Her sole mistake has been a too strict obedience of the constitution, and a too honorable observance of her oath to observe its stipulations.

A FORCED ATTACK.
Washington, July 13.—It is given out from well-informed people that the War Department has requested a forced attack on Santiago, and news of the fall of the city is expected this evening. It is said that President McKinley has lost all patience with the inaction of the army, and issued the order this morning.

HE WANTS A SUBSTITUTE.
New York, July 13.—The Tribune prints the following from its London correspondent.—
"Madrid has taken the defeat of Cervera so quietly that peace is now possible without risks of revolution. Sagasta is not willing to sacrifice his political reputation by proposing peace under hard conditions. He is bent upon having some convenient substitute incur the unpopularity. When peace has been made he will return to office and die in harness."

There is great interest here in the conditions of peace which the United States may propose, and there will be general disappointment if a war indemnity based upon the Philippines is so merged that either France or Germany can raise the money and obtain possession of the islands. It is believed here that the Europeans will not intervene in any way unless a high indemnity be proposed. In that event the powers may use their diplomatic offices for obtaining the reduction of the indemnity.

FOR THE U. S. TO DECIDE.
New York, July 13.—A despatch from Madrid to the World by way of Havre, says: "The crisis which the revolutionary parties expect for has come at last. To use the words of a leading Liberal member of the Cabinet:—'Strange to say, it is the United States that has to decide whether, by imposing on the monarchist parties generally hard conditions of peace, a revolution of the Republics, the military and populace shall take place with a Carlist rising and civil war in its wake.'"

"Should America be generous and meet us half way, we would assent to the independence of Cuba and a war indemnity, it not so heavy as to cripple the restoration of our finances and credit."

"Naturally in the Philippines we would not attempt to re-establish the old system of things, but we might devise some scheme of autonomy, coupled with a commercial regime acceptable to the United States and European powers."

"The only thing we cannot understand is any American design against our rule in Porto Rico, the natives of which never opposed Spanish authority."

"If America by too hard conditions drives us to despair and a prolonged resistance, she must be prepared to face complications in Europe which are sure to arise from her aggressions."

"Complications are sure to arise also from her having to undertake to rule and protect and maintain order in Cuba and the Philippines after we lose them."

A QUESTION OF HOURS.
New York, July 13.—A despatch to the World from Madrid says it is the belief here in official circles that the probability is that direct overtures for peace will be made to the United States and that it is only a question of hours when this will be done.

The Queen is as anxious as the Ministers to come to terms if the United States is not too exacting. Otherwise the war party is sure to have its own way.

WHAT THE CRISIS PROVES.
New York, July 13.—A despatch to the World from Vienna says: "The Spanish Ambassador at Vienna to-day described the situation as follows to the World correspondent:—'Peace negotiations are neither being carried on nor immediately are to be expected. The Cabinet crisis proves this, as the new Government is to be appointed expressly to conclude peace.'"

"Polavieja is the most likely man to form a military Cabinet for the sole purpose of maintaining order and concluding an honorable peace. It is better that this should be trusted to him than to a statesman who is no soldier."

"Martinez Campos is considered unsuitable because he is too much a prey to party feelings."

"America's peace conditions will no doubt be supported by Europe, desirous of peace at any price. Spain therefore greatly objects to European interference. Spain is firmly resolved not to give up a port in the Canary Islands, for fear of having another Gibraltar to regret."

humanity, and offered to hand over to the Americans the refugees she had on board. Admiral Dewey, however, declined to accept them.

Governor-General Augusti has issued a proclamation promising to grant autonomy to the islands and offering the insurgents inducements to join the Spanish forces. General Aguineldo, the insurgent leader, in reply, said the overtures of the Spanish commander came too late.

HEAVY FIRING OFF MANILA.
Manila, July 7, via Hong Kong, July 13.—The insurgents yesterday made vigorous attacks on the Spaniards from all sides with little result. They shelled the Spanish barracks and trenches north of Manila and captured the Spanish guns at Santa Mesa.

There was a furious musketry fire all night long at San Juan, Santa Ana, Pao and Pasay, the Spanish replying with artillery and musketry. The insurgent artillery is not yet operating. About four hundred native militia at Santa Ana have joined the insurgents. The insurgents have rushed the Alibate entrenchments, pushing forward to the walls of the fort, but they had to retire at daylight. It is probable that both sides lost one hundred men each. The Americans and the insurgents are acting independently, both conducting their operations and hoping to evolve an agreement afterwards.

The extent and duration of General Aguineldo's influence is uncertain. But, it is certain that the Moha-medans of the south archipelago are in a state of confusion and that the islands of Luzon and other regions are content to use Aguineldo until the Spaniards are expelled, when there will be a state of chaos unless a strong force of Americans assume control of the islands.

The Americans are postponing operations until they are fully prepared for any contingency. The natives are proving intractable. About thirty thousand Americans are expected here shortly, which would enable them to effectively control the whole of the Philippine islands.

In the meanwhile there are differences between the insurgent chiefs and Aguineldo. The latter is reported to be aware that he cannot capture Manila without the Americans, but the majority of his followers think he should try to do so.

It is reported that Anichio and four other northern Philippine leaders who supported Aguineldo during the last insurrection, until they quarrelled over sharing the plunder, when the Spaniards are said to have bribed them to leave the country, have now returned from Hong Kong, desiring to rejoin Aguineldo, but have been imprisoned and charged with treachery. If this turns out to be the case, it is liable to alienate the insurgents of the northern island, who are the best fighters.

BRITAIN TAKES A HAND.
Victoria, B. C., July 13.—In response to the request of United States Consul Hudley, of Vancouver, Admiral Palliser, commanding the British Pacific squadron, stationed at Esquimalt, has despatched Her Majesty's ship Amphion, a second-class cruiser, and the ship of war Leurus, mounting one gun, to cruise the waters of the north to search for the privateer which, according to reports that have reached the ears of the consul, is hidden in the vicinity of Dixon's Entrance, through which the treasure ships pass on their way south.

The fleet was at Vancouver in connection with the celebration, and citizens there were surprised yesterday to see the men-of-war hoist their anchors and slip off to sea. Inquiries were made, and according to the naval authorities, the admiral directed them on the information received, to take steps to prevent any holding up of ships for the purpose of looting. Although probably only American ships would be stopped, the injury would not be confined to them, as many of the crews on board with gold would be British subjects.

THREE TRAINMEN SHOT
Tramps Use a Revolver On the Crew of a Soo Train

Two Men Badly Wounded—Engine-Driver Is Compelled at the Point of the Revolver to Uncouple and Carry Them Away

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 13.—A singularly shooting affray occurred on the eastbound "Soo" line accommodation yesterday afternoon at Defter, about eight miles from here, in which three trainmen were wounded. Two tramps who had been put off the train at Kinross got on again and were ejected. At Defter, the next station, one of them turned on the crew, with a revolver, shooting Arthur Clarke, a brakeman, through the hip; Theo. Melby, a brakeman, through the shoulder, and Frank Fuller, an express messenger, through the arm. The desperado then went to the engine, and at three points of a revolver compelled the fireman to uncouple the engine, which they boarded, and they then forced the engineer to take them four miles from Defter, when they alighted and made good their escape. A posse is after them. The wounds of Clarke and Melby are dangerous, and they will have a close call from death.

THE TRIUMPH OF TARTE
Montreal, July 13.—The last kick of the anti-Tarte element in French-Canadian Liberalism will have been made shortly. Mr. Cleophas Beausoleil, M. P., Mr. Tarte's most vigorous opponent, among the Liberals of the Montreal district, is to be appointed to the Police Magistracy of Montreal. Judge Dugas, the present holder of the office, will get a lucrative appointment in the Northwest.

It is understood that Mr. Beausoleil is quite willing to accept the Police Magistracy, and that with his disappearance from the political field, will die the last opposition to Mr. Tarte's ascendancy in the Liberal party.

ASHBURNHAM BY-LAW.

A few Reasons why the Citizens should Vote for it.

SPLENDID FIRE PROTECTION

Will be Afforded the Village when the Work is Completed.

$1500 of the $15000 to go towards Liquidating the Present Municipal Indebtedness and the balance for Water—A Good Bargain with the Water Company.

On Wednesday next the ratepayers of the Village of Ashburnham will be called upon to vote for or against a by-law approving of a contract with the Peterborough Water Company, to provide for the issue of debentures for the sum of $15,000 for the construction of water mains in the village. The by-law is the most important one ever brought before the people of Ashburnham. That a corporation of the size and possessing the wealth of Ashburnham should be dependent on Peterborough for fire protection, is not wise, to put it mildly. There are many reasons why the by-law should carry. The contract with the Water Company is all in favor of the village. It provides for 12 hydrants and nearly two miles of mains. This will cover the whole village pretty thoroughly. The Company is to do all street work—that is, when a service is desired, application is made in the usual way, when the work is done from the main to the edge of the property. The revenue is to be divided equally between the Company and the village. The village is to pay the Company five per cent per annum for water for fire purposes on the total cost of the mains, which will cost, it is estimated about $8,000. This will entail an annual charge of $400, a trifling over $33 per hydrant per annum. When we explain that the town pays the Company $35 per hydrant for 123 hydrants, it will be apparent that the Council has carefully guarded the people's interests. Then again, the village is to receive one-half the revenue from domestic and lawn services, while in Peterborough the Company gets it all.

While $15,000 is asked it is not intended to use more than $8,000 in constructing a water system; the balance will be used to wipe out a large floating debt on which 6 per cent interest is being paid. This in itself is important, and will effect a considerable saving.

The Times is anxious to see the by-law carried, because we believe it will be a good thing for the people. It will give ample fire protection; reduce the rate of insurance; give beautiful lawns and well watered streets, to say nothing of the advantage it will be to have water for domestic purposes.

THAT STOLEN VESSEL

The Crew of the Redfin seem to Have no Fear of Being Brought to Justice

Philipsburg, Que., July 13.—The schooner Redfin, seized for violation of the Canadian fishery laws, and put on Sunday night and taken to Vermont, now lies at anchor off Missisquoi Park, Highgate Springs. There appears to be no attempt at concealment, and evidently no fear on the part of the crew that they will be brought to justice.

Mr. P. E. Luke, the officer who made the seizure about one month ago, has written a report of the case, and transmitted it to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa.

During the early part of June the schooner came up from Highgate Springs, and proceeded on a fishing tour up Pike River in Missisquoi County Que. No entry was made at the Customs house at Philipsburg. Upon returning the schooner anchored off the village, and there the seizure was made, on the grounds of violation of the fishery laws.

The owner of the schooner is said to be Capt. Jonas, now of Highgate, Vt. The fine imposed had not been paid, and the schooner would soon have been advertised and sold.

Arrangements for a contest between J. W. Corbett and K. M. C. v. to take place in Buffalo Aug. 29th, are made without a hitch, it should attract a record-breaking crowd of sports to the city across the border.

Liver Trouble

When the yellow flag of quarantine is hoisted over a dwelling it means disease and danger. So when the yellow flag flies in the face—when the cheek is sallow and the clear white of the eye is dyed saffron—there is danger. It is liver trouble. The liver is one of the most important organs of the body. On the proper discharge of its functions depend human health and happiness. When the liver fails of its duty, poisons at once begin to generate, and other organs of the body become involved. Never neglect the liver if you value health. If you are suffering from liver trouble, begin at once the use of AYER'S PILLS and you will find prompt relief and permanent cure.

"I was so weakened by liver trouble that I could scarcely lift my head. While in this condition I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued their use until I was cured of my complaint."

PUBLISH THE ROLLS.

The City Council of Winnipeg have arranged to publish the assessment roll of the city for the information of the citizens in general. In view of the prevailing and almost unanimous desire on the part of the citizens to see the assessment roll of Peterborough, the Council would be doing a wise act if it followed the example set by the western city. There are, doubtless, many assessments inequalities which can only be discovered by the publication of the roll. Of course every citizen who chooses to do so may go to the Town Clerk's office and scan the rolls, but every ratepayer is not likely to go to that trouble. The publication of the roll in the daily papers of the town would however, bring the matter right before the eyes of the public, and the taxpayer would be satisfied.

TO BIG A TASK TO GET GAY ABOUT.

The thoughtful citizens of the United States have need to do some high thinking while this war is on the boards. Their brethren, the jingoes, are applauding widely. The new policy of colonial expansion, imperialism, foreign conquest and what-not fill their imaginations with the blaze of the spectacular. And there are few left to count the cost.

The Hon. James Bryce, historian and student of political science, has counted it. President Cleveland and Speaker Reed have counted it, John Morley, M. P., has summed it up and warned the United States. There is the burden of militarism that must be borne. And the spectacle of France acquiescing in a perversion of justice demanded by its army, is a warning to the United States.

There are no advantages to be gained, for the States have no need of foreign conquests and no need of colonies. The Republic is still so far from colonizing that it is yet the favored haven for immigration from the crowded European countries. Foreign conquests will be a menace to peace, a costly folly, dangerous and useless.

It is pleaded that the trade of the Republic would find new markets. New markets, when the old have been closed against it by a continued policy of excessive protection? And if the exclusive trade of the Philippines is coveted, the exclusive trade of Cuba, the United States will learn what Spain has learned, that a colony cannot be governed solely for the benefit of the mother country, or its trade diverted from the natural channel.

Altogether, the Republic has a treacherous road to travel, and it is unfortunate that the alluring glory of conquest has become a will-o-the-wisp to lead the fighter minds astray.

War spoils men for steady work afterwards. It is always difficult for them to settle down at their old job again. It was the American war of thirty odd years ago that produced the great army of tramps that spread over the land, and it was that same war that was largely responsible for the Fenian raid, so many ex-soldiers who hated England being ready to strike her through Canada. Nearly every Fenian had served in the American war.

The Mail and Empire alleges that Mr. Hardy "is considering the advisability of calling a meeting of his leading supporters in the Province in order to discuss the political situation with them."

The Mail says that the meeting will be held next month, but does not attempt to fix the date any nearer. There is no great reason why Mr. Hardy should not consult his leading supporters whenever he sees fit, but there seems to be no special reason why he should do so at present.

Foreign Secretary Carson told a member of the British House of Commons yesterday that the Canadian war correspondent, Freeman Halstead, might have his sentence of nine years' imprisonment mitigated. As it is, Halstead is receiving more humane treatment owing to the representations of the British Government. Halstead, it will be remembered, was arrested at Porto Rico for taking photographs of the fortifications. He asked the Spaniards to let him go, but seeing he was in photograph business they gave him a negative.

Last night's advices showed a continued probability of a deadlock in British Columbia. These advices credit the Government with seventeen seats, including two Independents. The Opposition has a fifteen. Alberta is claimed by both parties, and the elections in the two Cassiars will not be held for some time. Given all doubtful seats, the Government would have a majority of three. Without them it might not be able to elect a Speaker. General elections in British Columbia used to be pretty much of a Government snap, but the people of the coast province have outgrown that sort of thing.

A REMARKABLE CONTEST.

A sick woman's struggle to outlive an invader for her children's sake.

A remarkable case developed at Harrison, Ind., says The St. Louis Republic. Morgan Chandler, a banker and a resident of Greenfield, several weeks ago executed his will, dividing his large estate among his nearest relatives. Among them was Eliza Burton, to whom he had bequeathed $10,000, which she was to receive providing she was not living with her husband, Charles, at the time of the testator's death, she having married Burton against his wishes. It was also stated in the will that, should the testator survive the piece, the bequest was to go to the legatees named in the will, not to Burton nor his heirs.

Soon after the will was drawn Burton died, leaving Mrs. Burton to support the children, which she did, by taking in washing, sewing, etc. Several weeks ago the niece was taken ill, and at about the same time the wealthy uncle was also stricken. Both grew constantly worse. The neighbors and friends of the widow took great interest, wishing her to survive the uncle, having learned the provisions of the will. Gr. onfield and Morristown have telephone connections, and the friends of the widow were kept constantly informed as to the condition of the uncle. Both patients grew weaker. At times the mother would seem to be breathing but her inspirations would be administered and she would revive, or long enough to enquire as to the condition of her relative, when she would return to a comatose state. This was continued thirty-six hours, and all hopes of prolonging her life were virtually abandoned. Finally a message came that Mrs. Burton had reduced the tortures of death long enough to secure a fortune for her children. They were summoned to her bedside, and with a blessing upon them she closed her eyes and passed away. Cashier McDonald of the Union Bank has been appointed their guardian.

The New Millionaire.

I ran across a new millionaire the other day whose name I had a right to in the papers. I found him and his family in a little room from whose windows one could see the lake. The living that my friend Alden made would have been a fortune to a king. This was printed this little poem of Lusy Larcom's:

"ALL THINGS ARE MINE."
"I do not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchard and the mowing-field,
The lawn and garden due;
The winds my tax-collectors are,
They bring me tribute due;
Wild scents and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all,
My windows keep for me
A glimpse of blue luminosity,
A little strip of sea!"

The Speedy Razorback.

A wild bear hunt was the exciting sport a number of the young men of South Jacksonville had looked forward to last week with a great deal of pleasure. The wild bear was a razorback hog. He was installed in a pen and fed with red pepper, gunpowder and dynamite, and became as fierce as his reputed cousin of the Black Forest.

On the day of the hunt a cavalcade assembled at the meeting place armed with javelins and spears made of bamboo with hunting knives tied to the end. The wild bear was liberated and trotted away into the woods. He appeared a half-contented, inquisitive, where's-the-rest-of-my-family sort of a squeal with no thought of the pursuers who spurred and whipped their horses into furious pursuit. The wild bear trotted along—just simply and coolly trotted. He didn't look as if he was going, but the gait soon distanced the pursuers, and they were robbed of the pleasure of "jabbing" him full of bolts.—Florida Times Union.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduces the music of hands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up. Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Edison and Gramophone. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

AN INDIAN CRADLE SONG.

Swing thee low in thy cradle soft, Deep in the dusky wood! Swing thee low and swing aloft—Sleep as a papoose should. For safe in your little birchen nest Quiet will come and peace and rest, If the little papoose is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold, And the owl hoots in the tree, And the big moon shines on the little child As it slumbers peacefully. So swing thee high in thy little nest And swing thee low and take the rest That the night wind brings to thee!

Father lies on the fragrant ground, Dreaming of hunt and fight, And the pine leaves rustle with mournful sound.

All through the solemn night: But the little papoose in his birchen nest Is swinging low as he takes his rest, Till the sun brings the morning light. —Southern Workman.

BY CHARLES B. LEWIS.

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the brig sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I swung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past. I may have been overcareless or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float, when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift up my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself inboard. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I knew by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point; next, she had been floating about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her decks, but masts and yards and boats and booms had gone clear off her side. She had settled down until her scupper holes were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper.

As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Brest. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a forecabin ship instead of having a deckhouse for the men. The cabin or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the forecabin were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuit in tins. I wanted water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went on deck and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As near as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 8,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was noon before I began an examination of the lazarette to see how I should fare for provisions. I found flour, wines, tins of butter, preserves, boxes of biscuit, choice bacon, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storehouse, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the men. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the forecabin, I found boots, oilskins, sou'westers and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boats. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had scarcely glanced around the horizon and given no thought to rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.

When morning came again I made a more thorough investigation of the cabin. In rear of the captain's stateroom I chanced upon a closet which had escaped me the day before, and here I made a great find. There was about $1,000 in French gold and notes, $1,200 in English goldpieces and exactly $7,000 in goldpieces just struck off at the Australian mints. The money was in two tin boxes, but whether it belonged to the ship, her captain or to other people I could not determine. It was a big fortune to a poor sailor, and I remember that I acted very foolishly over the find. I counted it over and over again, and when I at last realized that I was rich I rushed on deck with a wild hope of seeing a sail close at hand. But for the money I believe that the long days and nights which followed would have been rather contentful for me, isolated as the situation was. I had plenty to eat and drink, there was nothing to break my sleep, the wreck might drive where she would, but there was no danger of her going down. The discovery of the money was followed by a hope of rescue, and this again by worry and anxiety. I wanted to go ashore to enjoy my wealth. I feared that when rescue did come I should be robbed. I conjured up a thousand senseless fears, and the upshot was anything but beneficial. I have spoken of the general situation in a careless way. As a matter of fact, being a navigator, I took observations regularly when the weather permitted and picked off the drift of the wreck off the chart. On the average the weather was fine, but there were days and nights when gale and sea tumbled the waterlogged craft about until only a sailor could have lived through it. Instead of lifting her the waves ran over her, and at such times the decks were two feet under water and the cabin was flooded. The cargo was afloat with the water in the hold, and as the wreck rolled and pitched the timbers rubbed together and produced noises which would have frightened landmen into fits.

I kept an accurate reckoning, and I had been on the wreck just 49 days when I caught sight of my first sail. No doubt ships had passed and repassed me by day and night, but I could get no signal by day and from the first I slept all through the night. This sail was discovered early one morning, coming up from the south, and her course was such that she must see me. I had put the money into bags and the bags into bundles of clothing in view of a rescue, and therefore had nothing to do but wait. The stranger, which proved to be an English merchantman bound for India, but considerably off her course, was within four miles of me and had set a signal to gladden my heart when a big whale suddenly broke water close to the wreck. He was followed half a minute later by a second, which attacked him with great fury. The monsters put up a terrific battle, lashing and biting each other and kicking up a sea like a gale of wind. They at first drew away from me, but after a few minutes made a circle which brought them back. What I had feared from the first came to pass after a quarter of an hour. Half blinded by pain and fury, or feeling itself overmatched and desirous of getting away, one of the whales suddenly whirled about and came for the wreck head on. He was fully 60 feet long, and he came like a moving mountain. I made sure of my hold as I saw him coming, but he struck the wreck on her port side with such force that I was thrown across the deck and into the sea beyond. I heard the crash of planks and timbers, was tossed about by the waves, rubbed against the whale as he sounded and reached the surface to find the wreck a hull no longer. It was simply a heap of floating debris. The strange ship drew nearer, lowered a boat, and I was picked up as I clung to a plank. The money was gone, all else but the timbers which composed the cargo had disappeared, and my adventure, surprising as it had begun, had ended in a manner strange enough to satisfy even the most imaginative novelist. I was carried to India by the rescuing ship, and I know that the French consul at Calcutta set inquiries on foot regarding the fate of the crew of the Marie. What they amounted to I never learned, but have always felt satisfied that all perished when their craft was dismasted. But for the fight between the whales I believe the brig could have been pumped out and sailed into port, but fortune is a jade who robs Jack Tar far oftener than she smiles upon him.

A Friendly Point.

Jinks—What! You don't mean to say you are engaged to the beautiful Miss de Pink?

Blinks—Yes, I do. Got engaged to her last night. This afternoon I am to bring her into town. She wants to go to an optician's, I believe. New pair of glasses or something. She is nearsighted, you know.

Jinks—I say, old fellow, just slip round to that optician's and bribe him not to give her any better glasses than she has.—London Tit-Bits.

A Drop in Coal
Those in Peterborough and elsewhere who have contracted for their winter's coal will not be pleased when they learn that a big drop has taken place in the price of anthracite coal. A cut has been made by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, which has issued an open circular announcing a reduction in the quoted prices of stove size, from $4.50 to $4 per ton. The only reason given is a desire to work off the very large stock on hand. It will result to the benefit of the consumers, but it is hard on the retail dealers.

A New Plant
Mr. C. B. McAllister, with his well known business energy and enterprise, has lately made a change in the character of the equipment of the Ottonabee mill, Ashburnham, which is deserving of notice as it makes the establishment one of the most complete and efficient milling properties in Ontario. Mr. McAllister has remodelled the premises and machinery, and substituting the more up-to-date and scientific bolting system. The change was made at an expense of about $2,500, the work being done by contract by the Stratford Mill Building Co. The mill has now been started under the new system and is doing a very high class of work.

Mr. Whitten bid 7 3/8c. for the next and those accepting were Keene, Melrose Abbey, Fleetwood, Oakdale, and Darlington Union. A number of buyers called out 7 3/8c. for the next but Mr. Hodgson bid 7 7/16 and of Trewern, Cavanville, Central Smith, Lang and Peterborough. Mr. Jones bid 7 3/8 for the next and named a number of factories. Billyduff alone accepting. Mr. Whitten bid 7 7/16 and secured Shearer and Ormonde. Mr. Cook bid 7 1/4c, and Mr. Rollins 7 3/8c. Mr. Hodgson complained against Mr. W. H. Wrighton holding the position of arbitrator or inspector for the factories and at the same time acting as a buyer on the Board. Mr. Bailey supported him in this, while Mr. Cluxton and Mr. Riddell, the secretary, declared that they had every confidence in Mr. Wrighton. Mr. Cluxton stating that he would not have his cheese inspected by anyone else. The matter was dropped without any action being taken.

ADDITIONAL HOTEL LICENSES

A Petition not Entertained by the Board of Commissioners

A meeting of the License Commissioners of West Peterborough was held at their offices yesterday morning, when a petition asking for the issue of licenses to the Southern and Royal Oak hotels, which were included in the system of reduction imposed by the amended License Law, was considered. The petition set forth that the granting of these licenses were necessary in the interests of accommodation to the farmers frequenting the market. After a consideration of the petition, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That whereas the recent amendment to the License Law provides for the reduction of the licenses in Peterborough from 24 to 17, and provides for the reduction by the cutting of four this year and three next year, and inasmuch as the Government of the Dominion will have a plebiscite taken on prohibition early this fall, and inasmuch as the public have no experience as to whether these additional licenses are absolutely required or not, and seeing that three additional ones have to be cut out next year, it is thought desirable not to further consider the petition presented on behalf of the "Southern" and Royal Oak hotels at the present time, but to wait another year so as to enable your board to see whether these licenses are absolutely required in the interests of the farmers and travelling public.

FATAL SHOOTING ACCIDENT

A Two-Year Old Son of Mr. Geo. C. Wiers, Apaley, Accidentality Shot

A sad accident happened near Apaley last Friday, the 8th. A son of Mr. Geo. C. Wiers had got his father's rifle down from the barn where it usually hung, and there were some cartridges in the magazine. By working the lever he managed to load the gun and it went off, killing his little brother, aged about two years, who was playing on the floor a short distance away. The ball passed completely through the shoulder, lodging in the wall. He died before assistance could be procured, though from the terrible nature of the wound nothing could have saved his life. The boy who had the rifle is about nine years old. The parents have the sincere sympathy of the community in their sudden and sad bereavement.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

BASEBALL.

The Spanish-American was making serious inroads into the integrity of the Eastern League, as the attendance in the different cities indicate. Although the race for the pennant is the closest in the history of the League, nevertheless a majority of the clubs are losing heavily, and at a recent meeting of the managers it was deemed necessary to reduce the salaries 20 percent. As a result a great many of the best players are giving up the game, preferring to remain idle than play for a small remuneration.

Now that Ottawa has got Rochester's franchise in the Eastern League, Canadian interest in the game will be divided, they now having three teams in the League.

LACROSSE.

The team to represent Peterborough in their match with Midland was picked last evening.

The game between the Beavers of Seaford and the Dufferins of Orangeville, which took place at Orangeville Tuesday—won by the latter 3 to 1—was a clean, scientific exhibition of game. Both teams were well pleased with the work of Lionel King as referee. Lionel is making quite a name for himself as a referee, both in lacrosse and hockey.

Tweed defeated Marmora 3 to 1 at the former place on July 1st.

The Toronto News says Green, of last year's Midlands, and formerly of Peterborough, is out with the T.A.C. twelve, and will be of immense strength to this team.

ACQUATIC.

With Ten Eyck in the professional ranks sculling will receive a stimulus, for a race between Gaudar and the winner of the Diamond Sculls would awake world-wide interest.

B. H. Howell, the young American, who won the Diamond Sculls at Henley this year, is very popular in the old country. He not only won the sculls, but also established a new record for the course, his time being 8 min. 29 sec.

THE WHEEL.

At the C.W.A. meet here McLeod won $65 and three championship medals valued at $25 each; Carman, $65; McCarthy, $45 and a tandem championship medal; Davidson, $10 and Green, a tandem championship medal. The C.W.A. gave of the receipts at the meet amounted to $178 and Grady $77.

A Successful Trip.

A large crowd of pleasure-seekers took advantage of the regular trip on the North Star yesterday.

The boat left the river and view the famous Serpents' Mounds. The boat left the dock at 9:15 and proceeded to Idyl Wild, where she made a short stay and then went on to the mounds. Here the party disembarked and spent considerable time in examining the mounds which greatly interested them. They expressed surprise on learning that very few Peterborough people visited this interesting place. Mr. Green, of Chicago, was among the number.

The boat returned to town about 7:30, everyone having enjoyed themselves immensely.

A New Church.

The officers of the Bethany Mission have decided to erect a new church and have spent considerable time in looking for a suitable site and have at length selected the property next to Mr. J. J. Howden's property on George street. The officers have practically settled on figures with the managers of the Burnham estate, but the selection of the site and the agreement will have to be ratified by the church members before the bargain can be closed.

The lot under consideration has a frontage of fifty-five feet with a depth of about one hundred and ten feet. If the lot is purchased, as it is altogether likely it will be, building will be proceeded with this season and a fine brick structure will be erected, which will, no doubt, be a great improvement to the block and a creditable addition to Peterborough's churches.

Bruin's Sweet Tooth.

The warmest meal on record was eaten a few nights ago in the township of Chatham, as related to a Times reporter by a gentleman from that section. The feaster was a member of the Bruin family, and beehives loaded with honey and living, stinger-loaded honey makers was the bill of fare. The hives belonged to Mr. Alex. Smith and were standing in his yard. Their delicious honey attracted the bear and tempted him beyond resistance, and his weapons notwithstanding. Mr. Bruin was not at all backward at helping himself, and when the feast was over he had swallowed the honey and bees of one hive and part of those of a second. He left nothing to tell the tale except his footprints on the sand, the partly demolished hives and the home and the remainder of the honey together with Mr. Smith, who is busy explaining how it happened and congratulating himself upon his fortunate escape.

The Meteor in the Sky.

The Astronomical and Physical Society held a very interesting meeting at the Technical school, Toronto, Tuesday evening. A quantity of correspondence was read from a number of people who had seen the meteor on July 8th, and the president of the Society, Mr. Hurvey, presented his report on the occurrence.

The president stated that as far as he had been able to calculate, the meteor, which was of iron and apparently on its way to the sun, had come into the earth's influence about one hundred miles vertically above Lake Seagow, and had then described a curve of about three hundred miles, bursting over Lake Huron. Mr. Harvey believed that the mass was about two or three feet in diameter, and weighed probably more than a ton. It was oblong in shape and travelled at the rate of thirty miles a second. Peterborough was the farthest point east where a loud noise was heard when the meteor burst.

The correspondents described it variously as being of a red, yellow and orange color. Many sketches were sent with the letters, and the society feels obliged to those who have furnished information in the matter.

Sunday Traffic on the Midland
The G.T.R. is experiencing another heavy run of traffic in grain from Midland, and all day Sunday long trains with two engines attached to each pass through town. Early last Sunday afternoon as one of these trains was passing along near Lorneville Junction the driver noticed an obstruction on the track some distance ahead. On pulling up he found several lies across the track, evidently put there by some persons averse to Sunday train-running. This is a poor way for the exponents of Sunday rest and quiet to advocate their principles.

To Our Havelock Friends
Mr. Alex. Couch, who spent two or three days in Havelock recently, securing information for a write-up of the village, has not been able to complete his work on account of some little hitch in having the paper taken east on the early freight train which leaves here at five each morning. This difficulty has now been successfully arranged, and the work of canvassing in the village will be proceeded with in a few days—as soon as Mr. Couch finishes his canvass of Ashburnham. We have not thought it well to send any copies of the paper until the early delivery is installed, which will be in a few days.

Belleville in Line

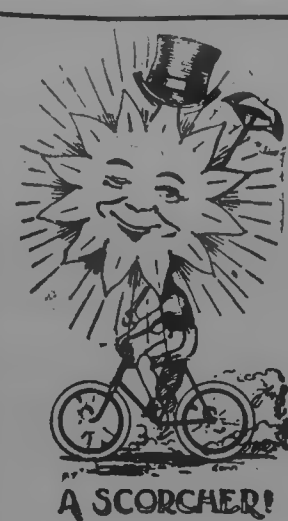

Ald. Denmark gave notice at Monday night's meeting of the Belleville city council of a by-law which provides that the city council shall consist of the mayor and one alderman for each 1,000 inhabitants, to be elected by the ratepayers of the whole city. This by-law, which is proposed to be submitted to the people for their approval at the earliest possible date, will no doubt be passed by the ratepayers, who have twice voted for a reduction in the number of wards—and of aldermen—but without effect. The by-law is along the line of one adopted by Peterborough ratepayers a week ago.

SPANIARDS SURRENDER

30,000 Spaniards to Leave Eastern Cuba as Prisoners of War—Latest Despatches

Washington, July 14.—The War Department has received the following despatch from Gen. Miles, written apparently before the final surrender of Santiago at three o'clock:—

Playo del Este, July 14.—Secretary of War, Washington.—Before Santiago, July 14.—General Tonal formally surrendered the troops of his army, troops and division of Santiago on the terms and understanding that his troops shall be returned to Spain. General Shafter will appoint commissioners to draw up the conditions of arrangements for carrying out the terms of surrender. This is highly gratifying and General Shafter and the officers and men of command are entitled to great credit for their sincerity and fortitude in overcoming the almost insuperable obstacles which they encountered. A portion of the army has been infected with yellow fever and efforts will be made to separate those who are infected and those free from it and to keep those who are still on board ship separated from those on shore. Arrangements will be immediately made for carrying out further instructions of the President and yourself.

(Signed) Nelson A. Miles,

Major-General of the Army.

General Wheeler's headquarters, before Santiago de Cuba, July 13, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 14, 1:30 p.m.—It appears that on Monday General Shafter did not again demand the unconditional surrender which General Tonal had refused on Sunday, but he offered as an alternative proposition to accept the capitulation of the enemy and to transport the Spanish officers and troops to Spain, they to leave all their arms behind and there to accept their parole. It was this proposition which General Tonal declined yesterday. This morning it was decided to hold a personal interview with Gen. Tonal.

Gen. Miles and his staff, who got no further than General Shafter's headquarters last night, accompanied by General Shafter and his staff rode out to the front shortly before three o'clock under a flag of truce. A request for a personal interview was made and acceded to, and at about nine o'clock General Miles, General Shafter, General Wheeler, General Gilmore, General Moros, Captain Wiley and Colonel M. S. rode up, passed over our entrenchments and went down into the valley beyond. They were met by General Tonal and his Chief of Staff under a spreading mango tree at the bottom of the valley, about half way between the lines. The interview that followed lasted almost an hour. The situation was placed frankly before General Tonal, and he was offered the alternative of being sent home and with his garrison or leaving Santiago province. The only conditions imposed was that he should not destroy the existing fortifications and should leave his arms behind. This latter condition the Spanish General, who does not speak English, explained through his interpreter, was impossible. He said the laws of Spain gave a General no discretion. He might abandon a place when he found it untenable, but he could not leave his arms behind without subjecting himself to the penalty of being court-martialed and shot. His Government, he said, had granted him permission to evacuate Santiago. That was all. Further than that he was powerless to go.

ALL THE WOUNDED ARE HOME. Washington, July 14.—Information was received last night at the War Department that the hospital ship Santa Rosa sailed from Playa del Este for Fort Monroe with all of the remaining wounded officers and men—70 in number—can be removed with safety at this time. Every wounded man who could possibly be sent to the United States is either already here or is en route to this country.

THE POWERS MAY INTERFERE. London, July 14.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says: "The German press is actively discussing the future of the Philippines. The difficulties arising out of the present state of things—of which it is asserted the American hardly take sufficient account—may soon assume alarming proportions, such as may finally necessitate the intervention of powers whose commercial interests in the islands are affected."

STEERING FOR CARTAGENA. New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Gibraltar, Spain, says:—A steamer just arrived from the Mediterranean reports having sighted Admiral Camara's squadron steering in the direction of Cartagena. Gun practice was constantly carried on aboard the warships as long as they were in sight. The report that Commodore Watson's fleet is coming to Spain has caused great excitement and profound anxiety. The inhabitants of Ceuta and Algiers are leaving for inland towns. TO STRENGTHEN WATSON'S FLEET. New York, July 14.—A special to The Herald from Washington says:—Believing that the effects of the appearance of an American squadron on the Spanish coast will be in direct proportion to the strength of the fleet, Secretary Long and Naval Board have decided to strengthen Commodore Watson's command by an additional armoured, and probably three or four protected and unprotected cruisers.

Washington, July 14.—Among the best informed Administration officials the opinion is universal that the crisis of the Santiago campaign is at hand. It is deemed certain that to-day will witness either a desperate fight or an unconditional surrender, with the chances of both as evenly divided that there is scarcely a toss up between them. The war officials are hoping for a surrender of the city, and they generally believe that General Tonal will yield at the last moment rather than subject his men to a losing fight. He is evidently hesitating as to what course he shall pursue. Adjutant-General Corbin, commenting upon the situation this morning said:—"The soldier who hesitates is doomed."

General Shafter's command is now in excellent condition and spirits. Strong reinforcements have arrived and are at the front. The original force, under General Shafter, numbers about 16,000 men. Since July 1 the corps has been reinforced by the following:—General Duffield's brigade, 2,500 men; recruits for regular army, 950 men; 1st Illinois Infantry, 91 men; 1st District of Columbia Infantry, 853 men; 6th Light Battery, U. S. Artillery, 725 men; and Gen. Garretson's brigade, 3,903 men. Eliminating 3,000 General Shafter's sick, Shafter has now an available fighting force of 21,873 men.

HEAVY FIRING OFF MANILA.

Manila, July 7, via Hong Kong, July 13.—The insurgents yesterday made vigorous attacks on the Spaniards from all sides with little result. They shelled the Spaniards' positions and trenches north of Manila and captured the Spanish guns at Santa Mesa. There was a furious musketry fire all night long at San Juan, Santa Ana, Paco and Pasay, the Spanish replying with artillery and musketry. The insurgent artillery is not yet operating. About four hundred native militia at Santa Ana have joined the insurgents. The insurgents have rushed the Malate entrenchments, pushing forward to the walls of the fort, but they had to retire at daylight. It is probable that both sides lost one hundred men each. The Americans and the insurgents are acting independently, both conducting their own operations and hoping to evolve an agreement afterwards.

The extent and duration of General Aguinaldo's operations is uncertain. But it is certain that the Mohammedans of the south archipelago ignore him, and the insurgents of the island of Luzon and other regions are content to use Aguinaldo until the Spaniards are expelled, when there will be a state of chaos unless a strong force of Americans assume control of the islands.

The Americans are postponing operations until they are fully prepared for any contingency. The natives are proving intractable. Thirty thousand Americans are expected here shortly, which would enable them to effectively control the whole of the Philippine Islands.

In the meanwhile there are different views as to what we would do to the dependence of Cuba and a civil war. Should America be generous and even between the insurgent chiefs and Aguinaldo. The latter is reported to be aware that he cannot capture Manila without the Americans, but the majority of his followers think he can.

It is reported that Atencio and four other northern Philippine leaders who supported Aguinaldo during the last insurrection, until they quarrelled over sharing the plunder, when the Spaniards are said to have bribed them to leave the country, have now returned from Hong Kong desiring to rejoin Aguinaldo, but have been imprisoned and charged with treachery. If this turns out to be the case, it is liable to alienate the insurgents of the northern island, who are the best fighters.

BRITAIN TAKES A HAND.

Victoria, B. C., July 13.—In response to the request of United States Consul Dudley, of Vancouver, Admiral Palliser, commanding the British Pacific squadron, stationed at Esquimalt, has despatched Her Majesty's ship Amphion, a second-class cruiser, and a troop of war Laurus, mounting nine guns, to cruise the waters of the north to search for the privateer which, according to reports that have reached the ears of the consul, is hidden in the vicinity of Dixon's Entrance, where the treasure ships pass on their way south.

The fleet was at Vancouver in connection with the celebration, and citizens there were surprised yesterday to see the men-of-war hoist their anchors and slip off to sea. Inquiries were made, and according to the naval authorities, the admiral directed them, on the information received, to take steps to prevent any holding up of ships for the purpose of looting. Although probably only American ships have been reported, the injury would not be confined to them, as many of the miners on board with gold would be British subjects.

WHAT THE CRISIS PROVES.

New York, July 13.—A despatch to The World from Vienna says:—"The Spanish Ambassador at Vienna to-day described the situation as follows to the World correspondent:—"Peace negotiations are neither being carried on nor immediately are to be expected. The Cabinet crisis proves that, as the new Government is to be appointed expressly to conclude peace."

"Polavieja is the most likely man to form a military Cabinet for the sole purpose of maintaining order and concluding an honorable peace. It is believed here that the injury would not be confined to them, as many of the miners on board with gold would be British subjects."

A FORCED ATTACK.

Washington, July 13.—It is given out from well-informed people that the War Department has requested a forced attack on Santiago, and news of the fall of the city is expected this evening. It is said that President McKinley has lost all patience with the inaction of the army, and issued the order this morning.

German Interests Alleged as the Reason for the Step—Cervera Goes to Annapolis—Spanish Resources Drained 3,000 Men Hors De Combat.

New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says:—Germany positively has given to Spain assurance that she will take the lead among the European powers in exercising pressure to maintain Spanish rule in the Philippines, and in restricting America to a coaling station on Ponape Island, in the Caroline group. It is argued in Spain, contrary to the facts, that Germany's commercial interests in the Philippines are so important as to justify her interfering with the American plans at Manila. Yet official statistics published in Madrid show that Germany ranks seventh in the list of exports from the Philippines and fifth in the list of imports into these islands.

In 1896, before the insurrection, the exports to Germany were valued at $23,700, to Spain $1,500,000, to the United States nearly $5,000,000, to Great Britain $7,407,500, to Japan $1,387,000.

In the same period the imports into the Philippines from Germany were valued at $74,925, from Spain $7,300,000 owing to the protective tariff and high differential flag duties, from France $1,795,000, from Great Britain $2,667,000, and from the United States only $272,240. The Germans in the Philippine Islands are chiefly shopkeepers, bankers, and commission agents.

CERVERA GOES TO ANNAPOLIS.

Baltimore, Md., July 14.—The United States auxiliary cruiser St. Louis sailed for Annapolis at six o'clock this morning, having on board Admiral Cervera and the other Spanish officials captured at Santiago on July 3.

SPANISH RESOURCES DRAINED.

New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says:—"If the war party in Spain persists in its policy of the advance of the war and the powers, the Government will make known soon how scant are provisions and ammunition among the Spanish forces in Cuba and Porto Rico, on confession of the Government themselves. Moreover, it will publish a financial statement showing that all Spain's sources of supply have been drained, that all the advances made by the Bank of Spain are exhausted, and that the only resource now is to stop the payment of this interest on the sinking fund, and to issue treasury bonds at 6 and 7 per cent interest, with the double guarantee of the Spanish treasury and the Bank of Spain."

In the court and in official circles it is believed that if such extreme arguments are resorted to, the army will assent to peace. But General Blanco cannot undertake to procure the submission of the Spanish volunteers and irregulars in Cuba nor to disarm them. They in turn will not consent to the fact that the Spanish Government made peace they would fight on, guerilla fashion.

HE WANTS A SUBSTITUTE.

New York, July 13.—The Tribune prints the following from its London correspondent:—"Madrid has taken the defeat of Cervera so quietly that peace is now possible without risks of revolution. Signa is not willing to sacrifice his political reputation by proposing peace under hard conditions. He is bent upon having some convenient substitute incur the unpopularity. When peace has been made he will return to office and die in harness."

"There is great interest here in the conditions of peace which the United States may propose, and there will be general disappointment if a war indemnity based upon the Philippines be so meagre that either France or Germany can raise the money and obtain possession of the islands. It is believed here that the Europeans will not intervene in any way unless a high indemnity be proposed. In that event the powers may use their diplomatic offices for obtaining the reduction of the indemnity."

"Whether the indemnity be high or low, Spain, unaided, will never pay it; but unless it be a substantial one some European power will pay it, and then the United States will be compelled to withdraw from the Philippines, especially as Japan has retired from the mainland of China. England eagerly desires America to remain permanently in the Philippine."

A QUESTION OF HOURS.

New York, July 13.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says it is the belief here in official circles that the probability is that direct overtures for peace will be made to the United States and that it is only a question of hours when this will be done.

The Queen is as anxious as the Ministers to come to terms if the United States is not too exacting. Otherwise the war party is sure to have its own way.

EX-TREASURER WAS ARRESTED

Chas. E. Weldon Accused of Misappropriating Public Funds

Windsor, Ont., July 14.—Charles E. Weldon, ex-treasurer of the Township of Colchester North, was arrested yesterday on the charge of misappropriating funds belonging to the township. He had been treasurer for years, but had gradually dropped behind in his accounts, although this was not known by the taxpayers of the township. His resignation was filed in the year after his shortage had been discovered. A short time ago there was a meeting of the Council of the township ship, and it was at first decided to drop legal proceedings if the treasurer would pay the shortage. There was some hitch in the proceedings, and nothing was done until Deputy Reeve Kennedy decided to bring the case to an issue and wore out a warrant against Weldon, charging him with misappropriating the funds of the township. He was brought before Magistrate Bartlett yesterday afternoon. The case was postponed until the 21st inst. Weldon was released on $2,000 bail.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Some Terms and Timely Remarks Proprietary to a Henhouse

London, July 14.—Judge Edward Elliott, Junior Judge of Middlesex, yesterday was the defendant in an information which Lawyer Bartram sought to have issued at the Police Court yesterday. Mr. Bartram alleges that his Honor refused to hear a judgment summons examination, thereby becoming liable under section 128 of the Criminal Code, which provides a year's imprisonment for anyone who hinders an Act of Parliament or of the Legislature. The police magistrate took the matter under the advice for two days.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Before the large proportion of the fowls are seen, you are it will be best to select out a succulent number that is desired to keep over. Those desired for breeding as well as those wanted for layers should be selected. The egg it will be best, with a few exceptions, to keep the best of the cock as an egg, and rely upon purchases as a sufficient number of eggs for the season.

The introduction of new bloods nearly, if not quite, every year, is a constant source of trouble to the poultry fancier. It is to be maintained. As the birds are well as well as a cock as well as a hen, only the best of the breed should be kept. The cock should be kept in a separate pen, and the hen in a separate pen. The cock should be kept in a separate pen, and the hen in a separate pen. The cock should be kept in a separate pen, and the hen in a separate pen.

In determining the number to be kept the size of the poultry house should always be considered. It is a very good economy to a small flock to keep a few more than a large flock. Where the chickens have a free range, as is the rule on most farms, one rooster to every 10 hens will be about the right proportion. Better keep a flock of 25 or 30 well selected birds and fowls and give them comfort in quarters and good treatment than to keep a number and neglect them.

It is certainly good economy to keep a small number of fowls to supply the table as any kind of fowl will make a palatable change for the table. With turkeys, one tom will suffice for a dozen hens, but it is only in exceptional cases that one will care to keep that many turkeys. Generally from four to six will be as many as will be wanted to keep through the winter for breeding. Part of these should be selected from the best of the yearling stock, and the rest from the yearling stock.

When the same rule of management will be best for ducks as with turkeys. In some cases ducks are kept for the eggs and feathers as well as for breeding. When this is the case, one drake for every eight or ten hens will answer. Ducks should be kept in separate quarters from the chickens, and only such numbers as can be comfortably sheltered should be kept.

Further different management with geese should be followed if the most is to be made out of them. One of the most important items in keeping geese is the food that may be derived from the feathers. Old geese not only yield more and better feathers than young ones, but they lay more eggs, and the eggs will hatch better. For this reason, after the flock has been brought to the number that it is desired to keep, the better and more profitable plan is to keep the older geese and market the younger ones. Young geese if in good condition, sell for better prices than old geese, and this, too, is an item to be considered.

Generally, with poultry as with other stock, there is no advantage in keeping and feeding the fowls after they are fully matured. See notice of course, those that are wanted for breeding will get them into good, marketable condition, and then sell. All fowls after this is an addition to the cost without a corresponding return.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A MARVEL.

An old astronomer there was Who lived up in a tower Named Ptolemy Copernicus Flammarion McGower. He said: "I can prognosticate With estimates correct. And when the skies I contemplate I know what to expect. When dark ring clouds obscure my sight, I think perhaps 'twill rain. And when the stars are shining bright I know 'tis clear again." And then abstractedly he scanned The heavens hour by hour, Old Ptolemy Copernicus Flammarion McGower.

THAT SEDAN CHAIR.

"I repeat it," said Jacques d'Elbigne, with an emphasis so curious that all turned to look at him; "it gave me the fright of a lifetime."

"A sedan chair?"

"Yes. Listen, if you would know all about it." And he told us the following story:

"A love tale," said he, "of the city of Lille, of my twentieth year, and my pastry cook's daughter, a mere child, but so pretty, so sweet, so adorably coquettish; moreover, so admirably skilled in all pertaining to her father's business. Nowhere else could I buy such cake, such buns, such sugared almonds. And the stacks and stacks of rich confections that I devoured each day to prove my devotion!

"The fire of my love—which she returned between the smiles bestowed upon her father's customers—alone saved me from gastritis by consuming the heaviness of my stomach."

"This was the state of things, when, one day, I chanced to find the pass key of 'le pere,' who spent half his time in the winery across the way and the other half gossiping at his door with his equally idle neighbors."

"Victoire was charmed with my inspiration, and six hours after I had conceived the project we had carried it into execution. Although it was the middle of the winter the night was superb, a late rising moon, but thousands of brilliant stars shining from every quarter of the heavens. Victoire trembled like a leaf in the wind, but I was filled with such burning ardor that it mounted to my head like a drink of wine."

"We were young, you see; the theater for us a scene of enchantment, in love with each other and more than happy. Our hearts, like the strings of some delicately tuned instrument, vibrated to the slightest touch. In fact, we forgot everything but each other and never thought of moving when at last the final curtain fell until the lamps appeared to turn out the lights."

"Hurrying then to the street, we found that the night had changed. The stars were gone, the moon hidden under a canopy of clouds, a cold, penetrating rain beginning to fall and all the sedan chairs gone with the stars."

"No, I was wrong; one was left standing by the roadside a little way below us. At sight of its fatal idea popped into my brain. It was not yet very late, and I had still so many beautiful things to say to Victoire. Why not get into that chair, a refuge from the chilly rain, and talk everything all over again?"

"The clock at the corner was just striking 12 as we slipped into our movable apartment, rather cramped, to be sure, but both of us were light and thin; so, drawing close and snug like birds in a nest, we awaited the passing of the shower—cheerfully awaited it, too—when all at once something very strange occurred."

"The door of the house near which the chair was standing opened noiselessly, as if hung on velvet, and two men looked out, evidently desiring neither to be seen nor heard. Assured of solitude and a clear coast, they descended to the street, bearing in their arms a heavy burden. Just at that instant the moon alid from under the clouds, and we distinctly saw that this burden was a human being wrapped in a long cloak closely muffled about the face and shoulders."

"This was startling enough, but fancy our horror when the bearers of this strange load moved straight to the chair where we crouched in terror, and one of them already had his hand on the door when Victoire uttered a stifled shriek, answered by a frightful oath, and quick as a flash the men were gone as they had come, and the door reclosed as softly as it had opened."

"The whole thing had passed so quickly that we might have believed it some fearful vision, only doubt was not possible—we had seen it—both of us had distinctly seen the same thing, and without a spoken syllable were filled with the same blood freezing thought—murder—a murder doubtless committed in this very house, from which the murderers were now seeking to carry away and to conceal all traces of the crime with the victim's body."

"Oh, let us go, let us go!" moaned Victoire tremblingly. "Let us go at once, Jacques. I am so frightened!" "Go? Yes, I was willing enough, but how? For as Victoire spoke, two men emerged from the darkness around us, we could barely distinguish them, as the moon had gone behind a cloud again—caught up the chair and were bearing us away into the dismal night."

"This was a predicament. We were suspected. What must we do? Cry out, and make a dreadful scandal? Betray Victoire, and expose myself to the risk of discovery? Never! It was not to be thought of! It was not to be thought of! It was one of those times when trust in chance was the only resource, hoping by blind confidence to propitiate her favor."

"Perhaps this was our case; perhaps,

and I am inclined to think the latter, we were both so frightened that we had neither the strength nor the courage to attempt anything. Victoire had unconsciously thrown herself into my arms. Her warm breath fanned my cheek. Her little hand held fast to mine. No matter what threatened us, it was something, at least, to have gained this happiness; we would die together, her last sigh on my lips."

"For these men—we were sure of it—were accomplices of the first two, and by a previous arrangement they had been engaged for the carrying off and concealing of the dead body. Deceived by our joint weight, they believed they had it, and we, instead of the murdered victim, were hurrying away through the shadowy gloom."

"True, so we were, but where were we hurrying? Where were we heading, as the men trotted on with swift, untiring steps, at times almost a run? What were they going to do with us—their sinister burden?"

"Presently we saw that we were passing one of the city gates leading into the distant country. Again I was tempted to cry out, to call to the sentinel, but fear for Victoire deterred me. Victoire, whose mother believed her slumbering sweetly under her little white curtains."

"What should I do? What could I do? I was nearly distracted."

"By this time we were clear of the suburbs, but still swept onward. Another lightning of the sky, and I saw ahead of us a glistening sheet of water, the river Doule. I knew it well—a deep, rapid stream, the running of whose current we even now could hear."

"Undoubtedly the wretches were going to fling us into this seething vortex. 'This time I would have cried out, but Victoire, mad with fright, clung so tightly to my neck, clasping me with such force that my voice died in my throat, my eyes closed and the cry was strangled.'"

"How long a time elapsed I never know. I was brought back to consciousness by the chair striking the ground. They had set it down preparatory to—yes, but where, where? Decidedly not in the river. It was a room, on the contrary, the dirty, grimy chamber of a low country winery, where a crowd of rough, coarse men were drinking, swearing and rolling about a lot of boxes, barrels and packages, like merchandise."

"Mme. Jervaise, Mme. Jervaise!" they shouted in chorus, as our bearers set us down. "Have you brought us Mme. Jervaise?"

"She is here," the bearers replied.

"To work, to work, then! We have no time to lose."

"And the chair door was thrown open. But scarcely had they caught sight of Victoire and me, crouching half dead in the bottom of the chair, when a wild stampede took place, a helter skelter rush for the outside. The lights were extinguished, the thud of feet was heard pounding away into the night, and then a deep, bloodcurdling stillness."

"We were alone in black darkness. 'Luckily I had noticed the direction of the door. To leap from the chair, seize Victoire's hand and make my way to it was the work of a second. The clouds had not deepened, the rain had ceased, and by the purest miracle we found the road back to the city. By daylight we were safe at home."

"A fortnight later perhaps an article in a morning paper gave me the key to the mystery of that hideous night in which we (Victoire and I) had been so strangely involved. The article announced the capture by the police of a band of smugglers who had installed themselves in an old, abandoned winery shop in the outskirts of Lille—a regular magazine, as it turned out, of contraband goods, which they had smuggled in and out of the city by means of a manikin representing a sick old woman, partly paralyzed, and which, muffled in wraps and placed in a sedan chair, they carried back and forth under the very nose of the gendarmes without the slightest fear of detection."

"An invalid ordered by the doctor to take the steam baths," they told the officers of the law, "by name Mme. Jervaise."

"Mme. Jervaise! The name told me all and explained everything that hitherto had seemed mysterious and inapplicable in our midnight adventure. Happily for us our nocturnal escapade had never been suspected, and Victoire and I escaped a summons to appear as witnesses before the court of assizes. All the same from that day to this the thought of a sedan chair gives me goose flesh down the spine."—From the French in Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Chrysanthemum.

When the plant was introduced, about 1840, it was only the small daisy-like flower, now only seen as a rule in cottage gardens, which was highly prized as a novelty. The taste for growing and showing it began early, and before 1890 there were many chrysanthemum societies in existence, among them the Stoke Newington, which formed the nucleus of the National society. Yet it was not until 1890, when the plants suffered severely from early frosts, that there was any idea of growing it under glass. The Japanese variety was noticed in 1894 as a novelty, "very curious and interesting, but scarcely ornamental." How little did the author of these remarks suspect what a future was before the plant he so summarily set aside! Three years later, however, we find Japanese varieties recommended with pomp and incoherence, and since then they have ever increased in favor.

The gorgeously colored, mop-like blooms now exhibited every autumn would certainly astonish that writer of 30 years ago. The golden and bronze shades of the chrysanthemum suited the taste of the promoters of the "high art" aesthetic movement of a few years ago, which, if it had no other merit, helped to bring this flower more forward and saved the culture of ranunculus, which was fast becoming extinct in our gardens.—Landscape Magazine.

Group in Jail

Mr. J. H. McClellan, travelling sales agent of the People's Coal Co., was in town yesterday, and our reporter interviewed him as to the recent drop in the price of coal. He explained that when the price is made in the spring by the combination combination companies, they fix a price for Canada, and also for eastern or seaboard cities, such as New York, Philadelphia and Boston. This spring the western and Canadian price was fixed at $4.25, f. o. c. at Suspension Bridge, $4 f. o. c. at Oswego and $4.50 at seaboard points. This is 50c. lower at western points than last year, and the same at eastern points as last year. This last circular cut is only making the western and eastern prices the same, so to get any benefit from this reduction it will be necessary to move from here to some seaboard city. However, the price of coal will certainly be lower than last year in Peterborough.

The Midland team returned from Hastings last night, where they played a match with the local team.

The game was closely contested and resulted in the local team winning by a score of 3 to 2.

The Midland lads express themselves as delighted with the treatment accorded them by the Hastings boys but decidedly object to the rough grounds. The defeat, of course, resulted from the hot weather and the heavily lemonade supplied by the local ice cream people.

Local Legal Note

Stethem vs. Canada Consolidated Gold Mining Co.—Judgment in action tried without a jury at Peterborough. Action to have it declared that a certain agreement entered into in June, 1893, between the defendant company and the defendants Stevens and Rothwell, and one M. W. Berry, and a certain indenture made pursuant thereto, created a trust in favor of the creditors of the company and that of the company's properties stand charged with payment of plaintiffs' claim and all other claims in priority to any other advances made under the agreement, and for payment by defendants of the amount of plaintiffs' claim as a creditor of the company until certain acceptance, and to restrain the defendants from disposing of the company's properties until the plaintiff and other creditors are paid. Held, upon the evidence that the plaintiff had accepted two bonds of the company in satisfaction of his claim, and had therefore no locus standing as a creditor to bring this action. Judgment dismissing the action with costs. Poussette, Q. C., for plaintiff; J. Bicknell for defendant company, and defendant Stevens; H. S. Osler for defendant Rothwell.

The French Peasant.

The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers, they at least will own a house and garden and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and these may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on saving; yet, with all their individualism, they combine for common and mutual interest. This is illustrated by the organization of the syndicate for buying at wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, lending each other horses and making up teams. Every commune has a field, which is common property and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze. After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gross estate and the other details are allowed to roam at large.—Contemporary Review.

The Late Wm. Somerville

A telegram received yesterday morning announced the death at Cornwall, Ont., of Mr. Wm. Somerville. For many years he was head weaver at the Auburn Woollen Co's mills here, and left his position to take the management of the Cornwall Woollen mills. He had been suffering from diabetes for some time and the disease resulted in his death. Mr. Somerville was well known in town and highly respected.

Dr. Wallace Here

The Times sanctum was visited yesterday by Dr. Wallace, the noted "Herbs of Joy" man. The doctor, though about 15 years ago and did a large business pulling teeth without pain and in selling his wonderful remedy. He is accompanied by Mr. Fordy, who is an old Peterborough boy, and is a good speaker and rapid salesman. "Herbs of Joy" is a noted remedy for many of the ailments that afflict mankind. When Dr. Wallace left Peterborough he appointed an agent to handle his medicine, and left with him a large supply—sufficient, he thought, to last for months. But as the demand for the great curative that there was none to be had in town. Nor has any been offered for sale since, for the doctor has been down south until the present. He regards Peterborough as a model town, and after referred to it as the "best town in Canada" when addressing crowds in the United States. He opens on the market square to-morrow, and we advise those who have never tried the Herbs of Joy to purchase.

THE ASHBURNHAM BY-LAW

A few Reasons Why the By-Law Should Pass.

Editor Morning Times

SIR,—The ratepayers of this village will be called on to vote for or against a by-law to confirm the Council's agreement with the Peterborough Water Company. The ratepayers should understand the full nature of the proposed contract with the Company. If they understand it they will assuredly cast their votes in favor of the by-law.

In the first place it is not intended to expend more than $8,000 in the construction of water mains, the balance will go towards paying off the present indebtedness of the village. Indeed the amount to be saved in the difference in interest is alone an important consideration. It will amount to at least two per cent on $7,000—$140 per year. This, added to the revenue which the village is to receive from the water services, will more than cover the amount to be paid to the Water Company.

We have a pretty little village. Our streets are well-kept and our sidewalks are good. What we lack to make it a desirable place of residence is water for lawns, fire protection and domestic purposes. People who live in town have their homes cooled with the lawn sprinkler, while our grass is burned yellow; they have in their houses the clean and healthy-giving bath room, while we are forced to go to the lake or river when we want a bath.

Is it any wonder, then that people will not come here to live? Put in the water and we will have new residences under construction.

These are a few of the many reasons why I would like to see the by-law carried.

VILLAGER.

Ashburnham, July 14.

Another Reason.

Editor Morning Times

SIR—I see the Times is taking great interest in the proposed contract between the village of Ashburnham and the Peterborough Water Company.

I happen to know of a case where a friend of mine was undecided whether to build a residence in Ashburnham or in Peterborough. He preferred the village side of the water for several reasons, but what finally caused him to decide to build in Peterborough was the absence of water. He told this himself, and said that the late Mr. Burnham had offered him a very desirable building lot, and did all he could to induce him to locate in Ashburnham, but the water question was too important to be overlooked. I do not to publish the gentleman's name, but take the liberty of giving it to you, Mr. Editor, so that you may, if any of the villagers are in doubt about the truth of this statement give it to them should they take the trouble to call on you about it.

I tell you, Mr. Editor, Ashburnham can never hope to be in the race till they have a system of water works.

TERMS OF SURRENDER

Are Being Arranged at Santiago—Spanish Forces to be Removed to Spain

Washington, July 15.—The following bulletin has been posted at the War Department from General Shafter, Headquarters, Santiago, via Playa del Este, July 15, Adjutant General, Washington.—Sent you several telegrams yesterday, as did General Miles in regard to the surrender. Gen. Toral agreed yesterday positively to surrender all the forces under his command in Eastern Cuba upon a distinct understanding that they were to be sent to Spain by the United States that this surrender was authorized by Gen. Blanco and that its submission to-morrow was merely formal. The commissioners to arrange details were appointed. Wheeler, Lawton and Milly on the part of the United States. Points were immediately raised by Spanish commissioners. The discussion lasted until 10 o'clock night. My commissioners think the matter will be settled to-day and meet at 9:30 o'clock this morning. are about 12,000 troops in the city and about as many more in the surrounding district, 25,000 in all, will be transported. General Miles was present and said the surrender was as absolute and complete as possible. It cannot be possible there will be a failure in completing arrangements. Water famine is imminent in the city. Have supply cut. This was told Lieut. Miller by English commissioner. Will wire frequently when negotiations are progressing.

(Signed) Shafter, Major-General Comd. General Shafter bears his honors modestly. To a correspondent of the Associated Press.—
"The enemy has surrendered all the territory and troops east of Santiago. The terms were dictated from Washington it has been a hard campaign one of the hardest I ever saw. The difficulties to contend with were very great never during our civil war were more troublesome problems solved. The character of the country and the roads made it seem almost impossible to advance in the face of the enemy. The transportation problem was hard, but all the difficulties have been successfully surmounted. Our troops have behaved gallantly. They fought like heroes, and I am proud to have commanded them. During all the hardships they have suffered they have shown resolution and spirit. They deserve to conquer.

"The resistance of the enemy has been exceedingly stubborn. General Toral has proved himself a man worthy of any man's steel. The negotiations which culminated in the surrender of General Toral have been dragging on for ten days with the intermission of Sunday and Monday. When our batteries and fleet bombarded the enemy's positions. Throughout the superior of General Toral has shrewdly played for time always declining to surrender unconditionally and falling back when hard pressed upon the statement that he was simply a subordinate and powerless to agree to the proposals without the sanction of his superiors except under penalty of being court-martialed at the same time he seemed to intimate that personally he thought it useless to hold out any longer, but he and his garrison were soldiers, he said, and could die if necessary obeying orders."

CERVERA GOES TO ANNAPOLIS. Port-au-Prince, N.Y., July 14.—The United States auxiliary cruiser "St. Louis" sailed for Annapolis at six o'clock this morning, having on board Admiral Cervera and the other Spanish officials captured at Santiago on July 3.

SPANISH RESOURCES DRAINED. New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says.—If the war continues in Spain, the power, the Government will make known soon how want are provisions and ammunition among the Spanish forces in Cuba and Porto Rico, and the Government will make a financial statement showing that all Spain's resources have been drained by the bank of Spain are exhausted, and that the only resource now is to stop the payment of the interest on the debt and of the sinking fund, and to issue treasury bonds at 6 and 7 percent interest, with the double guarantee of the Spanish treasury and the Bank of Spain.

In the court and in official circles it is believed that if such extreme arguments are resorted to, the army at least will see that the game is up and will accept peace.

HE WANTS A SUBSTITUTE. New York, July 13.—The Tribune prints the following from its London correspondent.

"Madrid has taken the defeat of Cervera so quietly that peace is now possible without risks of revolution. Sagasta is not willing to sacrifice his political reputation by proposing peace under hard conditions. He is bent upon having some convenient substitute incur the unpopularity. When peace has been made he will return to office and die in harness."

European power will pay it, and then the United States will be compelled to withdraw from the Philippines, especially as Japan has retired from the mainland of China. England eagerly desires America to remain permanently in the Philippines."

A QUESTION OF HOURS. New York, July 13.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says it is the belief here in official circles that the probability is that direct overtures for peace will be made to the United States and that it is only a question of hours when this will be done.

The Queen is as anxious as the Ministers to come to terms if the United States is not too exacting. Otherwise the war party is sure to have its own way.

ALL THE WOUNDED ARE HOME. Washington, July 14.—Information was received last night at the War Department that the hospital ship Seneca has sailed from Playa del Este for Fort Monroe with all of the remaining wounded officers and men. 70 in number—74 can be removed with safety at this time. Every wounded man who could, is being sent to the United States is either already here or is en route to this country.

THE POWERS MAY INTERFERE. London, July 14.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says.—"The German press is actively discussing the future of the Philippines. The difficulties arising out of the present state of things—of which it is asserted the American hardly take sufficient account—may seem assume alarming proportions, such, indeed, as may finally necessitate the intervention of powers whose commercial interests in the islands are affected."

The Kreuz Zeitung points out that American annexation is by no means necessary and would involve a complete change in America's naval and military system. "But," it adds, "it is evident that the Monroe doctrine has been dropped and a new policy of aggression begun. The Stars and Stripes will shortly wave over Manila."

It is beginning to be universally acknowledged here that Spain can now honorably sue for peace with every prospect of acceptance."

STEERING FOR CARTAGENA. New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Gibraltar, Spain, says.—"A steamer just arrived from the Mediterranean reports having sighted Admiral Cervera's squadron steering in the direction of Cartagena. Gun practice was constantly carried on aboard the warships as long as they were in sight. The report that Commodore Watson's fleet is coming to Spain has caused great excitement and is being anxiously awaited."

BRITAIN TAKES A HAND. Victoria, B. C., July 13.—In response to the request of United States Consul Dudley, of Vancouver, Admiral British Pacific squadron, stationed at Esquimalt, has despatched Her Majesty's ship Amphion, a second-class cruiser, and the sloop of war Leurus, mounting nine guns, to cruise the waters of the north for the purpose of protecting the British interests in the region, which, according to reports that have reached the ears of the consul, is laden in the vicinity of Dixon's Entrance, through which the treasure ships pass on their way south.

The fleet was at Vancouver in connection with the celebration of the centenary of the discovery of the continent there were surprised yesterday to see the men-of-war hoist their anchors and slip off to sea. Inquiries were made, and according to the naval authorities the admiral directed them, on the information received, to take steps to prevent any holding up of ships for the purpose of looting. Although probably only American ships would be stopped, the injury would not be confined to them, as many of the miners on board with gold would be British subjects.

TO STRENGTHEN WATSON'S FLEET. New York, July 14.—A special to The Herald from Washington says.—Believing that the effects of the appearance of an American squadron on the Spanish coast will be in direct proportion to the strength of the fleet, Secretary Long and Naval Board have decided to strengthen Commander Watson's force by an additional armored cruiser, and probably three or four protected and unprotected cruisers.

New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says.—Germany positively has given to Spain an assurance that she will take the lead among the European powers in exercising pressure to maintain Spanish rule in the Philippines, and in restricting America to a humiliating position on Ponce Island, in the Caroline group. It is argued in Spain, contrary to the facts, that Germany's commercial interests in the Philippines are so important as to justify her interfering with the American plans at Manila.

Yet official statistics published in Madrid show that Germany ranks seventh in the list of exports from the Philippines and fifth in the list of imports into these islands.

In 1896, before the insurrection, the exports to Germany were valued at $233,700, to Spain $4,500,000, to the United States nearly $5,000,000, to Great Britain $7,407,500, to Japan $1,387,000.

In the same period the imports into the Philippines from Germany were valued at $744,928, from Spain $7,700,000 owing to the protectionist tariff and high differential flag duties, from France $1,795,000, from Great Britain $2,467,000, and from the United States only $272,240. The Germans in the Philippine islands are chiefly shopkeepers, bankers, and commission agents.

INS AND OUTS. In a party of well-known gentlemen who were seated in the lobby of the Snowden House the other night swapping stories one of them told a good one.

"It happened at the funeral of a prominent lady, which took place a short time ago," he said. "One of her sturdiest friends in life was an old doctor, who is likewise very cranky. He reached the house after the ceremonies had been concluded and after the coffin had been screwed down preparatory to removing the casket. He insisted, however, upon seeing the face of his departed friend once more, and finally the cover was taken off. The doctor looked long and earnestly, and then burst into a violent fit of coughing. Meanwhile the lid was being replaced. The doctor recovered and told the undertaker that the lid must be taken off again. He had dropped his false teeth, and wanted them. Despite the awkwardness of the situation the doctor would have nothing else, so off came the lid, and a search was made for the teeth. They could not be found. But the doctor was not satisfied, and for what seemed an age to the other attendants that funeral was delayed. Finally the doctor was dragged away from the casket, and it was closed and carried out. It was pouring rain at the time, and when the doctor reached the front door he raised his umbrella. Something dropped from it to the floor. The doctor looked down and discovered his lost teeth."

Mr. E. B. Stone has a story which he tells at the expense of a fellow-member of the bar. The learned disciple of Blackstone was cross-examining the wife of a burglar who was on trial for some serious offense. In the midst of his vigorous questioning the lawyer asked:

"Madam, you are still this man's wife?"
"Yes," was the ready reply.
"You knew he was a burglar when you married him?"
"Yes."

"How did you come to contract a matrimonial alliance with such a man?"
"Well," answered the witness with a sarcastic glance at the lawyer, "I was getting old, and had to choose between a lawyer and a burglar."

Further examination was not attempted.

It would scarcely be fair to use the young lady's name, but a North monaghan girl had to resort to a heroic method in her efforts to milk the family cow one evening last week. The cow, a placid, even-tempered Jersey, has one peculiarity—she will let nobody come near her to milk her save the men. On the evening referred to the men happened all at once, and visitors dropped in making it necessary that the cow be milked before supper. The young lady made bold to try the experiment, and sauntered down to the cow lot, with her milk pail. All her endeavors, though, were futile. The cow absolutely refused to allow the milkmaid to come near her. Finally in desperation the determined young lady went back to the house, and after some trouble and exertion that might have combined with her maidenly decorum to call the beautiful color to her cheeks, she reappeared clad in coat and trousers and stiff hat belonging to her brother. Picking up her milk pail she once more essayed to perform the task of milking the perverse bovine, and the success that crowned her efforts was complete. The visitors, who enjoyed a glass of cold, rich milk little knew the extremity to which the daughter of the household was put, and will only learn of it as they read it in the Times.

It is not often that a man takes a bath while he is asleep, and especially a shower bath, but that is what a young man from Peterborough, did while on a visit to his sister in Toronto a few days ago. One evening he was sprinkling the lawn, and to save himself from the penalty imposed by the city for placing the hose on a stand and allowing the water to run in that way he seated himself on the lawn and held the hose. The other members of the family went to a neighbor's to spend the evening, and one young friend said he would remain at home and sprinkle the grass. He sat some time, throwing the water here and there over the lawn. He was tired, and rested his elbow on his knee, and held the hose much in the same position that it would have been held had it been on a stationary stand. Being tired, he soon became drowsy. He roused himself several times, but finally weariness overcame him, and he slept. Then in the weaving of his body in his sleep the hose began to throw fantastic streams over and about him. In fact it was over him most of the time, and he was soon wringing wet. Yet he slept on, while passers by stopped and laughed at the peculiar spectacle of a man allowing the water to sprinkle over him in the manner in which it was

After a time his family came home and discovered him in his peculiar situation. They awakened him, and then for the first time he knew that the hose had been pouring water over him, and that his clothes, including a new pair of trousers, had been ruined. When he was awake he exclaimed, "I dreamed that I was drowning." If any of our readers are in doubt as to the truth of this story they can ask Pete Corkery.

A good story is told by Mr. John Nugent, who owns a summer residence at Stony Lake. Mr. J. J. McBain and Mr. Nugent have Bear Island all to themselves, and have adorned this naturally beautiful spot with two fine residences with all necessary outbuildings in the shape of boat houses, &c. Mr. McBain had a visitor last season who had never fished in any of the small lakes before. The gentleman referred to arrived at Bear Island shortly before dinner, and while the process of preparing the midday meal was in progress, he walked over to the end of the island to fish. He succeeded in landing three or four fine bass by the time dinner was announced. Before going into the house he baited his line and braced the pole so that a fish might get on the hook if he tried for the bait. Mr. Nugent saw what had been done, and going into his kitchen, got a salt mackerel, and pulling in the line, took off the bait and put on the mackerel. When the visitor returned after his dinner he pulled up the line and was surprised to find that there was such a heavy fish on it. As it reached the surface of the water, and he saw how large it was, he shouted loudly at those at both houses that he had caught the largest fish in the lake. But when he got it ashore and saw what it was he said a lot of things that would not look well in print. He is the first man to catch a fish in Stony Lake. The Times will be vouch for the absolute truth of this story but we give it as we got it.

Everybody knows the genial proprietor of the Snowden House, and know his fondness for a joke. He is always ready for a bit of innocent sport. He has several others were sitting in the back parlor that comfortable and commodious hostelry when the conversation turned on better. Finally, a stranger who was present offered to wager the cigars for the entire party that he could hold his foot on a piece of ice longer than any one else. No one seemed willing to take the stranger and finally Mr. Snowden, rather than miss the chance of having a little fun, he would take the bet, and according to Dickson hauled out two large cakes of ice. The bettors both pulled their shoes from their right feet, and did not take their socks. They then placed the cakes on the ice. In about five minutes Mr. Snowden began to show signs of uneasiness, and looked askance at his opponent, but the latter gave no evidence of feeling in the least uncomfortable. At the contest had been in progress for about eight minutes Mr. Snowden made some remarks about setting up the cigars, the other man said that there was no worry. In about 10 minutes Mr. Snowden said: "Say, I'll be chilled to a statue if I keep my foot on this ice any longer, so let us have the cigars."

His adversary told him to keep on. Mr. Snowden would not have it that way. Finally, after the unknown had been on his shoe, took a couple of tea canisters and walked away. Yesterday Mr. Snowden learned that his antagonist was artificial leg.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

SHERMAN WAS KIND.

A SOUTHERN POET'S RECOLLECTIONS OF THE GENERAL.

Frank L. Stanton recalls some incidents of the Closing Days of the War—General Sherman's Goodness to the Elder Stanton, Who Was Very Ill in Savannah.

Frank L. Stanton, the popular Georgia poet, always speaks up for General Sherman when he hears any severe criticism of that famous commander's methods. The story told by Stanton has never found its way into print, but it deserves a place among the minor incidents and reminiscences of the war period.

"When Savannah fell," said Stanton, "I was a little chap about 8 years old. The confusion and tumult in the streets frightened me, and I was afraid to go very far from the house."

"Young as I was, I understood that something very serious had occurred. Instead of seeing Confederate soldiers parading the streets with a few Federal prisoners I saw thousands of Federals swarming through the town, and they had a great many Confederates under guard."

"The situation had been reversed. That was plain, even to a child."

"My father was very ill, in the last stages of consumption, and my mother was worn out with anxiety and the cares of the household. Our neighbors were panic stricken, and everybody seemed to be expecting some awful calamity."

"Pinned up there as we had been for a long time, without supplies and without any money except worthless Confederate currency, the outlook was gloomy enough. How was my sick father to get the things he needed? That was the problem with my mother."

"Somebody told General Sherman about my father and mentioned the fact that he was a kinsman of a very distinguished and powerful officer on the Union side."

"One day when I entered my father's room I found three Federal officers sitting there in pleasant conversation with the invalid and my mother."

"I was scared and started to run, but one of the strangers, a middle aged man with a roughly trimmed brown beard, called me back. He asked my name, and before I knew it had me on his knee, and he said so many nice things to me that I took quite a fancy to him."

"He was General Sherman, and he had called with two of his staff officers to see my father. When the visitors left, the general told my mother at the door that he knew all about the inconveniences of a siege and insisted upon sending from the army stores something that would suit a sick man."

"Under the circumstances such an offer could not be declined. It was a picnic for the children of the family, I can tell you."

"After that, while the general was in the city, something was sent to the house every day. Brandy, wine, loaf sugar, lemons, beef, chickens, coffee, vegetables and I don't know what else came in generous quantities. We had plenty for the family and for our nearest neighbors."

"Nor was that all. The general sent one of the best physicians in the hospital service, and the last days of my father were made far more comfortable than we had hoped for under the adverse conditions of those dark days."

"General Sherman came to the house once more before he left Savannah. I cannot remember what he said, but he was sympathetic and he said something about the pleasure it gave him to aid a relative of his distinguished friend at Washington."

"At that time I was very fond of a showy uniform, and it vexed my childish mind to see my friend the general always dressed so shabbily. His staff officers presented a better appearance, and some of them were really gorgeous in their spectacular rig."

"The other boys and the negroes agreed with me that the commander must be in very hard luck or he would certainly dress better. Still, I was then convinced that he was a wonderfully wise man. With my pockets full of his loaf sugar, which I had surreptitiously abstracted from the pantry, I would have been ungrateful if I had formed any other opinion."

"Sherman left the city and marched onward through the Carolinas, and that ended the war."

"No, I never saw him again. My father died, and I lived in different places, my work keeping me so busy that I had no time to think of the general or anybody else not connected with my immediate business. I wish now that I had seen him before he passed away. As it is, I can only recall him as he appeared to my boyish and wondering eyes, under circumstances which did not give me an opportunity to study him. No matter what may be said of his conduct in war, I cannot help liking him. He was a good friend just when we most needed one."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Doubtful Compliments.

The compliments paid by the poor are often put in an amusing way. One old woman who was very fond of the rector said to Mr. Bernays: "You know, sir, as I like the rector; 'is ears are so clean.'" Surely an odd reason for parochial affection. Another admirer once declared with regard to the whole staff of clergy, "You are all so plain!" (a word of high commendation), "but as for the vicar, 'he's beautiful.'" The greatest compliment, though at the same time the most curious Mr. Bernays ever heard, was paid by a workingman to a certain bishop, famous for his simple kindliness. "What I like 'bout the bishop is 'is not a gentleman!"—Westminster Gazette.

Ethnologists, apropos of the statement that the original inhabitants of America were Asiatics, tell of a Chinook Indian woman found in the last century by Father Huk wandering in the far interior of Asia.

BLACKBIRD'S GRAVE.

LAST RESTING PLACE OF THE FAMOUS INDIAN CHIEF.

On a Bluff That is Now Inside the City of Omaha—On its Summit the Chief Watched For His White Friends—Remembrance of the Omaha-Poncas Feud.

Omaha has within her city limits an unknown and unmarked for historic spot which in a few decades will be looked upon with far more interest than it has in the past or is now, for the value of his historical place grows with the distance in time from the events which made them historical. This spot, which is in Omaha, and yet has been forgotten and neglected by the city, is the grave of the famous Omaha chief and warrior whom even Washington Irving thought worthy of a place in his writings. This chief lived in the latter part of the last century, dying in 1792. In those days, according to Irving, the Omahas looked upon themselves as the most powerful and perfect of human beings, and considered all created things as made for their peculiar use and benefit. The leader of this tribe, Blackbird, or Wash-ing-guh-sah-ba, was a warrior of the highest class. Early in life he had been taken a prisoner by the Sioux, where he had his metal tested. Under his leadership the Omahas attained a reputation among the other tribes that they never had possessed before. The Pawnees having inflicted an insult upon an Omaha brave, Blackbird led his men against their town and slaughtered many of the inhabitants and burned it to the ground. He also waged a fierce war against the Otoes until peace was effected by the interference of the whites.

Yet, notwithstanding his fiery disposition, he fell a victim to Cupid's dart. The Poncas had raided the Omaha tribe and carried off many of their women and horses. Blackbird took the field with the sworn determination of eating up his enemy. So fiercely did the battle rage that the Poncas began to sue for mercy. A herald was sent out with the plea of peace, but he was shot down by Blackbird. A second herald said the same fate. As a last hope the Ponca chief then sent out his daughter, arrayed in all her finery and bearing the calumet of peace. Her charms conquered. A treaty was made, and Blackbird married the herald. She became his favorite wife, yet nevertheless in one of his ungovernable fits of rage he killed her with a single blow of his knife.

No sooner did he see her lying dead at his feet than his anger left him, and for three days he sat by her corpse—silent, motionless and fasting, no food. On the third day his people began to fear that he intended to starve himself to death and entreated him to be comforted. He paid no attention to their entreaties, and at last a warrior brought a little child into his presence and placed it beneath the chief's foot. This appeal brought him to himself, and, arising, he made a speech to his followers and solemnly threw off his chief as easily as he had taken it on. In 1792 the smallpox swept over Nebraska, and Blackbird was one of its victims. The following description of his death and burial is quoted from Washington Irving's "Astoria":

"When the general horror and dismay swept their heights, Blackbird himself was struck down with the malady. The poor savages gathered around his bed and forgot their own miseries. His dominant spirit and love for the white men were manifested in his latest breath, with which he designated his place of sepulture. It was to be on a hill or promontory upward of 400 feet high, overlooking a great extent of the Missouri river, from whence he had been accustomed to watch for the barks of the white men. The Missouri washes the base of the promontory, and after winding and doubling in many links and mazes in the plain below returns to within 900 yards of its starting point, so that for 80 miles navigating with sail and oar the voyager finds himself continually near to this singular promontory as if spellbound."

It was the dying command of Blackbird that his tomb should be on the summit of this hill, in which he should be interred, seated on his favorite horse, that he might overlook his ancient domain and behold the barks of the white men as they came up the river to trade with his people. "His dying orders were faithfully obeyed. His corpse was placed astride of his war steed and a mound raised over them on the summit of the hill. On the top of the mound was erected a staff from which floated the banner of the chieftain and the scalp that he had taken in battle. When the expedition under Mr. Hunt visited that part of the country (1809), the staff still remained, with the fragments of the banner, and the superstitious rite of placing food from time to time upon the mound for the use of the deceased was still observed by the Omahas."

This promontory is now within the city limits of Omaha," says Dr. Mercey. "and I located the grave 90 years ago. When I came to Omaha 86 years ago, the river wound around in the shape of an 'S,' and this promontory upon which I found the grave exactly answers to the description given by Irving. It is in the south part of the city, and Williams street would run through it if extended to the river. Just east of it and under the bluff is a brickyard, the roofs of which reach nearly up to the top of the hill."

"The Omaha camp was located in the bottom beneath the bluff and a little to the north. This point was Blackbird's favorite place for sitting, to watch for the coming of the traders with whom he was very friendly. No doubt you have heard the story. When the traders came up, he greeted them most friendly, made them open up their goods and selected what he wanted himself. Then he called in his tribe and compelled them to trade. The whites made up for their gifts to him by the extra charge they put upon the goods sold, and not an Indian dared kick. The chief had got his bribe and his people had to pay for it."

"There is another story about the old fellow. He was great on superstition, and when pursuing the enemy would fire into their tracks, claiming that would kill them. He posed as a kind of god, but after while some of his people grew skeptical of his superhuman power and refused to obey him. In this difficulty he consulted his friends, the white traders, and they told him to prophesy the death of all who disobeyed him. He did so, announcing according to instructions that all who were disobedient would die a mysterious death upon a certain day. When that day came, he invited the whole tribe in to dine with him, and put a dose of arsenic in the bowl of each man whom he wished to serve as an example of his godlike power. Of course they died. From that time on his power was never questioned, and the leaders who put him up to the trick and furnished the arsenic stood higher than ever with him."—Omaha World-Herald.

In 1859 the village of Ashburnham was incorporated, Mr. C. A. Weller now County Judge, acting as legal adviser. The council met for the first time in the old school house on the east side of the market, on Monday, Jan. 17, 59, and elected Capt. Smith and chairman. The other councillors were R. D. Rogers, Lewis Glover, Samuel Dickson and Henry Bennett. On motion of Mr. Dickson, seconded by Mr. Glover, Mr. Rogers was appointed Reeve. The council then adjourned to 7.30 p.m. at Morgan's Hotel, where, on resuming, the question of a clerk and his remuneration came up. Later on Mr. Thomas Monro secured the position at a salary of $50 per annum. The first treasurer, David McDonald received a salary of $30 per year. The first tax collector, Robinson Moore, received seven pounds ten shillings for his services. In June of the same year the Reeve reported buying by scales for $150, which was afterwards by resolution turned out. In 1871, the Reeve, R. D. Rogers, agreed with Peterborough, under limiting conditions, to join in the purchase of a steam fire engine and hose. Ashburnham to pay one-tenth of cost of same, and contribute one-tenth expense of maintenance. On Jan. 16, 1872, Mr. Calcutt, Reeve, Peterborough, presented a bill for $25.26 as Ashburnham's tenth. A dispute arose about cost of maintenance, and the matter was a bone of contention up to 1896, when the two councils compromised on $600 as a settlement. Peterborough by this time claiming over a thousand. On July 9, 1875, a proposition of $15 was passed to erect a fire alarm in connection with the bell of St. Luke's church upon the question of the fire engine purchase question Ashburnham made an arrangement with Peterborough where by it secured the use of the Peterborough equipment for $175 a year. This arrangement is in force yet. The question of waterworks was brought up several times at nominations, and in 1896 the council arranged with the Water Company, and they met several times to discuss the question, but nothing definite resulted. They came together again in 1897 but no headway was made. Finally in 1898, after holding several meetings, a proposition was finally submitted to the council, which was accepted by the Company, and is incorporated in the agreement which is the basis of the by-law now submitted. Ashburnham has heretofore had no wholesale conflagrations, although scourged by innumerable small fires. A fire may start under an impelling wind at any time. Insurance companies understand this and make their rates accordingly. Ashburnham has a chance now to show that it will not be penny wise and pound foolish; that it will not save on apparatus and lose by a conflagration. The 20th of the month will tell the tale. The arrangement with the Company reflects credit on the members of the present council, Messrs. Frank Adams, Reeve, and Messrs. J. T. Craig, W. J. Johnston, A. Rutherford, and H. Morgan, and also upon John Wood, who has been clerk since 1875, and A. Beck, who has been treasurer since 1875.

On Jan. 20, 1875, under the reeve-ship of John Burnham a resolution was passed placing fifty dollars in his hands for charitable purposes. The first time that the question of union with Peterborough came up was on Jan. 4, 1875, where it was carried by 36 for to 9 against. It came up again in '93, and carried by a large majority, both in Ashburnham and Peterborough, and being submitted to a committee of Peterborough, of which Thos. Child was chairman, it fell into innocuous desuetude through the passivity of the chairman. Under the new regime the first school was erected in 1865. It was a substantial brick structure, and was immediately to the wants of the community, and in 1876 a large two-story brick was erected at a cost of $4,500, capable of accommodating 300 pupils. The attendance under the principal, Mr. M. W. Matcett, runs on an average over 200. Mr. Adams, the present Reeve, has been a member of the school board for 12 years. The other members at present are Messrs. John Agnew, Robt. Sheridan, William Maniece, Robt. Pollock and E. A. Beck, chairman. A kindergarten will be started in connection with the Ashburnham Public School immediately after the holidays.

PLUCKING THE INNOCENT.

One Fakir Who Was "Done" by the Farmers.

"No," said the sump fakir to a group of people that had gathered around him, "there is no use talking to me about the innocence of the countryman. He may buy a good horse occasionally or win a blank check and lose his farm, but, as a rule, he can take care of himself just as well as the next one and generally a little better. If I know as much as some farmers I wouldn't be in this business, and you can gamble on that."

"Why, say, do you know what happened to me the last time I was down in the country? I got panned, that's what I mean. I got my suitcase out in front of the hotel in a hile town about thirty miles out east of here and began to do a few tricks to draw a crowd."

"After I'd made an act or two, I appeared and pulled a few knots up on for them, I says: 'Now, gentlemen, I'm going to show you a trick that nobody else on earth has ever attempted. You see my hat here? Well, we'll imagine for the time being to a flower pot. Out of that hat I'm going to make a bush grow up, and when I've done that I'll make every leaf on it turn into a $5 note.'"

"What? Did I do it? Of course I did! But, say, do you know what came of it? Hanged if they didn't arrest me and fine me $15 for raising bills, which the justice of the peace said was contrary to the statutes made and provided."

"Well, I sort of had a hankering to know whether they done it in good faith or just because they thought I was easy pickin', and what do you think I found out? Why, the people of that town didn't paid any tax for eight years. They'd actually been raising things by pluckin' just as innocent fellows as me."

"Now, gentlemen, there's a $1 bill in my hat. Pick it up, please. Who will give me 10 cents for the first choice?—Cleveland Plain Dealer."

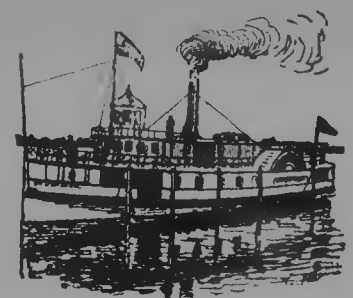

A Curiosity.

"I hear that Jenkins, the politician, was found in the act in a swarming condition."

"Fellow! He must have been comat."

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Atrocious
Editor of the Times:
Dear Sir,—The attention of the proper authorities is drawn to the fact that there exists in Victoria Park a menace to human life in the shape of a barbed wire stretched across the park which can not be distinguished at night. Ordinary wire would be bad enough, but barbed wire—think of it.

NAVIGATION NOTES

Movements of Vessels and Other Paragraphs of Interest

The steamer City of Peterborough has the following excursions booked for next week:—On Tuesday, July 19th, St. Andrews Sunday school to Idyl Wild. On Wednesday, July 20th, All Saints' church to Jubilee Point. On Thursday, July 21st, H. Calcutt's free gift excursion. On Saturday afternoon, July 23rd, The Canadian General Electric Works, Bicycle Club, to Jubilee Point.

A few days ago as the North Star was passing the "Pine Grove," a short distance below the locks, some of the passengers on shore witnessed an amusing sight. Capt. Hamilton was raising the steamer's fenders when suddenly the boat struck a rock. The lurch she made after coming off the rock caused the Captain to lose his balance and over he went into the water. Fortunately he could swim and reached shore with no worse mishap than a wet dip.

"A Passenger" writes as follows: "On Wednesday when the City of Peterborough with the Benthany Mission excursion reached one of the landings they found the steamer North Star stuck on a log. Capt. M. Lane very magnanimously put about the City of Peterborough and throwing a line to the North Star pulled the steamer into deep water. As the current of the river is quite swift at that place it was a troublesome task and Capt. M. Lane deserves great praise for his generosity."

SUBURBAN ASHBURNHAM

R. J. LANE.

The well known rocer, of Hunter street, in order to accommodate his large and growing Ashburnham trade, has opened up a branch store in the market building second door from Madill's old drug store stand. Mr. Joseph Lane, his son, is in charge. Joe has had five years experience, and is fully competent to handle the Ashburnham end. The branch carries everything that the big store does; the goods are of equal quality, and sold at the same prices. Ashburnham patrons of the Messrs. Lane will please take notice of this accommodation to them. Those who have not heretofore dealt with them will do well to call and ascertain their prices before buying elsewhere.

H. CALCUTT.

Brewer, steamboat owner, and public spirited citizen. In 1858 Mr. Calcutt commenced to operate Peck's brewery on Little Lake. He ran this until 1865, when he moved into his present quarters. To a stranger the buildings do not show up very conspicuously, being built against the side of a hill, but his idea of their size would change when he learned that the establishment, inclusive of arables, occupies a floor space of 20,000 square feet. Its capacity is one hundred barrels a day, and its products have a virtual monopoly of the Midland market. Commodore Calcutt, as his friends call him, started in the steamboat business in 1860, buying the Enterprise, an old propeller, from Messrs. Luke & Robinson. In 1870 he built the Whistler, a side wheeler, which he ran for years. He also later built the Daisy, a propeller, for service among the saw mills. In 1874 he built the Golden Eye, a large boat, licensed to carry 350 passengers, and he ran her up to 1893, in which year the Peterborough Navigation Co. was formed and took over the plant. Mr. Calcutt, however, could not keep out of the business as an individual, and in 1894 he built the North Star, now run by George McWilliams. As late as 1897 Mr. Calcutt built another boat, the Eclipse, which he still runs. He also at different times built several palace screws for the use of excursions; a wharf in Peterborough and one in Ashburnham at the foot of Mark street, with warehouses, and at the latter place a marine railway to dock boats for cleaning and repairing. Mr. Calcutt was reeve of the village for twenty years, commencing in 1863, councillor ever since until last year, when he resigned in favor of John Burnham, and member of the Board of Education for twenty-five years.

As to the later history of the Burnham family it might be well to mention that the Hon. Zachaeus, the founder, had a handsome son, named after his son, the Rev. Clerk, who in turn passed it unimpaired to his children—Zachaeus, a farmer; John, a barrister; George, a doctor; Charles, and a daughter, Mrs. Revell. The unfortunate death of John, who managed the estate, involved the whole property seriously.

NEWS IN THE OLD DAYS.

Now the Wreck of a Steamship in 1893 Was Reported.

The ocean passenger steamer Franklin ran ashore on the south side of Long Island, opposite Center Moriches, at 8 o'clock on the morning of July 8, 1893. There was a dense fog prevailing at the time, and the officers of the vessel lost their bearings completely and did not know exactly where they were when the steamer stranded.

Seven and a half hours were spent in attempting to get the vessel off the coast line in those days as they are now. Several hours elapsed before boats were secured equal to the task of making their way through the surf to the steamer. Until communication was had with the vessel nothing was known about her. Finally a boat's crew came ashore, and the vessel's name and destination were made known. Her commander made arrangements with Sidney B. Topping to get to New York and report the stranding of the steamer to the board of underwriters, whose office at that time was in Wall street.

Mr. Topping at once crossed the bay to the mainland and harnessed up his horse to a light wagon and started for Patchogue, 14 miles away. It was just noon-time when he stepped into the wagon. At Patchogue he changed horses and continued his journey to Babylon. Another change of horses was made at that place, and Mr. Topping started for Jamaica. His horse was pretty well winded when that place was reached, and he changed animals and continued on to Brooklyn, and crossing the ferry drove to the underwriters' office in Wall street. It was just 6 o'clock in the evening when he ascended the office steps. He had made the journey of a little more than 70 miles in exactly six hours.

Having reported the full details of the wreck to the underwriters, Mr. Topping drove around to the office of a leading newspaper and furnished the information for publication. He received a check for $50 from the paper and was told that had he brought a copy of a foreign newspaper from the Franklin they would have given him $100.

Mr. Topping was postmaster in West Hampton, N. J., and was a prominent figure on the east end of Long Island. He died in West Hampton at the age of 77. —New York Herald.

Constable McGinty yesterday arrested a man who was begging around Rubidge and Reid streets and annoying people in that vicinity. The man, who gave his name as Richards, was locked up.

Firmly Grounded Upon Real Merit
—They Know Hood's Sarsaparilla Absolutely and Permanently Cures When All Others Fail.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is not merely a simple preparation of Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingsia and a little Iodide of Potassium. Besides these excellent alteratives, it also contains those great anti-bilious and liver remedies, Mandrake and Dandelion. It also contains those great kidney remedies, Uva Ursi, Juniper Berries, and Pipsissewa.

Nor are these all. Other very valuable curative agents are harmoniously combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla and it is carefully prepared under the personal supervision of a regularly educated pharmacist.

Knowing these facts, is the abiding faith the people have in Hood's Sarsaparilla a matter of surprise? You can see why Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, when other medicines totally, absolutely fail.

PUBLIC OPINION.

THE ASHBURNHAM BY-LAW.

Editor Morning Times

SIR,—As the columns of your worthy newspaper is open for criticism of the by-law now before the people in regard to a water supply for the village. I venture to express my humble opinion on the merits of the proposed contract which the people are asked to vote upon on Wednesday next.

The first thing that occurred to me in connection with this matter was, that the contract is all in favor of the village. It is a fact I believe, that in no municipality in the whole world is there a system of water supply so efficient and so cheap. For $8,000 we are having a first class system put in, that will cheapen our rates of insurance, and give us thorough fire protection as well as supplying our domestic needs! Just think of it a few moments.

This is all I have to say, Mr. Editor. Thanking you for your space, I am, &c.

ASHBURNHAM, JULY 15.

BETTER PROTECTION THAN BEFORE.

Editor Morning Times.

SIR,—I notice through the columns of your widely read newspaper that Ashburnham is to have connection with the Peterborough Water Works—that is if the people vote for it, as I presume they will.

Although I am not a resident of the village, I take great interest in everything that pertains to the advantage of our friends across the river.

There was one point which I think, escaped your attention, and that is, the advantage it will be to Peterborough to have an auxiliary fire brigade in Ashburnham. Should conflagration take place on either side of the river, both brigades would do battle against the fiery foe.

It is therefore, important that people living on this side of the river and having votes on the other, should poll their votes in favor of the by-law. I am confident that the establishment of a separate fire department in Ashburnham will result in a reduction of fire insurance rates, not only in the village, but in Peterborough as well.

Yours truly,

CHAS. MITCHELL.

SPECIAL SERVICE.

A special service was held in the Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon, 10th inst., when the Rev. L. S. Hall delivered an excellent and appropriate sermon to the Orange and True Blue lodges, both of which were well represented, and must have assuredly gone away with a better idea of their duties to their fellow men both in the lodge room and to the public in general. "Love the Brotherhood" does not mean only your brother Orangemen, but all mankind. The floral decorations by the ladies was very tasteful, as it always is when they undertake that part.

ANNUAL PICNIC.

The Orange and True Blue lodges held their annual picnic on the 12th. A large attendance came in from the surrounding country.

FROST.

Frost on the night of the 10th did great damage to potatoes and nearly all garden stuff. Buckwheat also suffered severely in many places.

SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Schools are nearly all closed for the holidays, and the teachers have gone home while teachers who have been teaching in towns and cities are coming back here to rest and pick up their nerves. Ask John if they are not.

Perfect order is being maintained by the Municipal Government. Distress is very great, although there is but little sickness in town. Scarcely any yellow fever.

A small gun boat and about 200 men left by Cervera have surrendered to me.

Obstructions are being removed from the mouth of the harbor. Upon coming into the city I have discovered a perfect entanglement of defences. Fighting as the Spaniards did the first day it would have cost five thousand lives to have taken it.

Battalions of Spanish troops have been depositing arms since daylight in the armory over which I have guard. Gen. Toral formally surrendered the palace and stores at nine this morning.

THE SURRENDER OF SANTIAGO.

On Board the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, off Juraguá or Siboney, Saturday, July 16, 7 p.m., Port Antonio, Jamaica, Sunday, July 17, 5 a.m. and Kingston, 7:15 a.m.

The Spanish flag will come down from Santiago to-morrow and 22,000 Spanish soldiers will yield their arms to their American conquerors and the sovereignty of Spain in Eastern Cuba will end. Official endorsement of the terms of capitulation were received from Madrid at ten o'clock this morning and unless unforeseen obstacles arise the actual withdrawal of Gen. Toral's forces will be accomplished fact within 24 hours. Ten o'clock to-morrow is the hour set for the formal ending of the Santiago campaign. At that hour, under the terms of the agreement, the Spanish soldiers will march out from the city they have so resolutely defended, all under arms, and will be received by large detachments of General Shafter's victorious troops.

The officers will retain their side arms, but the soldiers will stack their guns before the American lines and be placed under guard, either to return to Spain under convoy or to give their oaths to remain in Cuba as non-combatants. In the meantime several regiments of Gen. Shafter's army will be sent to take possession of the fallen city and hoist the Stars and Stripes where the flag of Spain has floated for centuries. All the enemy's troops in the eastern district of Santiago province will be marched to Santiago. Many detachments from outlying points already are en route and the entire force of 22,000 men is expected to be ready to embark within a fortnight. What will be done with Gen. Shafter's force is not yet fully decided.

The physicians declare that the army, owing to the hardships and the fever, will not be fit for active duty for some time to come and Gen. Miles is believed to be seriously considering the proposition of leaving only a small force to hold the conquered province and return the body of the forces to the United States and sending other immunes from there to reinforce the Santiago detachments if necessary.

Many of the troops are eager to participate in the Porto Rico campaign, which it is reported about headquarters will follow at once but this is strongly opposed by the surgeons. New cases of yellow fever continue to appear daily and fully 600 are now under treatment but the disease is of a very mild form and the physicians say it is now well in hand. Only five deaths have occurred up to tonight—the low mortality being remarkable and most encouraging to the physicians who had grave fears the death rate would be heavy.

The agreements are as follows and consist of nine articles. The first declares that all hostilities shall cease pending the agreement of final capitulation. The second that the capitulation includes all the Spanish forces and the surrender of all war material within the prescribed limits. Third—The transportation of all the troops to Spain at the earliest possible moment, each force to be embarked at the nearest port. Fourth—That the Spanish officers shall retain their side arms and the enlisted men their personal effects. Fifth and Sixth—That after the final capitulation the commanding officers shall furnish a complete inventory of all arms and munitions of war and a roster of all the soldiers in the district. Seventh—That the Spanish general shall be permitted to take the military archives and records with him. Eighth—That all guerrillas and Spanish irregulars shall be permitted to remain in Cuba if they select—giving a parole that they will not again take up arms against the United States. Ninth—The Spanish force shall be permitted to march out with all the honors of war, depositing their arms to be disposed of by the United States in the future, the American commissioners to recommend to their Government that the arms of the soldiers be returned to those who so bravely defended them.

The articles were signed yesterday afternoon after four hours' session of the commissioners who agreed that the terms of capitulation should await the sanction of Madrid Government.

WATSON'S SQUADRON FEARED.

Cadiz, July 16.—There is great excitement here owing to the expected coming of Commodore Watson's squadron. Many are leaving.

BLANCO WANTS TO SETTLE IT.

London, July 16.—All the despatches from Madrid to the London morning papers agree that Capt-General Blanco and his staff are not willing to let the decision as to peace or war rest with the home Government. This change of attitude is supposed to be due to the lack of provisions and equipment.

Perfect order is being maintained by the Municipal Government. Distress is very great, although there is but little sickness in town. Scarcely any yellow fever.

Seventh—That the Spanish general shall be permitted to take the military archives and records with him. Eighth—That all guerrillas and Spanish irregulars shall be permitted to remain in Cuba if they select—giving a parole that they will not again take up arms against the United States. Ninth—The Spanish force shall be permitted to march out with all the honors of war, depositing their arms to be disposed of by the United States in the future, the American commissioners to recommend to their Government that the arms of the soldiers be returned to those who so bravely defended them.

The articles were signed yesterday afternoon after four hours' session of the commissioners who agreed that the terms of capitulation should await the sanction of Madrid Government.

WATSON'S SQUADRON FEARED.

Cadiz, July 16.—There is great excitement here owing to the expected coming of Commodore Watson's squadron. Many are leaving.

BLANCO WANTS TO SETTLE IT.

London, July 16.—All the despatches from Madrid to the London morning papers agree that Capt-General Blanco and his staff are not willing to let the decision as to peace or war rest with the home Government. This change of attitude is supposed to be due to the lack of provisions and equipment.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Adam Dawson, Chairman.

A HOT TIME.

Chairman Dawson's motion to adopt the report, with the exception of clause 3, which he proposed should be amended by substituting "granolithic" for "sand and cement" was the signal for the breaking forth of a storm which had been brewing all night.

The council had, it would appear, during the interval between the last night's meeting divided itself into two hostile camps. One of these favored "granolithic" walks and the other "sand and cement" walks.

A battle royal ensued.

The supporters of granolithic walks claimed that according to the Municipal Act money for the construction of sand and cement pavements could not legally be levied, and that the council would be violating the law and placing itself in an awkward predicament by adopting such a course.

The opponents of granolithic walks contended that sand and cement pavement was practically the same as granolithic and were also wicker enough to say that they knew as much about pavements as the Government did.

The "sand and cement" councillors were very aggressive and the Mayor at times experienced great difficulty in keeping order.

Town Solicitor Edwards, who was present, was asked by the Mayor to state the provisions of the section of the Municipal Act applying to pavements.

Mr. Edwards said that the Municipal Act expressly stated that pavements, in order to levy 60 per cent. of the cost from property owners benefited and 40 per cent. from the town should be either granolithic, asphalt, brick or stone.

In answer to a question he said that he was not prepared to state positively that there was a difference between granolithic and sand and cement walks, but he was inclined to think there was. Granolithic pavement was composed of crushed granite and cement; if granite and sand were synonymous terms then there would be no difference.

Councillor McWilliams thought it was absurd to raise such a question when the whole council had been unanimous in agreeing to ask for separate tenders for "granolithic" and "sand and cement" walks. If there was no difference why did the council subject the tenders to the expense of preparing two estimates where one would have answered? Contractors knew the pavements specified were not the same when they gave different prices for each. The deputation sent to Ottawa were shown granolithic and sand and cement pavements and with one exception were unanimous in selecting granolithic. He claimed the council should respect the views of this deputation.

The discussion became wearisome and it was finally agreed to put the matter to a vote.

Councillor Langford moved, seconded by Councillor J. M. White, that clause 3 be amended by extending the time for McFadden & Sabin to secure bondsmen until noon Monday, but the report as thus amended was adopted.

It was moved in amendment by Councillor Dawson, seconded by Councillor Hamilton, that "sand and cement" in clause 3 of the report be struck out and "granolithic" substituted and that the report as thus amended be adopted.

On the vote being taken the Mayor declared the amendment lost.

Councillor McWilliams demanded the "yeas" and "nays" in order, he said, to place the responsibility on the proper shoulders if the town should suffer loss from what he considered an illegal action.

The yeas and nays were as follows—

Yeas—(Those in favor of the granolithic walks, authorized by the Municipal Act.) Mayor Davis and Councillors McWilliams, Best, Dawson and Hamilton—5.

Nays—(Those opposed to granolithic walks, Councillors W. H. White, J. M. White, Robertson, Denne, Cobb, Meldrum and Langford—7.

Councillor Langford, who was the moving spirit among the "anti-granolithic" was accused by Councillor Dawson of having some sinister object in view and a hot exchange of compliments between the two terminated the discussion.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

AN INDIAN CRADLE SONG.

Swing thee low in thy cradle soft,
Deep in the dusky wood!
Swing thee low and swing aloft—
Bloom as a poposa should.
For safe in your little birchen nest
Quiet will come and peace and rest,
If the little poposa is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold,
And the owl hoots in the tree,
And the big moon shines on the little child
As it slumbers peacefully.
So swing thee high in thy little nest
And swing thee low and take the rest
That the night wind brings to thee!

Father lies on the fragrant ground,
Dreaming of hunt and fight,
And the pine leaves rustle with mournful sighs!
All through the solemn night;
But the little poposa in his birchen nest
Lies swarming low as he takes his rest,
Till the sun brings the morning light.

BY CHARLES B. LEWIS.

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the brig sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I awung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past us. I may have been overcareless or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float, when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift up my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself in-board. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I knew by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point; next, she had been floating about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her deck, but masts and yards and boats and booms had gone clear off her as they fell. She had settled down until her copper holes were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper. As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Brest. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a forecabin ship instead of having a deckhouse for the men. The caboose or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the forecabin were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuit in tins. I waited water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went on deck and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As near as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 2,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was noon before I began an examination of the lazarette to see how I should fare for provisions. I found flour, wines, table waters, preserves, boxes of biscuit, choice bacon, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storehouse, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the men. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the forecabin, I found boots, oilskins, sou'westers and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boats. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had scarcely glanced around the horizon and given no thought to a rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.

When morning came again I made a more thorough investigation of the cabin. In rear of the captain's stateroom I chanced upon a closet which had escaped me the day before, and here I made a great find. There was about $1,000 in French gold and notes, $1,200 in English goldpieces and exactly $7,000 in goldpieces just struck off at the Australian mints. The money was in two tin boxes, but whether it belonged to the ship, her captain or to other people I could not determine. It was a big fortune to a poor sailor, and I remember that I acted very foolishly over the find. I counted it over and over again, and when I at last realized that I was rich I rushed on deck, with a wild hope of seeing a sail close at hand. But for the money I believe that the long days and nights which followed would have been rather contentful for me, isolated as the situation was. I had plenty to eat and drink, there was nothing to break my sleep, the wreck might drive where she would, but there was no danger of her going down. The discovery of the money was followed by a hope of rescue, and this again by worry and anxiety. I wanted to go ashore to enjoy my wealth. I feared that when rescue did come I should be robbed. I conjured up a thousand senseless fears, and the upshot was anything but beneficial. I have spoken of the general situation in a careless way. As a matter of fact, being a navigator, I took observations regularly when the weather permitted and picked off the drift of the wreck on the chart. On the average the weather was fine, but there were days and nights when gale and sea tumbled the waterlogged craft about until only a sailor could have lived through it. Instead of lifting her the waves ran over her, and at such times the decks were two feet under water and the cabin was flooded. The cargo was afloat with the water in the hold, and as the wreck rolled and pitched the timbers rubbed together and produced noises which would have frightened landmen into fits.

I kept an accurate reckoning, and I had been on the wreck just 49 days when I caught sight of my first sail. No doubt boats had passed and repassed me by day and night, but I could get no signal by day and from the first I slept all through the night. This sail was discovered early one morning, coming up from the south, and her course was such that she must see me. I had put the money into bags and the bags into bundles of clothing in view of a rescue, and therefore had nothing to do but wait. The stranger, which proved to be an English merchantman bound for India, but considerably off her course, was within four miles of me and had sent a signal to gladden my heart when a big whale suddenly broke water close to the wreck. He was followed half a minute later by a second, which attacked him with great fury. The monsters put up a terrific battle, lashing and biting each other and kicking up a sea like a gale of wind. They at first drew away from me, but after a few minutes made a circle which brought them back. What I had feared from the first came to pass after a quarter of an hour. Half blinded by pain and fury, or feeling itself overmatched and desirous of getting away, one of the whales suddenly whirled about and came for the wreck head on. He was fully 80 feet long, and he came like a moving mountain. I made sure of my hold as I saw him coming, but he struck the wreck on her port side with such force that I was thrown across the deck and into the sea beyond. I heard the crash of planks and timbers, was tossed about by the waves, rubbed against the whale as he sounded and reached the surface to find the wreck a hull no longer. It was simply a heap of floating debris. The strange ship drew nearer, lowered a boat, and I was picked up as I clung to a plank. The money was gone, all else but the timbers which composed the cargo had disappeared, and my adventure, surprising as it had begun, had ended in a manner strange enough to satisfy even the most imaginative novelist. I was carried to India by the rescuing ship, and I know that the French consul at Calcutta set inquiries on foot regarding the fate of the crew of the Marie. What they amounted to I never learned, but have always felt satisfied that all perished when their craft was dismasted. But for the fight between the whales I believe the brig could have been pumped out and sailed into port, but fortune is a jade who robs Jack Tar far oftener than she smiles upon him.

Jinks—I say, old fellow, just slip round to that optician's and bribe him not to give her any better glasses than she has.—London Tit-Bits.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS.

Washington, July 15.—The following bulletin has been posted at the War Department from General Shafter, Headquarters, Santiago, via Playa del Este, July 15, Adjutant-General, Washington.—Sent you several telegrams yesterday, as did General Miles in regard to the surrender. Gen. Toral agreed yesterday positively to surrender all the forces under his command in Eastern Cuba upon a distinct understanding that they were to be sent to Spain by the United States that this surrender was authorized by Gen. Blanco and that its submission to-morrow was merely formal. The commissioners to arrange details were appointed. Wheeler, Lawton and Milly on the part of the United States. Points were immediately raised by Spanish commissioners. The discussion lasted until 10 o'clock night. My commissioners think the matter will be settled to-day and meet at 9.30 o'clock this morning, are about 12,000 troops in the city and about as many more in the surrounding district, 25,000 in all, will be transported. General Miles was present and said the surrender was as absolute and complete as possible. It cannot be possible there will be a failure in completing arrangements. Water famine is imminent in the city. Have supply cut. This was told Lieut. Milly by English commissioner. Will wire frequently when negotiations are progressing.

(Signed) Shafter.

Major-General Com.

General Shafter bears his honors modestly. To a correspondent of the Associated Press.—

"The enemy has surrendered all the territory and troops east of Santiago. The teams were dictated from Washington it has been a hard campaign one of the hardest I ever saw. The difficulties to contend with were very great never during our civil war were more troubles and problems solved. The character of the country and the roads made it seem almost impossible to advance in the face of the enemy. The transportation problem was hard, but all the difficulties have been successfully surmounted. Our troops have behaved gallantly. They fought like heroes, and I am proud to have commanded them. During all the hardships they have suffered they have shown resolution and spirit. They deserve to conquer."

"The resistance of the enemy has been exceedingly stubborn. General Toral has proved himself a freeman worthy of any man's steel. The negotiations which culminated in the surrender of General Toral have been dragging on for ten days with the intermission of Sunday and Monday. When our batteries and fleet bombarded the enemy's positions. Throughout the superior of true General Toral has bravely played for time always declining to surrender unconditionally and falling back when hard pressed upon the statement that he was simply a subordinate and powerless to agree to the proposals without the sanction of his superiors except under penalty of being court-martialed at the same time he seemed to intimate that personally he thought it useless useless to hold out any longer, but he and his garrison were soldiers, he said, and could be if necessary obeying orders."

CERVERA GOES TO ANNAPOLIS.

Peterborough, N.B., July 14.—The United States auxiliary cruiser St. Louis sailed for Annapolis at six o'clock this morning, having on board Admiral Cervera and the other Spanish officials captured at Santiago on July 3.

SPANISH RESOURCES DRAINED.

New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says.—If the war party in Spain persists, despite the advice of the Pope and the powers, the Government will make known soon how scant are provisions and ammunition among the Spanish forces in Cuba and Porto Rico, on confession of the Government themselves. Moreover, it will publish a financial statement showing that all Spain's resources of supply have been drained, that all the advances made by the Bank of Spain are exhausted, and that the only recourse now is to stop the payment of the interest on the debt and of the sinking fund, and to issue treasury bonds at 6 and 7 per cent. interest, with the double guarantee of the Spanish treasury and the Bank of Spain.

In the court and in official circles it is believed that if such extreme arguments are resorted to, the army at least will see that the game is up and will consent to peace.

But General Blanco cannot undertake to procure the submission of the Spanish volunteers and irregulars in Cuba nor to disarm them. They intimated him when consulted that if the Spanish Government made peace they would fight on, guerrilla fashion.

HE WANTS A SUBSTITUTE.

"Madrid has taken the defeat of Cervera so quietly that peace is now possible without risks of revolution. Sagasta is not willing to sacrifice his political reputation by proposing peace under hard conditions. He is bent upon having some convenient substitute incur the unpopularity. When peace has been made he will return to office and die in harness."

"There is great interest here in the conditions of peace which the United States may propose, and there will be general disappointment if a war indemnity based upon the Philippines be so meagre that either France or Germany can raise the money and obtain possession of the islands. It is believed here that the Europeans will not intervene in any way unless a high indemnity be proposed. In that event the powers may use their diplomatic offices for obtaining the reduction of the indemnity."

"Whether the indemnity be high or low, Spain, unaided, will never pay it, but unless it be a substantial one some European power will pay it, and then the United States will be compelled to withdraw from the Philippines, especially as Japan has retired from the mainland of China. England easily desires America to remain permanently in the Philippines."

A QUESTION OF HOURS.

New York, July 13.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says it is the belief here in official circles that the probability is that direct overtures for peace will be made to the United States and that it is only a question of hours when this will be done.

"The Queen is as anxious as the Ministers to come to terms if the United States is not too exacting. Otherwise the war party is sure to have its own way."

ALL THE WOUNDED ARE HOME.
Washington, July 14.—Information was received last night at the War Department that late hospital ship Seneca has sailed from Playa del Este for Port Monroe with all of the remaining wounded officers and men—70 in number—can be removed with safety at this time. The wounded men who could not be sent to the United States is either already here or is en route to this country.

THE POWERS MAY INTERFERE.

London, July 14.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says.—"The German press is actively discussing the future of the Philippines. The difficulties arising out of the present state of things—of which it is asserted the American hardly take sufficient account—may soon assume alarming proportions, such, indeed, as may finally necessitate the intervention of powers whose commercial interests in the islands are affected."

"The Kreuz Zeitung points out that American intervention is by no means necessary and would involve a complete change in America's naval and military system. 'But,' it adds, 'it is evident that the Monroe doctrine has been dropped and a new policy of imperialism begun. The Stars and Stripes will shortly wave over Manila. It is beginning to be universally acknowledged here that Spain can now honorably sue for peace with every prospect of acceptance.'"

STEERING FOR CARTAGENA.

New York, July 14.—A despatch to The World from Gibraltar, Spain says.—"A steamer just arrived from the Mediterranean reports having sighted Admiral Cervera's squadron steering in the direction of Cartagena."

Gun practice was constantly carried on aboard the warships as long as they were in sight. The report that Commodore Watson's fleet is coming to Spain has caused great excitement and profound anxiety.

The inhabitants of Ceuta and Algeciras are leaving for inland towns.

BRITAIN TAKES A HAND.

Victoria, B. C., July 3.—In response to the request of United States Consul-General of Vancouver, Admiral Palliser, commanding the British Pacific squadron, stationed at Esquimalt, has dispatched Her Majesty's ship Amphion, a second-class cruiser, and the sloop of war Leeward, mounting nine guns, to cruise the waters of the north to search for the privateer which, according to reports that have reached the ears of the consul, is hidden in the vicinity of Dixon's Entrance, through which the treasure ships pass on their way to Japan.

The fleet was at Vancouver in connection with the celebration, and citizens there were surprised yesterday to see the men-of-war hoist their anchors and slip off to sea. Inquiries were made, and, according to the naval authorities, the admiral directed them, on the information received, to take steps to prevent any holding up of ships for the purpose of looting. Although probably only American ships would be involved, the inquiry was not confined to them, as many of the miners on board with gold would be British subjects.

TO STRENGTHEN WATSON'S FLEET.

New York, July 14.—A special to The Herald from Washington says.—Believing that the effects of the appearance of an American squadron on the Spanish coast will be in direct proportion to the strength of the fleet, Secretary Long and Naval Board have decided to strengthen Commodore Watson's command by an additional armored, and probably three or four protected and unprotected cruisers.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tablets with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tablets, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The latest retail drug store in America is that of Heggeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tablets were selling bought a five-cent carton and said: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said: "The sale of Ripans Tablets is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tablets for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always enjoyed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tablets recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call."

A Dollar's worth of Ripans Tablets

lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar."

At the time this interview these were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elderly lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tablets to any one afflicted as I was. If the tablet about my case in the papers enable some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughter, then, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing the RIPANS TABLETS packed in a paper carton (which should be sent for sale at some drug store—FIVE CENTS). This low priced set is intended for the poor and the sick. One (one of the five-cent cartons) should be sent by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the TIMES BINDERY, New York—of a single or ten (TEN TABLETS) will be sent for five cents. Ripans Tablets may also be had at some grocers, druggists, and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

DISEASE AND BATTLE

Have Materially Weakened Toral's Forces

Numbers Down with Fevers and Wounds

Effect of a Revolution in Spain

Washington, July 16.—A despatch to days received from General Miles at Santiago gives information hitherto not known as to the reasons which influenced General Toral, the Spanish General, in surrendering Santiago without a battle.

It appears that the condition of the Spanish army as regards wounds and disease was even worse than that of Shafter's troops. The light made by the Spanish troops while falling back from Baquiri, Siboney, San Juan and other places was more disastrous to them than to the Americans, and the bivouacking night after night upon the fever-infested grounds outside the city, coupled with the scarcity of food and the comforts of life, produced an enormous amount of disease.

Every hospital in the city is crowded with soldiers suffering from malaria and yellow fever, and even the churches and public buildings have had to be utilized. It is calculated that one-half of Toral's troops have been killed or fighting for a week past. Over 2,000 of the 12,000 men occupying Santiago are either down with yellow fever or are convalescing, and about 100 have died from the disease.

There are also 1,300 cases of malaria in the hospitals, over 4,000 men in the various skirmishes, and about 800 are reported killed or missing. Under these circumstances General Toral's force was so decimated that he felt he could make no stand against an advance upon the city, and decided to surrender.

SICK WITH TYPHOID FEVER.

New York, July 16.—A despatch to The World from El Guaymas says: "The world-famous people are sick with typhoid fever, measles, and starvation. One house of ten rooms is crowded with nearly 250 persons of all classes, including many white women. In this house are ten cases of sickness. The town is policed by one troop of the Second Cavalry. There are only four doctors and eleven priests. Clara Barton says: 'I visited Guaymas and was shocked at the condition of the women and children. They clung to my skirts and pleaded for food. There are 1,400 tons of stores on the transport clustered thick in the harbor of Siboney, but there is no way of getting them ashore in sufficient quantities. The neglect of the Government to provide fighters and transportation over roads deep in mud is causing many deaths. Medicine to save and prolong life are 12 miles away, while the people are starving to death.'

PEACE PROPOSALS FROM MADRID.

New York, July 16.—A despatch to The World from London says: "News of definite peace proposals is expected hourly from Madrid. The suspension of constitutional rights throughout Spain is accepted as a precautionary measure adopted by the Cabinet to enable the Government to rigorously suppress the disorders which are expected to follow the opening of peace negotiations. But a leading British politician said today that Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, the British Ambassador at Madrid, reports in his latest despatches that the likelihood of a revolution is diminishing, and that in his judgment prompt and firm action would paralyze the revolutionary parties, who are deficient in both organization and money. The British Government is capable of being misled, troublesome, because when a rising is decided upon Don Carlos is expected to provide the sinews of war and keep it going. Sir Henry speaks enthusiastically of the Emperor's courage, firmness, patience and resolute persistence in peace councils."

THE CENSOR'S BLUE PENCIL.

Madrid, July 16.—On leaving the Council Chamber last evening, the Ministers protested still to be without confirmation of the report of the capitulation of Santiago. Owing to the state of siege, the censorship of despatches is extremely rigorous, and numerous messages are held back. All parts of the peninsula are officially censored as required. Don Carlos is expected to issue a manifesto here. General Weyler has abandoned his intended journey and will remain at Madrid.

CARLISTS SHOW ACTIVITY.

London, July 16.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "The Carlist agitation is assuming proportions in many of the northern provinces which may serve as a fresh argument for action on the part of the Government. The civil and military authorities, acting under the instructions of the Ministers of the Interior and of War, are closely watching the movements of the Carlist emissaries, who are frequently fitting about the old haunts of Carlistism, coming to Madrid, going to Barcelona, Bayona and to Basque to report the results of their propaganda and preparations."

Special attention is being given to the Pyrenean frontier, where Carlists are being a willing hand. The authorities are convinced that arms and war stores have been introduced and that Carlists have been supplied with money from abroad.

The Marquis de Cerralbo, the chief lieutenant of Don Carlos, and the Carlist Senators and Deputies, together with the Carlist newspapers, affect, however, a patriotic indignation at the idea that they could harbor a design for rising until the war was over and until the conditions of peace furnished a pretext for justifying such action in the eyes of the nation and of the Vatican. The position of the Carlists is somewhat peculiar. The leaders have certainly thus far endeavored to keep their rural adherents and the local juntas quiet; but they are beginning to feel that these will sap away, especially as the most impatient elements find favor with the son and wife of the pretender.

Representations have been made against the presence of Don Carlos in Brussels, where Don Juana will soon join him. The Spanish consuls in the south of France have been instructed to watch the Carlists and their sympathizers, with a view of causing a "surprise" on the part of the French frontier authorities.

CAUGHT THE CABLE.

Off Santiago de Cuba, July 15.—Via Playa del Este, July 15, played in discussion. The cable from the United States was caught this morning by the anchor of the Massachusetts near Aguadulce, just as the surrender of Santiago was announced. The finding of the cable was accidental. It has been decided to use the cable for future use, and not to cut it.

At General Wheeler's headquarters, before Santiago de Cuba, July 15, via Kingston, Jan. July 16.—The preliminary basis for the capitulation of the Spanish forces in eastern Cuba was agreed to and signed under a picturesque elm tree, half way between the lines shortly after midnight. Our commissioners were invited to enter the city by those representing General Toral, but declined and the conference was held under the spreading eucalyptus, such a tree as that under which Columbus assisted at the celebration of Massachusetts, on his first landing in Cuba near Havana. At the very outset, a high occurred, owing to a misunderstanding of what was said at the personal interview between General Shafter and General Toral at noon. At that time our interpreter, translating the language of General Toral, had given General Shafter, Miles and Wheeler a distinct understanding that Captain-General Blanco had consented that the commissioners should have plenary powers to negotiate the terms of surrender, such terms as they agreed upon to be binding upon both parties. Something was said about a notification to the Madrid Government, but at the same time they claimed strongly that it would be forthcoming.

MUST SURRENDER THEIR ARMS.

New York, July 16.—A special to The World from Siboney says: "The terms of the Spanish capitulation are: 'The 20,000 refugees at Guaymas and Siboney are to be returned back into the hands of an American infantry brigade to be posted in the roads surrounding the city and in the country between the American cavalry. Our hospital corps is to give attention to any possible sick and wounded among the Spanish soldiers at Santiago. All the Spanish troops in the province except General Laques' 10,000 at Bolguin are to come to the city to surrender. The guns and defenses of the city are to be turned over to the Americans in good condition. The Americans are to take possession of the Durango Railway, which belongs to the Spanish Government. The Spaniards are to be conveyed home by American transports with the least possible delay, and they are permitted to take portable church property with them. The Spaniards are to surrender their arms.'

That it would be forthcoming, as Captain-General Blanco had authorized it, and the Home Government would do the same. General Toral, who was personally present, and who, in fact, directed the negotiations on his own behalf, said he had never been overruled by the Captain-General, still he added, until Madrid had sanctioned it, Santiago had not capitulated.

All this was extremely unsatisfactory to our commissioners, who clung tenaciously to the understanding General Shafter had received earlier in the day.

Finally, with the question of whether or not the Spanish forces had actually surrendered still open, the commissioners proceeded to the consideration of the preliminaries. Captain Miles had drawn up thirteen articles of a general nature and these were submitted to General Toral personally. He made a strong appeal that the word "capitulation" be used instead of the harsher term "surrender," and that his army be allowed to march out with their arms and their small arms. He said the arms could afterwards be sent to Spain, either on the same ship with the troops or on some other ship. General Toral further remarked that he expected that our commissioners as representatives of a brave and chivalrous people would not seek to humiliate his army or make it appear that he was vanquished. As brave men, his soldiers desired to go home with honor. They had simply yielded to superior force and they would prefer dying to going home without their honor.

Our commissioners could not resist this appeal, but they said it lay beyond the terms laid down by our Government, and they could only recommend the matter to Washington.

At four o'clock General Toral returned to the city to consult with General Laques, who had hitherto been erroneously reported dead. General Toral and the Spanish commissioners remained at 6:30, saying they desired a still further change in the articles, and suggested a postponement of the negotiations until morning. This General Wheeler firmly declined. Thereupon a recess was taken until 9:30. The commissioners remained at that hour and the articles were again gone over in detail. Various changes of verbiage, which tended only to soften the sound of the terms, without affecting the sense, were proposed by the Spaniards, and our commissioners accepted practically all of them. Shortly after midnight the signatures of the Spaniards were affixed to the terms and the commissioners separated to meet again at 9:30 in the morning.

The present municipal authorities are to continue in control of the city until the Spanish troops are embarked. The Spanish troops from other points are to be embarked at the nearest ports.

OPENED PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Rates Applicable to Goods from Spain to Cuba will not Prevail

For the Present at Least—If Later It is Ascertained that the Rates are Excessive or Inconsistent They will be Discontinued—Latest from the Front

(Special to the Times.)
Washington, July 18.—Secretary Gage and Secretary Day had a conference at the treasury department this afternoon on the subject of collection of the customs revenue at Santiago. Secretary Gage and assistant Secretary Howard have been engaged all the morning in studying the Cuban tariff and were surprised to see that there were only a slight difference in their principal features between the Cuban rates as applied Spain and our own rates. Under the present law, but an increase of 50 per cent. in Cuban rates as applied to countries other than Spain. It was decided therefore not to make any changes at present. Instead of formulating new rates as was contemplated this morning the present schedule of rates applicable to goods coming to Cuba from Spain will be continued for the present at least, and made to apply to all goods without regard to the country of origin. The present rate of port dues will also be continued. If, however, it is learned later that the rates are inconsistent or are excessive in any particular way they will be modified accordingly.

TROUBLE IN RURAL DISTRICTS

Madrid, July 18.—3 p.m.—The increase in the Octroi rates or duties on produce taken into the towns is causing turbulence in the rural districts of Spain. The populace of the provinces of Huolua has rebelled against the imports of grain and flour and attacked and set fire to a number of public buildings. The troops had to be called out to repress the disorder.

The Paris organ of the Republicans advocates a military dictatorship and the Republicans are endeavoring to secure the support of the army and for this purpose.

SHIP CAPTURED

Manila, July 13, via Hong Kong, July 18.—A Spanish steamer, the "Philippina," has just been brought in here in the hands of her captors. It appears that she was on the northern coast and escaping to China with a native crew on board, when the latter revolted, killed the Spanish officers and brought the vessel to Cavite.

The Spaniards are daily employing convicts to fell trees and burn houses on the outskirts of the town. Fustilades continue, but otherwise the position is unchanged. The stock of flour is practically exhausted, but the supplies of rice and Buffalo meat will last for months yet.

TARIFF MADE KNOWN

Washington, July 18.—The president has signed the war tariff for Santiago and it takes effect tomorrow. It adopts in general the privileged rates now given Spain there and makes that tariff uniform for all countries, including the United States.

GERMAN SEAKES OFFERED

Washington, July 18.—Major Van Wooten of the Royal Cavalry of Germany now in Berlin has written to the War Department making a formal tender of his services to the American army in the war against Spain. As an evidence of his entire good faith in the matter he transmits his commission in the German army signed by Emperor William and also a photograph of himself in full military uniform showing numerous badges and orders of distinction. His application has been transmitted to the president.

PRISONERS DOING WELL

Portsmouth, N. H., 18.—All the Spanish prisoners in the sick bay of the auxiliary cruiser Harvard were landed at Camp Long on Seavey's Island this afternoon and at 2 o'clock Captain Cotton expected to sail for New York as soon after 4 o'clock as possible. All the sick are doing well, no deaths having occurred since Sunday. The Harvard took on board today a supply of coal, water, provisions and many articles which go to make up a ship's stores.

MCKINLEY'S MESSAGE TO SHAFER

Washington, July 16.—The following messages were sent to-day by President McKinley and Secretary R. A. Alger:—

To Gen. Shafter, commanding front near Santiago, Playa. The President of the United States sends to you and your brave army the profound thanks of the American people for the brilliant achievement at Santiago, resulting in the surrender of the city and all of the Spanish troops and territory under General Toral. Your splendid command has endured not only hardships and sacrifices incident to campaign and battle, but in stress of heat and weather has triumphed over obstacles which would have overcome men less brave and determined. One and all have displayed the most conspicuous gallantry and earned the gratitude of the nation. The hearts of the people turn with tender sympathy to the sick and wounded. May the Father of Mercies protect and comfort them. (Signed) William McKinley.

To Major General Shafter, front near Santiago, Playa.—

"I cannot express in words my gratitude to you and your heroic men. Your work has been well done. God bless you all. (Signed) R. A. Alger, Secretary of War."

THE CUBAN PLEBISCITE

Madrid, July 16.—It is said, in connection with the Spanish suggestion of leaving the question of the future government of Cuba to be decided by a plebiscite of its inhabitants, that Spain would unreservedly accept the decision given in such case.

W. H. PONTON ARRESTED

Sensational Developments in the Napanee Robbery,

COLTON IS ALSO CHARGED

Prisoner Here's Alleged Confession Leads to Startling Results

The Story of a Deep-Laid Plot Well Planned and Executed—Prisoner's Evidence in the Former Case Revealed

Kingston, Ont., July 18.—Bert Colton, of Napanee, was arrested here last night by Detective Dougherty, in connection with the Napanee bank robbery. He was taken to Napanee by this morning's train.

Colton was secured in Kingston on a charge of harboring criminals. He is said to have had some of the money of the bank in his possession. Police officers told of queer actions and statements made, in one case throwing away a coin which he said the authorities would like to secure.

Bert Colton and his mother came to Kingston on Saturday and put up at the Windsor Hotel. Dougherty came also and gained Colton's friendship, and it is said, secured some of the bills through change that Colton had. The arrest was made shortly before midnight Sunday. Napanee authorities telegraph that the robbery is nothing to do with the robbery.

THE ARREST OF PONTON

Napanee, July 18.—The developments in the famous Dominion Bank robbery of August last are of a sensational character. The arrest of Ponton and the subsequent arrest of Colton and recovery of a large part of the proceeds of the robbery increased public interest and awakened in the breasts of the friends of W. H. Ponton renewed confidence that the thief would be able to break and that his day of vindication had arrived.

This was the position of affairs on Saturday morning, when a party composed of Chief Bailey, of Manchester, N. H., Inspector J. D. O'Brien, and George E. F. S. of the Ontario Detective Winkles, of the Kingston agency, was in waiting, and the party at once entered a bus and were driven to the residence of Police Magistrate Daly, where Ponton was arraigned upon the charge of breaking into the Dominion Bank on August 27, 1897, and stealing therefrom $33,000 in cash and bills. Ponton replied in a low voice, "Yes sir," and the magistrate immediately remanded him for each day.

Detective Dougherty and the magistrate then held a prolonged conversation in undertones apart from the other members of the party, after which preparations were made to take the prisoner to the jail.

The result of this conversation between the detective and the magistrate was the arrest of William H. Ponton, at Napanee, Point a summer resort ten miles from Belleville, Ponton took his arrest coolly, and after a consultation with his counsel, Mr. Porter, drove with the detective to Napanee jail.

It is Extreme Folly

To use medicine to cure effects instead of using Paine's Celery Compound to get rid of the cause. Paine's Celery Compound will make you well and strong. All the while you are using it the nerves gain in power and strength, the digestive organs are fully toned, and lost health is rapidly returning.

It is extreme folly to neglect the insignificant ills, fevers, pains and tired feelings that some people look upon as merely trifles. You should remember that the hot summer weather aggravates the little ills of life, and these little ills frequently disturb the system, and seriously disturb Paine's Celery Compound should be used at once to brace up the diseased nerves, purify the blood and fortify the system. Weak children, frail and weary women, and tired and broken-down men find a new existence in Paine's Celery Compound, nature's true life-giver.

WHAT SPAIN WILL DO

London, July 16.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "I learn on reliable authority that the Austrian court would not cede Cuba and to pay indemnity, but not to abandon Porto Rico. Señor Sagasta wants to be able to retain the Philippines as a Spanish possession, the powers preferring the island to remain in Spanish rather than American hands."

OPPOSITION TELEPHONES

About as Needed as an Opposition Post Office.

LONDON'S BIG MISTAKE.

If She Looks With Favor on a Second Telephone Company.

Is the Experience of Peterborough Likely to be Repeated in the Forest City?—A Few Plain Facts for Our London Friends to Ponder Over.

We notice by the Ontario Gazette that a company to be known as the People's Telephone Company, of London, has been organized for the purpose of constructing a system of telephoning in London. The new company will have a capital stock of $100,000 in $100 shares, and is composed of two Detroit gentlemen and some of London's prominent business men. It will carry on in London and the County of Middlesex a general telephone business. The articles of incorporation stipulated that the lines of the company must be constructed and operated as to cause by induction and otherwise, the least possible injury to or interfere with the business and operations of other existing telephone systems.

The above recalls Peterborough's experience with a similar enterprise. In 1900 "The Ontario Telephone Company" was incorporated for the purpose of establishing a service here and in due course commenced operations. The capital was taken by Peterborough men, who were led to believe that even if the rates were cut down 50 per cent. there would be a handsome return. But although the Company were well patronized it very soon became apparent that there would be no dividend for the shareholders, who were eventually glad to sell out at figure which, it is true, returned them the cost they had actually put in but without any return either in the way of interest or compensation for their loss of time. This exploit demonstrated four things:

1. That a second telephone is about as inconvenient as a second Post Office would be.

2. That a rate, lower to any considerable extent than that charged by The Bell Company cannot be maintained.

3. That a new Company cannot successfully compete against a thoroughly established corporation.

4. That a local service, with its attendant risks, is at a great disadvantage compared with a general service.

It must not be overlooked that telephone connection with outside places has now become a necessity of the day, and a place of any size without such connection would be considered just as much out of the world as if it had no telephone office. How, it may be asked, is a purely local Company to effect this communication? This is evidently a point that our London friends notwithstanding their very laudable enterprise, have apparently overlooked. It will be readily seen that the marked difference between a Company having its business in many different places instead of in one place is very much the same as between the woman who has her eggs in many baskets and her who has them all in one. A single disaster in the latter case might readily swamp the concern, while in the former its effect would scarcely be felt. A paragraph appears in Wednesday's Mail and Empire to the effect that the new Company anticipate obtaining an exclusive franchise of the city streets but if the arguments we have advanced are sound, as we believe they are, even such an advantage as that the possibility of which we very much doubt, would not ensure the Company's success, and we would respectfully suggest to the directors of the People's Company, that it might be well "to hasten slowly." It must be admitted that telephones are sometimes very exasperating. It is to be feared that the estimable young ladies who finger the switchboard are not always as prompt or polite as they would be if not separated by distance, but the public have perhaps become too exacting, and while but a few years ago one had to be content to take a long walk and spend a great deal of time in communicating with a fellow citizen, now the whole thing must be done in a moment, otherwise there is trouble. We know that there is cause for complaint but the inevitable boon of a telephone service even at its worst, is not to be lightly regarded, and while we are referring to this subject we take the opportunity of bespeaking for those in charge of telephone exchanges a little more patience and consideration.

Since the above was in type we learn that the rights of the Bell Company are assured both by Dominion and Provincial charters, so that an exclusive franchise (except to the Bell) is an impossibility in any place in Canada.

CANARIES

They Are Subject to Many Diseases—How They Should Be Treated.

To neglect the cleanliness of food, cage or water is a sure means of bringing on disease. The cups should be so arranged as to be easy of access for the bird's head, and the bathing dish should be shallow and large enough to prevent the bird from injuring his plumage in his vigorous plunges.

Perches which are too small are a source of misery to the bird. They should be—when of the same size throughout—about twice the diameter of a common lead pencil.

If a young canary is observed to sleep more than usual or if it has the appearance of a puff ball, it should be taken in hand at once. Probably it is suffering from indigestion, arising from unwholesome or stale food, or from being given too many delicacies. The bird should be caught and a couple of drops of castor oil dropped down his throat, or the drinking water may be removed from the cage for a couple of hours and then put back with a few drops of cod liver oil floating on the top.

Either of these remedies will probably afford relief. The bird should then be removed to a dry, warm place and fed on crushed hemp for a few days.

Diarrhoea is caused by giving too much green food, food which is wet or decayed or stale seeds. Bad drinking water is another frequent cause.

When the first symptoms of moults are observed, give a little magnesia in the drinking water, 10 or 15 grains to a wineglassful, or put in the fountain a sea-leaf, changing it every day.

To catch cold when moulting is almost always certain death to the bird. Therefore avoid drafty places for the cage.

At this time an abundance of food is necessary, and must be given by additions of a little hemp seed, white bread soaked in milk and lettuce or endive. The bird should also be kept warm.

Canaries are subject to many diseases. A common complaint is asthma. This generally arises from indigestion and leads to the fatal and rare need consistent with water as the sole food. In very bad cases leave off hemp seed and use rape only; give abundance of bread soaked in water and pressed; lettuce or watercress, according to season; twice a week give a boiled bread and milk ball about as large as the end of the thumb.

This is made by throwing a piece of the crumb of bread into a cup of milk, boiling and stirring with a wooden spoon till it is of the consistency of pap. It must be given cold and always freshly made. If allowed to sour, it will give indigestion. This paste acts as a purge and its effects must be watched.

For overgrown claws and beak use sharp scissors to take care to avoid drawing blood. The long claws are a source of discomfort and danger, especially when the female is nesting.

A bird which is egg bound needs immediate treatment. Give coarse brown sugar and drop some sweet oil into the duct.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Singular Fowl.

In a "Tour Around Hawaii," written in 1825, is this amusing description of an odd pet, the favorite of two native women:—

When we reached the house of our host, the head man of Kapapala, we met a cordial reception.

Few of the Hawaiian females are without a pet, usually a dog. Here we observed a species of favorite that we had not seen before. It was a curly tailed hog about a year and a half old, three or four feet long and in tolerable order. He belonged to two sisters of our host and joined the so-called circle around the evening hearth.

During the evening he closely followed every movement made by his mistresses, and at supper put forth his nose and received his portion at their hands. According to custom, they washed their hands after the meal, and then passed the bowl to the hog.

At the usual time for retiring to rest these two ladies spread their mats and tapes on the ground in one corner, and as is the usual practice, lay down to sleep with their clothes on. The hog waited very quietly till they had taken their places, when he marched over their tapes and stretched himself between them. The large tape that covered them all was then drawn up by one of them to his ears, after which he reclined his head on a pillow by his side.

I could not forbear smiling broadly at the sight of the three heads in a row. This disconcerted the women a little, and they raised their heads and the hog grunted.

The brother said that his sisters had a great attachment for the hog, having fed it since it was a few days old, and did not like to have it sleep out with the other hogs in the cold, adding that if it were put out it would make such a noise all night at the door that no one in the house would be able to sleep.

Klondike Gold.

He had spent two or three winters in the Klondike country, or said he had, and he was telling his friends about it.

"It isn't so awfully cold up there when one gets used to it, is it?" asked a listener.

"Well," he hesitated, "I don't really suppose it is; anyhow, it isn't to the one that's used to it." He don't know a thing about it. He's been froze to death a month by that time."

"Oh, indeed," stammered the inquirer, who seemed to be disturbed by the sad fate of the person accustomed to it.

"Yes, and I've seen it so cold that a bullet shot up in the air would freeze up there and not come down till the spring thaw. But that isn't as bad as it was last winter. By jingo, I'm a liar if we didn't have a Boston girl up there last winter teaching school and the weather was so cold that that Boston girl actually set the schoolhouse on fire by spontaneous combustion—she was that warm by comparison." Cold? Well, if we could only ship the cold down to this country like we do the gold you would be playing golf on snowshoes all summer long right here in the city of Detroit.—Detroit Free Press.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Some Terse and Timely Remarks Preparatory to Wintering.

Before the large proportion of the fowls are sent to market it will be best to select out a sufficient number that is desired to keep over. Those reserved for breeding as well as those wanted for layers should be selected. Generally it will be best with chickens to select the best of the breed, but with young pullets, and rely upon purchasing a sufficient number of chicks for breeding.

The introduction of new blood is not quite so easy as it seems. It is essential that vigor and vitality of the stock is to be maintained. As the hens will lay fully as well without a cock, as with one, only the numbers needed for breeding need be kept, and others are a waste of space, as they return to the main flock.

There is certainly no economy in keeping them for the winter, as a good, fat pullet or hen is superior to a rooster for eating. Early hatched, thirty pullets make good winter layers and nearly quite as good as a cock.

It is not quite so easy as it seems to select out a sufficient number of the best of the breed. The rooster of the flock should be a good one, and the rule on most farms, one rooster to every 10 hens will be the right proportion. Better keep a flock of 20 or 30 well selected hens and a pullet or two than a flock of 100 with a rooster and a few pullets.

It is certainly a good economy to keep a sufficient number to supply the table, as any kind of food meat will make an agreeable change for the table. With turkeys, one pair will suffice for a dozen hens, but it is only in exceptional cases that any one will care to keep that many turkey hens. Generally from four to six will be as many as will be wanted to keep through the winter for breeding.

Part of the stock of the season should be selected young hens, reasonably well matured by the time the eggs are wanted for hatching. As turkey hens may be kept until they are four years old, the keeping of a few for two years in succession is advisable, but when a change is best, get new blood.

About the same rules of management will be best for ducks as for chickens. In some cases ducks are kept for the eggs and feathers as well as for breeding. When this is the case, one drake for every eight or ten hens will answer. Ducks should be kept in separate quarters from the chickens, and only such numbers as can be comfortably sheltered should be kept.

Another different management with geese should be followed if the most is to be made out of them. One of the most important items in keeping geese is the income that may be derived from the feathers. Old geese, and only old geese, and better feathers than young ones, but they lay more eggs, and the eggs will hatch better. For this reason, after the flock has been brought up to the number that it is desired to keep, the better and more profitable plan is to keep the older geese and market the younger ones. Young geese, if in good condition, sell for better prices than old geese, and this, too, is an item to be considered.

Generally, with poultry as with other stock, there is no advantage in keeping and feeding the fowls after they are fully matured, excepting, of course, those that are wanted for breeding. Food well get them into good, marketable condition, and then sell. All feeders after this is an addition to the cost without a corresponding return.

"There is but one way to avoid it. Miss Agnes, dear Miss Agnes, let us share our lives and our baggage. Be my wife!"

Amorous.

The following rather ambiguous advertisement appeared in the "Person" column of a western newspaper a short time ago:

A still more ambiguous personal advertisement appeared in a Ohio paper a year or two ago. It was as follows:

"If this should meet the eye of Lewis J. Smith and he will send his present address to his old home he will have something to his advantage. His wife is dead."

WALRUS LEATHER.

Good For Making Wheels For Polishing Other Polishing Leathers.

Walrus leather is used for making buffer wheels for polishing brass, steel and silver. It has a peculiar, coarse grain that holds the emery or polishing powder well. It takes about five years to tan a walrus hide. Some walrus leather is made in this country, but the bulk of it is imported from England. Leather made from the hide of a cub walrus would be about half an inch thick. The hide of an old bull might be two inches thick. The value of the leather depends upon its thickness. Half inch would sell for about 50 cents a pound; 1 1/4 inches would be worth $1.40 a pound, and walrus leather from 1 1/4 to 1 3/4 inches thick, smooth and well trimmed, would be worth $2 a pound, and a side of such leather would cost about $300.

Walrus wheels are made in a variety of shapes, depending upon the work on which they are used. They are made with a flat face, grooved, cone shaped or of any shape that may be desired, and by cementing layers of leather together wheels of any desired thickness are made. Walrus leather is also used for valve packings.

Bull necks are used also for polishing purposes. Three-quarter inch bull necks sell at about 50 cents a pound. Leather made from the hide of the sea lion is used for polishing purposes. This is a smoother and softer leather used for softer metals. Sea lion leather of an average thickness costs about 50 cents a pound. Built up wheels of any thickness are also made of sea lion and of bull neck leather.—New York Sun.

The Lost Purse.

"I have had my pocket picked!" exclaimed a middle-aged woman as she hurriedly entered a suburban police station a day or two ago.

"Where did it occur?"

"In a shop in the High street, and I know it was a man who stood near me took it."

"How much was in it?"

"I can't say, sir. You see, it was this way: I came out to do some shopping. I put my purse in my pocket when I left home. When I went to pay for the goods, it was gone. I think I had about 30 shillings."

"Did any one have an opportunity to pick your pocket?"

"I suppose they did."

"Sure you brought the money with you?"

"Yes."

"Are you certain you did not lose it?"

"Do you think I'm a fool, sir?" she indignantly exclaimed. "When I say I had my pocket picked, I know what I'm talking about."

"I hope you do, ma'am, but—"

At this moment a boy entered the room with the purse in his hand and said:

"Here's your money, ma. We found it on the plane after you left the house, and Sarah sent me down to the shop after you."

The woman and the sergeant looked at each other for a few seconds. Then he smiled. Then she got red. Then he said he was glad she had found her money, and she retired.

"I don't believe it! You wish I had lost it! I'll never come here for help again, never!"—Pearson's Weekly.

NEWS IN THE OLD DAYS.

New the Wreck of a Steamship in 1859 Was Reported.

The ocean passenger steamer Franklin ran ashore on the south side of Long Island, opposite Center Moriches, at 8 o'clock on the morning of July 8, 1859. There was a dense fog prevailing at the time, and the officers of the vessel lost their bearings completely and did not know exactly where they were when the steamer stranded.

Burmen and boats were not as plentiful along the coast line in those days as they are now. Several hours elapsed before boats were secured equal to the task of making their way through the surf to the steamer. Until communication was had with the vessel nothing was known about her. Finally a boat's crew came ashore, and the vessel's name and destination were made known. Her commander made arrangements with Sidney B. Topping to go to New York and report the stranding of the steamer to the board of underwriters, whose office at that time was in Wall street.

Mr. Topping at once crossed the bay to the mainland and harnessed up his horse to a light wagon and started for Patchogue, 14 miles away. It was just noon-time when he stepped into the wagon. At Patchogue he changed horses and continued his journey to Babylon. Another change of horses was made at that place, and Mr. Topping started for Jamaica. His horse was pretty well winded when that place was reached, and he changed animals and continued on to Brooklyn, and crossing the ferry drove to the underwriters' office in Wall street. It was just 4 o'clock in the evening when he reached the office steps. He had made the journey of a little more than 70 miles in exactly six hours.

Having reported the full details of the wreck to the underwriters, Mr. Topping drove around to the office of a leading newspaper and furnished the information for publication. He received a check for $50 from the paper and was told that had he brought a copy of a foreign newspaper from the Franklin they would have given him $100.

Mr. Topping was postmaster in Westhampton during the war and was prominent figure on the east end of Long Island. He died in Westhampton at the age of 77.—New York Herald.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

State Labor Tax
A large number of young men were charged in the Police Court yesterday morning with non-payment of their state labor tax. Several were fined, some paying the amount with costs and others were discharged.

A Day on the Water
We call the attention of our readers to the cheap daily trip inaugurated by the popular excursion steamer North Star to Jubilee Point and Idyl Wild. The boat leaves daily at 9.15. Fare for the round trip, including dinner at Idyl Wild, 50c.

The Pictorial Campaign
The pictorial convention on Wednesday, the 20th, should attract a lively interest. The arrangements point to a successful gathering. In the afternoon a convention of the temperance workers of the county will be held to organize for the campaign. In the evening a mass meeting will be held in St. Andrew's church at which the principal speakers will be Rev. Mr. Cade, of Millbrook, and Mr. Duncan Marshall, of Toronto. This will be an interesting rally.

Ashburnham Notes
Great interest is being manifested in the vote on the waterworks by-law on Wednesday. The indications are that it will carry by a good majority.

The new town hall was used Sunday for the first time for all the services in connection with St. Mark street Methodist church. The hall will be used for all services until repairs are finished at the church. Re-opening is expected about the end of September.

The Mark street delegates to the prohibition plebiscite convention in Y.M.C.A. hall on Wednesday are Mrs. (Rev.) Moore, Miss A.M. Smith, Miss A. McKenny, Miss Edna Armstrong, Mr. James Tighe and Mr. M.W. Macbett.

Strawberries, 4 for 25c; 17 for $1.00 for this day only. J. B. Oke 13 George street.

THE ASHBURNHAM BY-LAW

The ratepayers of Ashburnham will be called upon to-morrow to cast their votes for or against a by-law to provide a system of waterworks for the village. The Times has endeavored to point out to the people across the river many reasons why the votes of the tax payers should be recorded in favor of the by-law. We believe there never was a contract so favorable in its provisions—providing as it does for a complete system covering the entire village—as the one now before the ratepayers. It is estimated that $8,000 will suffice to put down the two miles of mains. The Company is obliged to bring the water for private services from the street mains to the edge of the property where the service is to be put in. The revenue is to be divided equally between the Company and the corporation. This, it is estimated, will pay the $400 or thereabouts, per year, which the village is to pay the Water Company for water for fire purposes for the twelve hydrants which the contract calls for.

Here are some figures which we have prepared, and which speak for themselves.

Cost to the ratepayers—

To be paid to the Water Company (5 per cent of laying mains), which is estimated at $8,000.....$400 00

Then the ratepayers have the water for street purposes and for lawns.

This in itself is a matter of very great importance. In fact it is everything to those who desire a handsome home, pretty lawns and good gardens.

Perhaps the best way to look at this subject would be to compare the cost under the proposed contract with a system altogether the people's. In the latter case, provided the village could obtain water head and power, it could never afford to reach up the river beyond the town, where pure water is to be had. It would require at least ten to twenty thousand dollars for pumping plant, besides having to keep a day and night man, at pump house, and another man or two looking after the business, making collections, repairing breaks, etc.

We cannot believe that very many will be found who will regard the proposed contract as anything but the very best thing for the village.

Those who are anxious to increase the value of their property and who desire to place the village on an equal footing with Peterborough, will assuredly cast their votes in favor of the by-law.

Fire! Fire!

A special meeting of the Fire Department will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the fire hall. A full attendance is particularly requested.

The Late Thos. Armstrong

Our readers will learn with feelings of deep regret of the death on Saturday of Mr. Thos. Armstrong, one of our most highly respected citizens and perhaps one of the best known business men in the county. Deceased had been seriously ill for some time and his death while not unexpected is nevertheless a severe shock not only to his family but to the entire community. Mr. Armstrong was born at Micheltown, in the county of Cork, Ireland, on February 25th, 1818, and was, therefore, at the time of his death eighty years of age. His father was the late Capt. John Armstrong, and his mother, Eliza Frances, fourth daughter of the late Hon. Francis Hugh Massey, of Suir Castle, Tipperary. The deceased gentleman came to Canada with his parents in the year 1825, his father being commissariat officer for the Robinson emigrants, who settled in the county in that year. Mr. Armstrong was then seven years of age and he has spent all years since then in this country. In 1849 he married Mary A. daughter of the late Joseph Carew, of Nottenston Castle, Tipperary County, Ireland, by whom he had twelve children. The widow and eight children, five sons and three daughters, survive him. The children are all well known in the community. Mr. Armstrong was a member of the Church of England and a life-long and staunch Conservative. The funeral will leave the family residence, 105 Murray street, this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

PAVEMENT CONTRACT

Sheehy & Dolan to Have a Chance at the Work

The Committee of the whole council met in the clerk's office last night. There were present—Mayor Davis, and Councillors Langford, Denne, Allen, J. M. White, W. H. White, Hamilton, Cobb, Dawson and Best.

The Mayor explained that the business of Saturday night in reference to choosing the kind of pavement to be used was abortive owing to it being necessary to have nine in favor of the agreement reached, whereas there was only seven to five. The extra cost of granolithic walks might be covered by the town supplying the granite. Mr. Geo. A. Cox's experience in Toronto was that granolithic pavement was better than sand and cement and the Mayor thought that experience was better than experiment. Granolithic pavement had undoubtedly proved more durable than any other kind and he was decidedly in favor of the most satisfactory work being performed. The town could purchase a crushing machine worth $800, supply the crushed granite with the same and secure the granolithic walks and the stone crushing machine at the same cost as that of a sand and cement pavement. There was no doubt in his mind that under the circumstances, granolithic was the most economical pavement the town could invest its money in.

Councillor Langford stated that he was at first opposed to granolithic walks, but he had changed his mind. If the sand and cement walk did not stand the test of frosty weather, then an opposition would appear in a bad light before the ratepayers. He was in favor of granolithic walks providing the town purchased a crusher and could save the price of the same by supplying crushed granite to the contractor. A stone crusher would cost $800 and the town could save that amount and still have the machine to the good by selling the granite at the price of sand to the contractor.

Considerable discussion ensued, which was finally terminated by the following motion—
Moved by Councillor Langford, seconded by Councillor J. M. White, that Messrs. Dolan & Sheehy's tender for granolithic sidewalks at 16-4-4 per square foot be accepted, on condition that they purchase from the town granite for the surface finish and pay for it the difference between the amount of their tender for gravel and cement finish at 19-2-2 per square foot and the amount of their tender for granolithic pavement—Carried.

On motion of Councillor J. M. White, seconded by Councillor Hamilton, Sheehy & Dolan were given until this evening to complete their contract papers.

On motion of Councillor Langford, seconded by Councillor Dawson, the clerk was instructed to return the deposit cheques of all tenderers—Carried.

The committee of the whole adjourned to meet to-night for the purpose of completing Dolan & Sheehy's contract and passing a by-law to cover the same.

The Grimsby Independent contains a report of the examinations for entrance to the Grimsby High School. Of the 23 that passed, 12 are from Mr. Dreyer's school, Grimsby, and of these four two are from Peterborough—Miss Gerald Hall and Master Harry Ruah, Jr. A very creditable record, both for the school and the Peterborough boys. Only four boys were sent up from Lake Lodge, and all passed.

Dr. A. Roe, of Peterborough, spent a few hours in town yesterday afternoon, and was shown about by his friend, Mr. Quinn, manager of the Bell Telephone office. The Dr. was returning home from a bicycling tour through the north country as far as Hildburton. "I take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to others. It has been the means of restoring my wife to good health. She was stricken down with an attack of nervous prostration. She suffered with headaches and her nerves were under severe strain. She became very low spirited and so weak she could only do a little work without resting. Her appetite was poor, and being so weak she could not get the proper rest at night. MR. T.J. SABIN DROWNED

Early Yesterday Morning While Fishing in Little Lake

The community experienced a great shock early yesterday morning when it was learned that Mr. T.J. Sabin, a highly respected citizen, had met his death by drowning in Little Lake.

Mr. Sabin rose about five o'clock and started to some members of his family that he would take his boat and try to catch a fish before breakfast. He left his home about 5.30 o'clock and went down to his boathouse, near the C.P.R. bridge, and started around the lake.

Mr. Sabin was a well known canoeist, but he had a habit of tying the trailing line around his leg while in the boat, a practice which, it is almost certain, was the cause of his death. It is supposed that he paddled around as far as the Ashburnham wharf and that, not far from there, the fishing line caught upon some solid object, the jerk causing the boat to upset. At any rate when the canoe was first noticed upside down near the old Peck brewery, Ashburnham, by Mr. R. Tivey, shortly after six o'clock and when an alarm was raised, it was found that the body was under the canoe with the line around one knee and also around his throat and that it was caught on the bottom. It is supposed that a sudden jerk from the side caused the boat to capsize and Mr. Sabin, becoming entangled, was unable to extricate himself before he was overcome by the water.

Life was extinct when the body was found and all efforts at resuscitation proved unavailing. The corpse was removed to the undertaking establishment of Mr. A. Constable and afterwards to the family residence, Chamberlain street.

Mr. Sabin was a well known citizen of the town, and one at whose sudden death much grief will be felt. He was born in London, England, fifty years ago. About twenty-eight years ago and shortly after his marriage he left the Old Country with his wife and came to Canada, settling in Peterborough, where he has lived ever since. Mrs. Sabin and eight children survive him. The children are Mrs. R. J. Wolstenholme, Charlotte street; Thomas, who was his father's associate in business; E. H., who keeps a butcher shop on George street; and Julia, Lucy, Charles, Ada and Aggie. The youngest child living is about seven years old. The family have the sincere sympathy of the community in their affliction. Mr. Sabin was a plasterer by trade. He was a member of St. John's church and also a member of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters. He was one of the firm of McFadden & Sabin, whose tender for the street paving contract was recommended for acceptance. Of course the contract will now have to be awarded otherwise.

What adds to the pathetic nature of the accident is the fact that Mrs. Sabin is an invalid and is severely affected by the shock. Dr. Brown is attending her and entertains but little hope for her recovery. At present she is very low.

U.S. OFFICERS AND TROOPS

To Receive Surrender of Interior Garrisons To-day

Americans are Treated at the Disposition shown by the Cubans to North American Communities and not Abide by Modern Warfare

(Special to the Times.) Washington, July 19.—The War Department at three o'clock posted the following bulletin:

Plays, 9:47 a. m., headquarters for Santiago, July 19.—Adj. General, Washington.—My ordnance officer reports over 10,000 rifles sent in and about 10,000,000 rounds of ammunition. Send officers and troops to-morrow to receive surrender of interior garrisons, about 2,000, at these places. Will send officers to receive surrender of coast garrisons, Guantanamo, Boicbon and Sagua, Pinar del Rio.

(Signed.) W. R. Shafter, Major-General.

MILES WILL LEAVE PORTO RICO.

Washington, July 19.—Because of a

War Department officials feel that they are fully justified in their decision to retain practically all of Shafter's army at Santiago.

By the press reports which reached them to-day indicating severe friction between the American forces and the Cuban troops growing out of the latter's exclusion from Santiago by General Shafter's orders. It is felt now that the garrison originally opposed two immune regiments would have been quite sufficient to meet an outside Spanish force that might come from Holguin or Manzanillo and also to retain the capacity of the Cubans. I am realized that the present situation is full of difficulty and the future is dark owing to the disposition evinced by the Cubans to ignore on refuge, and to be bound by the amenities of modern warfare. The arrest symptom of freedom has suggested to the officials innumerable difficulties that will arise in the future. Of course it would seem to be only politic now to avoid any open rupture with the Cubans provided they can be kept in leash and not involve the United States in the disgrace that would follow the making of helpless communities, but it begins to appear that for some time to come and even after the conquest of Cuba is completed the United States must maintain there a military government in order to meet the responsibilities which it has assumed to the civilized world.

THINKING ALOUD.

A Man Which Bowed Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the early of Dudley, who was dedicated to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward

predicament on a certain occasion, if a story told of him may be credited. He was to spend the evening at the house

of a friend and ordered his carriage

early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived, the carriage

was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord

Dudley was considerably annoyed by

the delay, one of the guests, whose way

however lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage.

The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer

was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very agreeable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence,

his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low, but distinctly

audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say:

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer."

"I don't know the man. He is civil certainly, but the worst I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Silence followed this bit of audacious thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and

was probably still meditating upon the

most unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted

with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he shortly imitated

Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any stranger on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I don't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words,

immediately comprehending the joke

against himself, and frankly offered his

apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous,

and from that night the two became

fast friends.—Youth's Companion.

When Ague Shakes You

you can shake the Ague by using AYER'S AGUE CURE. It is the one certain and infallible cure for that depleting disease. It has been tried in many countries and under various conditions, and has never been known to fail. An old veteran writes:—

"You may be interested to know my experience many years ago with Ayer's Ague Cure. The year before the war I was in Kansas. Some twenty of us were engaged in farming, and suddenly all were taken with fever and ague. We tried almost everything without getting any help, till at last I sent to the city and procured a bottle of Ayer's Ague Cure. I recovered at once. The others followed my example, and they, too, recovered. Every one in camp took the remedy and was cured by it. I went all through the war, have lived in thirteen different states of the Union, and have never had the ague since."

THE QUESTION OF THE "OPEN DOOR."

Among the remarks addressed to the members of the Anglo-American League, which was organized under the presidency of the Duke of Sutherland at Stafford House, his London residence, on Wednesday last, for the purpose of securing "a most cordial and constant co-operation between the peoples of the British Empire and the United States," the most significant were those made by Lord Farrar, who declared that "prudence was as necessary as enthusiasm" for the success of the movement. England's guiding principle in the development of her commercial empire, said the speaker, was the maintenance of the "open door" to trade, whereas other nations closed the markets of their dependencies. He urged that it was of the utmost importance for England to ascertain whether the United States in entering upon a career of expansion intended to keep the open door, or to slam it shut with a bang. In the latter event the British enthusiasm for an Anglo-American entente would doubtless suffer a sudden collapse. Moreover, the experience of Spain and of France in colonial adventures has shown that colonies treated as exclusive markets and as fields of exploitation for Government General and a host of other political functionaries are sure to degenerate into unremunerative satrapies, debilitated by impoverished and discontented subjects, and to become sources of weakness rather than of strength to the metropolitan government.

THE GRAB IN CUBA.

The United States Government has decided to ignore the Cubans, and to establish in Santiago and the rest of the territory ceded by the Spaniards a military administration of its own. That is just what everybody expected. It is given out, of course, that the military occupation of Cuba by the States will last only until the setting up of a stable government by the people of the island. But the smallest amount of impartial investigation, before the war began, must have persuaded every sensible man in the United States that the Cubans were incapable of self government.

The fact is that the United States went into the war either in total ignorance as to the character and abilities of the Cubans, or with a genuine and whole-souled desire for conquest. Now that the United States forces hold a slice of Cuban territory, the American authorities do not dream of giving the Cubans any share in the administration of that territory. Nobody ever expected that they would, and there is a probability amounting almost to a certainty that before many months are past, the temporary occupation will be frankly acknowledged as a practical annexation.

The Sugar Trust and similarly powerful influences in the States began this game of grab, and they do not easily give up anything they once hold.

Is it to be the sprinkling can or the garden hose in Ashburnham?

The man who votes against the water works by-law in Ashburnham to-day is either ignorant of the conditions of the proposed contract with the Water Company, or else he is to keep the village back.

General Toral, the commandant of Santiago is kicking because his men can't have their arms to take them home. They ought to consider themselves in luck to have their legs to take them home.

Ashburnham will decide to-day whether or not she will have her own system of water supply, or be dependent on the town for fire protection.

Whether we agree with them theologically or not, is of small consequence. But no one can read of the demeanor of the Catholic priests on board of the ill-fated Bourgogne without feeling that they were the stuff of which true manhood is composed. One of the survivors is Patrick McKeown, of Wilmington, Del., who says a feature of the last few minutes upon the doomed liner, that had cut itself vividly on his memory, was the calm demeanor of three priests, who serenely walked about the deck, administering the rites of the Roman Catholic church to such as wished them. One of the priests he recognized. He was Father Anthony Kessler. McKeown had talked with him the day before the disaster and recognized him easily from the raft. "He seemed to have not a thought of himself," said McKeown, "but encouraged and blessed the fated passengers." None of the priests tried to save themselves, according to McKeown, so intent were they upon giving the benediction.

The announcement from Hong Kong that one Yat Son is among the leaders of the Chinese rebels directs attention again to a man who has from time to time been prominent in Chinese troubles. As the dispatch stated, Sun Yat Son, who is a doctor, was kidnapped by the officials of the Chinese Legation in London in 1896 and kept in hiding until he found an opportunity to communicate with the British authorities. He was then released on the demand of Salisbury. The doctor attributed this adventure to his being one of the leaders in rebellion in Canton in 1895, which was designed to establish a constitutional government for the country. The doctor was a member of a powerful society known as the Hing-Chung-Woo, or Chinese Progressive Society. It is said that this association was very strong in this country and that its headquarters were in New York. Its chief was Walter Fong, a man prominent in Chinese affairs in America, and his colleagues were graduates of a various large universities of this country. Fong himself was highly educated, being a graduate of an American institution. The Hing-Chung-Woo had for its object the overthrow of the present Government in China and the substitution therefore of a republican form of government. The work of the organization was, of course, secret and very little, if anything, outside of its object was known. Its membership in this country reached into the six figures. Perhaps in some revived form it may be acting in the present insurrection.

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are like those of the human voice. The Graphophone is as marvelous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its superior is unlimited. Furthermore, it costs less than a cheap mandolin.

Conclusions reached by a German authority are that the manure pile must be carefully constructed and protected from extremes of moisture and sunshine. It should be kept moist, but not wet. It is well to turn cattle in upon it occasionally to tramp it down, and thus exclude excess of air. When the heap is completed, it should be covered with earth. If these precautions are observed, the use of preservatives may be dispensed with.

An alarm was raised at once, the highest local authorities communicated with, and the manager of the pavilion, Mr. Parandinskii, was called upon to explain the behavior of that speaking American beast. All the poor manager could do was to open the mysterious cage to the authorities. The latter, however, and over the authorities' heads, ordered the removal of the animal to an indigenous cylinder which threatened tall the peaceful inhabitants so many undesirable things. But the arrest of the chief criminal was considered insufficient, as it could not have acted without a human accomplice. So, according to the Taganrog Viesnik, the affair has taken its official course, and the innocent manager of the pavilion will have to spend some time here generally good appetite and sound sleep. He does not know in what punishment the official proceedings will result, and how long he will have to wait until his fate is decided.—Invention.

CIRCUS COMMENTS
CONDENSEDWhat the Press Says of Main's Big Show.

Gives more than it advertises, cannot be classed among the cheerful liars in its advertising methods. The greatest and most thrilling wild beast performance on earth is a feature of Main's big show, and the whole show is good. —Pittsburgh Leader, Wednesday, April 27, 1898.

As honorable showman, does more than he promises. Main's merit makes the money. Finest show in every particular we have ever had, and we've had them all with us in the past ten years. —Pottsville, Pa., Herald May 28, 1898.

A hundred thousand dollar show was born last night on one of the Walter Main show trains. It was a little boy elephant only twenty-six inches high and weighed this morning on Holan's grocery store scales located near the D. and H. depot just 245 pounds. Mr. Main has already refused a hundred thousand dollars cash offer for him. He will be christened to-day. —Miners Journal Pottsville, Pa., May 27, 1898.

Governors and Mayors make good teams. Caught in a rain storm under a big circus tent, and they are as happy as boys too at times it seems despite their weighty cares. Our beloved Governor Hill and our joyful mayor sat in reserved seats all through the rainstorm to-day under Walter Main's big circus tent. The tents were proof against even damps and to see these two young old boys laughing and joking, and joking, in each other's arms, and their grand old eyes a sight good for sore eyes. —Daily (N. Y.) Saratogian, Tuesday, June 8th, 98.

PLUCKING THE INNOCENT.

One Fair Who Was "Dumb" by the Farmers.

"No," said the soap dealer to a group of people that had gathered around him, "there is no one taking to me about the innocence of the countryman. He may buy a gold brick occasionally or sign a blank check and lose his farm, but, as a rule, he can take care of himself just as well as the rest of us and generally a little better. If I knew as much as some farmers I wouldn't be in this business, and you can gamble on that."

"Why, may, do you know what happened to me the last time I was down in the country? I got poked, that's what I done. I got my stitches out in front of the hotel in a little town about thirty miles out east of here and began to do a few tricks to draw a crowd."

"After I'd made an egg disappear and pulled a few knots open for them, I says: 'Now, gentlemen, I'm going to show you a trick that nobody else on earth has ever attempted. You see my hat here? Well, we'll imagine for the time being to a dove pot. Out of that hat I'm going to make a bush grow up, and when I've done that I'll make every leaf on it turn into a $5 note.'"

"Did I do it? Of course I did! But, say, do you know what came of it? Blamed if they didn't arrest me and fine me $15 for raising bills, which the justice of the peace said I was guilty of to the station house and provided."

"Well, I sort of had a hankering to know whether they done it in good faith or just because they thought I was a 'pious' and what do you think I found out? Why, the people of that town hadn't paid any taxes for eight years. They'd actually been running things by plucking just such innocent fellows as me."

"Now, gentlemen, there's a $1 bill in one of these little packages. Who will give me 10 cents for the first dollar?" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I hear that Jenkins, the politician, was found in his flat in a starving condition."

"I've told you! He must have been 'lost.'"

There is one particular part of the dress belonging to the order of the eagle—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their eyes when passing sentence of death. Little is known concerning this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sargent, in his work "The Order of the Eagle," says: "The black cap, or emblem cap of the judges and coroners in England, is not the cap, as Lord Campbell supposed it to be, on the contrary, the covering cap, the only one when the cap was required to be hidden. By the ancient privilege of the surgeon, the cap was not to be taken off even in the presence of the chief justice of the court, and to be so displayed when sitting on the bench or standing at the bar, but this rule seems always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death."

The head of the admiral's son of justice was then covered, as a token of respect, by the black sentence cap. This covered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, as it is sometimes termed, is a piece of long black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder and then the judge orders the cap to be put on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death. —Gentleman's Magazine.

A poet preferring his work to an editor's.

"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read the editor put it into a drawer and, handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:

"This is a smallish coin, but I am so bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its purity. It is nearly all silver."

San Francisco Examiner.

In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to reserve the most valuable or artistic places for the "lay service." The absence of providing does not permit the guest to be without a place before him, and between the courses plates are laid on each cover, one laid down while the next plate is removed. Cautious English and Royal Worcester china are much liked for "lay plates." —Philadelphia Press.

He Had a Record.

A person who was hanging for a crime in southwest Georgia asked the youth who owned the mule:

"Is he a good, truly creature?"

"I reckon he is," replied the young man. "He kicked and threw a chair down, broke Uncle Bill's leg in two places and threw a preacher three times on a Sunday mornin'!" —Atlanta Constitution.

company to carry out its contract.

He had the opportunity of personally meeting Mr. Coballo, who represented the company at New York, and found them thoroughly alive to the needs of the situation. Col. Heckler feels that his course in awarding the contract to the Spanish Company, while it may give rise to some unfavorable comments, was the best possible solution of the question. Although the enemies' ships will be allowed to enter American ports, yet after the prisoners are aboard, they will be on the ships of the Mother Country, will be subsisted by the Spanish Company, and on arrival at the Spanish port or ports will be subject to the police and quarantine regulations of their own country. It is altogether unlikely it now seems that prisoners will be landed at Cadiz. Some other port will probably be destroyed by Spain. The question depends, it is thought, in a large measure on the location of the Government's Lazaretto, as it is generally expected that the Spanish Government will want to keep the men in quarantine for a certain length of time to await any dangers which might arise from their having been camped in the localities or near which yellow fever has been raging.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR DEWEY.

San Francisco, July 21.—A cable dispatch to The Examiner, dated Hong Kong, July 20, says that the second fleet of transports from the United States has reached Manila. The China arrived on the afternoon of July 16, and the Zealandia, Colon and Senator on the morning of the 17th. Four deaths occurred during the voyage.

CRUISERS SET SAIL.

New York, July 21.—At daylight to-day three of the fleet of United States transports which have been fitted out at this port put to sea, and upon clearing Sandy Hook took southern course.

SAGASTA OFFERS TO RESIGN.

London, July 21.—According to a special despatch from Madrid, Senor Sagasta, the Premier, has again offered to resign and has been counselled by the Queen Regent to advise with other political leaders relative to his future course.

It is also reported that General Polavieja's return to Madrid is closely connected with a change in the Ministry, and that General Weyler will form a Cabinet in which General Polavieja will be Minister for War. This combination, it is further asserted, will support the dynasty, repeal the suspension of constitutional rights, and continue the war to the utmost limits.

THE PRESIDENT IS ANGRY

He Orders Admiral Sampson to Start at Once for Porto Rico

St. Gen. Wilson's Commanded Reached the Island Before the Fleet He May Come to Washington, July 21.—President McKinley is thoroughly aroused over the delay which has occurred in the starting of Gen. Miles and the expedition under his command for Porto Rico.

For several days Gen. Miles and his troops have been aboard their transports at Playa del Esca, awaiting the naval convoy which is to be furnished by Admiral Sampson. The troops have been sweltering in the crowded ships under the broiling heat of a tropical sun, while Gen. Miles has been chafing under what he believes to be unnecessary delay, and is bombarding the War Department with despatches urging in the strongest terms that the navy be hurried in its preparations for the expedition.

Instructions of the most positive nature have been cabled to Admiral Sampson to supply the necessary convoys for Gen. Miles' transports, but notwithstanding these instructions Admiral Sampson has proceeded with his preparations for the expedition with a deliberation that is exasperating the officials here.

The President, who has been giving the Porto Rican expedition his personal attention—as he has given, indeed, all phases of the war—finally became deeply concerned last night that the part of the Porto Rican expedition that has already sailed from this country should arrive at the points of rendezvous in advance of Gen. Miles and the navy. It is feared that if General Wilson's command, which sailed yesterday from Charleston, should arrive in advance of Gen. Miles and then await a serious danger and possibly disaster might result, as Gen. Wilson's ships are absolutely without protection.

Fully realizing the necessity for prompt action in getting Gen. Miles and his Cuban expedition started, President McKinley this morning issued personal orders through the Secretary of the Navy to Admiral Sampson that he should proceed immediately to Porto Rico with General Miles. The President's orders are susceptible of no misinterpretation. They are imperative to a degree seldom employed except in cases of extreme emergency. They are of the sort that will brook no delay in their execution. Admiral Sampson must start at once or the President will know the reason why. No excuses of an ordinary nature will be accepted by the President for further delay. While no official information that the fleet has sailed had been received at the War Department up to 9.30 o'clock this morning, it is believed that General Miles and his troops under convoy of the navy have departed from Cuba.

When the plant was introduced, about 1840, it was only the small daisy-like flower, now only seen as a rule in cottage gardens, which was highly prized as a novelty. The taste for growing and showing it began early, and before 1860 there were many chrysanthemum societies in existence, among them the Stoke Newington, which formed the nucleus of the National society. Yet it was not until 1860, when the plants appeared as a novelty, "very curious and interesting, but scarcely commendable." How little did the author of these remarks expect that a future would be before the plant he so contemptuously sneered at. Three years later, however, we find Japan varieties recommended with praise and admiration, and since then they have overthrown in three.

The generally colored, double-flowered variety exhibited every autumn would certainly not be the variety of 1860. The golden and beautiful shades of the chrysanthemum suited the taste of the promoters of the "high art" which it is now a part of, and which, if it had no other merit, helped to bring this flower more forward and revived the culture of horticulture, which was then becoming extinct in our gardens.—Lancaster's Magazine.

HUSTLING HAVELOCK.

An Account of Its Rapid Growth—An Outline of Its Necessities—Sketches of Its Chief Business Men and a Statement of the Extent of Their Operations

ITS NEED OF A CIVIC SPIRIT

All Havelock is divided into three parts—Old Havelock, West Havelock, and New Havelock; and of these the greatest is New Havelock. Old Havelock is on a direct line between West Havelock and Trent Bridge, and like the latter is but a "rifle of cold decency." It had the first P.O. in Belmont Tp., which was operated by Peter Pearce. With the advent of the railroad fourteen years ago came A. V. Fuller as P.M., three years after, when Mr. Fuller moved into his present commodious quarters in New Havelock the P.O. went with him, and down went Old Havelock. Any person curious enough to see the ruins need but walk over the hill. West Havelock runs north and south across the west end of the railroad yards, and seems to have been too far away from the station—which is near the east end—to meet with the fullest measure of success. Besides being the residence of about one-sixth of the whole Havelock population of eleven hundred, it has a hotel, a grocery store and a carriage-shop, all of which are noticed later and worthily. West Havelock is built on land originally settled in 1840 by Richard Riordan and by him sold three years after to Andrew Mathison.

New Havelock is "a wool and a yard wide," and over a mile long, and hugs the north side of the C.P.R. yards from end to end, and is built on land originally owned by William Mathison, "the Father of Havelock." Mr. Mathison is a retiring pleasant man. He is a farmer, and a Justice of the Peace ten years ago; and later a Commissioner in the High Court of Justice. He is also an issuer of marriage licenses.

In 1848 New Havelock took West Havelock under its wing and together they were incorporated as

THE VILLAGE OF HAVELOCK.

The corporation has now four miles of sidewalks on its seven miles of streets, and spent this year alone $1,500 between the two, and has about to erect a new town hall at a cost of $10,000. It has a council, elected annually, consists this year of J. F. Hynd, reeve, and Messrs. Fuller, Cole, Cooper and Richards, councillors. Mr. Richard Phillips has been clerk for four years and is thoroughly familiar with the progress as well as the needs of the village, as is also the reeve, Mr. Hynd, who acted as clerk the first year of incorporation; then served on the school board four years and was elected reeve in 1888. Of the councillors—Mr. Cole has served three years, the others are new. In the council, but no person more thoroughly conversant with the history of the town than Councilman Fuller, unless it might be Justice of the Peace Mathison.

Some conception of the present progress of the village may be obtained from a knowledge of the fact that there are fifteen new residences in course of erection at a cost of from $1,000 to $2,000 each; and that there are already six families building in homes awaiting their completion. The fact that so many families desire to reside in Havelock is no doubt largely due to the educational, religious and social advantages, as well as to its opportunities of amusement. Havelock has

I have used "Pond's Extract" for many years and always insist upon my patients getting "Pond's," not the ordinary Extract, which is often a very poor article. W. K. BROWN, M. D.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, 1895.
I use Pond's Extract a great deal in my practice. I think it very valuable in all venous enlargements.

J. L. BRADFORD, M. D.
SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894.

I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of drug-gists insisting that can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. I use Pond's Extract a great deal as an antiseptic in combination with glycerine and carbolic acid. I think it far superior to any antiseptic known.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

A CORRECTION.
In our report of a north-end assault yesterday we were in error in stating that "Devine" had committed the assault. A man named Linsen was the aggressor.

Addressed to the Prince of Wales.
C. Squadron, of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons of Canada are very fortunate in having Sergt.-Major T. E. Goldie to look after their equipment. The shed on Mark street presents an array of shining buckles and polished leather that cannot be beat anywhere in the Dominion.

A Valuable Mineral.
Campbellford Herald. A piece of corundum was given us a few days ago, the rare and valuable mineral which is attracting so much attention among mining speculators. Deposits of it are found in Peterborough and Hastings counties, and only within a belt of thirty miles extending eastward.

The Contract Let.
Campbellford Herald. The trustees of St. Andrew's church in Campbellford met last week and opened the tenders for the erection of a new manse. Four were received, three of them from contractors in Campbellford and from from Peterborough, and the price ranged from $2,000 to $3,000. The first named was that given by Mr. Jas. Bann, who was awarded the contract. The building will be a two-story brick, 44 by 28 feet, built in Queen Anne style, and with all modern improvements. Mr. Bann put on a gang of men on Saturday excavating the cellar, and he is under agreement to complete the building by the 1st of November.

SUCCESSFUL AT LAST.
"I was a sufferer from neuralgia in my side, and headaches. I followed numerous prescriptions without benefit and was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken only one bottle I realized it was doing me good and I continued taking it until I was cured." Mrs. Carrie Price, Georgetown, Ontario.

HARSH TREATMENT

A Peterborough Man Fined $5 Yesterday Afternoon at Lakeside for Violating an Obsolete Statute

Mr. Bennett, of town, met rather harsh treatment at the hands of the authorities in Lakeside yesterday afternoon. Mr. Bennett has been spending a holiday at Stony Lake and being an enthusiastic angler has devoted considerable of his time to bass fishing. The other day, it is claimed, his string exceeded 12, the number laid down in the statutes as the limit. He was arrested and brought before a local J. P. and fined $5 and costs.

Mr. Bennett, with a considerable show of reason, claims that he has been harshly dealt with, as the clause in the statutes on which the conviction was based is practically obsolete. This clause has never, it is said, been enforced, and if this is the case Mr. Bennett has good grounds for feeling sore. There is not one fisherman out of a hundred that does not occasionally violate this section of the Act, still they escaped prosecution. The correction of this assertion is verified almost daily by the press. Only yesterday the World contained the following, which is apropos:—
"Mr. Hays Turns Fisherman.—Mr. Hays of the Grand Trunk is enjoying his first holiday since he came to this country, some three years ago. He is at Penetang, on the Georgian Bay, where for a fortnight he has entrenched himself against the cares of the railway. Mr. Hays is an ardent angler, and devotes every other day of his sojourn at Penetang to bass fishing with his brother-in-law and other members of his family. The little party take a small steamer and go up from Penetang to one of the islands, 20 or thirty miles to the north, and, under the direction of a guide, spend the day in fishing, returning to the hotel in the evening laden down with big catches. Some days Mr. Hays' string will weigh 40 to 60 pounds, and the best of the fish run from 2 to 3 pounds in weight."
Mr. Bennett's fine should either be remitted or all treated alike.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Interesting Items of Local and District Happenings in Brief

—Everybody reads the Times.
—Over 100 names added to subscription lists last week.
—A shoemaker in the west end announced:—Men's shoes half-sold and beaked.
—Destructive bush fires are raging in the forests of Cavendish and Arstruther townships, and within short distance of the Scott timber limits, which extend to Ball Lake.

—Mr. Wm. Prust, license inspector for Haliburton county, was in town yesterday, and confirmed reports concerning the richness of the recent mineral finds in that county. He says the placer beds yield $5 and $6 to the ton, some of the gold nuggets found being as large as small peas.

—The Tweed News says it is said on very good authority that Mr. Ansell, proprietor of the Tweed and Belleville stage line, has given his order for one of the new horseless carriages, which are propelled by storage batteries, and that as soon as it is completed it will be placed on the route between Tweed and Belleville. These carriages run at the rate of twenty miles an hour. The distance between Tweed and Belleville will therefore be made in two hours easily.

Picking the Blue-birds.—Campbellford Herald. Hundreds of people are at the present time camped on the beautiful Knappton Lake, about thirty-five miles north of Campbellford, and they are cleaning out the berries as fast as they ripen. There are pickers back there from every township in this county, and from several townships in Hastings county, even as far south as Brighton and Belleville, and among them are quite a number from Campbellford. A building has been put up for temporary accommodation for the summer visitors and it is known as the "Huffman House." A large portion of the crop is yet green, and the last of them will not ripen for two or three weeks.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

BASEBALL.
Toronto, July 21.—Toronto's double victory at the Island Wednesday put them up from seventh to fourth place in the Eastern League race. Montreal's lead has been reduced somewhat and a few more consecutive defeats will send them to the bottom of the heap. The figures follow:—

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Montreal	37	31	.544
Wilkes-Barre	33	31	.515
Syracuse	37	35	.513
Toronto	36	46	.500
Buffalo	38	38	.500
Springfield	32	33	.492
Ottawa	35	39	.472
Providence	30	36	.454

LACROSSE.
Beverton, July 20.—The home team met a stronger and better twelve in every respect here to-day when the Orillias opposed the local chieftains. The visitors are fast and good hard players, with a most effective home combination. Quinn, O'Connell, and McKay, on the defence, and Home, Fielders, Thomson and Wilkinson were the O'illia stars. Rainey, McMillan and Nolan played splendid lacrosse for the losers. Score, 4 to 1 in favor of Orillias.

Fergus, July 20.—The unbeaten Galt Lacrosse Club were given a taste of defeat here to-day, when the Thistles put it all over the visitors by 8 goals to 2. Kyle, in centre field, did great work for Fergus, and to his splendid work is chiefly due the home team's victory. Pringle and Campbell did the best work for the Galt. Markdale, July 21.—The Owen Sound team visited here to-day, and the most exciting game of the season was played, resulting, after a tight struggle, in a victory for the home team by a score of 2-1. The match was an exhibition of clean lacrosse, except in the last game, when Stephenson of the home team, and Green of Owen Sound, had some trouble, and took to the fence. Later McWilliam indulged in some slugging, and was ordered to the fence by Referee Madill, but refused whereupon the visitors left the field 15 minutes before time was up.

The Stars of St. Catharines defeated the Beamsville team Wednesday afternoon by a score of 5 to 1. The secretary of the lacrosse club has received a communication from Hastings stating that three of the members of their team, which was to play here this afternoon, are sick and that the team will consequently be unable to come up. The match is, therefore, off for the present. Peterborough's next match will be with the Checkers of Beverton, a week from to-day. A good match is expected.

POLICE COURT

A Busy Session.—The North-end Assault Case Continued Until Monday

There was a busy session at the Police Court yesterday morning. The north-end assault, the particulars of which appeared in yesterday's Times, came before the P. M. A. Allison charged Oliver Emlaw and Maurice Dineen with assault. They both pleaded not guilty and the case was enlarged till next Monday, the accused being liberated on bail.

Mr. Allison claimed that both prisoners assaulted him, and as a piece of evidence he had two very black and swollen eyes. Emlaw also has his face tied up in cloth and there appears to have been a very hard struggle. The fight took place right on the dam in a very dangerous spot. Mr. O'Connell defended the accused, while Mr. Peck appeared for Mr. Allison.

The charge of not cleaning closets, as provided by the Health Act, were heard. Two were dismissed, the work having been done since the information was laid. The third was enlarged.

A charge of non-payment of wages against Messrs. Cory and Laverdure was heard. Michael Murphy claimed $21 wages but was awarded only $7.70 and ordered to pay witness $1 of this.

Wm. Lee was charged with stealing 100 lbs. of flour, the property of Charles H. Moore. The charge was dismissed.

A Successful Fish Party.
The Hawley-Guy party returned to town yesterday from a successful fishing expedition down the river and report great success and very warm weather with an abundance of mosquitoes. Fred Green caught a 32-pound "lunge. Great difficulty was experienced in landing the monster.

Leaving Examinations.
Five candidates from the county wrote at the Public School Leaving Examination held here at the same time as the entrance. Only one candidate passed, Louise Middleton, a pupil of Mr. John Mahood, S.S. No. 1, Smith. She was awarded 78 marks.

The Fire Brigade's Excursion.
The excursion under the auspices of the Fire Brigade to Kingston and the Thousand Islands was held yesterday, the special train leaving the G.T.R. station at eight o'clock. Over three hundred passengers were on board. The Fire Brigade band accompanied the excursionists. The excursionists returned home shortly after midnight and report having spent an enjoyable day.

Club will be remembered as the only club in the province who participated in the parade on wheels at the G.W.A. meet here on the 1st of July. They promise the boys who attend a "hot time on the side (wheeler) Saturday afternoon."

Songs That Sing Themselves.
How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. Write for catalogue No. 30, to the Columbia Phonograph Company, No. 513 Main Street, Buffalo, N.

The bride was attired in most charming traveling costume, and immediately after the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the C.P.R. station, from where Mr. and Mrs. Rishor left on the 4:25 a.m. express for the west. THE ADVANCE ON MANILA

1st California Volunteers Form the Vanguard

THEY ADVANCED YESTERDAY

South Manila is to be Captured Before the Final Assault

The Colorado and Utah Batteries are Being Landed at Zamboanga Directly from the Ship—The Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteers and Artillery to Land North of Manila

New York, July 22.—A despatch to the New York Journal from Cavite July 19th, via Hong Kong, July 22, says: "The entire regiment of First California volunteers advanced to-day Janbo only two miles from the Spanish lines surrounding Manila. The California troops have been thrown out by General Andrews to form advance of attack in force."

South Manila is to be captured first. The Colorado and Utah batteries are being landed at Zamboanga directly from ships. The tenth Pennsylvania volunteers will land at Manila just north of Manila.

ANNEXATION QUESTION

Senor Castro Promises Unconditional Assistance

GEN. WEYLER'S LAST MOVE

He will Act with Republicans in Opposing a Harsh Peace

Modern Republicans Think He is Playing into the Hands of the Carlists—Four Spaniards Escape—The Effect of the Campaign

New York, July 22.—Senor P. De Castro, one of the prominent members of the Porto Rican Junta of this city, says in regard to the attitude of the Junta:

"When the Junta was organized we were pledged to secure the independence of the island. That was more than two years ago. Such a thing as annexation was not discussed, because Spain was not at war with America. At a meeting on July 12 we decided to assist the United States unconditionally. The majority of us are in favor of annexation. Any talk of the revolutionary party of Porto Rico resisting the invasion of the Americans is nonsense. I was at the meeting held July 12 in this city, and never heard any such threat."

"I have rare doubts of our ability to make a republic of Porto Rico, meaning as it does internal strife; but annexation would be successful. The majority of Porto Ricans in this country are heartily in favor of it. There are some few against annexation, but none of the kind who resist to it by force of arms."

Weyler makes a move.

New York, July 22.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: General Weyler has at last made overtures to the Republicans, and a majority of them have accepted his proposition to act with him in opposing the Queen Regent and her Ministers if peace is made on terms harsh for Spain.

Several moderate Republicans like Senor Labre, A. Serrate and Margall tried to prevent an alliance with Weyler and his followers, but in vain. Senor Canale and his supporters also object to any association with Weyler, believing that he will be sure to play into the hands of the Carlists, who only want the pretext of a revolution to begin a civil war in behalf of Spain.

There is a rumor that the Government will arrest Weyler, and also arrest the Marquis of Carras, the chief agent of the Carlists, and other Carlist leaders. All are shadowed by detectives, as are the principal republicans, and even the editors of conservative organs.

In consequence of the extreme rigor of the press censorship, the reign of terror is felt acutely. The unwidest and most absurd are afloat, and given credence even in the capital, to the rumors of the provinces.

Watson's squadron is a phantom haunting the people along the coast. Carlist and Republican conspiracy phantoms alarm the authorities so much that the Republican organs which advocate war, while the Republican organs which advocate peace will be obliterated. All this would be comprehensible if peace were to be the outcome within a fortnight, but the country cannot long stand the tension of the relations between the rulers and the opposition parties and the profound anxiety which such a policy causes.

The material interests of the country are being seriously damaged. General Polavieja is expected here tomorrow. He was asked by the Government and the court to hasten his return, and gave up half of the water cure at La Bourbe, from which he has derived benefit, for both himself and general health.

Should bagatelles and his present Ministers not feel equal to the task of coping with the revolutionary parties the Queen has determined to send General Polavieja to form a conciliatory coalition Ministry, make peace, and defend the monarchy, on the express understanding that the two monarchist parties, the Liberals and the Conservatives, shall co-operate. This understanding has been reached since Weyler made his alliance with the Republicans.

ANARCHY AMONG REBELS.

London, July 22.—The Manila correspondent of The Daily Mail, under date of July 19, commenting on the "state of anarchy among the rebels," says:

"Each local chief desires to become the supreme ruler of his island. It is pitiful to think that a nation like the Spanish has been beaten by such miserable specimens of humankind."

"American activity is being on the advance in the rebel districts. Food is plentiful, but there is no money to purchase it, and no way to distribute it."

FOUR PRISONERS ESCAPE.

Atlanta, Ga., July 22.—It was reported last night that four of the Spanish prisoners confined at Fort McPherson since the beginning of hostilities with Spain had escaped.

The officer in charge of the barracks refused to either deny or confirm the report, but several enlisted men who came in from the post said the Spaniards had gotten away yesterday and late last night.

PEACE IN PROSPECT.

Madrid, July 22.—The Minister of Public Instruction, Senor Gamazo, is authority for the statement that peace, honorable to the Spanish army, will shortly be concluded.

EXPEDITION SUCCESSFUL.

Washington, July 22.—The following message has been received at the Navy Department.

Playa, July 22.—Expedition to Nipe has been entirely successful, although the mines have not been removed for want of time. The Spanish cruiser, Jorge Juan defending place was destroyed without loss on our part. The Annapolis and Wasp afterwards proceeded from Nipe to assist in the landing of Commanding General of army on arrival at Porto Rico.

(Signed.) Sampson.

DISSEMBARKATION OF TROOPS.

Manila, July 19, via Hong Kong, July 22.—The disembarkation of American troops composing second expedition are being pushed with utmost energy. The Colorado regiment is already in field near Paranao and other regiments will be transferred without any loss of time from transports to the camp in native boats.

The United States cruiser Boston has been detailed to cover the landing parties. She now occupies a position almost within range of guns of Fort Muiate which is only a short distance from Manila proper.

The brigade commanded by Gen. Anderson is still at Cavite but his troops are ready to move. Arrival here of United States monitor Mulberry is anxiously expected.

REFUSE TO SURRENDER.

Washington, July 22.—The War Department has issued the following:

Santiago, July 22.—The Adjutant-General Corbin, Washington, set two troops of cavalry with Spanish officers and sent them to relieve a detachment of Spanish troops at San Luis and Palmas. They had not heard of loss of Cervera's fleet or of Toral's surrender. They decline to surrender unless they could come in and see themselves. A detachment of officers and men came in last night and returned this morning apparently satisfied.

(Signed.) Shafter.

CHAMPAGNE FOR THE WOUNDED.

New York, July 22.—A firm of wine makers at Rheims, France, has offered the United States Government 1,200 bottles of champagne for the sick and wounded soldiers. The Surgeon-General of the army referred the offer to Secretary of Treasury who has issued orders that wine be admitted free of duty. Part of the wine will be sent to Santiago.

EFFECT OF THE CENSORSHIP.

London, July 22.—A special despatch from Madrid says: "The censorship is having a curious effect upon the newspapers, which are padding their columns with serial stories to fill the gaps caused by the censor's pencil. The civil Governor of Madrid has ordered the police to keep a strict watch on English and American travellers. Everything is done to keep the whereabouts of Admiral Canaris's squadron a secret, but there is no doubt he is at Cartagena, which is the safest and strongest port of Spain in the Mediterranean. The inhabitants, however, have a strong republican tendency. All the Spanish vessels are hurrying away from Cadix owing to the knowledge that most of them are on the fort are useless, in consequence of the corruption of the Government department."

"It is believed that a similar state of things exists at many other ports. The south and east sides of the straits are well protected; but the north side is practically undefended, as are several of the northern ports of Spain."

INNOVATIONS IN WARFARE.

Washington, July 22.—The very latest development in field telegraphy and telephony was demonstrated in a handsomely equipped double horse wagon that was driven into the courtyard of the War Department to-day for the inspection of the military officers there. The wagon is one of twenty, designed by Col. Strong, assisted by Major Dunwoody, of the Signal Corps, to construct flying telegraph lines over battlefields to maintain army headquarters in communication with the central authorities at Washington. This wagon has four folding tables, which when thrown up from the deck upon which are placed a set of telegraph and telephone instruments. Batteries are carried beneath the seats while the coils of wire are so arranged as to be strung out as fast as the wagon can be driven. The wagon is intended to be followed by a heavier vehicle containing lances, spare coils of wire, and even section of submarine cables, so that no obstacle to telegraphic communication will be afforded by a considerable stream of wagons. The wagon will be sent to the front as rapidly as possible.

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are really songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

An Incident in Brescia During the Italian Revolution of 1848.

The Count de Hubner tells in his "Memoirs" a thrilling story of an adventure in the Italian city of Brescia during the days of the revolution of 1848. When the trouble began in the streets, he arrived to get into a house, taking with him two or three other persons, including the wife of a minor official who had entrusted the lady for a while to the count's care, but who was to have certain news of her as soon as possible.

The firing grew heavier, and the robbers' possession of almost every house in the street.

On the 10th of March, Count de Hubner decided that he must do something toward bettering his position in case of an assault, and he forced his only remaining servant to make a dash across the street to the palace where the Austrian general, Rath, was quartered, two blocks away and on the other side. The man was merely to let the general know that de Hubner himself was coming, and to ask that the gates be held ready for him.

"Myself, prudence and my honor had a long and heated argument," says Count de Hubner. "Finally I pulled myself together. I had to let Prince Metternich know about myself, to make a last report, and to keep my word about poor Mme. M. I undid the door, drew a long breath, and plunged down the street."

"The bullets flew all around me, splashing leaden showers from the stone pavement. As I arrived at the gates of the palace, they swung open, and in a second I was inside, a dead man only half my journey was done; I had still to go a long way."

"A letter—my last report—was sent to the husband of Mme. M. was given. I had to return."

"Again the gates were opened and I bounded forth. A veritable fusillade followed. From every window and house top came the spurts of white smoke, and I tried to dodge 40 bullets at once. In a minute I had reached my own door, and I did not turn to look back."

"Another man before the gates got on full speed, but he had half crossed the street a puff of smoke shot out of a window, and he fell dead and was instantly lying like a log across the gutter. The fire stopped at once—what we would even an Italian see in shooting a dead man!"

"But on the second that all became quiet to my great astonishment I saw this 'dead man' rise to his legs like a cat and dash across the street into the half open door waiting for him. The sharpshooters were taken by surprise and he escaped."

THE GOOD OLD TIMES.

"An increase of salary" exclaimed the pompous manager of a small omnibus company to a clerk who had just made that request. "I am afraid, sir, that you are too extravagant."

"Heaped with his heavy watch chain and loaded heavily at the young man who returned his stare boldly. It was the old phrase on such occasions, and the applicant had heard it all before. He meant to have that rise or go somewhere else."

"Excuse me, sir," he replied respectfully. "I haven't any chance to be otherwise than what I am."

"Young man," continued the pompous proprietor, "I have risen from the monkey house. Now, by being careful. When I was young, I made money by saving his hair."

"Ah, that was in the old days," said the young man, with a knowing wink. "But with the bell punches and the present system of inspection you would find your monkey's hair disapproved of being cut, however careful you were."

The manager nearly choked, and the young man had to seek other employment.—Punch's Weekly.

INS AND OUTS.

"There is no use in growling about the fine," said one hotel keeper to another, after Magistrate Dumble had made it $20 and costs for selling after hours on the night of the first. "A man might just as well jump around in his bare feet and cuss about the ticks on the carpet."

Mentally our old friend John Holmes, formerly of Burleigh Falls, is a pitiful wreck, judging from the following, the truth of which can be vouched for by Jack Craig and several others:

"Here's a bass I bought off a boy on the road," he gibbered. "It weighs one pound."

It made the party he was addressing weep to hear him go on thus, for they knew he had caught the bass himself and that it weighed five pounds.

A good story is told by Commodore Calcutt, who was a volunteer in the Fenian raid. There was a call for men, and a company was being formed in Ashburnham, "Harry," as he was then called, took an active part in organizing the militia of that date, as he does in everything else of a patriotic nature. There was in couple of tall, rawboned rough looking country fellows, from the back townships, being examined. While this was a progress the physician jokingly asked one of them if he could read.

"No, got durn it, I can't be replied, 'but I didn't come down here to read a book. I come to fight!'"

It is needless to say he passed.

"Breakfast, 7 to 11; luncheon, 11 to 3; dinner, 3 to 8; supper, 8 to 12, sir," glibly recited the clerk of the Snowden House to the young man from the country who came to spend a few days in town. And the youth said to himself, "Well, I don't exactly see what time I shall have to go about and see the sights—but this is life!"

A good cereal story might be written around young Leiter's adventures in wheat.

May chewed all day on a piece of gum elastic, and next day she had a pain in the face. The doctors said it was enough to paralyze the jaw, chewing tea hours on a stretch.

Jennie—"Why do you always take that old thing out? It's the worst-looking horse in the stable." May—"Papa bought him very cheap, and I'm fond of driving bargains."

A STORY OF NAPOLEON.

He Exhibited a Scotchman as Overthump Request.
Napoleon had at one time many admirers in England, especially among the commercial classes, who suffered deeply from the war, but he alienated the sympathy of all such by his cruel arrest of the English who were in France at the time of the rupture of the peace of Amiens, in 1803. Some 15,000 English of both sexes were thus detained in irksome captivity till the close of the war, and hardly a family in the middle and upper classes but had to bewail the absence of some friend or connection.

Yet in individual cases Napoleon showed some magnanimity. A young Scotchman, one Robert Hendry, from Glasgow, a scientific dyer and chemist, had taken advantage of the peace to visit the great manufacturing houses of France, and he was staying at Joux, where Oberkampf had established a huge cotton printing factory. When war suddenly broke out, Hendry was thereupon considered a prisoner by the authorities, but allowed to remain on parole at Joux.

Napoleon one day visited the factory unexpectedly, accompanied by Beresford. He made a rapid progress through the works. Villagers and work-people, the latter numbering 1,000, assembled to witness his departure, cheering the carriage, and cheering still louder when the carriage was seen to take the cross from his own breast and affix it to that of the modest Oberkampf. Hendry painted the scene, and the picture is still to be found upon the walls of Versailles. But Oberkampf still something to ask. Hendry smiled propitiously, but made a very free when he heard the petition, which was for the release of the prisoner. "An Englishman!" "No, sir, a Scotchman!" His mother—his sisters depend on his labors. "Well, he shall be free, then!" said the emperor.—Household World.

He Had a Record.
A person who was bargaining for a mule in southwest Georgia asked the merchant who owned the mule:
"Is he a good, lively creature?"
"I reckon he is," replied the young man.
"He kicked and threw a stone at me," broke Uncle Bill's leg in two places and threw a preacher three times on a Sunday mornin'!"—Atlanta Constitution.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894. I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of drug-gists insisting they can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT

It is Based on the Test Made on the 7th of July

The Fire Underwriters' Association have issued the following report on our system of fire protection, based on the test made on the 7th inst.—PETERBOROUGH.

Changes.—Three hundred feet additional hose. One controlling nozzle. Mains extended 2671 ft. x inch and 818 ft. 4 inch, the latter for services only. Four hydrants added.

Test.—Gave alarm by telephone from Dixon's mill office, London st., at 9.00 1-4 a.m. Hose wagon and 4 men arrived 9.03 1-2, one stream thrown at 9.05 1-2, each through through 200 ft. of hose and 11-8 inch nozzle, horizontal distance thrown from the two 110 ft. pressure 90 lbs. Hook and ladder truck with 5 men arrived at 9.08 3-4, 8 minutes after alarm. Steamer was called on first alarm, did not respond. Second alarm sent in 9.13, steamer arrived with 2 men, and fire lit 9.22 1-2, but could not pump, the suction hose being detached from pump nozzle and incapable of replacement without a suitable expander which the department does not possess; the steamer will therefore be out of commission until that appliance is obtained. Tested one of the chemical fire extinguishers and found it in good condition.

Summary of appliances in use.—Waterworks, direct pumping without reservoir or standpipe; 125 hydrants; two hose carriages; 2100 ft. of first-class and 400 ft. of otherserviceable hose; hook and ladder truck; two chemical fire extinguishers; steam fire engine; Eastman's deluge set; "Magneo" fire alarm with eight boxes; pull-bell on fire hall; constant telephone service; 360 subscribers; three men on night patrol 20 firemen, of whom three are fully paid and seven sleep in the fire station; four horses stable in the fire hall at night, two there by day, the others on corporation work 8 1-2 minutes late with hook and ladder truck at test, although supposed not to go outside of fire limits.

Deficiencies for Class "B"—1. The "Magneo" alarm is unsatisfactory and should be replaced by an effective "Sector box" system with sufficient well-placed boxes to strike 15 inch gongs in fire hall and pump house, 6 inch gongs in the dwellings of such firemen who do not sleep in the fire station, and to operate the central alarm bell. There does not appear to be any intention of complying with this requirement.

2. The steam fire engine should be provided with a reducer to enable it to be coupled to any of the hydrants. An expander should also be provided for the suction hose.

3. There are only three instead of five fully paid men, of whom the chief is not one. The chief is required to be a fully paid man.

4. Horses sufficient to haul all the appliances should be maintained for fire purposes only. One team employed on corporation work was 8 1-2 minutes late at the test.

5. The number of dead ends on the water mains should be considerably reduced, and the single branch hydrants replaced by double cones.

6. Steamer did not respond to first call, and was unable to pump after arrival following second alarm.

In conclusion I would say with regard to the future placing of hydrants, that the standard does not contemplate a greater distance than 500 ft. apart in any built up portion, nor more than 200 to 250 ft. in the business or congested sections.

ROBERT HOWE, Inspector C.F.U.A. ASHBURNHAM.

Tested the Peterborough steamer today when the suction hose broke away from the pump nozzle, rendering it useless until repairs are executed from Toronto, they not having suitable appliances for such repairs at Peterborough.

The fire protection for this place depends upon the Peterborough steam fire engine when it can be spared from that town. One-tenth of the steamer is said to be the property of the village. An annual sum of $175 paid to be town for men, hose, etc. The sum of $100 per year paid by the village to the Peterborough Water Co. for the use of the hydrant at the west end of the bridge.

Deficiencies for Class "E" remain as before; no fire brigade, no fire appliances owned by the village.

In conclusion—I was informed by the reeve that a by-law for extension of Peterborough waterworks into the village would be voted upon on the 28th inst., and it is expected that the work will be pushed through during the summer.

CAPTURED IN ENNISMORE

Joe. Lachure captured in Ennismore Yesterday by P. C. McGinty

P. C. McGinty did a very clever piece of work yesterday afternoon. He went out into Ennismore to look for Hamilton who is accused of stealing watch. On arriving at the house where Hamilton was supposed to be located he found that the bird had flown, but a word was dropped which gave the officer a clue as to the whereabouts of an alleged criminal who has been wanted in Peterborough for months.

Mr. McGinty was determined not to return empty-handed and at once proceeded to look up the "other" fellow, "Joe" Lachure, who is accused of stealing money from Fairweather & Co. of the spring, was the new game, and he was arrested at the house of C. O'Connor, Ennismore. He was brought to town and after receiving a preliminary hearing was remanded until Monday.

P. C. McGinty certainly deserves credit for his clever work yesterday. Lachure has been wanted for months but the authorities had never been able to locate him.

"Jim" Hanlon was arrested last night on a charge of stealing a watch at the City Hotel from Wm. Menzies. He will appear before the P.M. this morning.

P.C. McGinty effected the arrest in a manner which stamps him as an officer of no mean ability. When "Charlie" starts out after a criminal he invariably lands him.

INSPECTING STEAM ROLLERS

The Russell Roller Regarded as the Most Satisfactory by the Council

The Hamilton Herald says:—"A long string of cabs, that looked like a funeral procession, passed up James street north on the arrival of the Toronto boat this afternoon. It was no funeral. Those in the cabs were very much alive. They were the deputation of city fathers from Peterborough, who, with other authorities, have come to see the test of the Buffalo Pitts and Russell steam rollers, to be held on John street south this afternoon.

Mayor Davis, owing to pressure of business, was not able to come. Those who are here are: Ald. Dawson, Ald. White, Ald. Cobb, Ald. Langford, Ald. Robertson, Ald. McWilliams, Ald. Hamilton, City Engineer Belcher, Fire Chief English and A. McFarlane.

The visitors are the guests of the city. They were met by Mayor Colquhoun, Ald. Nelligan, Ald. Pettigrew, Ald. McDonald, Ald. Metherell, Ald. McLeod, Ald. McFadden and Ald. Carswell. They were headed for the Waldorf, where luncheon was enjoyed.

Almost all the members of the deputation have now returned to town, and all are highly pleased with the result of their trip. They use the most extravagant terms of praise in speaking of the hearty welcome and hospitable treatment accorded them by the Mayor and Councillors of Hamilton. They were given a reception that was of the most cordial kind. Ex-Mayor Dunn, of Hamilton, also treated the visitors in fine style and assisted them in many ways. Councillors Best, Langford, and J.M. White have gone on to London to inspect the stone crusher of that city, as it was considered doubtful whether the make of crusher used in Hamilton would crush fine enough for granolithic material.

As to the steam rollers, most of Councillors, together with Mr. Andrew Macfarlane, the expert who accompanied the party, seem to regard the Russell roller as the most satisfactory. They were much impressed with its excellence.

Petroleum in Eastern Ontario

The discovery of petroleum has caused excitement in West Templeton, eight miles from Ottawa. The crude petroleum has been flowing abundantly to the surface from a depth of thirty feet. He has returned, accompanied by an oilman representing capitalists of the metropolis, and they have secured an option from the owners of the property.

Canada's Great Exposition

Many new and interesting features will be offered at the Toronto Exhibition this year, which is to be held from the 26th August to the 18th September. The harvest throughout the Dominion is good, and with the return of better times and the unusually low fares now being given by the railways, many will be induced to visit this great exhibition who perhaps would not otherwise do so. The entries in all departments will be great, and the attractions offered will be of a character to draw. Among the many will be realistic representations of the present Cuban-American War, the blockade, bombardment and battles of Santiago, or Havana, firing and explosion of shells, explosion of submarine mines and blowing up of vessels in the lake in front of the exhibition grounds, exhibitions by Marines and Gatling machine guns, etc., all of a specially interesting nature at the present time. The programme of attractions promises to far excel that of last year, which is saying a good deal. The exhibits will include many from Great Britain, France and the United States, whilst almost every section of the Dominion will be represented.

SHAFTER'S ARMY WILL REMAIN
New York, July 23.—A despatch to
The Times from Washington says:
To the effect that "What is to be done
with General Shafter's Fifth Corps,
now at Santiago?" the heads of war administration can find but one answer. That is to keep it in Cuba until every vestige of yellow fever is stamped out of it. It can be positively and upon the highest authority, that there is no instance of furnishing the troops back to the United States at the present time. The authorities here believe that it would be dangerous and criminal to run the risk of spreading the fever broadcast throughout this country by bringing the men back here so long as the pest is among them, and it is agreed that the best place to fight the disease is right where they now
are.

A STOPPER UPON NEWSPAPERS.
New York, July 23.—A despatch to
The World from Madrid says: "The Government has ordered the censors everywhere to prohibit the printing
in any newspaper of the declarations
of generals or civil officials."

"It was forced to do so because several generals, including Weyler, Polavieja, La Chambre, Lopez, Don-inguez and Barleja, have publicly censured Admiral Cervera and General Torre for not having properly employed the forces under them both to prolong resistance and to inflict heavier upon and cause greater embarrassment to the enemy, who was anything but an easy position near Santiago. Premier Sagasta and his Liberals are much annoyed because the people and the authorities of Barcelona, Saragosa and Madrid made much of General Polavieja on his journey here. The supporters of the Government believe the court and the military are intriguing for the forming of a coalition Cabinet under Polavieja. The press challenge him to "play his cards on the table." His advent to office would displease Wey-ler as much as it would Acaragga, Campes and the other marshals, but it is supposed to be a pique, of the Queen Regent, who dreads popular peace negotiations.

edge and authority as to the of the administration with reference to future war operations. In substance the statement was as follows:
Commodore Watson in proceeding to the Spanish peninsula as soon as the Porto Rican expedition is gotten under way, is not to bombard the cities on the Spanish coast. No such idea of bombardment of the coast is entertained. While there may be other incidental purposes, the main mission of Watson is to take care of Admiral Camara's fleet and the fears and apprehensions caused by reports concerning it are to be stopped for all time. The ships under Camara will be located by Watson and finally met and engaged. The talk occasionally indulged in as to the Canary Islands is utterly without foundation.
This Government has no plans to take these islands and does not want them.
Despite popular expectation that Porto Rico operations will be followed immediately by action against Havana,
it can be said that Havana will not
be attacked while yellow fever conditions exist. This is certain.

New York, July 22.—Senator P. De Castro, one of the prominent members of the Porto Rican Junta of this city, says in regard to the attitude of the Junta.

"When the Junta was organized we were pledged to secure the independence of the island. That was more than two years ago. Such a thing

as annexation was not discussed, because Spain was not at war with America. At a meeting on July 12
we decided to assist the United States unconditionally. The majority of us are in favor of annexation. Any talk of the revolutionary party of Porto Rico resisting the invasion of the Americans is nonsense. I was at the meeting held July 12 in this city, and never heard any such threat.
"I have grave doubts of our ability to make a republic of Porto Rico,
meaning as it does internal strife;
but annexation would be successful.
The majority of Porto Ricans in this country are heartily in favor of it.
There are some few against annexation, but none who would counsel resistance to it by force of arms."

WEYLER MAKES A MOVE.
New York, July 22.—A despatch to
The World from Madrid says. General Weyler has at last made overtures to the Republicans, and a majority of them have accepted the proposition to act with him in opposing the Queen Regent and her Ministers.
If peace is made on terms harsh for Spain, several moderate Republicans like Senor Labre, A. Searate and Margall tried to prevent an alliance with Weyler and his following of military malcontents, but in vain. Senor Castelar and his supporters also object to any association with Wey-ler, believing that he will be sure to play into the hands of the Carlists, who only want the pretext of a revolution to begin a civil war in behalf of Spain.

There is a rumor that the Government will arrest Weyler and also arrest the Marquis of Carralbo, and other Carlist leaders. All are shadowed by detectives, as are the principal Republicans and even the editors of Conservative organs.

In consequence of the extreme rigor of the press censorship be reign of terror is felt acutely. The wildest and most absurd are allowed, and given credence even in the capital, to nothing of the provinces.
Watson's squadron is a phantom haunting the people along the coast.
Carlist and Republican conspiracy phantoms alarm the authorities who suppress the Republican organs which advocate war, while the Republican and Socialist papers which favor peace are all suppressed. All this would be comprehensible if peace were to be the outcome within a fortnight, but the country cannot long stand the tension of the relations between the rulers and the opposition parties and the profound anxiety which such a policy causes.

The material interests of the country are being seriously damaged. General Polavieja is expected here tomorrow. He was asked by the Government and the court to hasten his return, and gave up half of the water cure at La Bourboule from which he has derived benefit, for both his eyes and general health.

Should Sagasta and his present Ministers not feel equal to the task of coping with the revolutionary parties the Junta has determined to ask General Polavieja to form a conciliatory coalition Ministry, make peace, and defend the monarchy, on the express understanding that the two monarchical parties, the Liberals and the Conservatives, shall co-operate. This understanding has been reached since Weyler made his alliance with the Republicans.

ANARCHY AMONG REBELS.
London, July 22.—The Manila correspondent of The Daily Mail, under date of July 19, commenting on the "state of anarchy among the rebels," says:
Each local chief desires to become the supreme ruler of his islands. It is pitiful to think that a nation like the Spanish has been beaten by such miserable specimens of humanity.
American inactivity is telling on the rebels in the rebel districts.
Food is plentiful, but there is no money to purchase it, and no way to distribute it."

FOUR PRISONERS ESCAPE.
Atlanta, Ga., July 22.—It was reported late last night that four of the Spanish prisoners confined at Fort Mifflin since the beginning of hostilities with Spain had escaped.
The officer in charge of the barracks refused to either deny or confirm the report, but several enlisted men who came in from the post said the Spaniards had gotten away yesterday and late last night.

PEACE IN PROSPECT.
Madrid, July 22.—The Minister of Public Instruction, Senor Gamazo, is authority for the statement that peace; honorable to the Spanish army, will shortly be concluded.

A REMARKABLE CONTEST.

A Sick Woman's Struggle to Outlive as Invalid for Her Children's Sake.
A remarkable case developed at Morristown, Ind., says The St. Louis Republic. Morgan Chandler, a banker and a resident of Greenfield, several weeks ago executed his will, dividing large estates among his nearest relatives. Among them was Eliza Burton, to whom he had bequeathed $10,000, which she was to receive providing she was not living with her husband, Charles, at the time of the testator's death, she having married Burton against his wishes. It was also stated in the will that, should the testator survive the niece, the bequest was to be divided among the children named in the will,
not to Burton nor his heirs.
Soon after the will was drawn Burton died, leaving Mrs. Burton to support the children, which she did, by taking in washing, sewing, etc. Several weeks ago the niece was taken ill, and at about the same time the wealthy uncle was also stricken. Both grew constantly worse. The neighbors and friends of the widow took great interest, wishing her to survive the uncle, having learned the provisions of the will.
Greenfield and Morristown have telephone connections, and the friends of the widow were kept constantly informed as to the condition of the uncle. Both patients grew weaker.
At times the mother would seem to be sinking, but she would rally, and she would be administered and she would revive, or long enough to enquire as to the condition of her relative, when she would return to a comatose state.
This was continued thirty-six hours,
and all hopes of prolonging her life longer were virtually abandoned. Finally a message came that Morgan Chandler was dead. Mrs. Burton had endured the tortures of death long enough to secure a fortune for her children. They were summoned to her bedside, and with a blessing upon them
the closed here eyes and passed away.

The New Millionaire.
I ran across a new millionaire the other day whose name I have not yet seen in the papers. I found him and his family in a little room from which one could see the lake. The living that my friend Midas needs many servants and a palace to make himself grandly on here in indulgences and luxuries. Three servants, love, willingness and Good Nature to all the work gratis. On the look-glass was printed this little poem of Lusy Larcom's:
"ALL THINGS ARE MINE."
"I do not own an inch of land,
But I see it all as I pass by;
The orchards and the mowing-fields,
The lawn and garden fine;
The wilds my tax-collectors are,
Who bring me tribute divine;
Wild geese and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all,
My windows keep for me
A glimpse of blue immensity,
A little strip of sea."

The speedy Rescuer.
A wild bear hunt was the exciting sport a number of the young men of South Jacksonville had looked forward to last week with a great deal of excitement. The wild bear was a rascal, bog. He was installed in a pen and fed with red pepper, gunpowder and dynamite, and became as fierce as his reputations. On the day of the hunt a cavalcade assembled at the meeting place armed with javelins and spears made of bamboo with hunting knives tied to the end.
The wild bear was liberated and trotted away into the woods. He squealed a half-contented, inquisitive, where's my rest-of-my-family sort of a squeal with no thought of the pursuers who spurred and whipped their horses into furious pursuit.
The wild bear trotted along—just simply and coolly trotted. He didn't look as if he was going, but the great poos distanced the pursuers, and they were robbed of the pleasure of "jabbing" him full of holes.—Florida Times Urban.

English Jacobite Societies.
To judge from the list of Jacobite clubs and associations given in the "Legitimist Calendar for 1898," which includes the order of the White Rose, the Devon White Rose club, the Legiti-mist Jacobite League of Great Britain and Ireland (pious title), the Shetland Counties (shade of Cromwell), White Cockade club, the Forty-five club of Grimsby, the Glasgow Jacobite club,
the Oxford University Legitimist club, the St. Ives (Hunts) Jacobite club, the Jacobite Restoration League, the Surrey
White Rose League, the Mary Stuart club of Lanark, the Legitimist Registration Union, the National Royalist and Jacobite association, the order of St. Germain and the Hemingford Gray
Royal Oak club, not to mention our old familiar Thames Valley Jacobites and two or three foreign legitimist bodies, it ought not to be difficult for the supporters of the lost house of Stuart to find several hundred adherents in the field (or even Lodge) across the sea.

Conclusions reached by a German authorities are that the manner of the murder of a married and protected from extreme of no tire and as a lie it should be kept in mind, but not let it be used to turn cities in upon it, results in a tramp, it down, and the whole career of it. When the have is completed it should be over with and if the prosecution are obvious, the use of protection may be deposed with.

BLUE LAWS.

Some of the Frontier Settlements That Obtained in Old Virginia.
Those who fancy that strict laws were peculiar to New England in colonial days should read some of the colonials of the Virginia assembly.
"It was enacted," writes Professor John Fiske in "Old Virginia and Her Neighbors," that any person found drunk was for the first offense to be publicly reprimanded by the minister; the second time this reprimand was to be publicly administered; the third time the offender must be put in irons for 15 hours and pay a fine; for any subsequent offenses he must be severely punished at the discretion of the governor and council.

"To guard the community against excessive vanity in dress it was enacted that for all public contributions every unmarried man must be dressed in church 'according to his own apparel,' and every married man must be according to his own and his wife's apparel."
"Not merely extravagance in dress, but such social misdemeanors as flirting, received due legislative condemnation.
Pretty maids were known to encourage hopes in more than one suitor, and gay deceivers of the sterner sex would sometimes seek to win the affections of two or more women at the same time.
Wherefore it was enacted that 'every minister should give notice in his church that what man or woman covered should as any word or speech tending to a contract of marriage to two several persons at one time as might entangle or breed scruples in their consciences, should for such their offense, either undergo corporal correction (by whipping) or be punished by fine or otherwise, according to the quality of the person so offending."

Men were held to more strict accountability for the spoken or written word than in these shameless modern days.
One of the most prominent settlers we find presenting a petition to the assembly to grant him due satisfaction against a neighbor who has addressed to him a letter "wherein he tarseth him both unseemly and amies of certain things wherein he was never faulty." Speaking against the governor or any member of the council was liable to be punished with the pillory. It was also imprudent to speak too freely about clergymen, who were held in great reverence. No planter could dispose of so much as a pound of tobacco until he had laid aside a certain specified quantity as his assent toward the minister's salary, which was thus assured even in the worst times, so far as legislation could go.

AN INQUIRING LAD.

Personal Advertisements Which Appeared in the Unnecessary.
"When I was down in the Tennessee mountains doing my turn in that peevish and primitive section," observed the apical pension agent, "I had at various times such glimpses of life as you pampered children of the luxurious capital never get. I remember one June morning I arose from my simple bed of clapboards on the left floor of a log cabin and proceeded down ladder to the earth, thence a hundred yards down to the creek, where I was afforded ample opportunity for my understandings, as the stream was big enough to run a sawmill with.
"As I splashed my face in the clear water and splashed over it after the usual fashion of a man who likes to wash his face I was joined by the 10-year-old son of the family with which I was sleeping.
He stood on the shore watching me with much interest, which I am glad to say I returned with care, for he was a picture boy. He was sandy and freckled and didn't look as if he had had a bath in the memory of man. His clothes were simple enough, consisting of a cotton shirt, and there was no hat to hide a head of hair which I am positive never felt the penetrating and pervading influence of a comb. He was too much interested in the mysteries of my toilet to say anything on all I took out a comb and began to comb my tangled locks. After a tug or two at it, looking at him meanwhile, he spoke up. "Say, mister," he said earnestly, "how far got to do that there?"
"Do what there?" I smiled in reply.
"That there that yer doin'."
"You mean combing my hair?"
"Yes."
"Of course it has to be done."
"Every morning this way?"
"Certainly."
"Well, good-bye, mister," he said, with much feeling, "you must be a heap of trouble to yourself."

His Wife Was.
A Georgia man, who was unpopular in his community, insured his life for $3,000. He took the policy home to his wife and said:
"Maria, here's a life insurance document for $3,000."
"Thank you, dear," said his wife.
"How are you feeling today?"
"Not well," he replied, "and I don't think I am long for this world, and I want to say to you that when I die it is my wish that you devote $1,000 of the money to defraying my funeral expenses."
"Mercy on me," exclaimed the wife,
"why do you want such an expensive funeral?"
"I'll explain. I'm perfectly satisfied that nobody will attend my funeral, and I want to hire people to go at such a head. I'm going out today and see what arrangements I can make for attendances on that forthcoming melancholy occasion. If they won't come gratis, why—I'll just hire 'em an give em an order on you for the money."
"You went forth and at nightfall returned with a doleful look."
"Maria," he said, "it's no use. You can have the whole $3,000. Just go to my funeral yourself."

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

IS IT PREJUDICE?

Marriage is Happiest, It is Claimed, in the White Race.

Every one has his own idea as to what constitutes a happy marriage, but there is one point on which nearly all agree—the wife must not be older than the husband.

People who look complacently on the statistics of a girl of 16 or 18 marrying a man twice her age are likely to declare it a confirmation of the marriage after 12 the best in a few years older than the bridegroom. It would be a curious study in sociology to trace this prejudice to its source. A prejudice is undoubtedly in the world here have been those in which the wife was the older of the two.

Every one who knows his country knows the extraordinary devotion of Johnson to the old, ugly widow when manhood was attainable and who was nearly twice his age, as the editorial biographer says. He knows, too, how happy they made Johnson and what a grief her death was to the great man.

The marriage of Margaret Fuller and the Count d'Ossoli was a brilliant success in point of happiness, though sadly brief. Margaret was seven years older than her husband and refused him several times on this ground, but his devotion and persistency overcame her reluctance, and the result of the marriage fulfilled her dream of such happiness. It is said that all who saw them together were struck by the love-like fondness and exquisite delicacy of D'Ossoli's manner toward the plain New England woman, seven years his senior, whose only attraction apparently was her great intellect. Mrs. D'Ossoli says of him: "He never was less than a perfect gentleman. When, she was ill, he nursed her and watched over her with the tenderness of a woman. Such tender, unselfish love I have rarely seen. It made green her days and gave her an expression of peace and serenity which before was a stranger to her."

D'Ossoli's wife was his senior, yet the marriage was a notably happy one.—Pall Mall Gazette.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." Mrs. H. F. PARK, Degraaf Street.

WALRUS LEATHER

Good For Making Wheels For Polishing Other Polishing Leathers.

Walrus leather is used for making better wheels for polishing brass, steel and silver. It has a peculiar, coarse grain that holds the emery or polishing powder well. It takes about five years to tan a walrus hide. Some walrus leather is made in this country, but the bulk of it is imported from England. Leather made from the hide of a walrus would be about half an inch thick. The hide of an old bull might be two inches thick. The value of the leather depends upon its thickness. Half inch would sell for about 50 cents a pound; 1 1/4 inches would be worth $1.40 a pound, and walrus leather from 1 1/4 to 1 3/4 inches thick, smooth and well trimmed, would be worth $5 a pound, and a side of such leather would cost about $300.

Walrus wheels are made in a variety of shapes, depending upon the work on which they are used. They are made with a flat face, grooved, cone shaped or of any shape that may be desired, and by cementing layers of leather together wheels of any desired thickness are made. Walrus leather is also used for valve packings.

Bull necks are used also for polishing purposes. Three-quarter inch bull necks sell at about 50 cents a pound. Leather made from the hide of an lion is used for polishing purposes. This is a smoother and softer leather used for softer metals. Lion leather of an average thickness costs about 50 cents a pound. Bulls of wheels of any thickness are also made of lion and of bull neck leather.—New York Sun.

The Last Purse.
"I have had my pocket picked!" exclaimed a middle aged woman as she hurriedly entered a suburban police station a day or two ago.

"Where did it occur?"

"In a shop in the High street, and I know it was a man who stood near me took it."

"How much was in it?"

PORTO RICO'S FALL
Must Take Place Before the Fleet Sails.
AN EXAMPLE TO LOOTERS
Spanish Government Draws Up a Message to Washington

Two Cubans summarily shot for looting—Twenty bags of mail were seized at San Juan on the Bay of Capatzen.
Santiago de Cuba, July 25.—When General Garcia withdrew his forces from Santiago there remained behind a party of some one hundred Cubans, who, being attached to certain American regiments as guides, were loth to leave the comparatively good living to be obtained in the army for a scanty subsistence among the hills and swamps of the province.
Notwithstanding General Shafter's strict injunctions that no Cuban should enter the city of Santiago, a party of seven guides yesterday evening succeeded in evading the American guards and penetrating into the centre of the city.
About midnight a patrol under Lieut. Galloway was going its rounds along one of the residential streets of the city when it was attracted by the sound of snuffing and cries for help coming from the house of a civic official situated in the midst of large grounds. The lieutenant led his men to the house, entered the front door, which was wide open, and surprised the Cubans named in the act of extorting from the official, an old and weak man, a statement as to the whereabouts of his valuables. The Cubans were already loaded with many portable articles of worth taken from the house.
The whole seven were arrested and brought before General Shafter, who, after hearing the circumstances, ordered the ringleaders to be shot on the spot as a warning to others that looting would be punished with the greatest severity.

PORTO RICO'S FALL.
Washington, D.C., July 25.—At a conference to-day between President McKinley and Secretary Long, and Capt. Crowninshield, Admiral Sigsbee, and Captain Mahan, the three latter representing the Naval War Board, it was announced that General Miles had taken up a position in front of Porto Rico, and was preparing to make an attack. It was also stated that Commodore Watson will not sail with his Eastern squadron until after Porto Rico has fallen. A despatch from Tampa says that there are now three hundred soldiers off duty through sickness, chiefly malaria, and that at Jacksonville the health of the troops lay off, and that there,
as no signs whatever of yellow fever,
the trouble among the soldiers being chiefly malaria.

AN ARMISTICE PROPOSED.
London, July 25.—A special despatch from Madrid says the Spanish Government has drawn up a message for Washington preparatory to discussing the terms of peace. An armistice is proposed.

MAIL BAGS SEIZED.
Santiago de Cuba, via Port Antonio and Kingston, J. A., July 25.— Twenty bags of mail were seized at the Santiago postoffice on the day of the American occupation. It consists of Spanish official and private correspondence. Yesterday the Spanish customs authorities asked to have the mail bags turned over to them; but the request was refused and the matter was sent to New York by the steamer Concho.

CUBANS OPPOSE ANNEXATION.
Santiago de Cuba, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 25.—The Cubans here resent General Shafter's attitude in ignoring General Garcia, and in refusing to allow the Cuban troops to enter Santiago or to consult General Garcia on the terms of the surrender of the city. General Garcia's action in withdrawing his troops into the interior, his letter to General Shafter, and his resignation of command forwarded to General Gomez, are approved and applauded by all classes of natives. General Garcia refused to accept a subordinate place, insisting that he was an ally. General Shafter's answer, saying that this was a war between the United States and the kingdom of Spain, in respective of Cuba's individual interests, and President McKinley's instructions with reference to the administration of the surrendered district, published here yesterday, are interpreted as tacit avowal of American intentions to annex the island and not to grant independence.
This is opposed by the Cubans Senor Joaquin Castillo, President of the San Carlos Cuban Club, and a brother of General Castillo, urges an official protest to President McKinley without a delay, saying, "Silence now would indicate our consent to the American attitude, which is a plain breach of faith that the Cubans cannot possibly tolerate."
A meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the San Carlos Club, to discuss the matter, and it is probable that a protest was drawn up, which will be submitted.

THE UNITED STATES FORCES ARE suffering in great numbers from heat and malaria. Two hundred cases in General Kent's division, 70 in General Lawton's and 50 in General Lud-low's, were reported this morning.
The horses are also prostrated.
Of six companies of the 9th infantry, companies B, C, D, E, and H, quartered at the theatre here, 117 are reported on the sick list.
Owing to the number of sick, the garrison here is doing guard duty day and night, and is breaking down with excessive work. Thus far there is no talk of relieving the men. The 9th and 13th infantry constitute the garrison at present.

GOING TO PORTO RICO.
Washington, July 25.—The War Department has decided to send the First Florida, Second Georgia, and Fifth Maryland regiments, now at Tampa, to Porto Rico.

SHIPOWNERS ARE INDIGNANT.
New York, July 25.—The World prints the following: A lawyer has been retained by the steamship companies who were unsuccessful bidders for transporting the captured Spanish prisoners from Santiago to Spain, and will bring action this morning to have the contract made by the Government with the Camaguey Trans-Atlantic Española set aside. The ground taken is that the successful bidder is a licensed corporation of an alien with whom we are at war, and according to a measure passed by the Spanish Cortes, one half of the freight of every corporation doing business under the Spanish Government must be surrendered to the Government to help defray the expenses of the war. By letting the contract to a Spanish corporation the United States Government indirectly pays into the Spanish treasury an amount equal to 50 per cent.
of the contract stipulation, and also releases from blockade all the enemy's vessels to be used in the transportation from the neutral ports where they are now in shelter.

SHAFTER'S ARMY WILL REMAIN
New York, July 25.—A despatch to
The Times from Washington says:
To the question, "What is to be done
with General Shafter's Fifth Corps,
now at Santiago?" the heads of war administration can find but one answer. That is to keep it in Cuba until every vestige of yellow fever is stamped out of it. It can be positively and upon the highest authority, that there is no intention of bringing the troops back to the United States at the present time. The authorities here believe that it would
be dangerous and criminal to run the risk of bringing the fever-brandant troops back to this country by forcing the main land here so long as the pest is abroad there. And it is acceded that the best place to fight the disease is right where they now
are.

NEW YORK, JULY 25.—Senor P. De Castro, one of the prominent members
of the Porto Rican Junta of this city, says in regard to the attitude
of the Junta.
"When the Junta was organized we
were pledged to secure the independence of the island. That was more than two years ago. Such a thing
as annexation was not discussed, because Spain was not at war with America. At a meeting of the United States to assist the United States in unconditionally. The majority of us were in favor of annexation. Any talk of the revolutionary party of Porto Rico resisting the invasion of the Americans is nonsense. I was at the meeting held July 12 in this city, and never heard any such threat.
I have no doubts of our ability
to make a republic of Porto Rico,
meaning as it does internal strife;
but annexation would be successful.
The majority of Porto Ricans in this city are heartily in favor of it. There are some few against annexation, but none who would counsel resistance to it by force of arms."

A STOPPER UPON NEWSPAPERS.
New York, July 25.—A despatch to
The World from Madrid says: "The Government has ordered the censors
everywhere to prohibit the printing
in any newspaper of the declarations
of generals or civil officials."
"It was forced to do so because
several generals, including Weyler, Polavieja, La Chamba, Lopez, Lundberg, and Barba, have publicly censured Admiral Cervera and General Torral for not having properly employed the forces under them both to prolong resistance and to inflict heavier
upon and cause greater embarrassment to the enemy, who was in this thing, but in a position near Santiago. Premier Sagasta and his Liberals are much annoyed because the people and the authorities of Barcelona, Saragosa and Madrid made much of General Polavieja on his journey here. The supporters of the Government believe the court and
the military are intriguing for the forming of a coalition Cabinet under Polavieja. The press challenge him
to play his cards on the table. His advent to office would displease Wey-ler as much as it would Acaragosa, Campos and the other marshals, but it is supposed to be a pet scheme of the Queen Regent, who dreads an-popular peace negotiations."

OBJECT OF WATSON'S FLEET.
Washington, July 25.—A significant statement was made to the Associated Press to-day by an gentleman in a position to speak with knowledge and authority as to the of the administration with reference to future war operations. In substance the
statement was as follows:
Commodore Watson in proceeding
to the Spanish peninsula as soon as the Porto Rican expedition is gotten under way, is not to bombard the cities on the Spanish coast. No such idea of bombardment of the coast is entertained. While there may be other incidental purposes, the main mission of Watson is to take care of Admiral Camara's fleet and the
fears and apprehensions caused by reports concerning it are to be stopped
for all time. The ships under Camara
will be located by Watson and finally met and engaged. The talk occasionally indulged in as to the Canary
Islands is utterly without foundation.
This Government has no plan to take these islands and does not want them.
Despite popular expectation that Por-
to Rico operations will be followed immediately by action against Havana,
it can be said that Havana will not
be attacked while yellow fever conditions exist. This is certain.

GARCIA WRITES TO GOMEZ.
New York, July 25.—A despatch to
The World from Santiago says: The Spaniards are occupying the change of government in Santiago with good grace.
The insurgent forces have left the American camp and gone twenty miles into the interior. They have been warned, under threat of extreme penalties, not to molest the Spanish residents or to return to the old system of brigandage.
Garcia has written a letter to Gomez declaring that the United States Government is unfriendly to the Cuban cause. The letter was sent by Thursday last. Gomez is in 100 miles from here.

There were fifty funerals here yesterday of refugees who died as the result of the scarcity of food at El Gasey.
Santiago is still short of food.
The streets are full of beggars.
The householders have been ordered to clean their houses. A big sanitary force is at work.

C. P. R. TRAINS COLLIDE
The Operator Did not Hold the "Soo" Train
THE LIST OF THE INJURED
The Accident Occurred About a Mile
East of Pembroke

An Investigation is Being Held, as Neglect is Charged—The Engineers and Firemen Jumped in Time
Pembroke, July 25.—A head-on collision occurred near this town about one o'clock yesterday morning between two C.P.R. passenger trains, in which nine persons were injured. The trains collided while running at full speed and it is fortunate the accident was not attended by heavy loss of life.
The regular C.P.R. passenger train, commonly known as "The Soo," passes this station on its way east at 1.02 a. m., and Saturday night it came into the station carrying a red signal, but through a blunder on the part of someone the train was not detained here, as should have been, and shortly after pulling out from the station ran head-on into a special passenger train loaded with excursionists returning from the North Lanark Agricultural society's trip to the Experimental Farm at Ottawa.

A FORTUNATE ESCAPE.
The accident occurred about one and a half miles east of the Pembroke station, and fortunately was on a straight stretch of road, where the engineers of both trains had time to realize the danger in which they and those under their charge were placed.
They lost no time in reversing the engines and applying the air-brakes, and this done, they, with their firemen, jumped for their lives.

A TERRIFIC CRASH.
They were just in time, for, a moment afterwards, the two trains in-terlocked with a terrific crash, and had the officials remained nothing could have saved them from instant death. The two engines were destroyed and several cars. The tender of the "Soo" engine was jammed back into the baggage car, from the platform of which two tramps had been ejected before the train pulled out from the station just a few minutes previously.

LIST OF THE INJURED.
Joseph Jackson, engineer "Soo"
train, back and neck injured.
James Devine, North Bay, engineer excursion train, leg bruised.
Dan Cameron, North Bay, conductor "Soo" train, arm bruised.
Thos. Larmond, brakeman, excursion train, leg badly bruised.
John Falby, North Bay, baggage-man, "Soo" train, injuries in back.
Frank Smith, Boston, injuries in back.
Moses Rowe, Warren City, N.J., head and back bruised.
Felix Clement, foreman W. C. Edwards Co., Rockland, bruises on head and body.
Geo. Morris, injuries in abdomen.

NEGLECT IS CHARGED.
It is stated that the accident was due to the neglect of the night operator here in failing to detain the "Soo" until after the arrival of the special excursion train. An investigation is being held.

The Three Famed Blacks
Of the world are Diamond Dye Fast
Black for Wool, Diamond Dye Fast
Black for Cotton and Mixed Goods, and Diamond Dye Fast Black for Silk and Feathers. The results that each of these Blacks produces are marvellous and pleasing. Your faded and dingy dresses, jackets, capes, coats, pants, vests, hose, etc., that are now so useless and repulsive looking, can be made like new garments with the Diamond Dye Blacks. Your faded, rusty and dead looking silks and feathers are made new creations by using Diamond Dye Fast Black for Silk and Feathers.
Do not be deceived by bulky package dyes adulterated with grease and other foreign substances; insist upon your dealer giving you the Diamond

as much as three packets of any other

DANGER IN SLEEP.
When the Human Machinery Runs too Low
That Its Stoppage is Threatened If Not Given Impetus.
Very curious and interesting is the temporary uneasiness of all night-sleeping humans and animals at about 3 o'clock every morning. At that hour they give little moans, awaken partially or wholly,
and then either drop back into slumber or into death. Physical giants among men, and lions among animals, have the same tendency just as do the feeblest babies or weakest kittens. Viewed in any and every light, the occurrence is remarkable.
Why is it not at midnight, at 1 a. m., 2
a. m., or, in the case of late sleepers, why does it not come at 6 or 7 o'clock? An Inquirer man asked some of the leading physicians regarding this occurrence and gleaned some most interesting information.

At the hour of about 3 o'clock every morning every night-sleeping man woman, and child and animal is nearer to death than at any other moment in all the 24 hours. It is then that the most active of the vitals come the nearest to stopping or running down. They come so near that if they came a breath—an atom—nearer it they would stop. The thought is one of absorbing interest.
The machinery of life comes within just a hair's breadth of stopping at some moment near 3 a. m. The why of this is explained as follows: The composition of the body when lying still produces not only rest, but that same element of danger so omnipresent to all machinery left unattended—the absence of a watch full brain.

In welcoming the hours of sleep you unconsciously welcome death's most advantageous time for conquering you.
Every moment you are asleep your physical self is running unwatched by the engineer. The supply coal (food) for the furnace is withheld. The steam (blood) in the pipes runs low. This neglect of the engine room of the body continues until some moment at about 3 a. m. the machinery all but stops. In the healthy or fairly healthy body the coming of this moment produces a wild shock to the system, and this shock causes you to unconsciously throw out your arms and legs, rub your nose violently, moan, take a deep breath and turn over. Your doing all this—or most of it—has literally and of sober truth saved your life. It gave fresh impetus to the most stopped action of the heart, which in turn restored the well long stopped circulation all throughout your body. The moan and deep breath quickened the action of the lungs and roused them to their usual rate of speed. The rest that their organs had received by being allowed to run slowly to run almost down—enabled them, with the restarting administered by the 3 o'clock commotion, to successfully begin another run, carrying you over the death point and allowing you to resume completion of the full period of rest necessary to the brain and to the nerves and muscles of the limbs and other portions of the body.

As to what causes this little shock that carries us over the bridge of death, the west of the wise know nothing. The theories about it are legion. But they are only theories. The percentage of deaths at this marvelous moment exceeds that of any other in the 24 hours, while the number of old people die at about 3 o'clock in the morning is appalling in excess of their death rate for any other time. In all cases at all critical times it is said that the physician secretly dreads the hour, 3 a. m., a hundred fold more than scarcely any other incident in practice whatsoever, to all that lives and breathes, it brings the most momentous time of all existence.

A FLOATING REPAIR SHOP.
Washington, July 22.—The steamer
Volcan of the navy, fitted out last month as a repair-shop ship by Engineer-in-Chief Melville, has already proved invaluable to the large squadron in Cuban waters.
Operating far from a naval base, where repairs would be impossible except in the case of exceedingly slight injuries, and it is now clearly shown that had not this vessel been promptly sent to Santiago at the outbreak of war, it would have had to continue in a crippled condition or been returned to the United States to be put in good order.

A letter received from Chief Engineer Chasmer, of the Volcan, dated Guamacama, July 5, declares that the Volcan is thoroughly appreciated in the squadron and is doing great work. Twelve ships have already made use of her facilities for repairs to their machinery, and several of the old ones that had been sent away.
The Volcan has not been limited however, to steam-engineering affairs alone but has been used for ordnance and construction work. She has remedied the damages to the hull of Commodore Watson's flagship, the Newark, caused by collision with the DeSpain, and among other odd jobs, two shafts from each gun-mount, essential to the use of these weapons, have been made in her shops.
The Volcan has blacksmithing, machine shop, boiler-making and other complete outfits aboard that permit work of any reasonable magnitude to be undertaken, superior to the capacity of ships at many small ports, and surpassed alone
by the larger Navy yards.

THE FIGHT AT LEXINGTON.

Senator Lodge's Account of the First Battle of the Revolution.

When Major Pitcairn got to Lexington green, about half past 4, thanks to Brown's warning, there were some 40 or 50 men assembled to meet him. "Disperse, ye rebels, disperse!" said Major Pitcairn, and took forward them. There was much discussion then, and there has been much more since, as to who fired first. In matters not it is certain that the British moved in a valley and followed it up with others. The minutemen, and yet realizing that the decisive moment had come, hesitated, some standing their ground, some covering. They fired a few scattering shots, wounding a number of British soldiers and sent off. Some Americans were killed and some wounded. One of the eight had carried the standard when American troops engaged Lexington, and this standard for England on otherwise indifferent war. One was wounded and lay on the ground afterward. One dragged himself to the door of his house and died on the threshold at his wife's feet.

What matters it who fired first? The gun blow had been struck, the first blood shed. The people, in obedience to the orders of a provincial congress, had faced the soldiers of England in arms. They had been fired upon and had returned the fire. It was not a battle, hardly a skirmish; but it told to all the world that a people intended to govern themselves, and would die sooner than yield; a very pregnant fact, speaking much louder than words and charged with many meanings. A wholly new thing this was indeed to have people ready to die in battle for their rights, when a large part of the rulers of the civilized world did not recognize that they had any rights to either die or live for. A great example to be deeply considered, and destined to bear much fruit, was given by those brave men who died on Lexington green in the fair dawn of that April morning. From "The Story of the Revolution," by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, in Scribner's.

MOST WHOLESOME MEALS.

Mrs. Horner Tells the Best Foods For Hot Summer Days.

In the Ladies' Home Journal Mrs. F. Horner writes at length to show that Americans eat too much meat, but says she does not want to be understood as condemning meat entirely. Individually she uses "all with the exception of pork and veal" in moderation and toward the close of the day. From long experience, she says, "I have found that a heavy morning's work can best be accomplished on a breakfast composed of a well cooked cereal and fruit, with perhaps a cup of French coffee or cereal coffee and a piece of well toasted whole wheat bread. The noonday meal, especially if work is to be continued in the afternoon, should be composed of a cream soup, with whole wheat bread, an omelet, some of the lighter forms of string-beans, in the proportion of one-third to two-thirds carbonaceous food. Fruits, again, may be taken, if they agree—a baked banana, a baked apple, peaches, pears or any of the very ripe, succulent fruits.

"After the day's work is over and one has time to rest and thoroughly digest a meal dinner should be served. A warm beef soup, stimulating rather than nutritious, should form the beginning of the meal. This may be followed by some light entree, either of fish or vegetable, then the red meat, either boiled, broiled or roasted (never fried), with its accompanying vegetables. With beef serve potatoes or macaroni as the starchy food, with lettuce or chicken rice. A green vegetable should be added for its salts, and this may be onions or peas or green beans, cauliflower or spinach. The salad should follow, and with it a tiny bit of cheese, with a piece of whole wheat bread, a bread slice or a water biscuit. Then a simple, light dessert may be served."

Don't serve a Repast.

That newspaper men are full of resources was well illustrated recently. One of the staff who lives on the south side is fond of seeing a chicken fight, and he has some good chickens. Recently he attended a cocking main and took one of his game chickens with him. There had been several lively bouts when a policeman appeared and gathered the crowd in. The newspaper man had held of his chicken when the policeman arrived, and in his excitement held on to it.

At the hearing the policeman told his story, and no one denied being present or declared that the story was true. The police magistrate turned to the newspaper man and said, "How does it come that you were there?"

The subject looked puzzled for a moment, and then a smile broke over his face, and he said: "Why, you know, I am always after news. I heard about this cocking and got a tip that it was going to be held, and I went there to get the news."

"That's all right," said the magistrate. "But what were you doing with a chicken in your hand?"

The newspaper man hesitated but on instant said, "Well, you see, I wanted to catch my news from as being true, as I just grabbed the chicken to show that there was a chicken fight."

The magistrate looked at him a moment and said: "Well, you're a news hound, aren't you?"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

EDMUND BURKE.

An Able and Versatile Statesman Who Never Attained High Office.

Though Burke never attained high office his abilities were so versatile as to qualify him for any post which a cabinet minister could fill. His practical wisdom was as conspicuous as his power of generalization. No one had a clearer comprehension of a larger grasp of great principles of universal application; at the same time his policy in every department of English politics rested on a wide and solid basis of information and experience. He was steeped in the history of the past, yet penetrated through and through with the reality of the present and over and always mindful of that future in which the speculations and measures of the day were to be tested and finally approved or condemned. His prodigious activity in public affairs sprang not from an intellectual course alone, nor from his imperial patriotism. It was constantly fed from an inexhaustible store of moral energy. He was animated by a detestation of all forms of oppression, whether by kings or governors, parliaments or peoples, which was in him a consuming passion, from which his noble nature could only obtain relief by denunciation of the oppressor and the destruction of his power.

I cannot help thinking that Burke must have been stimulated, too, and sustained by delight in his studies and his work. It is impossible, without counting this as an additional incentive, to understand the amazing industry which he devoted to the elucidation of all the great questions dealt with in his speeches and writings. How his method improves the habit, too common in our day, as in other days, of debating subjects affecting the fate of millions of our fellow creatures as if they could be disposed of by echoing the chatter of ignorance, or prejudice, or vanity, or self-interest! When we read Burke's speech on Fox's East India bill, we say, "What a great proposal he would have made!" When we read his speech on conciliation with America, we feel that the greatest of colonial ministers was lost in him, and when we read his speech on economical reform we exclaim, "Here is an ideal champion of the exchequer!"—J. O'Connor Power in North American Review.

Luxurious Travelling.

The height of luxurious travelling has been reached by the car and carriage. The comfort and privacy are unobtainable in any other mode. The electric lamp is all in the form of a lamp, and it contains writing and tea tables made of mother of pearl. The nursery is the next apartment, and is as comfortable and handsome as the same rooms in any of the car's palaces. There are dining rooms and drawing rooms and several sleeping apartments. In fact, this train is a miniature palace. The wheels are covered with indestructible rubber—Philadelphia Ledger.

Songs That Sing Themselves.

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is a marvel as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. PETERBOROUGH, JULY 22, 1898

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Big Orange Excursion.
Messrs. C. W. Rapp and W. G. Farley, of Toronto, were in town last evening making final arrangements for an excursion to be run to Peterborough from Toronto on Monday, Aug. 8th—Toronto's civic holiday—under the auspices of Lord Elms Lodge, 400 and 401 people are expected to come on this occasion.

Special for the Ladies. Corsets at 25 cents at Miss Melville's this week only.

World's Greatest Acrobats.
The wonderful Wernats family of six—two men, one youth, a handsome lady and two beautiful girls, aged respectively seventeen and sixteen, all from Berlin, are touring this country for the first time this season. They are with the New Great Walter L. Main Shows, leaving for Peterborough, July 30.

Men and Women Repaired.
A machine that is constantly and permanently working needs repair at certain intervals.

The human frame, worn by mental and physical toil and subjected to worry and care of our modern life, has need of repair and building up. In the hot summer weather nervous energy is at a low ebb, and as a consequence, nervous debility, terrible headaches, dyspepsia and a run-down condition make life a burden for thousands.

Paine's Ointment Compound is the great repairer and builder when weakness and sickness prevail. This medicine has the power of rapidly repairing the tissues and purifying the blood. It restores the proper nutriment to all the weakened tissues, bringing strength and true vigor, and averting breakdown and collapse. Thousands of lives are now fast recovering out of that can be prolonged and made happy by the present use of Paine's Ointment Compound. Its use today will save months of sickness, misery and suffering. Take no substitute; get only "Paine's" the kind that cures.

You will not know how much good Paine's Sarsaparilla will do you until you try it. Buy a bottle to-day and begin to take it.

Strawberries, 4 for 25 cents, 7 for 50.00, for this day only. H. C. 413 George Street

POLICE COURT

An Assault Case and Two Charges of Theft Came Before the P.M. Yesterday

Yesterday morning's session of the Police Court was a busy one. Young Leger was remanded until Friday on the charge of breaking into the premises of Messrs. R. H. Kells and J. W. T. Fairweather. Young James Hanlon filed an appearance on the charge of having stolen a watch and chain from the room of Wm. Menzies, at the City Hotel. He offered no defence and the case was clearly proven against him. Mr. Dennistoun, who appeared for him, asked that he be allowed to go on suspended sentence, but the magistrate remanded him till Friday for sentence.

The charge of assault laid by A. Allison against Maurice Dineen and Oliver Emlaw was then investigated and occupied nearly four hours. Mr. Allison was the first witness. He described the quarrel on the Auburn road foot-bridge on Thursday last and claimed that he acted in self defence in resisting an attack by Dineen. Mr. T. Cavanagh and a boy named Lane, who were spectators, also gave evidence. It was clearly shown that Emlaw attacked Mr. Allison while the latter was wrestling with Dineen and struck and choked him without cause. The case against Dineen could not be proven. Emlaw was fined $20 and costs while Dineen was dismissed. Mr. R. M. Dennistoun appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. D. O'Connell for the defendants.

TOO MUCH GRAC

A Peterborough Man of Notorious Leaning Loses Part of His Wearing Apparel

Lindsay Warder.—A Peterborough man of bibulous leanings took in the 12th of July demonstration here and celebrated the day not too riotously, but too well. Early in the afternoon he was overcome by that tired feeling and sought repose in a secluded street in the south ward where the grass was long and the houses few and far between. When he awoke shortly before his train went he thought he had "one sure, for he found himself minus his carefully creased trousers and good hat. Looking around, however, he found a dilapidated pair of pants and a careworn hat near him. He arrayed himself in the garments and found his way to the back entrance amid the not too flattering cries of his fellow citizens. It appears from all accounts that an enterprising tramp, who should have been in the Hardy cabinet, effected the change in the Peterborough man's wardrobe. As long as he gets nothing worse than old clothes the latter will consider himself fortunate.

THAT HACKNEY PRIZE

Dr. R. Foster's "Warley" Hat Enlisted to Ford Prize

Editor Morning Times.—Dear Sir, Considerable discussion has arisen since the Spring Station Show over the Hackney prize. "Warley Toff," owned by B.E. Poole, V.S., town, was awarded first prize under protest. In June last the prize was paid over to Holderness I land a notice issued. Considerable time having elapsed the prize had been paid to the second horse. In the meantime the registered document has arrived relating to Warley Toff, which had been unavoidably delayed. How does Dr. Foster's entry stand? Surely the prize should be at once given over to its rightful owner. Warley Toff won on rightful merits the first point, individuality, and true Hackney characteristics, and now he disputes it clearly proven he should have his reward.

Yours truly, HORSEMAN.
Peterborough, July 23, 1898.

CITY LIGHTS AND SHADES

What has Transpired in Town and District During the Last Twenty-four Hours

At a meeting of the Cavan and Milbrook councils held on Thursday night it was decided to purchase a stone crusher and also to put a metal roof on the town hall.

The Toronto Observatory people announce the coming of a cool spell. "Oh, let it be soon" will be the prayer of every citizen compelled to pursue his usual daily avocation.

The Orillia license commissioners have reduced the number of licensed hotels to seven, about one to every 700 inhabitants. Geo. Sweetman will retire from business in consequence.

The "red" mill at Nassau has pretty well disappeared from its site and is being rapidly re-erected at Point St. Charles by Mr. A. McDonald, who thus replaces his mill destroyed by fire.

Lindsay Post.—A number of barbed wire fences have been prostrated by the excessive heat during the past few days. Yesterday Mr. Francis Carolan, of Ops, received a slight touch of sunstroke, but luckily the attack was a slight one and he is all right to-day.

A severe hail storm was experienced in North Monaghan and parts of Smith yesterday just before noon, and within two miles of town the hailstones came down nearly an inch in diameter. The storm lasted only a short time, but was very severe and did considerable damage.

Mrs. John L. Irwin was prostrated by the excessive heat of Saturday last. She was walking on George street and was suddenly seized by faintness and fell. She was taken to the Toronto Bank, where she recovered sufficiently to be taken home in a cab. Although still feeling the effects of the stroke she is recovering nicely.

The Argyle correspondent of the Cannington Gleaner writes. This village was shocked when the newscame of the sad deaths of Walter and Alexander, sons of Mr. Alex. Hume, of Cobocok, who were killed in the battle of Santiago on the first of July. They were well-known in this section, having had the mail from Lorneville to Cobocok some years ago. They held responsible positions in the State of Michigan, one as a conductor and the other as a brakeman.

A Reputable composed of Councilors W. H. White, Langford and J. M. White visited London on Saturday. Councillor W. H. White taking the place of Councillor Best, who was appointed on the deputiation but who was compelled to return to town from Hamilton with the rest of the council. The business of the deputiation was to inspect the stone crusher of the city of London, to ascertain whether one of the same style would be suitable for crushing granite for granolithic pavements. The deputiation examined the crushers of the Watrous Engine Co. on Friday and then passed on to London, where they found the crusher to be the best thing they have yet seen and much more suitable for the intended purpose than that in use in Hamilton. It was made by the Watrous Engine Co. of Brantford.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." Mrs. H. F. FARM, Degraaf Street.

Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills: easy to take, easy to operate. 25 cents.

The season's record.

Club	Won.	Lost.
Capital	4	1
National	2	2
Toronto	2	3
Cornwall	2	3

As the Midland club has defaulted to Peterborough the team was not compelled to go to that town and play on Friday. Peterborough is now at the head of the district, the clubs standing as follows.

Club	Won.	Lost.	Play.
Peterborough	3	1	2
Beaverton	2	1	3
Orillia	2	1	3

What is the matter with the Hastings team giving Peterborough a match? The Hastings here are very anxious to square that defeat they are alleged to have sustained some weeks ago at Hastings.

CRICKET.

The Toronto-Rosedale combination, which plays here next Saturday against the local club, is the team representing the united Toronto and Rosedale clubs, which union was brought about by reason of the purchase of the new Rosedale grounds and club house, amongst the finest on the continent. It is also probable that the Zingair team will play here before going to the States to play Philadelphia and Boston.

Shaving a Famed Head.

"I shaved Jesse James, the once noted outlaw, down in southern Kentucky a long time ago," said an old gray haired fellow on the train the other day, "when the man's life wasn't worth a penny. Jesse James was a little country place, down in the Red river country, one day in the latter part of December and asked me if I wouldn't shave him while he looked after his cold's revolver and watched the door. I was not a barber by trade, but those persuaders Jesse had induced me to try my hand with a new Wade & Butcher razor I took out of my showcase. As I shaved, the man of iron nerve and with a cocked pistol in each hand and held me in a few hurried words that a posse was pursuing him, bent on capturing him, dead or alive, on the charge of robbing a bank at Russellville, a crime, he averred, of which he was not guilty. He wanted his beard shaved off that he might fool his pursuers if they should happen to catch up with him. I finished the job of scraping. The much wanted individual thanked me, and mounting a horse, which had been hitched in the rear of my store, bade me good evening and rode away. I didn't know for certain who my visitor was, although I suspected it, until the next day, when I heard that a man in the neighborhood was telling that he had seen the elder Jesse James the afternoon before. I suppose that was the last shave Jesse James got in Kentucky, and I have never seen him after that day."—Louisville Post.

LOVE'S REINCARNATION.

Dear heart, did we meet long ago
And walk and talk together then?
I think that it must have been so.
If so, I wonder where or when.
Oh when you blush or smile for me,
Then your eyes drop before my gaze,
For an swift breath I seem to see
Some dim, sweet scene from other days.
A gleam of gold on a stray tress
Or hair on which the sun has shone,
Or a loving voice, a soft smile,
Or in your voice some minor tone
Brings back to me like the sweet chiming
Of silver bells on summer air
The memory of a bygone life
Of love and loving other years.
I know that I have loved you, dear,
Ever since I first began to be.
My heart has missed you many a year
When, at the last, you came to me,
And then I knew that I had seen
The one I sought, and by your side
I stay, with nothing to regret,
Because my soul is satisfied.

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvelous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a chess musical instrument. EDMUND BURKE.

An Able and Versatile Statesman Who Never Attained High Office.

Though Burke never attained high office his abilities were so versatile as to qualify him for any post which a cabinet minister could fill. His practical wisdom was as conspicuous as his power of generalization. No one had a clearer comprehension of a firmer grasp of great principles of universal application; at the same time his policy in every department of English politics rested on a wide and solid basis of information and experience. He was steeped in the history of the past, yet penetrated through and through with the reality of the present and ever and always mindful of that future in which the speculations and measures of the day were to be tested and finally approved or condemned. His prodigious activity in public affairs sprang not from an intellectual source alone, nor from his imperial patriotism. It was constantly fed from an inexhaustible store of moral energy. He was animated by a detestation of all forms of oppression, whether by kings or governors, parliaments or peoples, which was in him a consuming passion, from which his noble nature could only obtain relief by denunciation of the oppressor and the destruction of his power.

I cannot help thinking that Burke must have been stimulated, too, and sustained by delight in his studies and his work. It is impossible, without counting this as an additional incentive, to understand the amazing industry which he devoted to the elucidation of all the great questions dealt with in his speeches and writings. How his method reproves the habit, too common in our day, as in other days, of debating subjects affecting the fate of millions of our fellow creatures as if they could be disposed of by echoing the chatter of ignorance, or prejudice, or vanity, or self-interest! When we read Burke's speech on Fox's East India Bill, we say, "What a great proconcul he would have made!" When we read his speech on conciliation with America we feel that the greatest of colonial ministers was lost in him; and when we read his speech on economical reform we exclaim, "Here is an ideal chancellor of the exchequer!"—J. O'Connor Power in North American Review.

Luxurious Traveling.

The height of luxurious traveling has been reached by the czar and czarinas. The empress' private car is upholstered in pale blue satin. The electric lamps are all in the form of lilies, and it contains writing and tea tables made of mother of pearl. The nursery is the next apartment, and is as comfortable and handsome as the same rooms in any of the czar's palaces. There are dining rooms and drawing rooms and several sleeping apartments. In fact, this train is a miniature palace. The wheels are covered with India rubber tires.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Nothing of the kind in this world can be more impressive than the way in which an audience of 6,000 French radicals received that wonderful air (the "Marcellaise"), says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic. I observed that the chorus of young men who led the singing never once looked at the notes, and few even had any, so familiar was it to all. There was a perfect hush in that vast audience while the softer parts were sung, and no one joined even in the chorus at first, for everybody was listening. The instant, however, that the strain closed, the applause broke like a tropical storm, and the clapping of hands was like the taking flight of a thousand doves all over the vast arena.

Behind those twinkling hands the light dresses of the ladies and the blue blouses of workmen seemed themselves to shimmer in the air. There was no coarse noise of pounding on the floor or drumming on the seats, but there was a vast multitude demanding a repetition. The moment the first verse was sung through for the second time several thousand voices joined in the chorus. Then the applause was redoubled, as if they had gathered new sympathy from one another, after which there was still one more great applauding gust, and then an absolute quiet.

Nothing Remarkable.

Smith—Hear about the fire over on the West Side this morning? Nine persons nearly escaped with their lives. Remarkable, wasn't it?

Brown—I fail to see anything very remarkable about it.

Smith—Why not?

Brown—Well, suppose they had escaped without their lives, then it would have been truly remarkable.—Chicago News.

We Had a Record.

A person who was bargaining for a male in southwest Georgia asked the youth who owned the mule:

"Is he a good, lively creature?"

"I reckon he air," replied the young man. "He kicked dead through a circus tent, broke Uncle Bill's leg in two places and threw a preacher three times on a Sunday mornin'!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A plebeian convention was held in Millbrook on Thursday, Dr. Kade, of Millbrook, occupied the chair, and important business was discussed. The East Durham Association elected the following officers for the plebeian work in that district: Fred Outram, president; Thos. Wickert, secretary; and Joseph Potts, treasurer. An appeal against the mass meeting was held in the evening, with Rev. C. Ockley in the chair.

DROWNING ACCIDENT.
A former resident of Peterborough drowned in the water.

A man named Cronk, who is said to have formerly resided in Peterborough, and who was employed in John Carver's saw mill, Lindsay, was drowned near the mill Sunday night. The weather was unusually hot, and Cronk and his brother-in-law, John Holden, went in for a bath, just below the mill. Cronk was unable to swim, and although he was aware that he was subject to cramps when in the water, he yet ventured in. He had only been in the water a few minutes when Holden, who is also an indifferent swimmer, heard calls for help, which he was unable to respond to. Patrick Mulcahy, captain of the steamer Beaver, hearing the cries, quickly came to the rescue, and brought Cronk to the surface. Dr. J. McAlpine was summoned, and spent over an hour trying to resuscitate Cronk, who had been in the water but a short time, but without success. The drowned man's wife died quite recently, and a daughter seven years old is left to mourn her double loss.

CRUSHED GRANULITHIO

A Carload to be Purchased in Order to Enable the Pavement Contractors to Commence Work at Once.

The Street and Bridge Committee of the town council met last night in the clerk's office. There were present: Mayor Davis and Messrs. Dawson (chairman), Best, Hamilton, J. M. White, W. H. White and Coffey.

After the object of the meeting had been explained by the Mayor, it was moved by Councilor Dawson, seconded by Councilor Hamilton, that a carload of crushed granite be purchased in order to enable the pavement contractors to commence work at once.—Carried.

It was decided, after some discussion to modify the clause in the pavement contract relating to possible defects which might not be attributable to the contractors but for which, under the present conditions, they might be held responsible. Town Solicitor Edwards will be instructed to make the necessary changes.

A communication from Warden Pearce re the Pigeon Creek bridge, requesting a town delegate to meet on Aug. 2nd the Warden of Peterborough and Victoria counties to consider the making of certain repairs to that bridge.

A motion Councilor Hamilton was moved to look after the interests of the town in this connection. A petition from Wm. Sproule and others asking for a new sidewalk on the north side of a highway between George and Bisham streets was next considered.

A motion of Town Engineer Bolcher was introduced to amend the specifications for this work. Mr. MacFarlane was asked in reference to the proposed modification of the specifications, and Hamilton seconded the motion.

CITY LIGHTS AND SHADES

What has Transpired in Town and What?—The following are the facts.

—The chess board meets today. —The Ottawa Free Press has been referred to a student paper. —A lot of one hundred and twenty-five girls from England have arrived at the Barrington Hotel.

—A joint installation of the officers of Hiasanthi and Mount Lebanon Encampments L.A.O.F. will be held this evening.

—Men are engaged erecting a large portable saw mill on the shore of Little Lake, a short distance west of the entrance to the canal. The mill is owned by Mr. Caldwell, of Springfield, who is under contract with the Rathbun Company to cut ties for the canal and other timber that is coming down the river in the future. The mill will probably get work enough to keep it running until cold weather. The Rathbun Company will ship their stuff per C.P.R. as this line passes close to the spot where the mill is erected.

—Relative in town yesterday received the sad news of the death of George H. Ford, and formerly of Peterborough. The deceased was a young man and was a son of the late John Drennan, who was well known as a lumberman in this district. The deceased was a grocer and general merchant in Campbellford, and had formerly been in the heavy business there. It was some time he was employed as a clerk in the grocery store of the late Mr. Charles Butler on Hunter street. He was married about a year ago and leaves a wife and one child to mourn his sudden and sad death. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Chas. Butler and a nephew of Mrs. John McConner of town. The accident occurred while bathing, but particulars are not to hand. Mr. Charles Butler left today to attend the obsequies at Campbellford.

—On Sunday afternoon about four o'clock the barn and stables on the farm of Mr. David Connor, who lives on the boundary road between Otton and Doon, about five miles from town, were totally consumed by fire. It is not known how the blaze originated but it had gained considerable headway before it was discovered, and as everything was very dry owing to the continual drought, the house was so much as to be a great loss. The fire did their best to arrest it, but had all they could do to save the house, which caught fire several times. Besides the barn and stables about ten tons of hay, a number of calves, a cow and a lot of farm tools and implements were destroyed. A valuable horse was burned to death and another severely injured. Mr. Connor's loss will be heavy. He had no insurance on the premises whatever.

—Monday afternoon a Mr. James Dougherty, local agent for the Norton reaper was driving out his Warraw Road he stopped to water his horse at a pump near McConner's corner. Two little girls who were there waiting that the pump was very hot, which fact troubled them greatly, as their father's grain was on fire and water seemed impossible to obtain. Mr. Dougherty accompanied them to the farm of Mr. Michael McConner, where a fine field of oats was being reaped. About an acre and a half of the crop was destroyed before the progress of the flames could be checked. The fire started in the simplest way imaginable. Mr. McConner was straining some time after dinner in his reaper and in handling over at the work he allowed the reaper to fall on the ground from his side. On returning to the barn for his horse he noticed a small column of smoke rising from the field, which developed into a bright blaze before he could begin his fight against it. By the time he reached the field the reaper was totally destroyed, but through the assistance of his neighbors the fire was kept from consuming the entire standing crop.

A MIDNIGHT MYSTERY

And a Conversation which Passed Between a Couple of the Witches of the Law.

Editor Morning Times—

Dear Sir—The following letter appeared in the columns of a contemporary yesterday evening. To the Editor of the Examiner: Sir—Seeing that you are deeply interested in the barlock crop this year, the writer thought that you would be perhaps interested in the knowledge that the little shoover yesterday did not sufficiently wet the soil to save the specimen crop on the vacant lot next to Mr. Hargrave's on Brock street. Unless the town proceeds at once to carefully sprinkle the lot, the crop, etc., will not be able to find shelter much longer, now will the amount of seed be quartered as phenomenal as their year.—Citizen.

In this connection I might say that a little incident happened last night which will fully explain "Citizen's" allusion. While passing the vacant lot in question attention was attracted by a light passing to and fro among the barlocks above mentioned. It was well on in the "wee sma' hours" and I could not imagine any reason for such a strange proceeding. I was so busy to think I was suffering from an optical illusion, when suddenly I heard a voice which seemed to be familiar to my ear. On drawing a little closer I heard the voice again and judging by its melodious accents I was willing to believe "Wee sma' hours" it was Mr. McGinnis. Having inherited more than a just portion of curiosity from Mother Dearest I could not refrain from listening. I will give the Times the conversation I overheard. It was as follows: "See that barlock? It's a no' haw' nut, are they Chief?" "No man, they are chestnuts. I saw some of them when I was out west after Marshall." "The barlocks are chestnuts for a while the soft voice was heard again to say: "See Chief, the town is literally full of them. This must be a great place for chestnuts!"

What the gentleman addressed as Chief remarked in this way was heard as a street song—the first one in half a century. I believe passed at that moment.

The parties continued walking slowly about until they were suddenly brought up with a start by the sight of a huge looking box.

Quicker than I can write the soft voice was heard: "Sure there has been a barlock. Dominion Bank robbery the country's have planted all the corn here. Will I run to Gordon and see if any of the bunks have been tampered with?"

But apparently the other did not relish the idea of being alone in the midst of such a wilderness of chestnuts. I continued in keeping McGinnis with him.

On waiting their companions the two started for the street, and as they passed the writer who crunched closer to the fence as not to be discovered, he heard the soft voice say: "Well, Chief, we won't go to the reaper and the nights is gone for nothin'."

"Well, Charlie," was heard in a twinkling voice: "There was no harm done in trying it. You remember there was three children lost in the streets some time ago—before the fire—and they were found under the tree in front of the corner house?"

From this it would appear that the worthy pair were trying to find the man who was advertised as being lost last week.

It is also clear in another mystery, as we can now understand why so many barlocks have been allowed to grow in town. The authorities who are in town to look after these matters have been laboring under the delusion that barlocks were chestnuts.

Thanking you for your valuable advice, I am,

Yours truly,
ANTI-BURIOCK.

July 26th 1898
Mrs. W. W. Ford, Buriock.
Yesterday there passed away at the family residence, "Verulam House," Durham, one of Peterborough's oldest and most respected residents, in the person of Mrs. Margaret B. Lundy, relict of the late Wm. Lundy, Esq.

The deceased lady was eighty-six years of age, although active during late years, she was overtaken about Christmas time with an illness caused by malaria and cold. This did not develop any serious consequences until a few days ago when it became apparent that the system which had stood so many years was beginning to give way under the weight of years. The end came peacefully yesterday morning.

The late Margaret Brown was born in the county Cavan, Ireland, in 1812, and came to Canada with her parents in 1830, settling with them in Port Hope. After the family removed to Manvers, where in 1834 Miss Brown was wedded to the late Wm. Lundy, with whom she came to Peterborough to reside. Since that time she has continued to reside here, being widely known as a lady of Christian qualities and pleasant manner. She was, therefore, much esteemed by a very extended circle of friends. A large family was born to the union, eight of the children, four sons and four daughters, still living. The daughters are Mrs. Robinson, of Toronto, Mrs. Hewson, of Hamilton, Mrs. Baldwin, Toronto, and Miss Lundy, who resided at home. The sons are Messrs. J. J. Robt. B. Wm. R. and Douglas. In religion the deceased lady was a staunch Presbyterian, being a member of the St. Andrew's church for many years.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

HORSE PISTOL AND SHOT GUN

Were the weapons a Health Street Man Used to Threaten His Family with Last Night.

There was the liveliest kind of a row on Smith street—near the bridge—last night.

Joe Dignault, an old resident in the vicinity, went out on a spree yesterday morning and at night returned with more than an ordinary amount of something displaced him right on the "go in" and he forthwith proceeded to demolish everything in sight.

When he had accomplished this self-imposed task he evidently thought, if we may judge by his actions, that it was high time his entire family had reared in their cheeks. He secured a horse-pistol, of large dimensions and a double-bar and started in to make short work of the inmates of the house.

The police were summoned. P. O. McGinty and Stewart were sent on the scene and succeeded in disarming Dignault and conveying him to the police station, where he is now depositing off the effects of his drinking.

He will explain to the P. M. this morning how it all happened.

AN INDIAN CRADLE SONG.

Bring thee low in thy cradle soft,
Deep in the dusky wood!
Bring thee low and swing aloft—
Sleep as a poplar should.
Perch on yon little birchen nest
Quiet will come and peace and rest,
If the little poplar is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold,
And the owl hoots in the tree,
And the big moon shines on the little child
As it slumbers peacefully.
So swing thee high in thy little nest
And swing thee low and take the rest
That the night wind brings to thee!

Further lies on the fragrant ground,
Dreaming of heart and sight,
And the pine leaves rustle with mountain sound.
All through the solemn night,
But the little poplar in his birchen nest
Is swinging low as he takes his rest
Till the sun brings the morning light.

BY CHARLES R. LEWIS.

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the brig sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I swung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past us. I may have been overcareless or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself aboard. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I knew by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point; next, she had been hoisted about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her deck, but masts and yards and boats and booms had gone clear off her as they fell. She had settled down under her swivel holes were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper. As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Breton. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a forecabin ship instead of having a deckhouse for the men. The cabin or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the forecabin were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuits in tins. I wanted water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went to sea and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As near as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 3,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was soon before I began an examination of the logbook to see how I should fare for provisions. I found four, wine, table water, preserves, boxes of biscuits, shoe beam, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storehouse, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the crew. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the forecabin, I found boots, clothing, sweaters and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boats. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had scarcely glanced around the horizon and given no thought to rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.

When morning came again I made a more thorough investigation of the cabin. In rear of the captain's stateroom I chanced upon a closet which had escaped me the day before, and here I made a great find. There was about $1,000 in French gold and notes, $1,800 in English goldpieces and exactly $7,000 in goldpieces just struck off at the Australian mint. The money was in two tin boxes, but whether it belonged to the ship, her captain or to other people I could not determine. It was a big fortune to a poor sailor, and I remember that I acted very foolishly over the find. I counted it over and over again, and when I at last realized that I was rich I rushed on deck with a wild hope of seeing a mail close at hand. But for the money I believe that the long days and nights which followed would have been rather contentful for me, isolated as the situation was. I had plenty to eat and drink, there was nothing to break my sleep, the wreck might drive where she would, but there was no danger of her going down. The discovery of the money was followed by a hope of rescue, and this again by worry and anxiety. I wanted to go ashore to enjoy my wealth. I feared that when rescue did come I should be robbed. I conjured up a thousand senseless fears, and the upshot was anything but beneficial. I have spoken of the general situation in a careless way. As a matter of fact, being a navigator, I took observations regularly when the weather permitted and picked off the drift of the wreck on the chart. On the average the weather was fine, but there were days and nights when gale and sea tumbled the waterlogged craft about until only a sailor could have lived through it. Instead of lifting her the waves ran over her, and at such times the decks were two feet under water and the cabin was flooded. The cargo was afloat with the water in the hold, and as the wreck rolled and pitched the timbers rubbed together and produced noises which would have frightened landmen into fits.

I kept an accurate reckoning, and I had been on the wreck just 49 days when I caught sight of my first sail. No doubt ships had passed and repassed me by day and night, but I could not see a signal by day and from the first I slept all through the night. This sail was discovered early one morning, coming up from the south, and her course was such that she must see me. I had put the money into bags and the bags into bundles of clothing in view of a rescue, and therefore had nothing to do but wait. The stranger, which proved to be an English merchantman bound for India, but considerably off her course, was within four miles of me and had sent a signal to gladden my heart when a big whale suddenly broke water close to the wreck. He was followed half a minute later by a second, which attacked him with great fury. The monsters put up a terrific battle, heaving and biting each other and kicking up a sea like a pile of wind. They at first drew away from me, but after a few minutes made a circle which brought them back. What I had feared from the first came to pass after a quarter of an hour. Half blinded by pain and fury, or feeling itself overmatched and desirous of getting away, one of the whales suddenly whirled about and came for the wreck head on. He was fully 80 feet long, and he came like a moving mountain. I made sure of my hold as I saw him coming, but he struck the wreck on her port side with such force that I was thrown across the deck and into the sea beyond. I heard the crash of planks and timbers, was tossed about by the waves, rubbed against the whale as he sounded and reached the surface to find the wreck a ball no longer. It was simply a heap of floating debris. The strange ship drew nearer, lowered a boat, and I was picked up as I clung to a plank. The money was gone, all else but the timbers which composed the cargo had disappeared, and my adventure, surprising as it had begun, had ended in a manner strange enough to satisfy even the most imaginative novelist. I was carried to India by the rescuing ship, and I know that the French consul at Calcutta sent inquiries on foot regarding the fate of the crew of the Marie. What they amounted to I never learned, but have always felt satisfied that all perished when their craft was dismasted. But for the sight between the whales I believe the brig could have been pumped out and sailed into port, but fortune is a jade who robs Jack Tar far oftener than she smiles upon him.

Jinks—What! You don't mean to say you are engaged to the beautiful Miss de Pink?

Blanks—Yes, I do. Got engaged to her last night. This afternoon I am to bring her into town. She wants to go to an optician's, I believe. New pair of glasses or something. She is nearsighted, you know.

Jinks—I say, old fellow, just slip round to that optician's and bribe him not to give her any better glasses than she has.—London Tit-Bits.

REPLY EXPECTED TO-DAY

To Spain's Appeal to U. S. for Peace

TERMS TO SUIT THE WORLD

Not Much Excitement at the White House, Washington

Ministers Move Ahead as Though They Had Already Agreed upon the Terms to be Offered Spain

(Special to the Times.)

Washington, July 28.—Secretary of State Day was closeted with President McKinley for less than a half hour this afternoon over the response to Spain's note suing for peace. When he left the White House Mr. Day announced that the reply of this Government would be given to Spain Friday or Saturday. Meantime its tenor so far as the Administration is able to do so is to be closely guarded from the public. The President up to a late hour this afternoon had another consultation with any members of the Cabinet on the response to the communication to Spain. It has been noticeable that since the conference with members of the Cabinet following Madrid, July 28, 4.30 p. m.—At the close of the Cabinet council to-day the following semi-official note was issued: "The French Ambassador at Washington during the afternoon of the 26th presented on behalf of the Spanish Government a message to President McKinley with the view of bringing the war to an end and making known the conditions of peace. The Government has received information that the message has been handed to President McKinley, who replied that he would consult with his council of ministers, and requested Mr. Cambon to come to the White House again to confer with him."

The Spanish officials declare that the published extracts from the note are in correct.

PANDO HAS ESCAPED.

Santiago July 28.—There is every reason to believe that General Pando, with the troops which were under his command in the province of Santiago de Cuba, has been successful in escaping and reaching Havana with the whole of his troops.

Along the northern coast of Cuba, stretching from Nuevitas in the district of Puerto Principe, to Cardenas in that of Matanzas is a long system of keys or reefs. These are four miles or more from the shore, and the water within them is so shallow that only boats of light draught can use it. These keys therefore present a bulwark against the vessels of the squadron which seized the harbor of Nipe and destroyed the cruiser Jorge Juan.

The Spaniards, however, have a large number of shallow draught vessels within the keys which carry on a lively trade along the coast, and the capture of provisions to Havana.

When General Pando first came to the province of Santiago he used a number of these boats as transports, and it is stated that he has been successful in again reaching them and re-embarking his men. General Cardenas, when he went to Havana by rail, there is no way of intercepting him, as the Americans have no light boats suitable for the purpose.

Admiral Sampson has called the attention of the War Department to the urgent need for river boats to be sent him on his way to Cardenas, and commerce with Havana stopped.

INTERVIEW WITH ALMODOVAR.

New York, July 28.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: "Spain's Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Duke of Almodovar, was asked to-day what the prospect is for peace. The Duke answered: 'It is for the United States to propose terms, and it depends on what the proposals are whether negotiations will ensue. As yet no definite proposals have been advanced by President McKinley.'"

"Unless unforeseen circumstances oblige the present Cabinet to resign, it will remain in office until the events of the war enable it to make overtures for peace direct to President McKinley through the French and American envoys at Washington. If we fail to secure acceptable conditions we shall retire. Then the Queen will probably form a military Cabinet and seek the support of the powers at any cost."

When asked if negotiations were not already afoot in Washington, the Foreign Minister said: "The French Ambassador is fully authorized to make overtures for direct negotiations and has already done so."

The Duke declined to say what terms the Regenta Ministry would consider. Spain is fast getting hard pushed for ways and means. The financial papers say that if the war lasts until the end of August a forced paper currency will have to be decreed.

The Government has exhausted all the supplies available under the authorizations voted by the Cortes and will have to issue treasury bills at a higher rate of interest. Foreign loans, and amortize the debt. Foreign domestic loans are out of the question.

The expenditure continues at the rate of $25,000,000 a month.

DEATH BEFORE DISHONOR

Bishop Fruto Issues a Strong Appeal to Havana Citizens

EIGHT DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

Unless Suitable Conditions are Imposed Spain Will Retire

Deploable Position of Spaniards at Guantanamo—Too Weak to Stand While Hostile Guard

Havana, July 28.—The Bishop of Havana, Monsignor Manuel Santander y Frutos has published a pastoral, that has been read in all the churches, in which he says that there are times when war is justifiable. The pastoral proceeds: "The war which Spain is sustaining against the United States is a just war. Spain is doing nothing but defending her rights over this possession. When the United States provoked a war to take away Spanish property, what should a brave, proud, and righteous people do? Should they give away their rights to a stronger or more populous claimant? Conscience arises against such injustice, and the appeal is to the justice of God."

"It is sweet to die for one's country and in behalf of God's justice. Life without honor is a thousand times worse than death. It is impossible to ask the heroic Spanish army to lay down its arms without a struggle. The Catholic religion does not encourage its children to such baseness as that. Otherwise nations would be out of the playthings of those who do not believe in God. The right to repel force by force is not merely permitted; it is obligatory right. In this case it is all the more because the United States declared the war. It is not a shame to surrender, and they did not give up their rights. They fought to the death."

"Neither the army nor the people is the authority to settle the issues in civil war. When the word goes forth for resistance to invasion, all are obliged to maintain or without finding fault."

The Sunday around the whole defense line around Havana, there was a hymn of defense movement, in which the regular infantry and volunteer troops all under command of General Armas participated. Many foreign officers were present. They expressed themselves as highly pleased at the excellent spirit of the men and the rapidity and smoothness of the exercises and evolutions.

VOLUNTEERS AER ACTIVE

Madrid, July 28.—An official despatch from San Juan de Porto Rico makes the statement that 700 volunteers have been organized in an American force, which was ordered to the island near Porto Rico, to treat to the positions they previously occupied.

TOO WEAK TO STAND.

Santiago de Cuba, July 28.—Lieut. Col. Regill, who after taking confirmation of the instructions to surrender from General Toral to Gen. Pareja, military governor of Guantanamo, returned here to-day, and said an isolated Press correspondent that the first intimation that Guantanamo was the surrender of Santiago and the terms thereof was on July 23, when Rear Admiral Sampson sent a letter to Gen. Pareja asking what number of men should be sent to his quarters, as they had been surrounded on the 17th. Gen. Pareja, being ignorant of the surrender, refused to accept the terms, and the soldiers were obliged to fight, being too weak to stand. There are 2,000 sick in Guantanamo suffering from diseases increased by hunger.

The French cruiser Rigaumont de Genouilly was refused permission by Admiral Sampson to land grain and provisions for the relief of the French colony at Guantanamo. All hope was abandoned and the sufferers were awaiting death from starvation. The conditions at Guantanamo, Col. Regill says, were worse than those at Cardenas. The Spanish troops will remain in Guantanamo until transported.

CONTRARY TO USAGE.

Berlin, July 28.—The National Gazette says: "Although American habits to obtain a footing in Porto Rico is rather contrary to strict canons of military usage, it is perhaps justified by the assumption that its conquest will place America in a better position to dictate terms of peace."

As Spain is unable to pay indemnity, America has a right to demand an enforced compensation.

HUSTLING HAVELOCK

Early in the history of Havelock the A.O.U.W. which then, as now, was very strong, commenced and continued to hold annual picnics. They were a success from the start. In 1891 the I.O.O.F., which had organized the year before, determined to follow suite; and, by common consent, and following that fraternal principle which is the rule of both, they came together and organized a union picnic. A permanent committee was appointed, consisting of six from each Association, and this committee remains unchanged to-day, except for removals. The committee elected Alex. McAuley Chairman, Thomas Millan, Secretary, and J. Carey, Treasurer. Later John Con became secretary, owing to Mr. Millan's removal from Havelock. The other two officers remain to-day the same.

Three years ago the success of the picnic being their justification, the committee issued for at least of years the Havelock picnic grounds, and fitted them up at an expense of some eight hundred dollars, levelling the grounds, building a race track, etc., etc. They have now an ideal picnic ground.

A DELIGHTFUL TRIP

Gore's Landing was invaded yesterday by a flourishing crowd.

Mr. Andrew McNeil treated a number of his friends and a corps of guard of the Fire Brigade to a magnificent treat down the river to Gore's Landing yesterday.

The sail was immensely enjoyed by Mr. McNeil's guests and a delightful day was spent on the water. Over fifty invited guests were present and the North Star management made things so pleasant that it may truly be said that they have made a record for the company.

The boat didn't "do a thing." They furnished most ad libitum. Gore's Landing is a delightful spot. Capt. Thos. Harris has erected a new hotel at Gore's Landing. Capt. Harris is a mariner and owner of the steamer Beaver, a long, low fast craft that will come day by carried by paddle boat destroyer or for deep-sea boat service. Captain Harris ventures into a new field and to make a venture a success has gone the right way about it. Selecting a capital site overlooking the harbor and lake he has built a fine brick structure three stories high. Ample verandas surround the building on three sides, and by the same token a veranah for each story. The bed rooms are large, airy and beautifully finished, and number from 1 to 35. There is a magnificent dining room, ample reading room, large office, airy halls, and the essential to a well ordered hotel—the kitchen, pantries, cellars, etc., are all large and well equipped. Everything in the house is brand new—including the cook. Furniture, linen, table service, etc., all speak of a man and just out of the desert has a complete electric light plant has been installed and electric call bells placed in each room. The hotel was opened last Tuesday and those who were fortunate enough to be there came away with very favorable impressions of the hotel, its management and surroundings. It is hoped that Capt. Harris will find a venture a remunerative one and there is every probability as soon as the hotel is thoroughly well known that it will secure a steady custom of summer visitors and tourists.

The thanks of the entire party are due Mr. McNeil for the magnificent treat accorded "the boys."

The party returned about 8 p.m., and expressed themselves as highly delighted with their outing.

A PETERBORO' MAN INJURED

On the Trent Valley Canal Works at Hastings—Other Canal News

The Hastings Star says: Mr. Finny, of Peterborough, employee on the Trent Valley Canal, met with an accident Wednesday afternoon, which will lay him up for a few days. It was almost a miracle that his leg was not cut off, however, he escaped with a bruised shin and a sprained ankle.

On Wednesday, our town was visited by several gentlemen from Ottawa, along with Chief Engineer Rogers of Peterborough, on an inspection of the Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Phillips, Superintendent Engineering, and Mr. L. K. Jones, Secretary of the department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, with others.

There are always some political chronic grumblers. In nothing is it more exemplified than in the building of the Trent Valley Canal. In the time of the late Tory regime, when surveys were being made and deputations visiting Ottawa, the Grits were doing the same identical thing. The fact is that the late government were preparing the plans and it is the privilege of the present to carry it out to a successful issue. Like all other works for the advancement of the country, must be a bill of expense until completed, before any profitable revenue can come therefrom.

Trent Valley Canal, when completed, will soon convince the most sceptical of its utility.

A PETERBORO LADY DROWNED

At Hamilton's Point, Toronto, by the Towing of a Canoe

Yesterday's Toronto Globe contains the following: The boy claimed another victim last night, and had it not been for the heroic action of a young man named Wilkes Steward, who pluckily saved the rescue, there would have been a double fatality.

The young lady who lost her life was May Robertson, about twenty years of age, and her sister, who was saved, was Marian Robertson, who is about twenty-five years of age. Both are daughters of Mr. John McAlister Robertson, a carpenter, of Peterborough.

At 8.20 p.m., just as darkness was drawing down, the steamer Primrose left the city for Hamilton's Point, where it arrived at 8.30 (th) two young ladies, who had hired a canoe at John Haman's booth, were paddling about, enjoying the cool breezes on the water. As the steamer approached they waited and allowed her to pass some distance in front of them, and then, as she was drawing into her slip, they started to paddle across her bow.

May Robertson was in the stern and it is presumed that she was not very expert in the management of a canoe. The craft was so in the trough of the waves, and in a trice upset. Their cries immediately attracted attention, and Mr. Wilkes Steward, who was standing on the upper deck of the Primrose, hastened downstairs and discharging his duty leaped over the railing and swam to their aid.

At 75 yards separated him from the struggling girls, and before he could reach them May had already gone down. He succeeded in reaching Marian Robertson, however, and raised her by the back of the neck. The young lady made frantic efforts to save herself by clutching her rescuer, and greatly endangered his life. Mr. Steward, however, soon gained complete control of her, and swimming to the upturned canoe raised her and placed her across the keel. In this perilous position he remained for some minutes, until a rowboat reached the scene and brought them safely ashore.

At the time of the accident a rowboat with a lady and gentleman in it was quite near the scene, and it is stated by eye witnesses that they passed within a boat length of the two young ladies but instead of offering assistance they turned quickly around and rowed off toward the city.

The ferry company's employees reached the scene in rowboats shortly after the upset, and they, together with members of the Toronto Swimming Club sought for the body for fully 40 minutes. Grappling iron and pike poles were used to no avail, until at last the summer looted the body and after a one effort brought it to the surface. Constable Johnston and Inspector Stephen, who were present, took charge of the body, and together with Dr. O'Reilly, endeavored by means of artificial respiration to reanimate the body. For over an hour they worked, but it was of no avail; the poor girl had been under water 40 minutes and the last spark of life was gone. The body was afterwards removed to B. D. Humphreys' undertaking establishment, and Coroner Johnston was notified of the event. The father was telegraphed to last night, and made aware of the sad occurrence.

The two young ladies were both employed as housemaids upon the island. May was working at the residence of Mrs. Rutten, who lives on the lake shore, and her sister, who is employed by Mrs. Obermer, who keeps a boarding house on the island.

Mr. Wilkes Steward, who effected the rescue of the elder girl, is an actor who has frequently appeared at the Blue Theatre. He was brought up in Toronto and is passing a few days visiting his friends here.

Mrs. Jane Wilson, who lives at 131 John street, saw the accident, and when the body was brought in she fainted. She was insensible for a long time, and it seemed as though her fatalistic would be ended. She was removed to St. Michael's Hospital. At the time of her arrival at the Young street wharf her pulse was quite imperceptible. On reaching the hospital, however, she revived, and at a late hour last night was resting quietly.

MR. F. BARTLETT

Appointed Inspector of the Permanent Pavement Works

The Committee on Appointments met last night in the clerk's office. Present: Messrs. Williams, J. M. White, Dawson, Langford, Best and Hamilton.

Mr. Langford moved, seconded by Mr. Dawson, that Mr. F. Bartlett be appointed inspector of the construction of the granolithic sidewalks at $2.50 per day.

Mr. Best moved in amendment that a thoroughly practical man be appointed as inspector.

The motion carried and the committee adj. adj. adj.

Farmers are wishing for rain and find it very difficult saving some of their harvest.

Someone will be asked by the Managers of this place to grant civic holiday about September 1st for an excursion.

There is going to be a big effort made to have a boat on our waters next season. A side-wheeler could run all seasons and be kept busy toying and with excursions to and from this point. There is also a capital opening for a new 10th class passenger steamer on the side formerly and successfully operated by John Kinaid, now of Peterborough.

Jas. A. Tolly, manager for Gough, Peterborough is spending a few days here fishing in the pond adjoining the old high school. He is a successful angler as a counter-broker, having made about thirteen years ago making himself so useful and appreciative to his employers that business flies have almost become permanent.

Flourish Spelman, proprietor of the Commercial House, is considering the twinning of a concert and variety troupe here according to the request of his many summer guests and visitors—seeing our band is defunct.

Our village school boys are amongst the cleverest swimmers in the Dominion and our worthy citizen, Ed. Williams, sees that they are all taught how to swim.

—The Oddfellows annual excursion will be held this year to Rochester on civic holiday, August 1st.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Lunly took place yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery. It was largely attended.

—A large number of citizens are awaiting the heated term in camp down the river. Councilor Robertson and his family have been spending some time in camp near Crawford's Grove.

—The remains of the unfortunate telephone lineman, Mr. J. D. Kelly, who met such a sudden and sad death by coming in contact with the live wire on Charlotte street Wednesday have been taken to Kingston for interment.

—During the thunderstorm Saturday evening, the dwelling house of Mr. D. W. Anderson at Hastings was struck and damaged. A hole was made in the roof, and the iron railing at the front on the roof twisted out of shape. The town hall was also damaged.

—The town engineer yesterday morning received from Hamilton five samples of crushed granite, weighing three hundred and fifty pounds in all. The material was sent down by the Sawyer-Massey Co. as samples of the work done by their stone crusher. The samples were of Canadian granite crushed in five different sizes, from a fine sand to a coarse macadam that would be splendid for road making. A couple of the finer samples were such as are used for granolithic pavements. The machine appears to be able to crush as fine as was needed for any class of work.

The red granite found so plentifully in this vicinity is harder and better adapted for granolithic than the ordinary Canadian granite.

A MIDNIGHT PROWL

P. C. Stewart Called to the West End at One o'clock This Morning

P. C. Stewart was called to the west end this morning at 1 o'clock to look up a tramp who was making too free with premises other than his own.

The family in question were awakened about 12.30 by a man persistently knocking about and failing to locate the midnight visitor telephoned for the police.

P. C. Stewart was quickly on the scene but after a careful search was unable to place the individual who had alarmed the household.

THE VERNAL EQUINOX

The biggest moon, a gleaming silver orb, Circles through deep cordons of variable clouds;
Swift winds unleashed, like hounds in hunt, Scourge the lone woods and rough without surrounds;
The forested surge, sighing in vain for peace,
Shudders along the bar and, morning lost, Cretched by the marling road, assumes terror coursed.

Birds, sea and air have drunk to the loss
That potent draft, food nature's offering,
In which she pledges her retreating guest,
The wild, mad March, full winter's disowned king.

Who storms the hills and seeks in balmy quest
The little queen regnant of awakening spring, Whose feet are staid in some dim woodland rust.

"HOGAN" PAY DAYS.

An Expression of Street Car Men in Brooklyn and What It Means.

Thirty years ago Mike Hogan, a motor man on the Third Avenue (Brooklyn) trolley line, began to work for the company and operated the street car line on that thoroughfare. He drove a horse car. He was sober and industrious, and soon became known as a most careful man. He never had any accidents. His conductors never had to write reports, and on this account he became very popular with the men who work on the rear platform. Another thing that soon attracted attention was that Hogan never lost any time. No one ever heard of Hogan being "jumped" for being late or staying away. He never reported sick. One day about a year after he began work it was whispered around the depot that Hogan had been married.

"Surely he won't appear today," said one of the men, but when the time arrived for Hogan's car to go out he was there. When asked about the marriage, he smiled and said:

"Yes, I've been married, but I can't afford to stay off on that account." Up to the time electricity was introduced on the road Hogan continued to work, never losing a day in all those years. Even during the blizzard Hogan was one of the few men who worked. While others sat around the stove in the station, he took a shovel and helped clear away the snow, and later when a plow was sent out Hogan handled the reins and after repeated attempts went over the line. He was one of the first men put on the trolley cars.

An expression heard around the station every pay day is:

"How did you make out this week? Have you a Hogan?"

This means a full week's pay, because Hogan always earns that sum. He has saved a good part of his earnings and owns quite a little real estate. Every day, just as he has done for 30 years, Hogan is on hand to take out his car. —New York Sun.

Origins of "Robin Adair."

Those who have a leaning to the sentimental side of history will accept the version that the hero of the ballad was a young and handsome Irish surgeon, who, finding his way into London society about the middle of the last century, was fortunate enough to secure the affections of Lady Caroline Keppel, daughter of William, second earl of Albemarle, and his wife, Lady Anne Lennox, daughter of Charles, first duke of Richmond. The match was naturally looked on with disfavor by the family of the young lady, and it was during a period of temporary separation that Lady Caroline is said to have written the words of "Robin Adair" and set them to the old Irish tune of "Ellen Aroon," which she had learned from her lover.

At length, however, love triumphed, and the pair were united on Feb. 28, 1758. Within a few days Adair was appointed inspector general of the military hospitals, and, subsequently becoming a favorite of the king, was made surgeon general, king's surgeon and surgeon of Chelsea hospital. He died in 1790, leaving an only son, who entered the diplomatic service and became the Right Hon. Sir Robert Adair, G. C. B.—Notes and Queries.

A STORY OF NAPOLEON.

His Education a Sketch of His Character.

Napoleon had at one time many admirers in England, especially among the continental class, who suffered deeply from the war, but he alienated the sympathy of all such by his cruel arrest of the English who were in France at the time of the rupture of the peace of Amiens, in 1803. Some 15,000 English of both sexes were thus detained in inhuman captivity till the close of the war, and hardly a family in the middle and upper classes but had in bewail the absence of some friend or connection.

Yet in individual cases Napoleon showed some magnanimity. A young Scotchman, one Robert Hendry, from Glasgow, a scientific dyer and chemist, had taken advantage of the peace to visit the great manufacturing houses of France, and he was staying at Jouy, where Oberkampf had established a huge cotton printing factory, when he suddenly broke out Hendry was thereupon constituted a prisoner by the authorities, but allowed to remain on parole at Jouy.

Napoleon one day visited the factory unexpectedly, accompanied by Josephine. He made a rapid progress through the works. Villagers and work people, the latter numbering 1,600, assembled to witness his departure, cheering the cortege, and cheering still louder when the emperor was seen to take the cross from his own breast and affix it to that of the modest Scotchman. In the picture of the scene, and the picture is still to be found upon the walls of Versailles. But Oberkampf had still something to ask. Napoleon called propitiously, but made a very free when he heard the petition, which was for the release of the prisoner. "An Englishman!" "No, sire, a Scotchman!" His mother—his sisters depend on his life. "Well, he shall be free, then!" said the emperor.—Household World.

WOMEN IN FRENCH FICTION.

Substantive Portraits of French Women and Mothers Presented by Novelists.

Miss Anna L. Bicknell, who lived for some years in the Tuilleries as a governess in the household of Napoleon III, contributes to The Century an article on "French Women and Mothers." This is richly illustrated by drawings by Boudet de Massel.

Miss Bicknell says: "Those who have gathered their opinions as to the real character of the average Frenchwoman from the romantic literature of the present century, more especially that of the last few years, would necessarily bear a severe judgment, tinged with a considerable amount of contempt. Such an opinion would, however, be unjust and wholly undeserved, as any impartial observer, having been privileged to share French home life, could truly tell them. The average English woman is very graphically depicted in English novels, and a foreigner can form a fair estimate of her merits and demerits from the descriptions of English domestic life given by popular writers. But it is not so in France or in French literature. The real French gentlewoman deserves to be better understood, for she is totally unlike the heroine of modern novels, whose writers know about as much of aristocratic life as the author of 'The Lady of the Shalott.'"

The picture presented in Gustave Flaubert's writings is perhaps the truest to nature as it is seen in some melancholy cases. But he himself certainly would have been ready to admit that the women he met in daily life had nothing in common with his morbid heroines. As he belonged to a good old family of the upper bourgeoisie, he had better opportunities of knowing the reality which he depicted so powerfully in his novels of fashionable life than have the authors who describe salons of which they have never crossed the threshold.

But even in the works of Flaubert, although the frame is accurate, the portraits are those of exceptionally diseased minds. Women like Mme. de Chambray in "Le Comte de Montenis" or the dreadful Julia de Treceur may exist in France or elsewhere, but those who know French society will certainly recognize more readily women like Mme. de Camors and her charming mother or the Suzanne of "Le Chef d'Or," with the home of Sibylla and the dear old people so delightfully described there. Many examples might be quoted equally true and pure among the heroines of Flaubert's impassioned narratives, and one is convinced that these have been more faithfully copied from nature than the others.

The fact is that the great majority of French novelists belong to the Bohemian of literature and are not admitted within the precincts either of aristocratic circles or of the less refined but equally strict bourgeois homes. They know only the wealthy and adventurous foreign set which bedded and expanded during the excess empire and has now taken its place by the side of French society, but not within its pale.

We Had a Record.

A person who was bargaining for a mule in a market in Georgia asked the youth who owned the mule:

"Is he a good, lively creature?"

"I reckon he air," replied the young man. "He kicked dead through a stone tent, broke Uncle Bill's leg in two places and threw a preacher three times on a Sunday mornin'!"—Atlanta Constitution.

PETERBOROUGH LEADS

In the Eastern District of the Canadian Lacrosse Association

Beaverton went down before Peterborough in the opening game of their series in this district by the overwhelming score of 11-2. Although Beaverton was strengthened by the addition of the famous Joe O'Meara, of Shamrock fame, and B. Lawrence, who it is said is no other than Gaffney of the Young Shamrocks still they could not keep Peterborough from putting up the above large score.

The Peterborough home, with Phelan in his old place, was simply irresistible and when they started a combination going down the field something had to give way.

Those who have been watching the boys closely claim that the home played a better game yesterday than ever before this season.

Too much cannot be said of the work of the defense. They played the same reliable game which has characterized their work all through the year. Now that the home players are running into shape, Peterborough will be a hard team to beat and should undoubtedly land the championship of this district.

Beaverton has several good players on their team, but they lack the combination of the Peterborough twelve, and it is the combination that counts in these days of up-to-date lacrosse. The next game will be played at Beaverton on Friday, Aug. 6th. The boys should take care to be in shape in order to give a good account of themselves away from home. The teams and positions yesterday were as follows:

Peterborough.—Dobbin goal; Lynch, point; Brown, cover; Glover, 1st defense; Mead, 2nd defense; McGrath, 3rd defense; King, centre; Hogarth, 2nd home; McCabe, 2nd home; Phelan, 1st home; Lipsett, outside home; Mooney, inside home; Bert Dolan, field captain.

Beaverton.—McKinnon, goal; Hamilton, point; Lawrence, cover; Cameron, 1st defense; P. McMillan, 2nd defense; Rainey, 3rd defense; H. Cameron, centre; A. Cameron, 3rd home; Graham, 2nd home; O'Meara, 1st home; Nolan, outside home; McInnes, inside home; G. Birchard, field captain.

Referee.—W. Hall.

CITY LIGHTS AND SHADES

Happening in Town and District During Past Twenty-four Hours

—The Y.M.C.A. financial year ends on Aug. 2nd, and the annual meeting will be held on that evening.
—Yesterday Eleanor Ingram, relict of the late Wm. Chamberlain of Okanabe, passed away at the age of 80 years and 9 months, death resulting from bronchitis, complicated with an affection of the heart.

—Thursday night about nine o'clock Mrs. Margaret Condon, relict of the late Michael Condon, passed away at the family residence, 174 Aylmer street at the age of 86 years. She was only ill since Monday, having succumbed to summer complaint.

—The body of Miss May Robertson, who met such a sad death by drowning at Orono Bay Wednesday evening, was brought down from Toronto on the 11:34 express. Her funeral procession formed and proceeded to the Little Lake cemetery where the interment took place.

—Mr. J. Jeffries of the Collegiate Institute staff, was brought down from Stony Lake yesterday morning suffering from an illness which it was feared was appendicitis. He was taken to the Nichols hospital and an operation was made by the doctors, when it was found that the trouble was not appendicitis, but a slight attack of peritonitis, from which he will recover in a day or two. The case is therefore not serious.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

BASEBALL.
Toronto, July 29.—Springfield beat Toronto in eleven innings at the Island yesterday. The game resembled all through, and victory came for the ponies with Dolan's two-base hit, when the fans felt fairly sure that Irving's men would pull it out. "MAJESTIC" CREW POPULAR

They Own the Lake—A Band of Interest—The Stony Lake Notes

Capt. Wm. Scollard, of the steamer Majestic, ably assisted by F. J. Young, 1st mate; P. Young, 2nd mate; Pat. Carr, 1st engineer, are giving general satisfaction to the tourists on our back lakes this hot weather. A trip to Stony Lake this hot weather is a great treat and is being indulged in by a large number of our citizens.

The Presto Musical Journal, Chicago, in its last issue, contains the following: A Toronto correspondent, in answer to an enquiry regarding good places in Canada for a outing, writes: "I have visited at least a couple of dozen different points in this country for a summer holiday, but none has surpassed Stony Lake in pleasurable experience. The vicinity—some five hours' railway journey from Toronto—is primed full with health-giving scenes, is in natural scenery a beauty spot, and one great advantage is that it is not done to death; there's a lot of elbow room. Nothing could exceed the readiness to oblige which characterizes the Stony Lake steamer service, even in matters separated from their obligations, this being specially exemplified in Capt. Wm. Scollard, of the steamer Majestic, whose address is Young's Point, Ont."

Mrs. A. G. Johnson and family returned home from the Lake last night after a pleasant two weeks' outing. Messrs. H. Stevens, of town, and Richard Crawford, of Lakefield, have just completed one of the finest cottages on Stony Lake for the Rev. J. Gibson of Newwood.

Mr. John Webster, of the Peterborough Water Works Co., launched his trim little steam yacht Alma at Lakefield yesterday. Messrs. Geo. Webster and Geo. Millard intend taking a trip up to M. Gordon's island, Stony Lake, on her.

The steamer Majestic brought down Mr. Jeffries yesterday, suffering from peritonitis. He was located on Syndicate Island.

Capt. Scollard says that the lighting at Stony Lake on Thursday night was the most severe ever experienced on the Lake.

W. F. Green returned home last night after a pleasant outing at the Lakes.

The forest fires are still raging after the recent storm, and Lakefield is in a cloud of smoke.

Ferry boats came in to Lakefield on the steamer Sunbeam yesterday after a pleasant outing at Gilchrist Bay.

Mr. Al. Haskell and family leave on Monday morning for Stony Lake, and will occupy Mr. W. Lech's island at Roskink.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued the use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." Mrs. SUMNER-VILLAS, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

that the Spaniards were murdering native Porto Ricans, violating women and indulging in general outrages. The Sixth Pennsylvania Regiment will be reinforced, if necessary. The first real resistance is expected when the American troops reach Alibonito, 35 miles north-east of here. A bonito has a thousand feet elevation. General Miles says he has no intention of making a landing of troops at Cape San Juan, especially as the place is only a roadstead, where transports are to suffer from the prevalent storms. The railroad from Ponce to Yanco is now in the possession of our troops. General Stone found five mines on the track and destroyed them. Our troops found 17 Spaniards in the Yanco hospital, all of whom had been wounded on Tuesday's fight. Two of them have since died. Proclamations have been issued by Yanco, as a United States city, expressing delight at annexation and the administration of General Miles and the American troops. The Mayor of Ponce has called upon all the residents of that place to exercise alms and circumspection under the new and desirable conditions. He also urges forbearance toward conquered enemies. General Miles has issued a lengthy order of instructions to General Wilson, who will be military governor of Ponce, province and city, until General Brooke's arrival. The local mayor, judges and police will remain in authority, subject to the orders of General Wilson. The custom house office will be conducted as formerly for the present. Their receipts amount to a considerable sum of money. The question of the proper discount on Porto Rican slaves gives General Miles some trouble, but he says this will settle itself in due course of time. Captain Chidwick, of the Cincinnati formerly of the Maine, introduced to General Wilson this morning two of the leading Jesuits of Ponce, representing a thousand churches and their dependents in the province. The priests wanted information regarding their support, and General Wilson said that under the constitution of the United States it was not possible to apply any governmental money for church purposes. Father Chidwick said it would be all the better for the church if its own people learned to contribute to its support. Spanish volunteers continue to come in and give themselves up. The health of the troops so far, is good, though the weather is hot.

BRITISH ENGINEER ARRIVES
Havana, Aug. 1.—The British engineer Taylor, from Jamaica, has arrived here, bringing Mr. George F. Loverson, of the British Royal Engineer corps, who is accredited to the British consulate and is authorized on General Blane's staff for the purpose of watching the military operations.

TERMS ARE VERY HARD.
London, Aug. 1.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says: The conflicting account of the American peace terms and a suspicion that the Washington Government was temporizing in order to confront Spain with the occupation of Manila originally caused irritation and provoked strong language, but it is now seen that the suspicion was unfounded. The terms, however, as regarded at very hard, and the annexation of Porto Rico and the repudiation of the colonial debts is characterized as flagrant unjust.

MORE CASES OF TYPHOID.
Washington, Aug. 1.—Twenty-two more cases of typhoid fever were removed to the hospital at Fort Meyer for treatment, and twenty patients were received at the first division hospital, yesterday's record of the disease which is attacking the troops at Camp Alger.

AMERICANS DRIVEN OFF.
Madrid, Aug. 1.—A sortie of six peasants will probably be imposed upon grain imports. Advice received here from Havana says the Cuban blockade is maintained in the most vigorous manner. An American warship is reported to have bombarded San Severino and Matanzas. A despatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that a force of four hundred infantry and cavalry under the United States flag recently attacked a detachment of Spanish engineers at Grecio. The despatch then says that some volunteers from Carriama went to the assistance of the engineers and the enemy was driven off, leaving ten men dead on the field. The Spanish losses are said to have been an officer and two men wounded.

STREETS AND BRIDGES.
The Street and Bridge Committee presented the following report:
Peterborough, August 1, 1898.
To the Mayor and Council of the town of Peterborough.
Gentlemen.—Your Street and Bridge Committee beg leave to report as follows:
1. Your committee having considered the question of the contract of crushed granite from the Forsyth Granite and Marble Company of Montreal for the grandwalk sidewalks at $5 a ton and recommending that if any more is needed that it be ordered and that it be paid for on the certificate of the Town Engineer.
2. Your committee ordered a car-load of crushed granite from the Forsyth Granite and Marble Company of Montreal for the grandwalk sidewalks at $5 a ton and recommending that if any more is needed that it be ordered and that it be paid for on the certificate of the Town Engineer.

3. Your committee recommended that Councillor Langford be appointed to the Pigeon Creek bridge on August 2nd to meet representatives of the County of Peterborough and County of Victoria in reference to repairs needed on the bridge.
4. Your committee also recommended that Mr. S. Hecker be instructed to prepare specifications for a sidewalk on Charlotte street as soon as the necessary papers are signed by the property owners on the street.
All of which is respectfully submitted.
Adam Dawson, Chairman.

FOUNDATIONS.
Councillor McWilliams objected to changing contract as proposed in clause one.
The Mayor explained that this clause was only meant to protect the contractors in case of accident, such as fire, explosions, etc.
Councillor Denne agreed with Councillor McWilliams. He thought it was wrong to interfere with the provisions of the contract.

Councillor Langford thought it would be wise to refer the matter to the town auditor before taking any action in the premises.
Councillor McWilliams drew the attention of the council to a clause in the contract which simply covered the amount proposed to be covered by clause one.
This clause on investigation, was found to give ample protection to the contractors.
The report with the exception of clause one was adopted on motion of Councillor Dawson, seconded by Councillor McWilliams.

APPOINTMENTS.
The Committee on Appointments presented the following report:
Peterborough, August 1, 1898.
To the Mayor and Council of the town of Peterborough.
Gentlemen.—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report and recommend that Mr. Bartlett be appointed Inspector of the contract at $2.50 per day and that he be paid on the certificate of the Town Engineer.
All of which is respectfully submitted.
J. B. McWilliams, Chairman.

Founders McWilliams and Meldrum moved the adoption of the report.
Councillor Best moved in amendment that the report be not adopted, but that it be amended by securing a thoroughly practical man.
Councillor Dawson took issue with the amendment of Mr. Bartlett. He accused Mr. Best of continually opposing the employment of local men.

Councillor Best said he believed that he was pursuing the proper course. A thoroughly competent man should be secured to oversee a work of such vast importance to the town.
Councillor McWilliams said that he made enquiry in reference to Mr. Bartlett's qualifications in Napanee and Brockville, where Mr. Bartlett had formerly resided, and found that he bore the very best reputation in those places—both professionally and otherwise. He approved of Mr. Bartlett's appointment.

The report was adopted, Mr. Best's amendment not receiving a second.
BY-LAWS.
A By-law respecting petitions for oral improvements was introduced by Councillor Denne and received its several readings and was passed.
A By-law amending pedlar's license was introduced by Councillor Hamilton and duly passed.
Councillor Langford moved, seconded by Councillor Meldrum, the third reading of the By-law reducing the number of councillors.

Councillor Best claimed that the By-law had not been properly submitted to the people. There were three options and only two were submitted. He thought that this wasn't in accordance with the statutes.
Councillor Meldrum stated that the matter was perfectly clear to the ratepayers. It was a straight vote, whether the ward system or retain it, as Councillor Robertson said that the vote taken was not a fair expression of opinion. The vote should be taken over again next January.

MCKINLEY BEATS THEM
President Stole a March on the Powers
A CLEVER SCHEME SPOILED
European Nations Tried to Obtain Recognition in the Philippines

Canadian Prisoner Allowed to Send a Dispatch to New York—American Troops Landed at Porto Rico
New York, Aug. 1.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: President McKinley has stolen a march on the powers of Europe in the making of peace. His reported leaving of the Philippine question to future settlement between Spain and the United States alone equals a cleverly concocted scheme. Behind Spain's diplomatic manoeuvre to draw the United States out on the question of conditions, the Continental Government had spread a snare.

Jenious of her political and commercial influence, the Old World powers instigated by Russia, and abetted by France and Germany, sought to coax America from the isolated position which is her principal strength, and to coerce her into acting in concert with them.

The serious international aspects of the settlement of the disputes between Spain and the United States must be borne in mind if the conduct of the Spanish Government is to be understood at all. Spain knew the game was up for her in the West Indies and that she could not expect even pitiable much less material assistance to retain any of her possessions there.
But she received positive aid in the settlement of the question of the Philippine Islands.

From the very first, Russia has viewed with the utmost displeasure America's success at Manila. She is as much opposed as Germany to an American protectorate or naval coaling stations in the Spanish archipelago. So Russia prompted the attitude of France in that regard with the entire approval of Germany.
Spain had also received assurances that France, Russia and the triple alliance would not tolerate an active war policy of the United States in the Mediterranean sea or along the coasts of the Spanish peninsula or Morocco should the war be prolonged. All this determined the Madrid Cabinet to make overtures with a view to coming to an understanding with the United States if President McKinley should not insist upon too great concessions in the Philippines. But if American demands in the far East should be considered excessive, Premier Sagasta was to simply go on with the war and await the developments and complications in which he had been led to expect European support.

The underlying object of all this finesse was to make the question of the Philippines and the limitation of the American sphere of influence in Oceania one of the many international points that could not be settled except by a conference of the powers.
But most Spaniards accept as inevitable the details which the press publishes relative to the American peace conditions. So confident is everybody that the two governments will come to an understanding that few papers, and they but feebly attempt to keep up a warlike spirit by opposing some of the points laid down in the American reply. Even the Madrid papers point out that it is evident that President McKinley will not permit interference like that which carried the Japanese victory over China. General Auguste reports a not very promising condition unless he can be immediately relieved. All rumors of Carlist risings are unfounded. The instructions of the pretender, but nothing untoward is signed.

FREEMAN HALSTEAD'S DISPATCH
New York, Aug. 1.—Freeman Halstead, the Canadian who is in prison at San Juan, Porto Rico, was allowed to send, by permission of the Spanish officials, the following despatch to The New York Herald:
The landing of American troops in Porto Rico has caused great excitement among the residents of the city. For several days following the landing at Guanica there was a steady emigration from this city into the interior. But with all of the excitement there has been no rioting or disorder. San Juan now has settled down into a state of strained readiness for the American attack. It is expected at any time. Everything indicates that the city will not be taken without great bloodshed. Some talk of surrender has been heard, but the Spanish troops have sworn to fight to the end.

It is an heroic spectacle this, of the comparatively handful of men on a small island encircled by a hostile fleet, with no hope of assistance and threatened with a scarcity of food, ready preparing to fight the Americans to the death.
The American army of invasion, according to the reports received here, is moving slowly toward the capital, meeting with little resistance, but concentrated and determined stand will be made by the Spaniards when the invading army arrives in front of San Juan. The property of foreign residents in this city is simply protected.

SPAIN'S RULE TO CEASE

So far as the Philippine Islands are concerned

RECOGNIZE THE REPUBLIC

European Powers to Appoint a Board to Create Order in the Islands

The Philippine Insurrection will not soon be allowed to enter themselves for years to come

Washington, July 30.—It was stated this morning by a prominent diplomatist attached to the French Embassy that the Cabinet has finally determined upon the manner in which the Philippine Islands are to be disposed of under the terms of peace which are to be proposed for the acceptance of Spain.

The United States recognizes that the government of such unwieldy possessions, comprising as they do, so many different islands, inhabited by diverse races, would hamper the republic to too great an extent, and would stretch to the utmost a somewhat inflexible constitution, and has been casting about.

With the concurrence of Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and Austria, a conference will be held at either London or Washington for the purpose of determining upon the future government of the islands. It is unanimously agreed among the powers that the rule of Spain, which is not conducive to the improvement of their own interests there, must cease, and the problem to be solved is as to the best manner of consolidating the natives and establishing stable rule which, while throwing open the territory to trade, will not give undue advantage to any single power.

It is exceedingly probable that the conference will result in the formal recognition of the Philippine republic, with the appointment of a board consisting of a representative from each of the powers taking part in the conference to advise the President, presumably General Aguinaldo, a commission in fact which will practically govern the country until the republic is established, and is in proper working order, which will not be for many years. It is understood that Germany proposed to President McKinley a partition of the Philippines among the powers, but that neither the United States nor Great Britain would consent to such a course.

THE POSITION OF FRANCE.

Paris, July 30.—From a semi-official source the following statement was made: "From a commercial standpoint, France is as much interested in America as in Spain, trade, and consequently she has no reason to jeopardize her friendly relations with the United States. Still she feels sympathy for her unfortunate neighbor and rejoices heartily at the fact that peace is to be arranged and that the French Ambassador, M. Cambon, has been the messenger of peace sent by Spain to America."

"As to the terms upon which peace will be arranged, the French Government and public opinion in France are perfectly aware that the United States will no longer be satisfied with the mere independence of Cuba, considering that the war has cost her considerable sacrifices. It is only hoped that America will not claim too much. France does not make any objection to the United States increasing her strength or its dominions. She is convinced that if such an increase in any way threatens any European power, she is not that power."

As to the Philippines, if those islands are to be lost to Spain, France as the ruler of Indo-China would probably prefer having the Americans as next door neighbors, instead of any European or Asiatic power. Consequently, what France wants, so far as the United States is concerned, is only a proper consideration of her commercial interests."

MARIA TERESA TO BE RAISED.

Washington, July 30.—The Navy Department has posted the following telegram from Admiral Sampaio: "Playa, July 29.—The Infanta Maria Teresa, upon which the wreckers are being engaged, will be floated and brought to Guantamano as soon as a small leak is located, which is somewhere in the bow of the ship. Whether this leak is due to a small valve being left open or a hole which may have been made in the bow is not yet known. Her own pumps are being used to remove the water, there being steam to drive her boilers."

SHAFER'S SICK, 478.

Washington, July 30.—The War Department posts the following: Santiago de Cuba, July 29, via Bermuda, Assistant General, Washington: "Santiago conditions for July 29: Total sick, 478; total fever cases, 3,000; new cases of fever, 100; cases recovered to duty, 100; deaths, 1. Signed, Shafter, Major General commanding."

SPANISH SCHOONER CAPTURED.

Key West, July 30.—The Spanish schooner Gibara, loaded with fire wood and charcoal, which was captured by the Nashville on July 27, while trying to get into the port of Gibara on the north Cuban coast, was brought in here this morning by a prize crew.

A JOINT COMMISSION.

Washington, July 30.—It is understood that the question left open as to the Philippines has been settled by leaving the government of the islands to the decision of a joint commission under certain broad conditions to be required of Spain, these conditions being protective of American life.

CAPTURE OF GIBARA.

Key West, July 30.—The important city of Gibara, on the north east coast of Cuba, in the Province of Santiago, has surrendered to the American navy. The greatest Navy ship entered the harbor of Gibara on Thursday. No attempt was made to resist the advance. A force was sent ashore and found the Spaniards had gone into the interior. The American force took possession of the city without a shot being fired.

WHAT THE TIMES THINKS.

London, July 30.—The Times, in an editorial this morning on the terms of peace, confines itself to a discussion of the questions raised in the Philippines. It says: "It seems equally difficult for America to take hold of them before the war. She will be still more embarrassed now, and probably would not remain long without tempting offers from some of the powers, which her poverty might tempt her to accept. If America demanded the cession of the Philippines outright, Spain could hardly have avoided yielding. Now, she may find in her very weakness the means of softening the other conditions of peace. For, since the United States have decided that the islands are not worth annexing, some arrangement must be made with Spain to ensure the reversion of the islands to the United States in the event of Spain failing to maintain a tolerable government."

SEÑOR GAMAZA'S STATEMENT.

London, July 30.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says that according to a newspaper statement, Señor Gamazo, Spanish Minister of Public Instruction and Public Works, said in the course of an interview in Madrid yesterday: "Spain has not asked an armistice or even a suspension of hostilities. That would be tantamount to bowing the enemy not to strike us. We shall never come to that."

SURRENDER OF MANILA.

London, July 30.—The Times Madrid correspondent quotes Señor Gamazo as saying: "If Manila surrenders, the capitulation will only apply to the garrisoned town."

It is feared the correspondent reports that the peace negotiations will be very smooth or expeditious. Already there are preliminary symptoms of agitation against the inevitable concessions; and the correspondent of The Times considers it "very doubtful whether all the Ministers have the moral courage to face boldly the certain amount of unpopularity."

DESPAIR AT HAVANA.

London, July 30.—The Havana correspondent of The Times, in a letter to his paper, pictures a terrible picture of the despair that is falling upon the city in the absence of seaward the outside world, in face of the advancing prospect of famine and in the "daily watching for the Spanish fleet which never comes." He says: "Wild rumors are afloat. The Spanish fleet is said to be in the vicinity of the city. The Spanish fleet is said to be in the vicinity of the city. The Spanish fleet is said to be in the vicinity of the city."

TESTIMONIALS:

The following are a few from scores of testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

My hair was falling out for six or eight months until the top of my head was quite bald, when a friend advised me to try Kenny's Hair restorer. I did so, and am happy to say that after using two large bottles my hair is restored to its natural condition with a more healthy appearance. The falling out of the hair stopped and all dead hair removed. I was only using the Hair restorer about two months, February and March, until the new growth was fully developed. I can therefore, from my own experience recommend Kenny's Hair Restorer as a most reliable hair remedy and I believe it has no equal for the prevention of baldness.

The Essex Free Press says: Mr. Wm. A. Shaw, of Peterborough, eastern representative for the Newcomb Piano Co., of Toronto, has been spending the week with his father, Rev. W. H. Mr. Shaw also addressed the Epworth League on Tuesday evening, comparing the Christian religion with the other religions of the world.

SAD DROWING ACCIDENT

Mr. Fred Foote Drowned in the Lake at Jackson Park Yesterday

One of the saddest drowning accidents which has occurred here in years took place yesterday morning at Jackson Park, when Mr. Fred Foote, a prominent business man and a highly esteemed citizen came to an untimely end.

The exact story of how the accident occurred will never be known, although from the evidence to hand a fairly correct idea can be formed of how it happened.

About fifteen minutes past six o'clock Mr. Foote left his residence on McTavell street, telling his family that he was going to wheel to Jackson park for a bath before breakfast.

Mr. Foote did ride down to the park for Mr. Ben Yelland, who had been early at the park for a bath, was coming out of the eastern entrance of the park when he met Mr. Foote going in. Mr. Yelland spoke to him, saying that he had been taking a bath, and Mr. Foote replied that he was on his way to do likewise. This was the last seen of the unfortunate man alive for a few seconds later the fatal plunge had taken place. The entrance to the park at this point is on a down grade. The road winds round the hill and then stretches along the lake in the valley of the park. A bicycle going down the grade will accumulate considerable speed, and Mr. Foote, it is supposed, lost control of his wheel, and when he had made the turn he was running on the side of the road next to the lake. He just missed the bridge which crosses the water at this point when the fatal fall came. The wheel went down the side of the bank and threw him some distance into the water, and turned over itself and lay partially in the lake. The tracks of the wheel came down the hill and ran to the edge of the bank, which is several feet high at the place. This shows that the accident occurred in the way described, through his losing control of the wheel. He was not a strong rider, and had had several falls at previous times, and if he lost the pedal the wheel would gather great speed.

About 7:15 o'clock Mr. Wm. Long, the park caretaker, was taking a walk through the park when he noticed a bicycle in the lake. He at once went to the place and saw immediately that an accident had occurred. He gave the alarm and Constable Adams went to the scene. There was no difficulty experienced in recovering the body, which was upright in about six feet of water. There were no marks on the head or body to show that the fall had resulted in a blow that would cause unconsciousness, but the deceased could not swim and would have probably been more or less wasted after climbing the grade leading to the park entrance. The front wheel of the bicycle was turned backwards and the saddle was twisted.

An inquest was not considered necessary.

At the deceased's residence his daughters were not aware of the sad bereavement that had overtaken them for some time. When their father did not return to breakfast they became anxious, knowing that he was not a first-class wheelman and fearing that he had had a fall. When he was still absent at eight o'clock they were walking to Jackson park to look for him when friends met them and the sad intelligence was made known. It was a terrible blow to them, following as it does so closely upon the death of their mother a few months ago.

The deceased was a native of Shaftesbury, Dorsetshire, England, being born there in 1846. Together with his wife and two children he came out to Canada in 1871, and entered the employ of Mr. Samuel White, who at that time conducted a large boot and shoe business in Peterborough.

After remaining with Mr. White for sixteen years Mr. Foote went into business for himself with Mr. McWhinnie, his present partner, who was then also employed by Mr. White. Since that time he has been a partner in the firm of Foote & McWhinnie, and had built up a prosperous business.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

WARD SYSTEM PREVAILS

Yess—Councillors Denne, Hamilton, McWilliams, Meldrum, Langford and Mayor Davis—6.
Nays—Councillors Best, W. H. White, Robertson, Dawson, Cobb and J. M. White—6.

The Mayor explained that he had voted "yea" in order to show that he was not in opposition to the wishes of the majority of the ratepayers who had unanimously pronounced in favor of the bylaw at the poll.

The motion was declared lost—the Mayor's vote counting only when a tie existed.

RESOLUTIONS.

Moved by Councillor Denne, seconded by Councillor W. H. White, that Mr. Lourdville be paid $20 on the Homeward avenue drain contract.

The motion on being put was declared lost.

Moved by Councillor Robertson, seconded by Councillor Denne, that a concrete floor be constructed in the cattle pens and that the necessary sewer connection be made.—Carried.

On motion of Councillor Best, seconded by Councillor McWilliams, the council formally tendered its thanks to the civic authorities at Hamilton for courtesies extended to the council during its recent trip to that city.

The council then adjourned.

During the session a flash-light photograph of the council was taken by the Dominion Illustrated Souvenir Co. representative, for use in a souvenir volume description of Peterborough.

Shetland Wool.
The chief characteristic of Shetland wool is the extreme fineness of the broad used. This wool is obtained from the native Shetland sheep, an animal of decidedly meagre appearance, and which a southern stockman would be inclined to "share none of." Nevertheless, this humble beast, looking up a scanty living on the bleak hillsides where its larger relatives would starve, produces wool of remarkable fineness, and when it is mentioned that the natural colors vary from black and white to an endless variety of grays, browns, fawns and chestnuts of many shades (locally called "moorit") it will be seen that the Shetland people have ready to their hand raw material of the most valuable kind for their purpose.

In connection with the fineness of the wool, the method of taking it from the sheep is worthy of note. It is not clipped or shorn in the usual way, but at the proper season is literally plucked from the backs of the animals, it being attended that shearing tends to deteriorate the quality of even the finest wools, and so fine as possible is a great desideratum. The plucking is referred to usually appears to be a cruel and painful operation, but in reality the sheep seems to suffer no more from it than from the ordinary shearing operation. Journal.

English Jacobite Societies.
To judge from the list of Jacobite clubs and associations given in the "Legitimist Calendar for 1898," which includes the order of the White Rose, the Devon White Rose club, the Legitimist Jacobite League of Great Britain and Ireland (pompous title), the Eastern Counties' (shade of Cromwell!) White Cockade club, the Forty-five club of Ormsby, the Glasgow Jacobite club, the Oxford University Legitimist club, the St. Ives (Hants) Jacobite club, the Jacobite Restoration League, the Surrey White Rose League, the Mary Stuart club of Lanark, the Legitimist Registration Union, the National Royalist and Jacobite association, the order of St. Germain and the Hemmingford Gray Royal Oak club, not to mention our old familiar Thames Valley Jacobites and two or three foreign legitimist bodies, it ought not to be difficult for the supporters of the lost house of Stuart to put several hundred adherents in the field (or even Lodgegate circles) if they so decide.—London Mail.

He Got a Mate.
A sea captain called at a village inn and asked the landlady, a young widow: "Do you know where I can get a mate? I have lost my mate."

"I am very sorry for you, Mr. —," she said, smiling. "I want a mate, too, and cannot get one. As we are in the same position, I'll tell you what I'll do—If you'll be mine, I will be yours."

He closed with the bargain, and, the widow keeping her word, he is now supplied with two mates.—Pearson's Weekly.

CHEMIST AND GRADUATE OPTICIAN

HIS BUSY DAY.

It is better to forget some things than to remember them.

The business man was very much occupied when one of his acquaintances came in.

"I want to ask you," began the caller, but the other, without looking up, waved his hand back of him and returned the friend to silence. After waiting half a minute the visitor tried again.

"I won't take much of your time," he said. "This is something too important to be neglected or I'd go away and come again."

"I suppose there's no one of my trying to get through with this before dark any more," was the rejoinder, with a sigh.

"I'm sorry it's necessary to interrupt you."

"Oh, it's all right. When I come to think of it, I wouldn't know whether I had the right answer when I got through."

"You could easily have the bookkeeper verify it, couldn't you?"

"No. I tried the bookkeeper on it. He didn't know any more about it than I did."

"Isn't it anything connected with business?"

"No. If it were, I'd be comparatively serene. Business isn't the only thing in life."

"It's a great deal of it, though."

The calculator rang for the office boy, and when he appeared said, "Thomas, you take this $3 bill and buy me as many works on arithmetic as you can for it."

Then turning to his friend with the air of a serious questioner he said:

"Why do men engage in business?"

"To make money."

"And what do we want with money?"

We want independence and respect. We want to feel that we can hold our heads in the world and not be obliged to face humiliation. The purpose of this calculation, distant from business though they may be, are the same. I have a boy who has done well in his studies and who does me the honor to ask my advice every once in awhile. Most boys don't do that. They think it's impossible for their fathers to know very much owing to the misfortune they labored under in not having the same school-teaching. This boy of mine remarked yesterday that he was going to take up cube root study. Have you tried to extract any cube roots since you left school?"

"The answer in the negative."

"Then you don't know how much you have forgotten. It's a heap easier to learn to extract a cube root in the first place than it is to remember it again after you have got out of practice. But I'm going to keep at it. Tonight he'll come home with some examples to do and Napoleon when he started for St. Helena didn't feel a bit worse than I will if I have to lay down my lead pencil and paper and own up that I can't do them."—Detroit Free Press.

One Fakir Who Was "Dumb" by the Name.

"No," said the eunuch fakir to a group of people that had gathered around him, "there is no use taking to me about the knowledge of the countryman. He may buy a gold brick occasionally or sign a blank check and lose his farm, but, as a rule, he can take care of himself just as well as the next one and generally a little better. If I have as much as some farmers I wouldn't be in the business, and you can gamble on that."

"Why, say, do you know what happened to me the last time I was down in the country? I got a match and went to the hotel in a little town about thirty miles out west of here and began to do a few tricks to draw a crowd."

"After I'd made a few disappear and pulled a few knots open for them, I says: 'Now, gentlemen, I'm going to show you a trick that nobody else in the world has ever attempted. You see my hat here? Well, we'll imagine for the time being to be a fever pot. Out of that hat I'm going to make a bush grow up, and when I've done that I'll make every leaf on it turn into a $5 note.'"

"What? Did I do it? Of course I did! But, say, do you know what came of it? Blamed if they didn't arrest me and fine me $15 for 'causing a riot' and the justice of the peace said was contrary to the station made and provided."

"Well, I sort of had a headache to know whether they done it in good faith or just because they thought I was a quack, and what do you think I found out? Why, the people of that town hadn't paid any taxes for eight years. They'd actually been running things by plucking just each innocent fellow on me."

"Now, gentlemen, there's a $1 bill to one of these little packages. Who will give me 10 cents for the first checker?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Curiosity.

"I hear that Jenkins, the politician, was found in his bed in a staring condition."

"Poor fellow! He must have been bored."

If all our ministers were all like the late Archbishop Walsh there would be nothing but the best of feeling between Catholics and Protestants. We do not recall a man in Canada's church history of 280 years who was the superior of the late prelate in respect for his fellow citizens in benediction, in gentleness of conduct, private and public. Archbishop Walsh will long be remembered because he had the best conception of his position and duty in a population of mixed religious beliefs of any of his contemporaries.

Police Court
At the police court yesterday morning a local merchant was charged with assault by a business competitor. The offense was clearly proved, though it was shown that the defendant had considerable provocation as the other was interfering with his business. For taking the law into his own hands, however, and administering summary punishment he was fined $20 and $4.45 costs.

Wm. Heffernan was fined $2 and $3.75 costs for fast driving while drunk.

Mrs. Leger, accused of receiving stolen money, was dismissed.

The boy Leger was handed over to the Children's Aid Society. If his age is found to be over thirteen years he will be sent to the Reformatory.

CORONER'S INQUEST

On the Death of Esie Thornton, Opened at Esie's Hospital Last Night

Dr. Bell, coroner, was notified yesterday afternoon of the death of Esie Thornton, the victim of Saturday evening's shooting accident, and after carefully considering the case decided that an inquest would be necessary.

A jury was accordingly summoned and the inquest formally opened at the hospital last night at eight o'clock.

County Crown Attorney Wood was present in the interests of the Crown. A jury, comprised as follows, was empanelled: R. J. Winch (foreman), C. LeBrun, W. J. McCallum, J. D. Bapiste, W. E. Talbot, J. Joyala, C. B. Smith, Jas. Tully, W. J. Devlin, T. C. Elliott, J. Paton, D. Conway, W. H. Brauburn, J. G. Hutchinson.

Coroner Bell briefly addressed the jury stating the facts of the case as far as known. If the death of deceased was the outcome of culpable negligence—he said—then it would be necessary for the jury to institute a strict investigation. After viewing the body and from their present knowledge of the circumstances connected with the death of the young lady, it would be necessary for them to say whether a post mortem examination should be held and the inquest proceeded with.

The jurors after a short deliberation, decided that an inquest was necessary and proceeded to the morgue to view the body.

The scene at the morgue as revealed by the flickering rays of a lantern, was sad in the extreme. An apparently—in life—bold and hearty young woman lay stretched on a marble slab in the cold embrace of death, and the only visible cause of death was a slight wound immediately underneath the right ear. To any person not acquainted with the penetrating power of a 22-calibre rifle the wound would not appear dangerous, but to those familiar with rifles, it could be considered the location of the wound—by for a moment doubted that it was serious.

On the jury's return to the hospital County Crown Attorney Wood advised the taking of a portion of the attendant physician's evidence, in order that a foundation for holding the inquest might be available in writing. This suggestion, proving agreeable to the jury, was acted upon.

Dr. Young, the attending physician, on being sworn, said: He was a practicing physician in Peterborough. Was called to the residence of deceased on Harvey street on Saturday evening. When he arrived deceased was lying in the yard bleeding from a wound. By his orders she was carried into her mother's house and placed on a sofa. She was rather excited and in a semi-conscious condition. He dressed the wound. She was removed to the hospital Sunday morning and died there at three o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday. When deceased was removed to the house he probed for the bullet. Was led to believe the wound was caused from a rifle ball from the information given him by the neighbors. He could not positively state the cause of death and could not ascertain the cause without holding a post mortem examination.

In answer to a jurymen: She had on several occasions stated that she had been shot. As to whether she had been shot or not it was impossible for him to say. He had seen the wound, saw that it was bleeding and heard the stories of the neighbors, but it would, at present, be impossible for him to say directly what caused her death.

The jury decided that it would be necessary, in view of the circumstances, to proceed with the investigation and also ordered a post mortem examination.

Drs. Young and Clarke were authorized to proceed with the post mortem examination.

Arrangement was then made until tonight at 8 o'clock in the coroner's chamber, when the inquest will be continued.

ANOTHER STOLEN WHEEL

Turns Up in Peterborough and is Returned to its Owner in Brockville

The Brockville Recorder contains the following in reference to a stolen wheel, which it would appear has turned up in Peterborough:

"The ideal bicycle stolen on Monday last from Fred Reutach by a young man named McPherson, belonging to Onemee, who got the machine on the pretence of going for a two hour ride, was returned to its owner this morning. The chase instituted by the police seems to have got too warm for Mr. McPherson and hence its recovery. It seems that among the notices sent out by Chief Ross was one directed to the postmaster at Onemee, a man named Murphy. The latter wrote back that McPherson had been there, but left before the notice arrived. Chief Bell, of Lindsay, however, informs our police that as soon as Grunly got the notice he notified McPherson's father, and when he was turned up with the wheel he was ordered to tell all about it and where it was. This resulted in the wheel being returned here this morning. Reutach is also in receipt of letters both from the thief and his father. The former says he will be around in a short time to settle all damages and the father asks that no prosecutions be entered as he will pay all costs. The thief himself disappeared. Chief Ross, of Peterborough, has also been heard in the matter. He says that McPherson shipped the wheel from Kingston to a friend in Peterborough. The tire had been punctured and one of the cranks was bent.

The body of Thomas Hendren, who was drowned in Gull Lake last week while hunting, was recovered last week at the mouth of Muskegon Creek by river drivers in the employ of the Dickinson Co., who were working in the vicinity.

The remains were almost unrecognizable, the flesh having been eaten by fishes in a most terrible manner. The remains were taken to Norway for interment.

Y. M. C. A.

Held its Thirtieth Annual Meeting Last Night

The Y. M. C. A. of Peterborough have now occupied for one year the handsome new building on the corner of George and Murray streets, donated to the citizens under the will of the late Charlotte J. Nicholls and which is one of the best equipped buildings for the purpose on the continent. It was to be expected that with its new surroundings and incentives the Association would make special strides this year.

Mr. Alfred Parker, the retiring president, in his address, said he was gratified at the progress made, which he accredited in large part to the energy of the general secretary, Mr. Williams. He also called attention to the fact that the Ladies' Auxiliary had done excellent work, having raised $300 since the first of the year to assist in completing the furnishing of the building. He next referred to the improved financial standing of the Association. They had started in the year with a deficit of $950, and besides preparing a budget to carry on the year's work of $2,500 had reduced the deficit $150, and have a small surplus on hand. Much credit, he said, was due to the treasurer, Mr. Frank Adams, in this connection.

Excellent reports were presented by all the committees. That of the Ladies' Auxiliary was read by Mrs. R. J. Kidd, while Mr. Bruce Anderson read the report of the debating club for the secretary, Mr. G. S. Bell, who was unavoidably absent. The report of the boys department was given by the president, Archie Froude. The committee on financial work reported through Mr. J. S. Knappmiller, and the treasurer, Mr. Frank Adams, read his own report.

The report of the nominating committee, which was adopted, was as follows: Pres., J. W. Bennett; 1st Vice-Pres., R. F. Ackermann; 2nd Vice-Pres., Rev. E. V. Stenson. Trustees, Frank Adams; directors, above officers and Messrs. A. E. Dixon, A. C. McCallum, Alfred Parker, H. C. Stabler, Peter Hamilton, W. L. Innes, T. E. Gillespie, J. M. Charnock, Bruce Anderson, C. S. Mallet, N. A. Gorsline, F. Kennedy, M. Carlton and A. C. Parker.

The attendance was fair, and after adjournment the secretary treated the assemblage to ice cream and cake.

EMBARRASSING PREDICAMENT

A Couple of Peterborough Young Men Go Bathing and Get Into Trouble

A couple of young men of this town who are spending a few weeks in camp with some lady friends down the river decided last Monday afternoon to steal off and have a swim. After walking about a mile they struck a creek which empties into the river and began to explore the banks for a secluded spot in which to disrobe. At last they found an ideal spot, surrounded by bushes, and before long they were in the water. Finally they decided to swim up the stream, but before going looked for some landmark by which they could find the spot where their clothes lay. This they found in an old tree-trunk that jutted from the bank close to the bushes that hid their clothes. The young men tired by and by and started to swim back and get dressed. They came to a clump of bushes where a tree-trunk jutted from the bank and went ashore. To their surprise they could not find their clothes and after unsuccessfully searching all around, concluded that they had been stolen. They had noticed a farmer at work in a field further up the creek, so they determined to swim in and grab the trunk that belonged to them. The farmer loaned them each a pair of overalls and a blouse, in which they went home after dark. The next day several young men who were down for the day proposed a swim, and the Peterborough boys consented to guide the party to the place where they had swam the day before. When they pushed through the bushes they were amazed to see their lost clothes on the ground, exactly as they had been left. The mystery was solved when further up the stream an exactly similar spot was found.

MISS THORNTON DEAD

The Accidental Shooting of Saturday Evening Proves Fatal

As a result of collapse incidental to the shock Miss Esie Thornton, who was accidentally shot Saturday night by Archie Seymour, died yesterday afternoon at three o'clock.

It was intended by her medical attendants to have probed for the bullet yesterday, but shortly before three o'clock alarming symptoms were apparent, and Dr. Clarke, who was in vain to revive the fluttering pulse, and at about three o'clock life was extinct.

Her mother was with her all Monday night, and yesterday morning she was resting very comfortably, but a sudden attack of her nervous system took place during the afternoon, as stated, and resulted in her death.

OBITUARY NOTES

Sudden Death of Mr. Samuel Rehill—Mrs. T. H. Golden Dead

THE LATE SAMUEL REHILL.
Times readers will learn with feelings of deepest regret of the sudden death yesterday forenoon of Mr. Samuel Rehill, one of Peterborough's most highly respected residents. The sad event occurred about eleven o'clock and although deceased had not been enjoying the best of health for some months past it was thought that he was in any immediate danger. The news of his sudden demise consequently came as a great surprise to his numerous friends in town.

Death was due to heart disease and the end came peacefully.

Mr. Rehill was born seventy years ago in Emily township, where he lived till 1881, when he removed to Peterborough. About forty years ago he married Miss Esther Rea, daughter of the late Wm. Rea, of Opa. The widow and four children, three sons and a daughter, survive him. The sons are Thos. and David, of town, and William, of Buffalo. The daughter is Mrs. Jas. Hill, of town.

The deceased was a Methodist and a valued member of the Charlotte street church.

The funeral takes place from the family residence, 149 George street, to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

DEATH OF MRS. GOLDEN.

Yesterday morning Mrs. T. H. Golden passed peacefully away at the family residence, Alma cottage, East Nichol's Park. For some months past deceased had been a sufferer from cancer of the stomach, and the end was not unexpected. She was fifty-five years of age and was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. She was the eldest daughter of the late Wm. Lilly and was born in Toronto, where she also was married thirty-two years ago. Seven children are left to mourn her loss. Four sisters, Mrs. D. Gumbel, of Oshawa, Mrs. Mrs. Samuel Enrich, Mrs. J. W. Miller and Miss Emeline Lilly also survive her. The funeral will take place from the family residence to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery. The children are Mrs. Joseph Wolsteng, Mrs. Mrs. Laura Grace and Harry. She and Messrs. Edward and Harry.

Related Excursions.

A party of about twenty persons arrived in town at two o'clock this morning, the steamer, so they said, ran aground at the "Yankee Bonnets" three miles down the river, and were forced to walk to town. It was a novel experience.

A Clever Capture
Lindsay Post. On the 5th of July Chief Bell received the following notice from the chief of police, Peterborough: "Stolen from the hall of the Morgan House, Peterborough, on Saturday morning, 2nd July, 1898, a red colored bicycle, a 'Perfect D12', 26 inch frame, ram's horn handle bar. The name 'Perfect' is on a plate on the frame. The saddle is a Messinger." The thief was described as "a dark-complected man, clean shaven and very sharp featured, between 35 and 40 years of age." Chief Bell suspected Ezra Cornelius better known as "Sergeant Sox," but he was absent somewhere in the country. Yesterday morning Chief Bell noticed him carrying a pail of water into his house, and followed him inside, where he found a red wheel answering the description of the one wanted. He immediately arrested the brave sergeant. The accused has borne a good character heretofore and the tracing of the stolen wheel was therefore very difficult. This morning Chief Ross, of Peterborough, arrived in town and took the prisoner back with him.

No Fighting at Porto Rico Up-to-Date

All Rumors of War Settlement Published so far are Unofficial

Much Activity is Reported at Present About Gibraltar—Spain Makes Very Few Objections to Peace
Ponce, Island of Porto Rico, Aug. 3.—The Porto Ricans of Ponce lined the streets by the hundreds and filled the air with cheering on the arrival of Gen. Garretson's brigade from Yauco. The arrival of these troops and those in the St. Louis makes the fighting strength of the Americans now persisting near Ponce about nine thousand men, equal to the entire force of Spanish regular troops on the island. General Garretson's camp is temporarily located on the outskirts of the town. The brigade marched seventeen miles from Yauco to Aubrey where they arrived travel-stained and mud-battered. Almost the entire population saw the troops pass through the city, and gave them cheer after cheer.

cheer. The officers at the front commanding the four advance companies do not believe the Spaniards will make an advance. They claim the enemy will act only on the defensive.
There was some firing last night between Captain Austin's pickets and the Spaniards in the brush, but no damage was done.
All the American troops are restless, due to false alarms of the approach of the Spaniards, and they are anxious for an encounter with the enemy. It is the general belief, however, that there will be no forward movement of the main body of our troops until the other transports arrive. They are expected every hour.
The troops on board the St. Louis are reported to be in good health. She brought twelve representatives of the Porto Rican Junta of New York, whose business is to influence the people of the island not to resist the American advance. Their good offices are not necessary.
The Dixie's visit at Marro Castle on Saturday caused the utmost consternation at San Juan de Porto Rico, where it was believed to have signified the place was to be occupied within twenty-four hours. The protective cruiser Columbia, which went ashore on a reef while entering the harbor of Ponce, has been floated off, without injury.

THE SPANISH ENGINEERS
Gibraltar, Aug. 3.—Three companies of Spanish engineers and two companies of Cazadores from Victoria have arrived at Agueres. Although 7,000 troops are now distributed between Agueres, Tarifa, Ronda, Barrion, San Roque and the Spanish lines. Another battery has been erected at Sagüi Bay, Agueres, between Point Tabira and Greening.

A SMALL DIFFERENCE
New York, Aug. 3.—A dispatch to the World from Madrid says: The Spanish reply to President McKinley's note was positively forwarded to Washington late last night. Spain's objection to the President's terms is confined to minor matters, like the tolling stations in the Philippines, the settlement of American citizens' claims in the West Indies and the Cuban debt. The Under Secretary of State assured me today that the Spanish position is not really approaching, although the details are yet to be fixed, and the leaders of a mixed commission might delay the actual signature of a treaty for a time.
The Government does not expect a final reply from Washington until late Wednesday, but everything leads to the supposition that it will be favorable if the expectations of French diplomacy are realized.

HORSE FLESH 31 PER POUND
New York, Aug. 3.—Twenty-nine Spanish and French refugees from Havana and Cardenas landed yesterday from the Norwegian steamer Fridtjof Nansen from Sagua, La Grande. All but two were well supplied with money. Petrona Rovana with his family, fled from Cuba on the Fridtjof Nansen.
"Money, of which there is no scarcity in Havana, is useless in purchasing the necessities of life," said Senor Rovana. "The only meat to be had in Havana before the Nansen left Sagua on July 26 was from the carcasses of horses and dogs. Every day an average of ten or twelve persons died in the streets from starvation. Highway robbery and burglary are prevalent everywhere in the city."
The famous Insular hotel, together with other hotels, has been looted to clear its doors. The landlady could not secure provisions. Fully twenty-five percent of the big stores have been looted.
Senor Rovana said that all the concentrations are not dead, but he wondered how any survive. On Thursday night the Spaniards were starving in the parks while people are starving all around. Bread has risen to 25 cents per pound, while horse-flesh is selling for a dollar per pound.

NO REPLY FROM SPAIN
Washington, Aug. 3.—Up to 10:15 o'clock the French Embassy had not received the Spanish response to the American peace terms (although communications not definite in character, had come to hand).
PEACE ON SATURDAY
London, Aug. 3.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "Spain, it is asserted here, has accepted the United States terms, with important reservations, and the peace preliminaries will be signed before Saturday."
MARIA TEERSA TO BE RAISED.
Washington, July 30.—The Navy Department has posted the following telegram from Admiral Sampson to Playa, July 30.—The Spaniards, Maria Teersa, upon which the wreckers are now engaged, will be floated and brought to Guantanamo as soon as a small leak is located, which is somewhere in the bow of the ship. Whether this leak is due to a small valve being left open or a hole which may have been made in the bow is not yet known. Her own pumps are being used to remove the water, there being steam in one of her boilers.

OFF TO CUBA
New York, Aug. 2.—The hospital steamer Solace left the Navy Yard and resumed the battery shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, bound out. It is said she goes to Santiago first and then at Porto Rico. While she has been added to the powers already in use to keep up a continuous circulation of fresh air, other improvements have been made to give a comfortable comfort to sick and wounded.

THE OTHER FLEET PEACHED.
After doing the job we went to hotel and played cards with the hotel keeper until 3 o'clock in the morning. This job was given away by his partner, who got drunk and gave the thing away. For this Pare got 7 years.

HIS COURT CONFESSION
Pare's Story About the Nap- anee Bank Robbery
HE TELLS OF SEVEN MEN Interesting Story of the Star Crown Witness at the Robbery Trial

There was a Very Large Crowd in the Court Room Despite the Hot Weather—Great Interest Evincd
Napinee, Ont., Aug. 3.—During the recital of Pare's story yesterday the three prisoners implicated, Ponton, Mackie and Holden, sat looking intently at the narrator. Ponton and Mackie were very anxious countenances, but Holden seemed quite cool, and sat with his arms folded and listened apparently intently to the narrative.
Promptly at 9:30 the court opened. The room was again crowded to excess, despite the sultry weather. The interest seems to be growing as the case proceeds. Pare again took the stand, and Porter started the cross-examination.
Asked by Mr. Porter his name, he answered, George Edward Pare. He said he had other names, such as Howard Bellanger. These, he said, were aliases. Some of my chums call me "Old George," and he, "but not for eight or ten years, and that in Montreal." He went by the name of Howard for six or eight years. Asked under what circumstances he took the name of Howard he said "I thought it was time for a change."
Further enquiry elicited the fact that he went by the name of Howard when he went to Manchester to rest, eight or nine years ago.
The name of Bellanger was taken for the purpose of depositing the money. He wrote a letter to Mackie in June last, under the name of Bellanger or Howard, he could not remember which. He said his age was 36, was born in St. Thomas and spent 12 or 13 years of that time in prison.

HIS EARLY LIFE
Pare stated that got a fairly good education, and was a printer by trade, which occupation he learned at St. Roch, Que.
Here Porter asked him what he followed after leaving the printing business, and he answered that he could not remember what he did 37 or 38 years ago. Finally he said that he went to the States and visited, and after he was discouraged he came back to Montreal, and ran the Waverley House there for a year.
IN THE SALOON BUSINESS.
This narrative brought him down to the year 1868, and after this he went to Detroit, and rented a lager beer saloon, which place he kept for two or three years and came back to Montreal to stay there.
After a year or so I rented a saloon on Logan street, and ran this for a year. While there I was drunk and was arrested on the street with a revolver in my possession, and got three months for this.

CRACKED WHILE IN JAIL.
Here the prisoner stated that this was his first connection with crooks, whose acquaintance he made while in jail. A few months after my release I was arrested for robbing the title of a butcher shop, and for this offence I got three years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.
This was in 1879 I finished my term there, during which I learned a new trade, after working for a long time in Montreal after my release I went to Quebec to stay with a friend and was ready to do anything, either straight or crooked work, whichever offered. In coming back to Montreal I obtained a clue that several hundred dollars was to be paid certain place that night, and overheard the conversation I made up my mind to go there and get it. I secured the services of a friend, and we entered the broker's office and got the money, some $4,000.

THE OTHER FLEET PEACHED.
After doing the job we went to hotel and played cards with the hotel keeper until 3 o'clock in the morning. This job was given away by his partner, who got drunk and gave the thing away. For this Pare got 7 years.

HIS UNCLE HELD IT
Here Porter asked the prisoner what he did with the money, and he answered: "I put it in Mr. Lawton's safe, who is an uncle of mine. This man was charged with holding the money. I told the authorities that he was perfectly innocent of any knowledge that the money was there, and he succeeded in establishing his innocence at the trial. For this offence I got seven years and a half of which I put in. An allowance was made for good conduct. I came out of St. Vincent de Paul in 1885. Here the prisoner related the escape of Herwood and Williams and stated that he was supposed to go with them, but he did not get away, because he was not with them at the hour planned for the escape.

THE RAILWAY LOSES
The Privy Council Decides Against Them
LEAVE TO APPEAL REFUSED
And the Judgment of the Court of Appeal, May now Stand

The City Can Therefore Collect Some $7,000 on this Account—Case heard in the Court of Appeal Toronto, Aug. 3.
Mr. Christopher Robinson, Q. C., has called from London that the Privy Council has dismissed the Toronto Railway Co's application for leave to appeal from the judgment lately delivered by the Court of Appeal upon the city's right to assess the railways and wires on the city streets. So that this litigation is now closed, and the street plan of the city, the telegraph and the telephone companies is finally assessable.
The case which the Privy Council was asked to hear involved only the assessment in Wards One and Two for 1897, amounting to $164,114. They were also to hear the statement which the Attorney-General has put before the Court of Appeal at the request of the Street Railway Co.
The city can, therefore, collect some $2,450 on this assessment. But the Court of Appeal has since given a judgment in Bell Telephone v. Hamilton, which puts the manner of assessing in dispute again, and makes further litigation necessary before taxes can be collected on street plant for subsequent years.

TROOPS ARE MARCHING
First Battalion to their Progress Expected at Arbolito
San Francisco, Aug. 2.—In reply to a dispatch received from General Merritt, now at Cavite, Gen. Merritt today stated that since the departure of the former five transports, with 4,997 men had sailed for this port. (Barcelo had the message received before General Merritt received from the War Department word that General Merritt had asked to have his command increased from 23,000 to 50,000 troops in order to be able to meet any emergency which may arise on account of the hostile attitude of Aguinaldo and the insurgent forces.)

SERIOUS COMPLICATIONS AHEAD.
London, Aug. 2.—A dispatch to the Times from Cavite, dated July 28, says: "It is becoming more apparent daily that there are serious complications ahead. The Americans never made a greater mistake than in bringing Aguinaldo and the insurgent leaders here and giving them arms and ammunition for free use from the Cavite arsenal. Aguinaldo's degrading negotiation by the Americans openly opposes them."
"Either he has been corrupted by some foreign power or he has a false notion of the strength of the Filipino revolutionaries, failing to recognize that their recent successes are due to the concentration of Spanish strength at Manila, consequent upon the presence of the Americans. Although he admits a foreign recognition, he takes of his Government and divides to the American authorities in absurdly inflated terms."
"He has compelled the natives at the southern approaches to Manila to register their bullocks, ponies and conveyances instructing the owners not to supply them to the Americans for transportation without his sanction. Brigadier General Anderson promptly adopted firm measures warning Aguinaldo that force would be used to impress the means of transport, which were ultimately forthcoming. Aguinaldo's attitude makes future negotiations against Manila problematical."
"In my opinion, with the aid of the fleet, the city could be held by the Americans. No doubt but the complications with the natives prevented an advance. Now the present rains have set in making camp and field operations arduous and threatening the health of the men which until now has been excellent."
"Aguinaldo's forces encircle the city, making daily and nightly attacks. The Spaniards still hold the whole of the suburbs. Occasional stories are made in which the loss of life is slight. Two miles behind Aguinaldo's lines, south of Manila, five thousand American troops are encamped. The remainder are at Cavite. Aguinaldo is understood to have objected to the advance of the Americans to ground captured by the insurgents, forgetting that his landing was effected by the grace of the Americans."
"I am convinced that the Filipinos will never capture Manila unaided, the fate of the natives under Spanish rule would be worse than before. There would be constant fighting and trade extension would be impossible. The best solution of the political situation would be that America should annex the island, dealing firmly and justly with the natives and insisting on their immediate disarmament."

DECIDES ON TORONTO.
In Cleveland he was janitor of a building, and in the spring, when he was tired of it there he had $400 and wrote his sister that a letter would find him in Toronto. This was in the Spring of 1897.
The prisoner here said he was in Montreal for a day or two each fall. He took a flying visit to Montreal to see his mother, and when interrogated by Mr. Porter that he had not mentioned this in his narrative, he said: "Well, it can be put in between the 'ifs' and 'buts'."
He insisted that Mr. Porter should not mistake him this time, and try to catch him again when he said he saw his mother, that at this time he saw his mother, his sister, the cook, the maid and the cat.
Pare stated that he received letters in Toronto one from his mother, and one from Jack Beach, head of the whole case.
When there he went to Bellevue. This was in May, about the end of the month.

THE VERDICT

Esther Thornton came to her death as the result of a rifle shot—it was purely accidental.

The adjourned inquest into the cause of the death of Esther Thornton was resumed last night in the council chamber.

Coroner Bell presided briefly the grounds on which the inquest was held.

Dr. Young, who had given partial evidence at the Nichols' hospital—continued his testimony: Was at his own residence when called to attend on the deceased. She was lying on her side and bleeding from a wound about an inch below the right ear. In accordance with instructions he and Dr. Clarke had performed a post mortem examination and ascertained that a fracture of the spinal column, caused by a bullet, was the cause of death. Dr. Young examined the body at his own residence when a boy called and asked him to visit Esther Thornton, who had been accidentally shot. Dr. Young was lying about six feet from the fence, which was six or seven feet high. The hole in the fence was about six inches from the top. It would be impossible for a person in the adjoining yard to see into the Thornton yard. Saw a man hanging on the clothes line. Distance from where the shot was fired to where the deceased was lying was between 50 and 60 feet. Deceased was shot. The general opinion was that the occurrence was purely accidental. Bullet exhibited was the one which had ever been seen.

In answer to a jurymen. The boy was sitting on the steps of the corner house. He could see over the fence from the position he occupied. Deceased said she was unable to stand when requested to do so. The hole in the fence would be in a direct line with deceased's neck if she was hanging erect.

Dr. Clarke, on being sworn, said: He assisted Dr. Young in making the post mortem examination and corroborated the report made by Dr. Young. Examined by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun. Was called to assist Dr. Young. Saw bullet hole in fence which was between 6 and 7 feet high. It would be impossible to see into the Thornton yard from the Seymour yard. Couldn't see into the Thornton yard from the steps where he understood young Seymour fired the shot. The bullet hole in the fence was about three or four feet from the ground. Saw the bullet and considered it fit only for shooting sparrows.

Considered the death as purely accidental, but thought that the town should introduce preventative legislation.

Examined by County Crown Attorney Wood. Didn't know that there were many deaths in the country from the use of small calibre fire-arms. Had heard of a similar case in Massachusetts.

Mr. Dennistoun objected to evidence foreign to the enquiry being introduced. He attributed the cause of the death to ignorance of the power of the rifle. They were called penguins but were really rifles. He also corroborated the report of the post mortem examination.

John Seymour, being sworn, said: He was ten years of age. Resided on Water street adjoining Mr. Thornton's residence. Was on the kitchen steps with his brother, Archie, on the evening in question. Archie was shooting at a can on the clothes line. First just one shot when he heard a scream in Thornton's yard. Went with his brother into Thornton's to see what had occurred. Archie got over the fence first. Found Esie Thornton lying on the ground with blood coming out of her neck. Archie for the doctor. First time rifle was used.

Examined by R. M. Dennistoun. Had been in camp two weeks. Archie got rifle while he was away. Witness put rifle on clothes line. The fence was taller than Mr. Dennistoun, who is over six feet. Couldn't see into Thornton's yard and didn't know there was anyone there. Archie had an air-gun previous, which wouldn't shoot through a board. It shot lead bullets. Archie went for Dr. Brown and had paid one dollar for the rifle.

Miss Nellie Laird, on being sworn, said: Was with Miss Thornton in the yard at time of accident. Saw Miss Thornton fall but didn't know what had happened her. Ran to her and found her wounded. Deceased asked some one to go for a doctor and said she was dying. Saw Seymour boys get over the fence about a year after shot was fired. Only one shot was fired. On reaching the victim Archie Seymour said he would go for the doctor. Didn't know the boys were in the yard. Didn't know they were there talking and couldn't see over the fence. Deceased was 5 feet 6 in. in height and couldn't see over the fence. County Crown Attorney Wood did not deem it necessary to proceed further with the evidence and the case was accordingly presented to the jury.

After half an hour's deliberation the following verdict was rendered:

That Esther Alma Thornton came to her death on Aug. 2, 1893, in the Nichols' Hospital, Peterborough, as the result of a shot from a rifle in the hands of Archie Seymour, on Saturday, July 30, 1893; and that said shooting was accidental. We would suggest that recommendations be made in the proper quarters, looking to the discharge of firearms in towns, as we understand the discharge of such is not at present illegal.

R. J. Wirth, R.W. Bell, Foreman, Coroner.

This concluded the proceedings.

Mr. H. Calcutt has bought the Idyl Wynd summer resort and has installed Mr. S. Beckett as manager.

The following excursions are booked for the next few days: Today, Aug. 4—H. Calcutt's free gift excursion and the Salvation Army moonlight. Saturday, Aug. 6—The Young People's Society Union moonlight excursion. Thursday, Aug. 11—The Sons of England moonlight. Friday, Aug. 12—P. Hamilton's excursion to Jubilee. Saturday, Aug. 13—Calcutt's afternoon excursion.

CITY LIGHTS AND SHADES

Happening in Town and District During Past Twenty-four Hours

Belleville's rate is 23 9-10 mills for the current year.

Heat has no terrors for the genuine home crank, and suburban roads swarm with them every day.

Open trolley cars are very popular after the sun goes down these evenings.

There are seven tents of campers below Crawford's Grove. Six more are just across the river and sixteen are in the vicinity of Ross's ridge.

A new horse has been purchased for the fire department, and was being practiced on the hose wagon yesterday morning. It was purchased from a farmer near Bethany for $105. The horse has been destroyed, with value.

A remarkable find has been made at Knapton, Western Australia, in the gold field there, in the shape of a nugget, weighing 1,636 ounces and valued at $32,500.

Both the steam drill and dredge are now at work at Hastings' pumping out the channel above the dam, while a large gang of men are employed at the dam putting in piers for a coffer dam preparatory to building two more sluices.

A by-law will be voted in by the ratepayers of Campbellford authorizing the Council to raise the sum of $2,000 for the purpose of constructing an "Imperial Light" with a capacity of 2,000 lamps of 16 candle power.

A gentleman with a hand bag and a suitcase, having taken a long ride, made a nice haul from the inn-keepers in town. He had both powders, silver fish pills, etc. It was discovered that the pills were a wintergreen candy sold by confectioners at about ten cents a pound.

Mr. Joseph Sedgwick, of Douro, while coming into town Tuesday with a load of grain was hit by a wagon, badly cutting and bruising his face and receiving a severe shaking up. He was brought in to the Nichols' Hospital, where he is now progressing favorably towards recovery.

Mr. T. O'Connell, a day or two ago shipped 37 head of fine working horses to Mr. A. Thompson of Winnipeg. They were all bought in four days in the surrounding townships and good prices were paid. There is money in horses if the right kind is raised to meet the demand of the market. Another lot is to be bought for the same Winnipeg dealer.

For the past two weeks bush fires have been raging off the northern portions of the townships of Digby, Dalton and Langford and in addition to timber, other losses are required. The camp of the Langford Lumbering Co. has been destroyed, including house, barns and outbuildings of J. Hart, near Sadowa. Mr. John McCrea of Hawker took in a gang of men the other day to protect the county bridges threatened, and Mr. Porter, walking home for the Langford Co., has a number of settlers watching value portions of the company's limits. If rain does not soon fall the loss will be very great.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The Managers Within Our Gates and Other Paragraphs of a Personal Nature

Miss Maud Kelly has returned from a visit with friends in Lindsay.

Port Hope Guide. Mr. H. Calcutt, Peterborough, was in town today. Mr. J. F. Sullivan and family, of Ottawa, are visiting friends in Peterborough and Ennismore.

Rev. W. R. Young passed through town last evening on his way to Port Hope after a vacation in Grimsby.

Rev. C. H. Kenrick, rector of St. Mary's church, Port Hope, will sail for England on Thursday of this week.

Miss Clara Garlick, of Rochester, is visiting her mother on Simcoe street.

Mrs. John Scott, of Galt, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. N. M. Anderson, of San Francisco, Cal., are the guests of Mrs. W. J. Scott, London street.

Miss Maud Mowry and Mrs. Wm. Scott of Sarnia, Ont., left yesterday morning on a visit to friends in Galt. Miss Eva Whitten and Miss Lena Meredith, of Orillia, have been the guests of the Misses Whitten for the last few days.

The Lindsay Post says: Mrs. Wm. Fleming, of Peterborough, who has been the guest of Mrs. Fred Taylor and Mrs. J. A. Campbell for some weeks has visited nearly all of the charming summer resorts and picnic spots on our chain of waters, and thinks they far excel those on Stony Lake or the Ottawa.

REFUSED THEIR AID

Hotel Keeper Rountree Has a Poor Opinion of the Central Fair

A few days ago a committee of the Peterborough Agricultural Society, as is their usual custom, visited the hotel and leading places of business in town, soliciting aid to the fair. Everything went well until they tried to get the hotel on Hunter street, kept by Arthur Rountree, where their reception, to put it mildly, was exceedingly chilly.

A member of the committee suggested to Rountree to enter his name in the subscription book for at least a couple of dollars. Rountree, it appears, retired to a drinking stall, leaving his guest standing at the bar and after drawing the curtain, told them that he would give two dollars to keep the show out of town with some other remarks that would not look well in print.

It is hardly necessary to add that the committee retired and subsequently decided to give the facts to this great family newspaper for publication. We fancy the individual referred to will not again be subjected to the humiliation of being invited to aid even so worthy an object as an agricultural fair. Nufsed.

HOW SHE WAS TROUBLED

"I was afflicted with that tired feeling and had no appetite. A friend advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did and in a short time my appetite was better and the tired feeling was gone. Since then we always take Hood's when we need a blood purifier." Mrs. S. Kinch, Beatrice, Ontario.

NEWS IN THE OLD DAYS

Now the Wreck of a Steamship in 1859 Was Reported.

The ocean passenger steamer Franklin ran ashore on the south side of Long Island, opposite Center Moriches, at 8 o'clock on the morning of July 8, 1859. There was a dense fog prevailing at the time, and the officers of the vessel lost their bearings completely and did not know exactly where they were when the steamer stranded.

Surfmen and boats were not so plentiful along the coast line in those days as they are now. Several hours elapsed before boats were secured equal to the task of making their way through the surf to the steamer. Until communication was had with the vessel nothing was known about her. Finally a boat's crew came ashore, and the vessel's name and destination were made known. Her commander made arrangements with Sidney B. Topping to go to New York and report the stranding of the steamer to the board of underwriters, whose office at that time was in Wall street.

Mr. Topping at once crossed the bay in the mainland and hastened up his home to a light wagon and started for Patchogue, 14 miles away. It was just nighttime when he stepped into the wagon. At Patchogue he changed horses and continued his journey to Babylon. Another change of horses was made at that place, and Mr. Topping started for Jamaica. His horse was pretty well winded when that place was reached, and he changed animals and continued on to Brooklyn, and crossing the ferry drove to the underwriters' office in Wall street. It was just 6 o'clock in the evening when he ascended the office steps. He had made the journey of a little more than 70 miles in exactly six hours.

Having reported the full details of the wreck to the underwriters, Mr. Topping drove around to the office of a leading newspaper and furnished the information for publication. He received a check for $80 from the paper and was told that had he brought a copy of a foreign newspaper from the Franklin they would have given him $100.

Mr. Topping was postmaster in West Hampton during the war and was a prominent figure on the east end of Long Island. He died in West Hampton at the age of 91. —New York Herald.

General Brooke Lands 3,000 Men in Porto Rico in Order to Outflank the Spaniards
Ponce, Aug. 3. (via St. Thomas, Aug. 4).—General Roy Stone, while reconnoitering northwards along the road leading to Arecibo, on the north coast with a company of the Second Wisconsin Regiment, encountered opposition at Utuado, where a small force of Spanish regulars and volunteers had been instructed by Captain General Macias to resist to the bitter end. The Spaniards refused to surrender and General Stone telegraphed back to Adjutant that he would push on, aided by a force of natives armed with machetes. Before the messengers left Adjutant, where 12 men had been left, a Spanish force was reported to be between General Stone and Adjutant, picketed on the trail between Adjutant and Utuado. HOLDING UP OF PONTON

E. Pare Continues His Story About the Robbery

BANK CLERK WAS CANNY

Proposed at One Time to Blackmail Him to Force Him to Divulge

Porter's Clerk Questioned Confused Pare on Two or Three Occasions—The Sign to be Given
Napane, Ont., Aug. 4.—The court resumed business again this morning at 9.30, and again every available seat was occupied in the court room. The day is again excessively hot. Pare opened by explaining to Mr. Porter that the reason he was called in this job was that there was more help needed in the scheme that was on foot since the early spring, and that he was not the principal mover in the scheme. Pare said he saw Detective Dougherty here last fall on the evening that Mr. Porter's client, Ponton, was acquitted. "Dougherty was standing in the office of the Paisley House, and I heard some one say: 'That's Dougherty, and I took a good look at him, and knew him again when I saw him in 'Manchester'."

Mr. Porter took the prisoner back again to the time when he came to Napane to look after the job here, and Pare said after a conference that the four and he (Pare) took a walk down town the next forenoon, to have a look at the bank, and Rouch pointed out the bank building and the two doors opening on the Market Square. Rouch explained that one of the doors led upstairs, and the other was a private entrance to the rear of the bank.

"I made another tour round the bank and came round the bank again, and went in the alleyway leading to the rear of the bank, and discovered that there were two sheds behind the bank."

TO BE TRIED FOR COWARDICE

Ponce, Aug. 3, via Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 4.—The Spaniards are reported to be advancing, though this is not generally believed. In addition to the regular fortifications at Ayonitas, on the road to San Juan, it is reported that the enemy has mined the cliffs preparatory to bombing the road, if obliged to retire. San Martin, the Spanish commander here, who evacuated this place without orders, is a prisoner at San Juan de Porto Rico. He will be tried for cowardice, and will probably be executed.

DON'T WANT INDEPENDENCE

New York, Aug. 4.—A dispatch to The World from Hong Kong says: Numerous delegations of wealthy and educated Filipinos have waited upon General Weyler in the last three days to express their dissent from the reported attitude of President McKinley upon the question of annexing the Philippine Islands to the United States.

The powerful, cortes and business families are sending telegrams to President McKinley, Senator Hanna and Secretary of State Hay, asking for that they do not want independence for the islands and they think America does not appreciate the wealth and resources of the Philippines. "Agustino is waiting until he knows President McKinley's position. The rebel chief says if he must fight Spain again he is ready and willing to do so, but he is going to have men and money now to win."

WANT OF LOYALTY

London, Aug. 4.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: The Madrid press strongly blames the want of loyalty of the volunteers in Porto Rico have displayed in allowing the American invaders to pass a "walk-over" instead of this being a battle to diminish the regret felt here at losing the island.

"Sancho Guzman, Calvo and other chiefs of the Spanish party in Cuba, who have recently returned to Santiago, speak demonstratively of the loyalty of the islands and declare that America will be compelled to keep an army of 100,000 men there for years to come."

THE POSITION OF THE CHURCH

Pontion, Aug. 4.—Most Rev. Sebastian Marinelli, the Papal delegate in the United States arrived in Pontion last night, making a short stay with the Jesuit fathers of St. Mary's Church. When asked what would be the effect of the annexation of Porto Rico to the United States he answered: "I am not a politician and do not know enough to give the law to tell whether it will be a benefit to this country to own it or not. So far as the interests of the Puerto Ricans are concerned there is no doubt that they will profit by the change."

"Will your jurisdiction as apostolic delegate extend to that island when it is annexed?" he was asked. "That is a question for the holy see to answer. My lines of jurisdiction are already drawn and I cannot extend them without a positive order from Rome. What will be done in that regard, if anything is done, is a question of the future, and one upon which I have had no communication with the Pope. Political changes do not influence Rome in the management of the church. We can safely say she will do what is for the best."

"Will the church suffer in any way from the political changes that are likely to take place in the Philippines and other Spanish islands?" "I do not think that any one who knows the American people would for a moment entertain a thought that the church will be in any way interfered with wherever the United States by conquest or purchase acquires territory. The change of government will take place I suppose, but I expect to see everything else go on as it has done in the past. Priests as well as people will be as well treated as they are here in the United States and the church will go on doing the good work she has done in the past, perhaps with a little more freedom."

THE NIGHT FIXED

When we met again we decided to inform "the man in the bank" that if something definite was not done pretty soon we would have to try some other plan, and when Holden came back from interviewing him, he said: "It was decided to have everything ready for that night."

THOUGHT OF BLACKMAIL

"We next talked of blackmailing 'the bank man' if he would not help us. We said that he could not draw out of it now, as we would tell it was his consent that the hole was bored, and in order to cover himself up he would have to take money out of the bank to keep us quiet."

"Holden and myself would not agree to this as Wapoose said he knew the bank man meant well and would come round all right when an opportunity occurred."

"Holden and myself walked down town separately, and Holden said he saw his man and would meet him by and bye."

THE BICYCLE SCHEME

At this conference the man in the bank talked of taking Durant out by bicycle riding and holding them up to get the combination.

"We met and made the arrangements where the hold-up would take place, and the details were arranged. The arrangements were that the man in the bank favorable to this would take Durant out by bicycle riding, go out the Newburg road and return by the Cemetery road. We four were to be waiting on the hill above the cemetery, and when they passed down they would come back about dusk, and we would stop them, take them into the cemetery and make them divulge the combination. We were to be armed with revolvers and if we could not force them to tell the combination we would torture them until they gave the combination. When we had all the details arranged Holden took to express the bank man of the details of the arrangements. Holden brought back the report that the bank man would come out the next night and talk the matter over and make himself familiar with the plan."

"He came on his bicycle the next night and Holden met him. Rouch and I stayed back a little later and I stayed back. The report that they brought back was that this would be easier than getting Durant in the bank to play cards. Sometimes he promised to come and would not come, and other nights he brought some of his friends in with him, and that made it very hard to work the job successfully. And in their estimation the hold-up would be easier with two than four or five in the bank."

BI-CYCLE GAME OFF

"The next day we were to pass the bank at 12 o'clock, and if the wicket window in the bank was open that was to be a sign that the game was on. Rouch came down at 12 o'clock and reported that the window was open. In the evening one was to stay at the covered bridge and see the fellows start out, and then come on and join us in the country. We stayed there until 9 o'clock and they did not come."

"We began to be discouraged, and thought there could be nothing doing with the hold-up in the bank what with windows in the bank all round and Watchman Perry coming round regularly every half hour."

Mr. Porter here asked the prisoner how he got so familiar with the watchman's movements when he had been only twice down town. He replied: "It was easy enough for me. He gave the reason that the bicycle ride did not mature, that Durant was invited out to spend the evening and put the ride off."

THE COMBINATION SCHEME

"We again talked over some other plan and I suggested working the combination and explained how I could work the job. I would get 'the man in the bank' to give me an impression of the key held in the door, and then I could make a key, set it and work it out."

Holden was to see 'the man in the bank' and talk with him about the new scheme, and he found this met with the bank man's approval, who said he would rather have it worked that way than the hold-up."

That night the bank man came out, but without the impression of the key. Holden met him at the junction of Center street and the railway track. The court adjourned until 2 o'clock.

STILL TALKS

When court resumed in the afternoon Pare was still being cross-examined. He described minutely his meeting with the man in the bank to whom he was introduced by Holden as 'George,' the new man. The man in the bank was called 'Willie' by Holden. Pare gave a long-winded description of how he instructed 'Willie' on picking the safe and how to take the impression. Pare gave Ponton a piece of wax to take the impression. The man in the bank went away and returned with the impression. Pare said he would make a key, but was not able to do so by the next night because he hadn't any wire. The man in the bank was that night instructed how to change the combination.

GREAT RAILWAY SCHEME

A Russian Scheme on Foot for this Purpose

THE EMPEROR SUCCESSFUL

He Obtains an Order from Rome for the Protection of R. C. Missions

London County Council will Spend $200,000 in Constructing a Foot Bridge from Greenwich to Millwall

Constantinople, Aug. 4.—A great Russian scheme is on foot for connecting the Mediterranean sea with the Persian gulf by railway. Count Vladimir Napier, nephew of the Russian Ambassador at Vienna, backed by an international syndicate, has submitted to the Sultan an application for a concession for a railway starting at Tripoli harbor, Syria, and ending at Koveyt, Persian gulf. The line will touch the Euphrates near Deir, traversing the stream at Hit, and continuing between this river and the Tigris to Kurna, where both rivers meet. Thence the line will run to Basra, and will have its terminus in the Persian gulf. A cross line is also proposed from the Persian frontier at Khankin to Bagdad, Kerbala and Nedab. The through line will shorten the journey to Bombay by five days, assuming a speed of sixty kilometres an hour. The scheme is calculated to diminish largely the importance of the Suez canal, by attracting the bulk of light goods and through passengers. Besides this, similar schemes have been repeatedly put forward by English promoters, but without success, as they have failed to receive energetic support from the Salisbury Government.

TO TUNNEL THE THAMES

London, Aug. 4.—The London County Council will be asked by their Bridge Committee to instruct the chief engineer of the Council to proceed with the construction of a footway tunnel under the Thames from Greenwich to Millwall. The cost is estimated at $500,000.

TO BE TRIED IN TORONTO

Montreal, Aug. 4.—Detective Burroughs of Toronto, had met with success, and will leave with his prisoner Vezina for Toronto this evening. It was decided by the authorities here that they could do nothing with the charge of forgery standing against Vezina on account of lack of evidence, and Detective Burroughs succeeded in making arrangements to take him back to stand his trial for bearing money under false pretences in Toronto.

KILLED AT SANTIAGO

Kings on Ont., Aug. 4.—James Connors has received intelligence that his brother, Peter Connors, had died at Santiago, Cuba. Particulars are not to hand. Peter had been here last spring for New York, shipping aboard the auxiliary steamer Princeton, formerly the passenger steamer St. Louis. He may have left the steamer at one of the ports on the coast, and gone to the front with the army. Death was well known here.

SCHRAIER GOES

Toronto, Aug. 4.—Schraier of Schraier, the "Lion Heart," left town rather suddenly this morning. He got wind of the fact that the police were preparing a case against him for "charlatanry" and went.

GILLESPIE COMMITTED

Montreal, Aug. 4.—Magistrate Lafontaine this morning committed W. E. Gillespie, manager of the firm of Gillespie & Co. Penitentiaries, to await trial in the Court of Queen's Bench. In his judgment, Magistrate Lafontaine said that false reports had been made and circulated, and it was proved by incorporation certificates produced that Gillespie was the sole manager of the company. By an inventory of the stock taken by an employee of the company, it was shown that the value of the stock was only $2,502.50, instead of $2,750.00, as estimated in a letter to the Thimbleau Bros. At the time of the assignment Gillespie said his book debts were worth $3,500 as assets, but Magistrate Lafontaine found that the book debts had previously been assigned to S. F. McKinnon, of Toronto, and therefore could not be counted as assets.

Men, women and children who are troubled with eyes, humors, pimples, etc. may find permanent relief in Rod's Sarsaparilla.

WALRUS LEATHER.

Good For Making Whips For Polishing Other Polishing Appliances.

Walrus leather is best for making whips, for polishing wheels, steel and all other. It has a peculiar grain that holds the emery or polishing powder well. It takes about five years to make a walrus hide. Some walrus leather is made in the country, but the bulk of it is imported from England. Leather made from the hide of a walrus would be about half as thick as the hide of an old bull. The hide of a walrus is about two inches thick. The value of the leather depends upon its thickness. Half inch would sell for about 50 cents a pound; 1 1/4 inches would be worth $1.00 a pound, and walrus leather from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 inches thick, smooth and well trimmed, would be worth $2.00 a pound, and a side of walrus leather would cost about $500.

Walrus leather is made in a variety of shapes, depending upon the work on which they are used. They are made with a fine grain, grooved, cone shaped or of any shape that may be desired, and by cementing layers of leather together wheels of any desired thickness are made. Walrus leather is also used for valve seats for polishing purposes. Three-quarter inch bull necks sell at about 50 cents a pound. Leather made from the hide of the walrus is used for polishing purposes. This is a smoother and softer leather used for softer metals. Sea lion leather of an average thickness costs about 50 cents a pound. Built up wheels of any thickness are also made of walrus and of bull neck leather.—New York Sun.

The Lost Purse.

"I have had my pocket picked!" exclaimed a middle aged woman, as she hurriedly entered a suburban police station a day or two ago.

"Where did it occur?"

"In a shop in the High street, and I know it was a man who stood near me took it."

"How much was in it?"

"I can't say, Mr. Jones, it was this way: I came out to do some shopping. I put my purse in my pocket when I left home. When I went to pay for the goods, it was gone. I think I had about 50 shillings."

"Did any one have an opportunity to pick your pocket?"

"I suppose they did."

"Sure you brought the money with you?"

"Yes."

"Are you certain you did not lose it?"

"Do you think I'm a fool, sir?" she indignantly exclaimed. "When I say I had my pocket picked, I know what I'm talking about."

"I hope you do, ma'am, but—"

At this moment a boy entered the room with the purse in his hand and said:

"Here's your money, ma. We found it on the place after you left the shop, and Sarah sent me down to the shop after you."

The woman and the sergeant looked at each other for a few seconds. Then he smiled. Then she got mad. Then he said he was glad she had found her money, and she retorted:

"I don't believe it! You wish I had lost it! I'll never come here for help again, never!"—Penny's Weekly.

Songs That Sing Themselves.

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvelous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. SERVANTS' LIVES.

They Had Their Origin During the Days of King Philip of France.

So far as the present writer is aware, the earliest mention of "lives" made in history was during the reign of King Philip of France, who flourished about the year 1200 A.D.

A form of entertainment to which King Philip was partial was what were termed "lives." These were entertainments of which, upon the king's invitation, all the lords and courtiers of France were expected to be present. They were held twice in each year—at Christmas and Easter—and generally lasted for about a week at each time. Sometimes these gatherings took place at the king's palace, sometimes in the neighborhood of one of the largest French cities and sometimes in some rural district. While the festival lasted the king took his meals in public, bishops and nobles being privileged to sit at the royal table. A second table was provided for doctors, writers and other leading men, and at both tables there was "shown more protection than delicacy; both in the quality of the meats and drinks and the manner in which they were served. Fives, hantons and other musical instruments were played before the masters of each house as it was removed from the table. When dessert was served, 50 heralds, each holding aloft a jeweled goblet, shouted "Largesse, largesse from the most potent of kings!" As they shouted they scattered among the crowds handfuls of gold and silver coins. Then the trumpets were blown, while the better class spectators cheered and the poorer sort assembled and often fought vigorously for the money scattered by the heralds.

Charles VII of France put a final stop to the "lives," alleging that the expense attendant upon his wars with England made it impossible for him to entertain them. One of the greatest causes of expense, it was explained, arose from the fact that, beginning with King Philip's time, etiquette and custom alike demanded that the king should upon these occasions give an entire suit of new and gorgeous clothing not only to his own servants and retainers, but also to those of the queen and all the princes of the blood royal. These garments were said to be "lives"—that is, "delivered" at the king's expense—and from this word the English word "livery" was derived, as was the custom of providing servants with "livery," from the above mentioned practice of certain of the French kings.—London Standard.

Tennyson's Poem of Burns.

Mr. Aubrey de Vere contributes to the biography of Lord Tennyson a report of some conversations with the poet, in which was disclosed his singular freedom from the spirit of rivalry.

In these conversations he never uttered a word that was disparaging or tainted with the spirit of rivalry. The only point I heard him criticize roughly or unfairly was himself. "Compare," he once said to me, "compare the heavy handling of my workmanship with the exquisite lightness of touch in Keats."

Another time he read aloud a song by one of the chivalrous poets of Charles I's time, perhaps Lovelace's "Albion," which Wordsworth also used to croon in the woods, and said, "There, I would give all my poetry to have made one song like that."

Not less ardent was his enthusiasm for Burns. And here an incident with no small significance recurs to me. "Read the exquisite songs of Burns!" he exclaimed. "In shape each of them has the perfection of the burr, in light the radiance of the dewdrop. You forget for its sake those staid things, his serious poems."

The same day I met Wordsworth and asked Burns to him. Wordsworth praised him even more vehemently than Tennyson had done as the greatest genius who had brought poetry back to nature, but ended: "Of course I refer to his serious efforts, such as the 'Cotter's Saturday Night.' These foolish little amatory songs of his are too far gone."

I told the tale to Henry Taylor that evening, and his answer was, "Burns' exquisite songs and Burns' serious efforts are to me alike tedious and disagreeable reading."

So much for the infallibility of poets in their own art.

Trends in Rock.

Stories of trends inclined in solid rock are not at all uncommon, but of all the reported cases not one has ever been substantiated. When investigated, it is found that they are made up stories or that there was no trend or no rock or that there was a way for him to get in or get out. People who find trends in solid rock must understand that it is an impossible matter. If ever there is one single case verified beyond dispute of finding a trend or a trend in a solid rock, the science of geology will be swept from the realm of belief. The doctrine of evolution will crumble to dust. Nothing of the sort can be proved. There will have to be a complete revision of the whole of human knowledge. It will have to be revised from the bottom and most of what is so called science entirely. So the man that finds the trend had better be pretty sure that it is a trend in a solid rock, and while he is about it he had better have witnesses and photographs and everything possible to be had in proof of his assertion, for it will be doubted. If he proves his case, no man ever known will have such enduring fame. Just find the trend, gentlemen.—Milwaukee Journal.

THE EXCITABLE FRENCH.

Scamp Is the Member of Legation With the Member of Legation.

With Mr. Wind at the afternoon of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense crowd called in a stentorian voice for "La personne qui a fait demander M. Constant"—or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it really was—advanced toward the waiting member, who never looked back, the march of hospitality being probably the same in this regard throughout the legislative halls of the world.—At last M. Talabier appeared and got the place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representative hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little looked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Brial, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Left, or radicals, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted and gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and they quieted down. He might put on his hat and adjourn the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the dock or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always, the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'etat, yet I heard it said about him that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign. One saw at a glance how much profounder political differences must be in France than in us.

Showered on Thirty Minutes Courtesy.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once, "but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1891 I got a pretty country girl passenger on a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 A. M. A few minutes later at another small station a big baggage car came in, and I saw a man in a brown suit, with his trousers hitched in his hall boots, get on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he asked the rustic lady, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had called at her."

"I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river miller of the mill sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 10 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, partner, we want to get hitched. I ain't known Miss Jane here but 50 minutes, but we both like her, and she's willing on so'm I. What's the slightest reason, partner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prices offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louisiana Black Cap.

There is one particular part of the case belonging to the order of the self—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their eyes when passing sentence of death. Little is known concerning this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sergeant Pulling, in his work "The Order of the Coffin," says: "The black cap, or sentence cap, of the judges and sergeants is certainly not the self, as Lord Campbell repeatedly states. It is, on the contrary, the covering expressly assigned to veil the self on the only occasion when the self was required to be hidden. By the ancient privileges of the sergeants the self was not to be taken off even in the royal presence. The chief insignia of the order was to be as displayed when sitting on the bench or pleading at the bar, but this rule came always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death."

The head of the administrator of justice was then covered, as a token of sorrow, by the black sentence cap. This covered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, is a combination of a cap and a piece of black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder, and then the judge places the cap on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Analogous Reasoning.

A poet professing his work to an editor said:

"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read it the editor put it into a drawer, and handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:

"This is a small coin, but I am so bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its purity. It is nearly all silver."—San Francisco Examiner.

"Lap" Plaster.

In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to reserve the most valuable or artistic places for the "lap service." The scheme of providing such seats for the guests is to withdraw a plate between him and between the corners where are laid out each cover, one laid down with the used plate is removed. Outside, the guest next Royal Worcester china are laid out for "lap plates."—Philadelphia Press.

A Close Call
A young lady crossing Georgetown about ten o'clock last night had rather a close call. She appeared not to notice the approach of a south-bound car and managed to escape with the loss of a portion of her skirt. The projecting steps of the car were accountable for the damage. The crowd who witnessed the occurrence were most agreeably surprised at the termination of what looked like a serious accident.

VISITED PETERBOROUGH
An Eloping Couple spend a Holiday in Town.

Last night's Toronto Star contains the following:
The local police are looking for a runaway couple from Brantford, who, if they are not now in the city, have been here recently. They are Mrs. George Walton and Luther Myles.

Myles was a friend of Mrs. Walton's husband, who was a fellow worker at the Verity works. Myles often visited at the Walton's and Mr. Walton became possessed of the idea that something was wrong. Mrs. Myles also became mystified by a remark of her husband's that he was "formally a temptation he couldn't resist."

The climax came when Walton ordered Myles from his house. A week ago Saturday the two men had another row, and on the following Tuesday Mrs. Walton and Luther Myles left town.

Mrs. Walton said she was going to Oshawa. She left an old woman named Henderson to look after her children, of whom she has five, the eldest 13, and the youngest a 2-year-old baby, which was left suffering from cholera infantum. Mrs. Walton says that articles had been taken by her wife, and that she had also run up some heavy bills at the stores.

He learned from Oshawa that his wife had not been there, and he started out to search. He visited Oshawa, Port Hope, Peterborough, Toronto and Hamilton. In the latter place he heard of his wife, who was in company with a "big fellow," she said was her brother.

The next Walton heard of his runaway spouse was a letter from Toronto. Myles who acted sometimes as a special constable, leaves a wife and two children, the eldest aged 14. His wife had trouble lately in getting money out of him. Walton is a hard-working industrious man.

The Times understands that the couple occupied for a time a Queen's Street boarding house.

SECURED THE CONTRACT

The Wm. Hamilton Co. will furnish the Town with a Stone Crusher.

The town council met last night in committee of the whole.

There were present: Mayor Davis, in the chair, and Councilors W. H. White, Langford, Best, J. M. White, Hamilton, C. W. Dawson and McWilliams.

Resolutions were submitted for a stone crusher from the following firms: God Roads Machinery Co. from $990 to $1,084.50; Wm. Hamilton Manfg. Co. $800 to $850; and the Sawyer-Massey Co. $1,000.

Representatives from each firm were present.

Mr. Starr represented the God Roads Co.; Mr. Lech, the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co.; and Mr. McDonald the Sawyer-Massey Co. The merits of the respective machines were laid before the committee by the representatives of the companies.

After some further consideration it was Moved by Councilor Best, seconded by Councilor Dawson, that the town purchase a No. 5 stone crusher from the Wm. Hamilton Manfg. Co., the price not to exceed $1,025.—Carried.

Councilor McWilliams stated that the Peterborough Light and Power Co. were about erecting a new power house and were considering whether they would erect the new building in Ashburnham or Peterborough. He thought if the town would agree to make their taxes equal to the Ashburnham rate the company might decide to locate in Peterborough. He deemed it wise for the council to investigate the circumstances. The matter might be arranged on terms mutually advantageous.

After some discussion it was Moved by Councilor Hamilton, seconded by Councilor Dawson, that the town purchase a No. 5 stone crusher from the Wm. Hamilton Manfg. Co., the price not to exceed $1,025.—Carried.

The petition for granolithic walks on the north side of Charlotte street was next considered.

It was decided to ask for tenders for the construction of a ten-foot wide from George street to Aymer street and an eight-foot walk from Aymer to Bethune streets.

The erection of bridges under the by-law recently passed, was next discussed.

After many pro and con it was finally decided that the Street and Bridge Committee be authorized to ask for tenders for the bridges required.

Mayor Davis drew the attention of the council to the dangerous condition of the Hunter street bridge and advised that some action be taken to remedy the existing conditions.

As it was nearing midnight and the council had melted into less than a quorum the subject was dropped.

These midnight sessions weary even a staid man and the public reasonably expect that their representatives feel like dropping night after night to services that are not personal, but rather general.

The council then adjourned.

The Legs in the Lake Cause Considerable Trouble to Some of the Boaters.

Owing to the Rathbun Co's legs having formed a break at the lock, the steamer North Star was unable to come up with her passengers last night.

The steamer City of Peterborough came up on time last night, arriving at her dock with her passengers from Jubilee Point at 8 o'clock. She then ran a two-hour excursion under the auspices of the Salvation Army around the lake. She had intended taking them down the river but owing to the break she could not get below the locks. There were quite a number on board and a delightful evening was spent. We understand the trip was a financial success.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles.

BASEBALL

Toronto, Aug. 4.—Toronto lost the opening game of the Syracuse series yesterday afternoon at the Island by a better all-around work of the other fellows. The Stars played their cleanest ball of the year and deserved the victory. Buckenberger was to be congratulated for losing Jim Smith and Bill Egan, and if he would only keep O'Brien off the coaching lines his team would look almost eligible for decent company.

The lowest the Islanders down two, but so evenly are the teams bunched that it will only take a few victories to get back again. Montreal lost, so Irwin is no farther in points from the top than yesterday. Syracuse has still four games to play here, including a double-header on Saturday afternoon which the T.A.C. and Queen City will play off their Island League match. Toronto will make a hard fight to win the whole four. Ottawa was the only Canadian club to win yesterday, and there was joy at the Citadel. Rain prevented the game at Buffalo. The record:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Montreal	45	38	56.2
Winnipeg	41	35	53.9
Buffalo	41	31	56.8
Toronto	45	40	52.9
Syracuse	42	41	50.6
Ottawa	42	45	48.0
Peterborough	34	42	44.7
Providence	33	42	40.7

The Peterboroughs go to Beaverton today to play the return match with the Checkers of that town in the C. L. A. Intermediate series. Orillia decided to purchase a stone crusher, a couple of weeks ago, and it is expected that Peterborough will be able to do likewise. If the match is won Peterborough and Orillia will have won all their matches against the other towns and as they have split even on the beam and home game it will then be necessary for a final match to be played between the two in order to break the tie and decide the struggle for supremacy. The team to play in Beaverton is the same as that which represented Peterborough last Friday, viz: Ibbin, Lynch, Brown, Glover, Main, Jim McCabe, King, Hogarth, Jack McCabe, Phelan, Lippett and Mooney.

Arrangements have been completed with the well-known Teanum Elm lacrosse team, of Toronto, to play a match with the Peterboroughs in the city on the 25th of this month. The idea is to have the local wheelmen, and any outsiders as well, combine into teams of three each in the finish to be decided by points. It is expected that in this way the weaker riders would have a better opportunity than in an individual handicap race. The team race is certainly an interesting form of sport for there was no event which provided more amusement at the C. W. A. meet here than the team race. With so many riders as there now are in town it is expected that a big list of entries could be secured. Such an event would infuse some life and activity into bicycle racing, which so far seems to be remarkably dead in town despite the interest awakened by the C. W. A. meet.

WHEELING

An effort is on foot to have a twenty-mile handicap team race run over the Peterborough-Lakefield course at some time about the 25th of this month. The idea is to have the local wheelmen, and any outsiders as well, combine into teams of three each in the finish to be decided by points. It is expected that in this way the weaker riders would have a better opportunity than in an individual handicap race. The team race is certainly an interesting form of sport for there was no event which provided more amusement at the C. W. A. meet here than the team race. With so many riders as there now are in town it is expected that a big list of entries could be secured. Such an event would infuse some life and activity into bicycle racing, which so far seems to be remarkably dead in town despite the interest awakened by the C. W. A. meet.

CRICKET

Mr. E. M. Pousette, secretary of the Peterborough cricket club, has received a letter from the hon. secretary of the Toronto-Rosedale club cancelling the game here on August 8th, the reason given being that another fixture had been arranged for that date unknown to him. When it is remembered that this is the second time this game has been cancelled it will readily be seen that the local cricketers have good and sufficient reason for feeling rather sore over such treatment, which it is to be regretted has been characteristic of too many Toronto organizations. Now the Toronto-Rosedale club is a large organization and should be able to play two eleven in one day, when the case seems as this one does. The local cricketers have been practicing hard for this match and considerable enthusiasm has been worked up. The treatment looks shabby, to say the least, and is hardly the decent thing in cricket. However, an effort will be made to have the Toronto club keep their engagement here thus have their reputation.

SERIOUS RUNAWAY

A Team of Spirited Horses Cause Trouble Last Night.

A spirited team of horses made things rather scary for a farmer early this morning on Water street.

The farmer had been lingering over his cups and washed on taking up the reins to make up for lost time. One blow with the whip decided the horses. They bolted and ran for dear life up Water street. They were on the right on Hunter street and didn't do a thing but shake to the core the iron bridge over the Otumabee. In Ashburnham the vehicle came to grief opposite Mrs. Egan's house. The driver took a header and landed in the ditch, where he was picked up later by a "musical friend" who was covering the rear at a more moderate pace.

He was conveyed to his home in Douro and a doctor summoned.

It is not expected that his injuries will result seriously.

When the gentleman recovers it is to be hoped that he will see the error of his ways and immediately proceed to join one of the numerous Good Templar lodges which are now springing into existence as the result of the efforts of the "District-Deputy-Grand," who are now travelling the country organizing Good Templar lodges on a grand scale.

The approaching plebiscite campaign has at least one advantage—it is furnishing employment to a large number of non-descript idlers.

CITY LIGHTS AND SHADES

Happening in Town and District During Past Twenty-four Hours.

—There was no police court yesterday morning.

—Campbellford's council has struck a rate of 17 mills.

—Belleville is to vote on a by-law giving a $50,000 bonus to a rolling mill.

—Two new doctors have opened in Campbellford during the past week.

—The preliminary hearing in the bicycle stealing case will be held this morning in the police court.

—The City of Peterborough took down a good crowd on her cheap excursion yesterday morning.

—The funeral of the late Miss Thompson took place to the Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon.

—Mr. H. M. Fowles, the Hastings Star reports threshed 450 bushels of fall wheat from 11 acres last week.

—The granite sidewalks on George street are being laid remarkably fast. Some of the alternations are almost dry.

—The town of Parry Sound headed to purchase a stone crusher, and sent a telegram yesterday to know what kind Peterborough intended to buy.

—The cribwork at the Goose pond, Water street, is in very bad condition, some of it being in danger of toppling over into the river. Street Mayor Ranner had a gang of men at work yesterday repairing it.

—The jury considering the case of Miss Esther Thornton under Coroner Bell last evening was the first coroner's jury in this country to receive pay for their services, they doing so by provision of an act passed at the last session of the Legislature.

—The loss in the Gilmour mill, near Campbellford, which was burned on Saturday last, is estimated at $5,000.

—It was the work of fire bugs, who the following night set fire to the lumber piles causing an additional loss of $2,000.

—Game Warden H. K. Smith has been at Donalda's Mills, where he was making enquiry into the confiscation of a young deer by Magistrate Louisa. The Government has taken charge of the deer and it will be forwarded to Rondeau Park and liberated. The Indian John Mitchell, who captured the deer and said it was fined $20 and costs. Mitchell cannot be found and the finding of the court of inquiry in respect to himself may never be put into effect.

—The Council scored in connection with its recent action on the abolition of the Ward System.

To the Editor of the Times:—Sir,—The town council, or at least one half of them, have recently exhibited a most extraordinary spirit of opposition to the will of the people who were asked to signify their opinion as to a change in municipal government.

If the people have been misled as to the meaning of the change proposed, or have not sufficiently considered its future effect, then the least we could expect would be a full and free discussion of the subject and an explanation of the cause of the council's opposition to it, which have not been offered.

Is it that those who opposed the by-law in council are afraid of the general vote of the people as against their ward friends? Or have we reached that stage of old "foginess" when our "representatives" (if) are afraid to step out of the rut they have plundered along in for years? If these are not the true reasons for their peculiar action, let the opponents in the council come forward and state their case in a many way, otherwise we will have to be satisfied with our own conclusions.

The ratepayers have carefully preserved the names of the councillors on each side of the question for future reference and the result will surely be felt on the first Monday in January.

Yours,
Peterborough.

The six transports here will take the first shipments, and the embarkation will begin to-day. There is great rejoicing among the troops. From the moment Secretary Alger's cable message was received this morning ordering the instant removal of the army north, everything has been bustle and activity at headquarters. The transports here, six in number, have been ordered to discharge their cargoes and to get ready without loss of time to take on board the first shipments for home. Other transports are expected here shortly, the embarkation will begin to-morrow and it is expected that eighteen transports will soon be conveying our soldiers back to the United States. The Yale and Harvard, among others, are understood to be on their way here.

way here. These vessels will carry from twelve to fifteen thousand men. General Shafter's orders for the movement of his command provide the following program: The embarkation of the Third and Sixth regular cavalry, then the First regular cavalry and the First volunteer cavalry—rough riders—will be embarked.
These regiments have been ordered to be ready to go on board ship the day after tomorrow. For the present the Ninth and Tenth cavalry will remain in camp. Only the private horses of the officers will be taken. The other horses will be turned over to General Wood, who will designate an officer to receive them. General Wood remains here as military governor.
All the tents will be left standing, and all the extra worn clothing and bedding which may possibly be infected, will be destroyed.
The first brigade of General Lawton's division, under General Chaffee, will go next.
All the men able to ride will be put on horses and taken to the wharves. The others will be conveyed there in wagons. All the men who are suffering from disease or infectious diseases will be left here. Every precaution will be taken to provide for the safe and healthy arrival of the men north.
The volunteer regiments will next be shipped. All these regiments have been ordered to leave themselves ready to go on board the transports the day after tomorrow, or as soon after as possible. All the troops will first be examined by a medical board and any suspicious cases will be left in the hospital. No tenting or carrying baggage will be taken back to the United States. Captain McKim, and Dr. Goettling, of General Shafter's staff, left here to-day for the Berlin for New Orleans.

AGUINALDO'S TERSE LETTER.
Hong Kong, Aug. 5.—The following has been received by United States Consul Willman from Cavite, Philippine Islands: "I have read that I am getting the big head and not behaving as I promised you. In reply I ask why should America expect me to outline my policy, promise the future, and fight a battle for her interests when America will not be frank with me? Tell me this: am I fighting for annexation, protection or independence? I am for America, as I have defeated the Spanish everywhere, but what would Manila do if I were to leave? Manila is a city of men and arms for what the future has in store for me."

PLAN OF CAMPAIGN.
London, Aug. 4.—The plan of campaign is now being determined upon, but the nature, strength of the Spanish position at Aybionta and the character of the defensive works erected there necessitates a flank movement. The turning movement was inaugurated to-day, when General Brooke landed 3,000 men at Arroyo, sixty miles east of here. At that place he can strike the military road leading to San Juan de Puerto Rico at Cayey, beyond Aybionta. This will compel the Spanish commander, General O'Leary, to retreat, and the Spanish position will be caught between two fires. It is possible that a second column may move on his left flank also, in which case the present advance on his front is only a feint. A general advance will not be ordered until all of General Brooke's plans are reported, but when the advance is once begun it will be very rapid.
The fleet will bombard San Juan and make other diversions to keep the enemy busy at every point. In the harbor of Ponce and at Arroyo, on board ship are the third, fourth, fifth and nineteenth regiments and the 32nd Mahogany.
There are constant alarms at the outpost but there has been no fighting yet.

TO BE TRIED FOR COWARDICE.
Ponce, Aug. 3, via Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 4.—The Spaniards are reported to be advancing, though this is not generally believed. In addition to the regular fortifications at Aybionta on the road to San Juan it is reported that the enemy has mined the cañon, preparatory to blocking the road, if obliged to retire. San Martin, the Spanish commander here, who evacuated this place without orders, is a prisoner at San Juan de Puerto Rico. He will be tried for cowardice, and will probably be executed.
DON'T WANT INDEPENDENCE.
New York, Aug. 4.—A dispatch to The World from Hong Kong says: Numerous delegations of wealthy and educated Filipinos have waited upon Consul Willman in the last three days to express anxiety regarding the reported attitude of President McKinley upon the question of annexing the Philippine Islands to the United States.
The powerful cortes and bias families are sending telegrams to President McKinley, Senator Hanna and Secretary of State Day, setting forth that they do not want independence for the islands and they think America does not appreciate the wealth and resources of the Philippines.
Aguinaldo is waiting until he knows President McKinley's position. The rebel chief says if he must fight Spain again he is ready and willing to do so but he is going to have men and money now to win.

SIGNIFICANT MOVEMENT
A Powerful British Fleet Goes to Spain
FOREIGN WARSHIPS THERE
Channel Squadron Cruisers to and Fro Along the Western Coast

Report Current that Great Britain is Prepared to Support Commodore Watson Against Interference.
London, Aug. 5.—Much conversation is being exchanged in British political circles over the significant movements of the British navy in the neighborhood of Spain. Some time ago Mr. Goschen stated that the customary naval maneuvers had been abandoned this year on account of the lack of coal, caused by the Welsh coal strike. It now becomes apparent, however, that the real reason for the abandonment of the maneuvers was the desire to keep the fleet available for happenings in the neighborhood of Spain.
As soon as the announcement was made that Commodore Watson would take a squadron to the east the warships of France, Austria, Germany and Italy began to assemble near the Straits of Gibraltar and around Spanish islands in the Mediterranean.
At the same time Spain began to fortify points on Gibraltar Bay, including the Queen of Spain's Chair, a magnificent rock near Gibraltar, capable of being made impregnable.
Great Britain at once called the attention of Spain to the fact that the treaty, by which Gibraltar was ceded to England, provided that places surrounding it should never be fortified. Spain, however, ignored the protest and continued the work of fortification. The result was that the British Channel Squadron of fifteen vessels, the best in the navy, were ordered to the coast of Spain, a zone which they are now cruising to and fro. There is no doubt that one object of this movement is to impress upon Spain the necessity of abiding by the treaty.
It is said, however, that a more serious object still is behind the movements of this fleet, and that an additional reason for the presence of the British squadron in Spanish waters is that it may be at hand when Commodore Watson crosses the Atlantic with his fleet, as it is clear that the assembling of the foreign warships in that locality is due to a determination to interfere to prevent the bombardment of Spanish coast towns. With the British Mediterranean squadron close at hand, however, and the division above referred to it is not likely that any such attempt would be very successful.

DESTROYED BY A SPARK.
Barrie, Aug. 5.—Yesterday at eleven o'clock the barns and outbuildings of Mrs. Jonathan Hicking, Crownhill, were destroyed by fire. Glitching steam thrasher was at work there at the time, and a spark from the engine started the blaze. All the contents of the buildings were burned, and included 100 bushels of fall wheat, 20 tons of hay, 1 horse, 7 pigs, and the threshing machine. Some of the men narrowly escaped being burned to death, and as it was, wet their forks and coats. It was with difficulty that the dwelling house was saved.
There was no insurance on any of the property destroyed. The neighborhood at once subscribed a large amount of money to assist the unfortunate woman in bearing her loss.

CHANGING THE VESSELS.
London, Aug. 5.—Orders have been given that the second-class cruisers Cambrian and Charybdis at Devonport are to relieve the first-class cruisers Narcissus and Immortaliteon the China station. It is understood that this decision is due principally to the recommendation of Vice-Admiral Sir Edward Seymour, commander-in-chief on the China station, who is of opinion that for those waters the Cambrian and Charybdis are more valuable than the Narcissus-class with their large crews, owing guns and a maximum speed of only seven knots.

TO REPRODUCE SANTIAGO.
Paris, Aug. 5.—M. Lacroix, the French Minister of Marine, is about to undertake a series of visits to Bremen, Cherbourg and Lorient, and to give a stimulus to the work which he has projected in his naval and military manoeuvres will begin early this month, the whole Northern squadron taking part. The aim seems to be to make Brest impregnable.

Aunt Mary soon discovered that her niece had tried to dye an old dress a new color, and had ruined it. THE POSITION OF THE CHURCH.
Boston, Aug. 4.—Most Rev. Sebastian Martinelli, the Papal delegate in the United States arrived in Boston last night, making a short stay with the Jesuit fathers of St. Mary's church. When asked what would be the effect of the annexation of Porto Rico to the United States he answered: "I am not a politician and do not know enough about the matter to tell whether it will be a benefit to this country to own it or not. So far as the interests of the Puerto Ricans are concerned there is no doubt that they will profit by the change."
"Will your jurisdiction as apostolic delegate extend to that island when it is annexed?" he was asked.
"That is a question for the holy see to answer. My lines of jurisdiction are already drawn and I cannot extend them without a positive order from Rome. What will be done in that regard, if anything is done, is a question of the future, and one upon which I have had no communication with the Pope. Political changes do not influence Rome in the management of the church. We can safely say she will do what is for the best."
"Will the church suffer in any way from the political changes that are likely to take place in the Philippines?" he was asked.
"I do not think that any one who knows the American people would for a moment entertain a thought that by conquest or purchase, acquired possessions. The change of government will take place I suppose, but I expect to see everything else go on as it has done in the past. Priests as well as people will be as well treated as they are here in the United States and the church will go on doing the good work she has done in the past, perhaps with a little more freedom."

THE PRINCE AND THE RACE.
London, Aug. 5.—The Daily News says it understands news has reached the House of Commons that the Prince of Wales is taking a great interest in the Lipton challenge. His Royal Highness thinks that the unfortunate Giuseppe over the last races will not be kindly remembered in America. In deed, on the contrary, he believes that a contest well fought to the end would greatly strengthen the friendly feeling so rapidly growing up between the two nations.

JEFFRIES TO FIGHT CORBETT.
New York, Aug. 5.—Jim Jeffries, the Californian, appears to be willing enough to fight Jim Corbett. Yesterday Billy Delaney, the young Californian manager, met Tom O'Rourke, manager of the Lennox Athletic Club, and on behalf of Jeffries signed articles for his man to box Corbett 25 rounds before the Lennox club. The articles stipulate that the fight shall take place within three months and the men to receive sixty per cent. of the gross receipts.

THE PONTON TRIAL
Inspector Burke, of Boston Gives Evidence BURNED BILLS PRODUCED
He Describes the Arrest of the Prisoner Holden at Boston

Cross Examination Falls to Shake the Old Testimony—Cheque Retained by the Pinkerton People
Naples, Aug. 5.—When court opened Inspector Burke, of Boston, Mass., was called to give evidence concerning the arrest of Prisoner Holden. He told where and how he arrested the prisoner, and exhibited the money found upon him at his arrest. The fourteen silver coins were tied upon a dirty old sack. All of the coins were noncurrent in the United States. One was a five franc Belgian piece of the date 1870, upon which were four marks in indelible ink. Partially burnt bills of the unauthorised Dominion Bank issue 46,000 plus were shown. They had been rescued from the fire by Burke. The exhibits were put in a box and in open court Mr. Burke gave the box to Chief Adams. D. H. Preston, Q. C., cross-examined the witness shortly, but did not upset the evidence in any way. The cross-examination was but a review of the prime evidence. Burke found a knife, a cheque for $400 and $17 in American money. The $17 Burke gave to Mrs. Holden. He did not bring the cheque because it is attached by the Pinkerton agency upon some ground.

PRISONER GETS CONFUSED.
Prisoner Pare was again being brought to court and cross-examined by Lawyer Porter. The prisoner's memory did not seem to be as clear this morning as formerly. He got confused about where he bought the sheep from which he made a key of Mr. Burke's compartment, though he remembered distinctly the very words he used when he bought it. The witness declared that the impressions were made upon plain paper. The impressions found by the detective last year were upon printed paper. The prisoner kept the impression and he wanted to use them again. When the key was it, the impression and the first were buried in a shed on the Bay of Quinte road and Mackie was told of this. "The same day," he said, "Holden and I went to Kingston. The next day we returned to Naples. I went up to Ponton's rooms, and coming out I met a woman but I turned my head away and passed on. The next day I made a key out of a piece of brass. Ponton told me that night about the entrance from the back and said I could use it." The next night Pare went to Ponton and this later told him he had seen Mr. Buines fingering at the combination. I left the room about 9:30 p. m.

COLLISION WITH AN ICEBERG.
St. John's Nfld., Aug. 5.—The mail steamer Virginia Lake arrived at Tilt Cove on West Bay, 230 miles from here, at daylight this morning, bringing certain corroboration of the reported loss of an ocean liner in the vicinity of Belle Isle. A fisherman at St. John's reported to her that he saw a steamer collide with an iceberg and sink soon afterwards. The report is generally believed, but nothing reliable is obtained. The fisherman said that the steamer, which he called a "Buenavista," and he could see the people trying to launch boats but she sank before they could do anything.

THE CHAPEL IN FLAMES.
Buffalo, Aug. 5.—A special to The News says fire broke out in the chapel of the Niagara University, a Catholic institution near Niagara Falls, at four o'clock this morning. The chapel at nine o'clock was almost completely destroyed and the main building was burning. There is no possibility of saving the structure, and the fire apparatus is totally inadequate. The loss already is $7000. The fire is attributed to an incendiary.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

BLACKBIRD'S GRAVE.

LAST RESTING PLACE OF THE FA-MOUS INDIAN CHIEF.

On a bluff that is now inside the City of Omaha—On its Summit the Chief Watched For His White Friends—Remains of the Omaha-Ponca Feud.

Omaha has within her city limits an unknown and unshared for historic spot which in a few decades will be looked upon with far more interest than it has in the past or is now, for the value of historical places grows with the distance in time from the events which made them historic. This spot, which is in Omaha, and yet has been forgotten and neglected by the city, is the grave of the famous Omaha chief and warrior whom even Washington Irving thought worthy of a place in his writings. This chief lived in the latter part of the last century, dying in 1798. In those days, according to Irving, the Omahas looked upon themselves as the most powerful and perfect of human beings, and considered all created things as made for their peculiar use and benefit. The leader of this tribe, Blackbird, or Washington, as he was called, was a warrior of the highest class. Early in life he had been taken a prisoner by the Sioux, where he had his mortal death. Under his leadership the Omahas attained a reputation among the other tribes that they never had possessed before. The Pawnees having inflicted an insult upon an Omaha brave, Blackbird led his men against their severe and slaughtered many of the inhabitants and burned it to the ground. He also waged a fierce war against the Otoes until peace was effected by the interference of the whites.

Yet, notwithstanding his fiery disposition, he fell a victim to Cupid's darts. The Poncas had raided the Omaha tribe and carried off many of their women and children. Blackbird took the field with the sworn determination of eating up his enemy. So fiercely did the battle rage that the Poncas began to sue for mercy. A herald was sent out with the pipe of peace, but he was shot down by Blackbird. A second herald shared the same fate. As a last hope the Ponca chief then sent out his daughter, arrayed in all her finery and bearing the calumet of peace. Her charms conquered. A treaty was made, and Blackbird married the herald. She became his favorite wife, yet nevertheless in one of his ungovernable fits of rage he killed her with a single blow of his knife.

No sooner did he see her lying dead at his feet than his anger left him, and for three days he lay by her corpse—dying motionless and fasting, no food. On the third day his people began to fear that he intended to starve himself to death and entreated him to be comforted. He paid no attention to their entreaties, and at last a warrior brought a little child into his presence and placed it beneath the chief's foot. This appeal brought him to himself, and, arising, he made a speech to his followers and solemnly threw off his grief as easily as he had taken it on. In 1798 the smallpox swept over Nebraska, and Blackbird was one of its victims. The following description of his death and burial is quoted from Washington Irving's
"Astoria":

"When the general horror and dismay were at their height, Blackbird himself was struck down with the malady. The poor savages gathered around his bed and forgot their own misery. His dominant spirit and love for the white men were manifested in his latest breath, with which he designated his place of sepulture. It was to be on a hill or promontory upward of 400 feet high, overlooking a great extent of Missouri river, from whence he had been accustomed to watch for the barks of the white men. The Missouri washes the base of the promontory, and after winding and doubling in many links and mazes in the plain below returns to within 800 yards of its starting point, so that for 80 miles navigating with sail and oar the voyager finds himself continually near to this singular promontory as if spellbound.

"It was the dying command of Blackbird that his tomb should be on the summit of this hill, in which he should be interred, seated on his favorite horse, that he might overlook his ancient domain and behold the barks of the white men as they came up the river to trade with his people.
His dying orders were faithfully obeyed.
His corpse was placed outside of his war steed and a mound raised over them on the summit of the hill. On the top of the mound was erected a staff from which floated the banner of the chief's name and the eagle that he had taken in battle. When the expedition under Lewis and Clark passed part of the country (1805), the staff still remained, with the fragments of the banner, and the superstitious rite of placing food from time to time upon the mound for the use of the deceased was still observed by the Omahas."

"That promontory is now within the city limits of Omaha," says Dr. Mercey, "and I looked the grave 80 years ago. When I came to Omaha 80 years ago, the river wound around in the shape of an 'S,' and this promontory upon which I found the grave exactly answers to the description given by Irving. It is in the north part of the city, and Williams street would run through it if extended to the river. Just east of the bluff the bluff descended, the roofs of which reach nearly up to the top of the hill."

"The Omaha camp was located in the bottom beneath the bluff and a little to the north. This point was Blackbird's favorite place for sitting to watch for the coming of the traders with whom he was very friendly. No doubt, you have heard the story. When the traders came up, he greeted them most friendly, made them open up their goods and selected what he wanted himself. Then he called to his wife and compelled them to trade. The whites made up for their gifts to him by the extra charge they put upon the goods sold, and not an Indian dared kick. The chief had got his tribe and his people had to pay for it."

"There is another story about the old fellow. He was great on superstition, and when pursuing the enemy would fire into their tracks, claiming that would kill them. He posed as a kind of god, but after awhile some of his people grew skeptical of his superhuman power and refused to obey him. In this difficulty he consulted his friends, the white traders, and they told him to prophesy the death of all who disobeyed him. He did so, announcing according to instructions that all who were disobedient would die a mysterious death upon a certain day. When that day came, he invited the whole tribe in to dine with him, and put a dose of arsenic in the bowl of each man whom he wished to serve as an example of his godlike power.
Of course they died. From that time on his power was never questioned, and the traders who put him up to the trick and furnished the arsenic stood higher than ever with him."—Omaha World-Herald.

CAPONS.

The Market Results of the Operation by One Who Knows.

We reproduce herewith the cut of capon, showing just how this class of poultry should be dressed for this market. You will notice that the feathers are left on the neck, legs, wings and rump, and also that the tail feathers are left on. Otherwise capons should be dressed for this market the same as other fowls, except that they should be dry-picked, as it would be impossible to scald them and have part of the feathers on,
and if they are scalded, the same as other chickens, they will not bring any more than the price of common fowls, for they are distinguished more by the way they are picked than in any other manner. All other chickens sold better in this market scalded, while turkeys sell best dry-picked.

P. R. Sprague, of the Sprague Commission Company of Chicago, a firm which deals largely in poultry, writes as follows on the subject of capons and their market:

Capons are in the best demand with us from the first of November until the first of May. For the last year or two there have been a great many common

CAPON READY FOR MARKET.

roosters dressed in capon style and sent to this market, which has hurt the capon trade some, but still good capons always bring a good price. The larger the birds are, the more they will bring per pound. Birds that weigh less than seven pounds each will not bring any more than common chickens, as a rule.
Each year the call in this market for genuine, large capons becomes greater.
The reason is that people are becoming educated to the enjoyment of the luxury.

Looking over the quotations on Jan-1st we note that large and choice capons sold, dressed, at 15c per pound, while mixed lots brought 12c per pound. What are termed "ships" (cockereels that have been imperfectly castrated) sold at from 8c to 10c per pound. A capon will bring upwards of three times as much as a cock. Capons grow to be larger and heavier than cocks and may, if well bred, be made to attain a weight of from 12 to 15 pounds each. A capon of such weight will sell for from $2 to $3, while a cock will not bring more than 50 cents. Yet it costs just as much to raise cocks as to raise capons.

When raising capons the breed should be carefully considered. If the operation is performed early the capon will not develop a comb. The operation should be performed before the bird is three months old. It is a waste of time to use small breeds and scrub, as they will only sell as second-class stock. The largest capons, according to our information, are produced by crossing a cock-ing male with Brahma hens, and the best in quality are produced by keeping the pullets of the Dorking-Brahma cross and mating them with an Indian gamecock. The capons so produced are about the size of the Hinsham, the cockerels of the Dorking and the full breast and juicy qualities of the Indian game. Other good crosses may be made by the use of Houdan males with Brahma, Cochin or Plymouth Rock hens, or the Dorking or Indian game may be used in place of the Houdan. The hen should always be large. The form and quality are mostly derived from the male.

A capon grows and fattens on a small amount of food. The first point should be to secure large frames and fatten them after they are fully matured. If the capon is produced from a large breed
it should have plenty of time for growth —about fifteen months—for every pound is valuable. The food should be nourishing but not fattening. Corn is undesirable until near the time for fattening.
Wheat, oats, pounded bone, meat, milk and green food, all that it can eat twice a day will be sufficient to help the capon rapidly in growth.

Capon should be put in a small yard (not too crowded) three weeks before being sold and fed four times a day, giving plenty of corn, and also a variety of other food. One of the best preparations for fattening capons is cornmeal and ground oats, equal parts, adding half a pound of crude tallow to every quart of the mixture. Moisten the whole with skimmed milk or boiling water and season with salt.
Buyers are not so particular about the color of the legs and skin of the capon as they are of its size and attractive appearance in other respects, yet a yellow leg capon holds an advantage. Yellow legs may be secured by using Plymouth Rock males on pullets that have been produced by mating a Dorking male and a Brahma hen. Such a capon will be of excellent quality and will be ways bring a good price. Light Brahma males are also mated with Cochin hens in order to secure large capons, but they do not have that full breast which is imparted by the Houdan, Dorking or Game. If the color of the legs is of no consequence, the Houdan male and Langshan hen produces excellent results when mated.

The comparison of a well-bred, well-kept and well-fed capon with a cock of the same breeding, will show that where a cock reaches ten pounds weight in a given period of time, the capon will weigh one-third more, and the difference in price is three to four times as much.
It, instead of keeping the yard, and of useless and unprofitable cockereels, venturing that there would be a greater desire to have more cockereels hatched than pullets. By keeping good breeds, neighbors may be induced to use the eggs for hatching purposes.
Then the surplus cockereels may be bought at a slight advance, as they will prefer to keep the pullets for their own use. By then providing the neighbors with pure bred males every season there will be no limit to the supply of eggs for hatching cockereels for capons.

DAY OF THE CLIPPER PAST.

On the Steamship "Hesperus" For Good From Most American Ships.

"Steamship got of hand," said the skipper as he pulled vigorously at his old day pipe, which has been around the Horn as many times as his own. "Well, they may be, but it is because American steamship has abolished them on American ships. However, an old clipper of mine who is a bit of a crank and left this port the other day, still carries a topmast funnel. It may be for sentimental reasons, just as a Confederate veteran might display the flag under which he went to battle, but steamships are just as practical to day as ever.

"Steaming sail," you say? Oh, yes, steaming sail may be literally expressed, but Jack says "steaming." He objects to nothing but sailing ships and words like long and long. He wants to have all the time in every thing perhaps except rain. The corruption of language by sailors is proverbial. Steamship may be a corruption of sailing ship. But steaming sail itself is a corruption of sailing ship or sailing ship, which in my opinion was the original term. The steamship, although only a moderate weather, was a driving mill. One year's carry steamship today in the form of the immense side sail that is called the steamship.

"It costs to fit a ship with a suit of steamship. They use means extra labor for the crew, or a larger crew, and their storage takes valuable cargo room. This means expense for the ship, which her earnings in these days of railroads and ocean steamships do not warrant. The cargo that sailing vessels carry today do not demand quick transportation, with its high freight rates. The modern sailing ship is little better than a floating warehouse. It is not driven. Spars and canvas are not pressed as they were before the advent of the steamship. Sailing a ship to make a short passage is one of the lost arts. There is no demand for auxiliary canvas such as gaff sails. The Yankee clipper is out of existence.

"Away back in the middle of the century the stars and stripes floated over ships that were really clippers below and aloft. In competition with one another and with foreign craft our clippers carried valuable cargoes—tea from China, coffee from Rio and fancy merchandise to San Francisco. The steamships do the tea and coffee carrying now. It was not in those days a good way to please run. The clippers were under orders to get there to catch the top of a market. Hours saved on the voyage, long though they were, meant many dollars for all concerned. Ships were driven then with canvas that fairly smothered them in fair weather and foul, and Yankee seamanship, with its characteristic judgment and nerve, was recognized and rewarded.

"But all this is merely a memory now. I can fancy the clippers of the fifty years ago, rising against the clear sky of the lower latitude, her sails mounting above the blue horizon, her top upon skyscrapers, moonbeams, cloud cleaners, a snow white pyramid, an angel's foot stool, as Jack says. Did they carry steamships? Ah, no to the royal yards."

English Jacobite Societies.

To judge from the list of Jacobite clubs and associations given in the "Legitimist Calendar for 1898," which includes the order of the White Rose, the Devon White Rose club, the Legitimist Jacobite League of Great Britain and Ireland (pseudonym title), the Stuart Counties (shades of Cromwell), White Cockade club, the Forty-five club of Grimsby, the Glasgow Jacobite club, the Oxford University Legitimist club, the St. Ives (Hants) Jacobite club, the Jacobite Restoration League, the Surrey White Rose League, the Mary Stuart club of Lonsdale, the Legitimist Restoration Union, the National Royalist and Jacobite association, the order of St. Germain and the Hemingford Grey Royal Oak club, not to mention our old familiar Thames Valley Jacobites and two or three foreign legitimist bodies, it ought not to be difficult for the supporters of the lost house of Stuart to put several hundred adherents in the field (or even Lodgegates) if they so desire.—London Mail.

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that is much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophones are literally songs that sing themselves. As an entertainer, the Graphophones might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. A REMARKABLE CONTEST.

A Ship Woman's Struggle to Outlive an Invalid for Her Children's Sake.

A remarkable case developed at Morrisville, Ind., says The St. Louis Republic. George Chandler, a banker and resident of Greenfield, several weeks ago executed his will, dividing his large estate among his nearest relatives. Among them was Eliza Burton, to whom he had bequeathed $10,000, which she was to receive providing she was not living with her husband, Charles, at the time of the testator's death, she having married Burton against his wishes. It was also stated in the will that, should the testator survive the wife, the bequest was to go to the legatee named in the will, not to Burton nor his heirs.

Soon after the will was drawn Burton died, leaving Mrs. Burton to support the children, which she did, by taking in washing, sewing, etc. Several weeks ago the illness taken ill, and at about the same time the childly uncle was also stricken. Both grew constantly worse. The neighbors and friends of the widow took great interest, wishing her to survive the uncle, having learned the provisions of the will.

Greenfield and Morrisville have telephone connections, and the friends of the widow were kept constantly informed of her condition. At times the mother would seem to be breathing her last, but stimulants would be administered and she would revive, or long enough to enquire as to the condition of her relative, when she would return to a comatose state.

This was continued thirty-six hours, and all hopes of prolonging her life were virtually abandoned. Finally a message came that Mrs. Burton had died. The death longed for by the friends of the widow, and the friends of the uncle, were virtually abandoned. Finally a message came that Mrs. Burton had died. The death longed for by the friends of the widow, and the friends of the uncle, were virtually abandoned.

"ALL THINGS ARE MINE." "I do not own an inch of land, but all I see is mine. The orchards and the mowing fields, the lawn and garden, the wild flowers and the meadows, a tribute rare and free. And more magnificent than all, my windows keep for me a glimpse of blue immensity, a little strip of sea."—Chicago Record.

A wild boar hunt was the exciting sport a number of the young men of South Jacksonville had looked forward to last week with a great deal of pleasure. The wild boar was a rare beast. He was installed in a pen and fed with red pepper, gunpowder and dynamite, and became as fierce as his reputed cousin of the Black Forest. On the day of the hunt a cavalcade assembled at the meeting place armed with javelins and spears made of bamboo with hunting knives tied to the end.

The wild boar was liberated and trotted away into the woods. He squealed a half-contented, inquisitive, where's-he-rest-of-my-family sort of a squeal with no thought of the pursuers who whirled and whipped their horses into various pursuit. The wild boar trotted along—just stately and coolly trotted. He didn't look back as he was going, but the gait soon distanced the pursuers, and they were robbed of the pleasure of "jabbing" him full of holes.—Florida Times Union.

A Georgia man, who was unpopular in his community, insured his life for $4,000. He took the policy home to his wife and said:

"Maria, here's a life insurance document for $4,000."

"Thank you, dear," said his wife.

"How are you feeling today?"

"Not well," he replied, "and I don't think I am long for this world, and I want to say to you that when I die I want you to have the $4,000 of the money to defray my funeral expenses."

"Merry on me," exclaimed the wife, "why do you want such an expensive funeral?"

"I'll explain. I'm perfectly satisfied that nobody will attend my funeral, and I want to hire people to go to as much a head. I'm going out today and see what arrangements I can make for attendance on that forthcoming melancholy occasion. If they won't come gratis, why—I'll just hire 'em as an order on you for the money."

He went forth and at nightfall returned with a dejected look.

"Maria," he said, "it's no use. You can have the whole $4,000. Just go to my funeral yourself."—Atlanta Constitution.

THE TRUST FACE.

Here is a Composite Picture of It—Study It.

Observe the Trust Face, says The New York Journal. Before you are a composite picture of seven men who are not only among the richest in America, but who control the price of seven of the necessities of civilization.

The names of these men and the commodities they control are: HENRY O. HAVEMAYER, sugar; PHILIP D. ANDERSON, oil; J. PIERCE FENNER SMITH, flour; ANDREW CARNEGIE, steel; JOHN ARDUEN, cotton; JAMES H. BECK, rubber; CHARLES H. JOHNSON, tin.

When you look at this composite picture you see the face of the most successful man who could exist, according to the standard of rich men.

THE TRUST FACE.

The basis of the photograph is Henry O. Havemayer, the "Sugar King." He is chosen because he has the most typical face of the group.

The richest man in the composite picture is John D. Rockefeller, but he does not have a great effect on it. His features lack strength, although they have a curious sharpness. He is thin, round, and somewhat of a mustache only, and has a dull and weary look. It has been said that he looks more like a country clergyman than a millionaire. The reason of his success is his power of influencing capital to almost unlimited.

Philip D. Armour of Chicago has the strongest and most attractive face of the lot. He supplies beef to and three quarters of the people of the United States and to a large part of those of Europe. Fifty or sixty thousand people receive direct support from his meat packing establishment alone.

J. Pierpont Morgan, the financier, is organized as the chief financier on Wall street, has found time among his multifarious occupations to organize a combination which profitably controls the supply of anthracite coal from Pennsylvania.

Andrew Carnegie, of Pittsburgh, controls the prices of steel rails throughout the world. To John A. Rockefeller of the Trust, the composite picture is indebted for the flowing whiskers. Charles H. Johnson of the Rubber Trust, is remarkable for very fierce, black side whiskers.

A PLACE FOR URNS.

A Classic Temple for the Ashes of the Dead.

Cremation evidently has not overlooked the love of the beautiful in man in its endeavor to provide for the disposal of the dead. The new Odd-fellow's columbarium at San Francisco is a demonstration of this fact, as the picture and description from The Call of that city shows. The Call says:

The structure was originally designed by the architect of the city, and the ground plan of the columbarium shows a circular building, carrying the outer dome intersected at the four cardinal points by rectangular wings between these four wings are four quadrants formed by outer walls, concentric with the inner wall, but running up only as high as two stories.

Inside of the main circular wall is a series of staircases, carrying with them two galleries, or arcades on their outer periphery, and pleasing on the inner circumference a spacious rotunda clear from the floor to the lantern dome. In this way the building becomes divided into well-defined portions—central rotunda, main galleries, wings and quadrants.

Standing on the mosaic floor under the supply of light of the great stained glass window in the dome overhead no one will be conscious of the vast number of niches in the galleries and wings around him to be at some time the resting place of the dead. This impression is much enhanced by the use of heroic materials.

On the gallery, parapets, stairways, and the entire floor of the rotunda are set, forming a part of the architectural scheme, are these: These are of alabaster and bronze, while the mortuary tablets below are of white Italian marble. The main stairway is of marble and bronze and the entire floor of colored mosaic.

The niches are of cement, varying in size, and ranging along the brick wall, one above another, in not more than five rows. The niches are surrounded by light bronze with doors in front, left open or covered with marble slabs to suit the taste of the purchaser. It will be possible to buy groups of niches of any number required and have them all covered with one comprehensive tablet, on which may be engraved any device or inscription the owner chooses. There will be great variety in the size and position of niches. Space has been reserved on the exterior of the building, in the front piazzas, in the vestibule, and in the columns of the rotunda. These spaces will be disposed of at higher rates, according to their location and prominence.

The whole exterior of the building is finished in artificial stone of the lightest color, dotted with gold. The design is Italian renaissance in character, and

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

County Police Court
County Magistrate Edmondson has issued a warrant for the arrest of Thos. J. Bowen, a young man who was employed by the Rathbun Co. as cook at Lakeside last winter. Bowen has been arrested and is to be held on remand until he can be removed to the county jail. Bowen is charged with having been absent from his work for several days without leave, and with having been employed by the Rathbun Co. as cook at Lakeside last winter. Drowned in Lake Temiskamingue
Mr. Lofthouse, of Geleit, states that on July 20th a drowning accident happened on Lake Temiskamingue, the victims being Mr. J. Deynema, and Mr. Long, of the Lakeside settlement, former residents of Haliburton county. Mr. Deynema and his son, accompanied by Mr. Long and a man named White, were crossing the lake in a sailing skiff, when a sudden squall overtook them. Mr. Deynema and his son were rescued after being in the water over an hour.—Lindsay Post.

PETERBORO' ALL THE WAY

They Administered a Decisive Defeat to Beaverton Yesterday

The Peterborough Lacrosse team journeyed to Beaverton yesterday and had no difficulty in winning the last game of the series by 6 goals to 1.

The Peterboroughs were a little slow in warming up and the first two games were evenly contested, but after that the result was never in doubt.

The boys found it hard work to play a good combination game on account of the unevenness of the ground, it being almost impossible to judge a bounding ball.

For Peterborough, Money, at inside home, was the bright particular star, he scoring five of the six goals credited to Peterborough by superior headwork. Lipsett scored the other goal for Peterborough from a beautiful low pass by King.

Beaverton possesses some very fast individual players in Rainey and the Cameron brothers, but they lack combination play, and it is impossible to win without that now.

Quite a delegation from Orillia was present at the game and some of the spectators. Among them were Houlton Kean, the redoubtable lobby Watson, Thompson and the O'Connor brothers. They were there no doubt to get a line on Peterborough and see if they had improved any since the last meeting with them. No doubt they took a few things home with them to dream over.

The Peterboroughs should be in good shape for their game with the Beaverton-Elms on Monday, and no doubt they will give a good account of themselves. The teams and positions yesterday were as follows:

Peterborough—Dobbin, goal; Lynch, point; Brown, cover; Mein, 1st defence; Glover, 2nd defence; McElroy, 3rd defence; King, centre; Hogarth, 3rd home; Jack, 2nd home; Phelan, 1st home; Lipsett, outside home; Money, inside home; B. Dolan, field captain.

Beaverton—McKinn, goal; Rainey, point; Graham, cover; Hamilton, 1st defence; McMillan, 2nd defence; Talbot, 3rd defence; H. Cameron, centre; A. Cameron, 3rd home; West, 2nd defence; M. Cameron, 1st defence; Cameron, outside home; McInnes, inside home; Burdard, field captain.

Referee—W. Hall, of Markham.

The games were scored as follows:

1. Peterborough—Money—1 min.
2. Beaverton—H. Cameron—12 min.
3. Peterborough—Money—12 min.
4. Peterborough—Money—1 min.
5. Peterborough—Lipsett—8 min.
6. Peterborough—Money—10 min.
7. Peterborough—Money—13 min.

AN EXHIBITANT FEE

The Tweed News "Exhibit" the Ontario Government

Yesterday's issue of the Tweed News contains the following: In accordance with the terms of the law passed by the Ontario Legislature in 1897, Inspector Rogers joined on Walter L. Mann circus at Ottawa on Wednesday of last week and was with it here on Friday. The duty of the provincial officer with the circuses is to disperse the large army of fakirs at all events to keep them from robbing the people who patronize the circus. Mr. Rogers will go with the show until it leaves the province. For this protection the circus has to pay the government a fee of five hundred dollars per day, and as a result of this exorbitant fee, the local municipalities in which the circus pitches its tents receive only a very trifling fee. Tweed, for instance, receiving only $15. It is impossible for the circus to pay this large government fee and pay anything like a reasonable fee to the municipality and the government deserves to be censured for its selfishness. The local municipality has to bear the expense of keeping up the roads which the circus people make use of and upon which there is considerable wear and tear in consequence, and have to pay for the extra police force that is necessary on days of this kind, while the provincial government provides the services of the man only, and yet receive all the benefit financially.

A party of Spaniards under the command of Gen. Wheeler (Wanagah) is expected to arrive at Port Spears late Saturday night and it is anticipated that Commodore Watson (County's) fleet will make a capture.

A HOT TIME

Mr. J. B. McWilliams After the Scolding of Certain Councilors

The six members of the council who defeated the third reading of the amalgamation By-law have placed themselves and the town in an unfavorable position. Sec. 373 of "The Municipal Act" expressly provides that the council shall within six weeks pass the third reading of a By-law approved by the ratepayers and those councillors who have wilfully disregarded this provision have brought themselves within Sec. 138 of the Criminal Code, which makes them liable to one year's imprisonment. Moreover the council can be compelled by Mandamus to pass the By-law and any ratepayer can take action in that direction and compel the refractory councillors to pay the costs. We understand Mr. McWilliams has instructed his solicitor to take the necessary steps to enforce the law.

An alarm of fire yesterday afternoon called the brigade out for a blaze in the dry grass in the south end near Chamberlain street.

O. P. R. PRO-NIO

Sixth Annual Picnic of Employees, Toronto to Montreal

Six years ago the employees of the O.P.R. east of Toronto separated themselves for picnic purposes from the employees west of Toronto. The chief movers were stationed at Havelock and Smith's Falls. A managing committee, consisting of sixteen members, was appointed, and the entire matter placed in their hands. No changes of account have occurred in this committee since its organization. The chairmanship goes in rotation by election each year, the chairman this year being Allan Grant, of Perth. The other officers are more permanent, G. O. Weeks, of Smith's Falls, being secretary and R. Bennett, of the same place, treasurer.

The managing committee appoints sub-committees, the most important of which is the programme committee, consisting this year of G. Spencer, L. L. Ross, D. Robertson, W. S. Doida and John Carey. These gentlemen, after several meetings, have succeeded in arranging a programme disposing of $500 in 16 events—many of them having six classes. Baseball, lacrosse, bicycle races and tug of war are given prominence and large prizes. The grounds at Perth, where the picnic will be held the coming 12th of August, are large and in fine shape. The band committee have secured two excellent bands. These picnic have heretofore been held in succession in Smith's Falls, Peterborough, Perth, Marysville, Havelock, and this year again in Perth and in no case has the attendance fallen below 6,000. For three years running as high as 8,000. The picnic charges the employees a uniform fare of fifty cents no matter what the distance, and the railway ticket admits to the grounds. Excursion rates are given others, and their tickets also admits. All other admissions are twenty-five cents. Parties leaving Toronto at 3 a.m. reach Peterborough at 9 a.m., where an excursion train is made up running through to Perth, reaching there at 11 a.m.

The picnic is not under the auspices of any association of employees, but is conducted solely for the purpose of sustaining and increasing the fund in the treasury, amounting to $1,200, which is used entirely for charitable purposes among the employees. The matter of this distribution is entirely within the managing committee—no rule is prescribed; each case resting upon its merits. Assistance is given to the needy, and to the orphans of employees, as well as injured employees. This committee are allowed to grant themselves their expenses, but, heretofore, unlike other men, they have voted themselves nothing.

ON SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Ezra Cornelius, of Lindsay, Charged with Stealing a Bicycle Appeared in Court Yesterday

Ezra Cornelius, of Lindsay, who was charged with stealing a bicycle belonging to Mr. N. Williams of Co. 4, from the Morgan House, on Saturday, July 2nd, was tried by Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning for the offence and found guilty. As the evidence showed, however, that he had a wife and family and that he had heretofore borne a good character, he was discharged on suspended sentence.

An amusing development occurred at the close of the case. The prisoner maintained that he had had in his possession on July 1st a red wheel similar to that which he had taken and which belonged to Mr. Williams and that he had taken the wrong one away with him. There was an old black wheel produced in court which had been left in the Morgan House at the time Mr. Williams' wheel was stolen, but the prisoner's counsel endeavored to prove that Cornelius had taken a red wheel there and then taken Mr. Williams' away by mistake. But as soon as he was discharged Cornelius claimed that the old black wheel was his, entirely oblivious of the explanation that he had been a red wheel and that therefore he had got it confused with that of Mr. Williams, which was of the same color. Cornelius, having been deprived of the stolen one, thought it time to reclaim his own property. Mr. E. B. Stone defended the prisoner.

The People's Faith

Firmly Grounded Upon Real Merit—They Know Hood's Sarsaparilla Absolutely and Permanently Cures When All Others Fail.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is not merely a simple preparation of Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and a little Iodine of Potassium. Besides these excellent alternatives, it also contains those great anti-bilious and liver remedies, Mandrake and Dandelion. It also contains those great kidney remedies, Uva Ursi, Juniper Berries and Pipsasava.

Not are these all. Other very valuable curative agents are harmoniously combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla and it is carefully prepared under the personal supervision of a regularly educated pharmacist.

Knowing these facts, is the abiding faith the people have in Hood's Sarsaparilla a matter of surprise? You can see why Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, when other medicines totally, absolutely fail.

SPAIN WANTS PEACE

And will Accept Conditions Imposed by U. S.

STORY OF NEGOTIATIONS

A Continuance of the War was Rendered Impossible

Owing to Reports Received from Porto Rico Cuba and Manila—Weyler Declines to Enter the Conference to Discuss Peace—General Miles Advancing Madrid, Aug. 7.—Spain's reply to the United States has been completed and the correspondent of the Associated Press learns & accepts the American peace conditions.

ALL ABOUT THE CONFERENCE.
New York, Aug. 7.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says the net result of Premier Sagasta's conference with Spanish leading statesmen and warriors is that there will be no serious opposition to accepting peace on American terms. The representatives of the parties opposed to the Ministry talked much, but had no practical policy to suggest other than bowing to what they all acknowledged to be inevitable. A carefully arranged program of consultations was carried out. Every leader was requested to call at a certain hour "and the limit of his interview was fixed. In this way the two days were fully occupied and no time was wasted.

Senior Sagasta laid before each one of the high personages consulted a written memorandum, revealing the undisguised situation—the precise conditions which Spain must face.

It explained how the soundings initiated by French diplomats had resulted in the Spanish Cabinet being persuaded to ask for peace before the war should bring further disasters.

The memorandum then related how M. Cambon, the French Ambassador at Washington, had been fully instructed by the Spanish Government what to say and do on its behalf. How he had labored but in vain, to prevail upon President McKinley not to insist upon the ceding of Porto Rico, and not to throw the whole Cuban debt upon Spain; how he finally secured more favorable conditions for the settlement of the Philippine question and the selection of Paris instead of Washington as the seat of the labors of the mixed commission, how he actively urged his cause when Spain, on receiving President McKinley's conditions of peace, asked for some explanation and time to consult the leaders of the parties with a view to avert parliament obstruction when the Cabinet should go before the Cortes to render an account and submit a peace treaty next autumn.

The memorandum also contained a full synopsis of the reports of the Governor-General of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands, on the extent of the resources left with which to prolong the struggle, and the spirit of the army, the volunteers and the colonists—all of which were far from encouraging a continuance of the war after the loss of sea power. Premier Sagasta also laid before his invited advisers the reports of the authorities throughout the peninsula of Spain, which show that the people generally favor peace, although they are profoundly shocked at the loss of the colonies after so many and so great sacrifices of men and money. He also admitted a statement from the Minister of Finance on the condition of the national treasury and the means—or lack thereof—to keep up the war.

Senior Sagasta then laid all his cards upon the table, and asked the visitors that if the majority of them should approve of making peace under the circumstances the Cabinet would go on with the task until the progress of events should permit it to convoke the Cortes and ask for a ratification of the treaty.

Weyler's Curt Note.
London, Aug. 7.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says, Senior Sagasta had prepared for submission to the leaders who were consulted a most interesting sketch not only of the preliminary negotiations and soundings, but also of M. Cambon's efforts to induce President McKinley to leave the Porto Rico question open for future negotiations, and to get better conditions for Spain in the Philippines where he was more successful, as well to induce the President to select some neutral European capital, instead of Washington, for the meeting of the peace commission.

Senior Sagasta also submitted reports from all quarters bearing on the question. Undoubtedly it would have been better for the country's interests had the perogatives consulted remained silent. The revelations of some of them are hardly calculated to strengthen the Government's hands.

General Weyler, in a curt note, declined to enter the conference, but promised to reply if Senior Sagasta would limit his queries into writing.

MILES STILL ADVANCING.
Porto Rico, Aug. 7.—Major-General Miles is proceeding entirely without regard to peace negotiations. Krag-Jorgensen are being issued. The Second and Third Wisconsin are moving up to the Sixteenth Pennsylvania to-day. Col. Bunting has captured 5,000 pounds of rice. Thus far the enemy has not molested him.

A DISADVANTAGE.
London, Aug. 7.—The Vienna correspondent of The Times says: "The discussion of the results of the war has led to emphasizing the fact that Austria is the only large state now represented at Washington by a Minister. It is believed that the fact of Spain being represented by an Ambassador led to the choice of M. Cambon for the peace negotiations."

"While there is no reason to believe that this circumstance had any weight in the matter, commercial circles are beginning to think it is a disadvantage to be represented by a Minister. It is very doubtful, however, whether the advantages of a change will be able to the traditional exclusiveness of the Austrian official class when called upon to deal with what they regard as a community of mere traders."

THE PRINCE AND THE RACE.
London, Aug. 5.—The Daily News says it understands news has reached the House of Commons that the Prince of Wales is taking a great interest in the Egyptian question. The Royal Highness thinks that the unfortunate disputes over the last races will not be unkindly remembered in America. Indeed, on the contrary, he believes that a contest well fought to the end would greatly strengthen the friendly feeling so rapidly growing up between the two nations."

JEFFRIES TO FIGHT CORBETT.
New York, Aug. 5.—Jim Jeffries, the California, appears to be willing enough to fight Jim Corbett. Yesterday Billy Delaney, the young California manager, met Tom O'Rourke, manager of the Lenox Athletic Club, and on behalf of Jeffries, signed articles for his man to box Corbett 25 rounds before the Lenox club. The articles stipulate that the fight shall take place within three months, and the men to receive sixty per cent. of the gross receipts.

PLEBISCITE VOTE NOV. 3

Writs Issued at Ottawa Saturday Morning

FIGHTING IN THE CHITRAL

Soudan Campaign—British Advance Will be Disputed

Toronto Train Nearly Wrecked—The Engine Struck a Rock Two Miles from Millville—A Remarkable Escape

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—The writs for the plebiscite on prohibition were issued this morning and fix upon November 3rd as the day of voting.

FIGHTING IN THE CHITRAL.
London, Aug. 6.—Troubles are again reported from the Chitral. The Nawab of Dir's troops came into collision with a large force of Bajauris recently in the Jandol Valley. After severe fighting the Nawab of Dir drove back the Bajauris though he had thirty-one killed and about fifty wounded. The Bajauris had 136 killed and wounded. The Nawab's men captured seventy rifles.

THE SOUDAN CAMPAIGN.
Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 6.—The Khedive is preparing a strong resistance to the British advance at Omdurman where the Derwishes are concentrating in force, most of the outposts being called in. Abdullah says he will fight at the head of his army in person. In Uganda the situation is causing much anxiety, the Belgian officers on the Toru frontier having appealed to the British for help against the retiring Nile Derwishes, whose attitude is threatening. It is feared that a junction of the Derwishes with the rebellious tribes on the Upper Nile would sweep the country.

TRAIN NEARLY WRECKED.
Stittsville, Aug. 6.—A dastardly attempt was made yesterday to wreck the Toronto train, due here at 11 p.m., about two miles east of here, near town line crossing, where the train goes at a terrific rate of speed. The engineer noticed a large rock on the rail, but was unable to stop the train and struck the obstruction, injuring the engine slightly and shaking the passengers up.

REBELLION IN YEMEN.
Constantinople, Aug. 6.—According to latest news from Yemen Arabia, anarchy reigns in that province, the civil and military authority having lost all control over the people. Adherents of the rebellious sheiks, who are distributing food to the destitute, continue to increase in number. The army corps in Yemen is now composed of forty-eight battalions, two squadrons of cavalry, and nine batteries, having been reinforced by sixteen battalions of Redifs, that is to say, by brigades from Aden, Adana, and two mountain batteries. Communication is still maintained with Sanaa the capital. The Turkish authorities are desirous of removing disaffection by the distribution of grain to the destitute.

STRUCK FROM THE LIST.
Paris, Aug. 6.—The Council of the Order of the Legion of Honor have considered the position in which M. Zoia has been placed by his conviction, and, considering that conviction as definite, decided that M. Zoia's name should be removed from the Legion of Honor lists.

MAY NOT BE RATIFIED.
Paris, Aug. 6.—The convention arranged between the Governments of France and Great Britain regarding the Niger is meeting with considerable opposition here, in order to prevent its ratification by the Chamber, and it is quite possible it will never be ratified.

The nature of the probable attack in the Chamber is forebadowed in "Questions Diplomatiques et Coloniales" by M. Etienne, president of the Colonial party. He says that the commercial clauses are unfavorable to and particularly those which concern the free navigation of the Niger. He complains that hitherto the conditions of the Treaty of Berlin have not been observed, and that the Royal Niger Company have put all sorts of obstacles in the way of French traders on the Niger.

He therefore insists that there should be an express clause in the convention limiting the authority of the Royal Niger Company, and giving satisfaction to the claims advanced by the African mission and the merchants who organized it.

FOUND DEAD ON THE HIGHWAY.
Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Elias Boyer, a resident farmer of Black Bay, Eardley, was found at one o'clock this morning lying dead on the Eardley Road, about 15 miles from Ottawa.

A VERY SLICK COUPLE

Defraud Many Toronto Business People

PAID WITH BOGUS CHECKS

They Get Away with Nearly $300 in Cash and Goods

The Police are Not on the Trail of the Couple who are Supposed to Have Gone East

Toronto, Aug. 6.—The Detective Department has been deluged with enquiries as to the whereabouts of a man and woman giving their names as W. R. Lynn and wife, who have been posing as wealthy Americans, and have been systematically victimizing Toronto business people by wholesale.

Lynn and his wife lived in high state over Morphy's jewelry store on Yonge street. They were people of engaging manners and made quite a few friends during their sojourn here. When Lynn arrived in Toronto in April last he opened a broker's office near the corner of Victoria and Queen streets.

A couple of days ago, it is alleged, the pair visited a number of stores in the downtown district, purchasing a large quantity of goods and tendering cheques in payment. The cheques were made out on the Toronto Bank, and yesterday a number of the victims visited the bank to have them cashed. They were told that the cheques were worthless, and the dupes immediately reported the matter to the authorities and asked their little grievance. (The address on Yonge street was visited, but the office had already been closed and no one knew where.

Before their departure they visited R. Wolfe, at 107 Yonge street, and got ahead of the firm for $50. R. J. Hunter, of 31 King street west, also had an interview with Lynn, and it cost $33. (Lester C. H. Rogers, King and Yonge streets, is mourning the loss of $15. Cummings and Sellers, Yonge street, are looking in vain for $50 in payment for some furs. Miss Stevens, 251 Yonge street, is behind $23, and Wm. W. Dunlop, of 232 Yonge street, is out a sewing machine. Mr. Lyman also got into the goods of Mrs. Roberts, 6 College street, and acquaintance cost the latter $25.

Before making their departure, the Lyons sold their household effects to a dealer on Queen street east, and the sewing machine secured from Mr. Dunlop was among the lot.

Lynn is described as a "baldy, middle-aged Englishman," 35 years of age, about 5 feet 5 or 6 in. in height, of dark complexion with dark mouse-brown hair. He is of a slim build and wears, when last seen, a dark Prince Albert coat and a silk hat.

The woman appears with a French accent and is of foreign appearance. She is about 24 years of age, very dark and has a gold front tooth. She was attired in a blue military costume.

It is supposed that the above list does not include all the victims.

Harvest in Colorado.
Denver, Colo., Aug. 6.—The weather conditions in Colorado have been favorable for harvesting, but rather unfavorable to grain owing to excessive moisture and absence of rain. Harvesting is under way in nearly all districts. The crop of wheat has been a good one, and the yield on the western slope, but in the Arkansas Valley, where the crop was farther advanced and threatened in progress very heavy yields are generally reported.

Where are the Wagners?
Information as to the whereabouts of a family by the name of Wagner, consisting of a mother and three children, is desired by the Children's Aid Society. The family lately lived at Lakefield, but is supposed to be now in Peterborough. Any information as to their whereabouts now or lately will be gladly received by Mr. F. W. Miller, agent for the Children's Aid and will be confidentially treated.

News of the death of Prince Bismarck.
Havana, Aug. 6.—On receipt of the news of the death of Prince Bismarck the German cruiser Geier fired 19 shots at three minute intervals, and the French cruiser in the harbor and the Cuban forts also fired salutes. In token of sorrow the local German men of war held special funeral services at the German casino at which were present the officers of the Geier and military functionaries. While the services were in progress the flags at all the consulates were at half mast. Mrs. Ethel Frances Blackney Jerome, wife of the British consul at interim, died on Thursday night of malarial fever.

SUCCESSFUL AT LAST.
"I was a sufferer from neuralgia in my side, and headaches. I followed numerous prescriptions without benefit and was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken only one bottle I realized it was doing me good and I continued taking it until I was cured." Mrs. Carrie Price, Georgetown, Ontario.

Go with the Oddfellows to Rochester, Aug. 18th

DEVDONSHIRE ON COLONIES

London, Aug. 6.—The Duke of Devonshire, in distributing the prizes at Eastbourne College on Saturday, said it was not for the mere pleasure or profit of ruling over millions of more or less civilized people and governing hundreds of thousands of square miles of more or less productive territory that England valued her empire and intended to keep it. It was because the empire afforded to her people, and especially to her younger men, a field for work—a field for the application of intelligence and energy such as no other country in the world possessed. Her colonies and her foreign possessions were open to young men—India and Africa not less than Canada and Australia. There was scarcely a corner in the world where they might not seek a career without abandoning their English nationality.

EVIL-SMELLING SANTIAGO.
Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 6.—The dirty condition of this city, the heaps of refuse, the filthy streets, the unsanitary alleys and byways, the lack of sanitary arrangements and drainage of any description are all matters that will require urgent efforts to ameliorate.

Fifth and older, utter lack of local sanitary precautions and dirty streets are assuredly to be expected in Central American cities and towns as is green grass in a New England village or buzzing trolley cars in west.

For generations the people have lived in the first rules of hygiene, the older classes are ignorant of all precautionary measures, and it is not surprising that the American officers issued an order through the civil Governor of Santiago stating that all houses must be at once thoroughly cleaned, inside and out, that the order is disregarded, and the result follows. Orders are constantly issued to the people to report at the death of any one in their house, but the threats of fine and imprisonment as a punishment carry little weight. Extreme measures will have to be taken to bring about a proper condition of affairs in this respect, and it will take many months of example and stringent enforcement of regulations of what is clearly best for their health.

In the military hospital of the city there were on July 26th, 562 cases of the prevalent malarial fever, 121 cases of dysentery, 86 cases of diarrhoea, 274 cases of pneumonia, and 19 cases of yellow fever. The yellow fever cases are all army of the Spanish soldiers. Sixteen of the 18 wounded Spanish soldiers in this hospital have died since the United States troops took possession of this town.

The arrival of a many strangers in Santiago during the last two weeks has taxed the town's accommodations, and the town is now a veritable camp. The Anglo-American Club of Santiago, an institution founded over three years ago by the English speaking residents of this place, has been the salvation of many Americans since the occupation.

Many of the refugees from Santiago and the eastern end of Cuba who shipped over to Jamaica during the troublous times are coming back. Sixty the town is filling up, and the country people are coming in to buy certain necessities.

SAN JUAN RETRURNS.
Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 6.—The six San Juan which went to Manzanillo under a flag of truce to bring here the families of the Spanish officers who reformed General Linier at Santiago before capitulation, returned this morning with 31 persons. The wives and children of the officers who came with General Estero.

Originally it was said that there were 75 persons to be brought; but General Toral sent two officers and a staff only the "legally married" wives came which reduced the number to 38.

Big Fire in Hamburg.
Hamburg, Aug. 6.—A fire on Canal quay last night, originating in spontaneous combustion, and raged, has destroyed over a million marks of various kinds of merchandise up to this morning.

Coburg World: Indications now point to a speedy realization of the hopes long cherished by the estimable citizens of the northern townships, for it now seems as if work might soon begin on the C. N. & P. Railroad in earnest. An energetic railroad man, Mr. Foutquier, has been in town during this week. He has made a careful survey of the route with Mr. Bowen and it is confidently expected that he will decide to take the matter up. With the new railroad a certainty, and work at the woolen mills a certainty, Coburg will certainly boom.

If you suffer from sores, boils, pimples, or if your nerves are weak and your system run down, you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

ILLUSIONS IN LINES.

Some Deceptions in Sketches of the Face
Which Are Interesting.

Few of us are so old that we have forgotten our kindergarten days, when first we were set the task of drawing cubes and rectangles and other figures. We remember the house gables that followed and those wonderful mysteries of perspective which after a hurried explanation, were left to the small boy artist to improve upon and reproduce in clay and pencil drawings such as won for Tom Sawyer the love and admiration of Becky Thatcher.

For some of these small boys, and old boys, too, for the matter of that, a few curious illusions connected with drawing may prove interesting. The first illusion was accidentally discovered by a draftsman in the office of a well-known scientific publication while drawing some lines across a wheel.

You see a number of fine lines radiating from a common center in the circle much the same as the rays of the sun are generally pictured.

Then across these and just touching points diametrically opposite on the circumference of the circle are drawn two sets of heavy parallel lines. These lines, being parallel, are perfectly straight, yet at first glance it is almost impossible to believe this. Not until the lines are slowly examined separately and together is the deception discovered, for each appears to have a decided outward curve.

STRAWBERRY CULTURE—FIG. 3.

therefore the weakest in growth and in fruit stems. This was the usual operation in the year's care which, as you will see, is marked with minute attention to details at every stage of the year. The varieties grown are those which produce large and beautiful berries, size making up for any deficiency of produce numbers in berries.

This year's fruit was very good. The berries were picked by the quart, 200 bushels per acre are harvested, and the selected fruit, which amounts to more than 80 per cent of the entire yield, sells at eight for 25 to 50 per quart more than the average market price. In fact, it has never sold for less than 80 per quart wholesale, and generally brings 100, and from that to 130, cents, which is a very good price for a fruit which is so common and which rarely makes any difference with the demand for this glitzy stock, which is consumed by those who use only the best to be had, whatever the price.

The most of thinking I consider so important that in closing I again refer to it with a diagram explaining or illustrating the manner.

Fig. 2 shows five original plants with the runner plants allowed to root around the main plant. These were set out in the spring and later on, say about the middle of July, the children in the form of runners were allowed to take root, being placed as each would have a fair chance. Still later more runners were cut, continuing to grow and escaping the hand of the person who weeded and cared for the plantation. These are those marked a in the drawing, and about the time of the opening of the blossoms they were cut with a chisel or knife. These plants being the latest to root were weaker than the others and their room is better than their company, as their removal gives air and light, as may be seen in the removal of the plants between the third and fourth group counting from the left, as indicated by the clumsy arrows. The usual way is to thin uniformly as a strict rule to be equal distances. A strict adherence to this practice would in the present instance leave many young plants marked a and take out stronger plants marked b in Fig. 2. The thinning intended to be illustrated by removing plants so as to leave in groups of matured plants is better. In the drawings each rowette of four leaves is intended to represent a strawberry plant connected with parent and grand parent with runners. In the explanatory drawing, Fig. 3, the plant marked a in Fig. 2 are left out, but the runners remain showing where they grew.

Had the thinning been done the September before, it would not damage the roots very much, but as my friend waits until late spring to make his selection of the condemned plants, it is plain that removing those marked a would not greatly injure the roots of adjacent plants, while at the same time it gives room to those remaining. I might add that in theory it is possible to make a model row with each plant equally distant from every other, but in practice it is very different, especially with these varieties which show the very highest type of fruit. Like all high bred animals or vegetables that are somewhat capricious and it is not often that every plant put out two and one-half feet from its neighbor makes headway enough to fill its quota of ground; hence unevenness and imperfection.—L. B. Pierce, in Country Gentleman.

upon the ground. The wooden teeth, or tines, are the teeth from a cast-iron rake. The tines keep the tubers from rolling off, while the head piece is stout enough to hold the handle, its sides and the tines firmly. The tines can be placed near enough together to lift all the potatoes, or only those above a certain size, thus sorting them.

FRUIT EXPERIMENTS IN ONTARIO.

Results of the First Year's Work in Testing Varieties.

Already the work of the experimental stations of Ontario is making itself known and appreciated. The first annual report, which has just been published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has sixty-four pages of valuable reading matter and numerous tables showing the results of the first year's work in testing varieties. As the secretary says in his letter of transmittal, it would be impossible to have results so extended ready for publication this first year were it not that practical fruit growers of long and careful experience in their various lines have been selected as the experimenters. These men are able to draw lessons from the knowledge gained from years of careful work with that variety of fruit which is the specialty of each. In this way the reports from these gentlemen become most valuable to the country.

Apples.—Mr. W. H. Dempsey, Superintendent of the Bay of Quinte station, speaks well of the Winter St. Lawrence, Pawnee and Ontario apples.

He says the Pawnee is a large apple and more productive than the King and as good in quality. Of the Ontario he says, "It is one of the most productive apples we have. My own Ontario apples sold equal to those in Montreal." Of the Alexander he says, "This variety is coming more into favor every year as one of the best selling fall apples" of the Red Astrakhan, "It is not desirable to grow here." To the John Davis he gives twenty-three marks out of a possible forty, and adds that its chief value consists in its long keeping qualities.

Grapes.—Mr. M. Pettit, Superintendent of the Wentworth station, gives an interesting table showing the actual productiveness and the various prices per pound which he received for certain varieties in 1897. Thus the Agawam, which was harvested October 22nd, yielded 175 lbs. of grapes to the vine, of which all but a half pound were first grade; the average selling price was three cents a pound, giving a total income of about fifty cents per vine. The Concord yielded nineteen lbs. per vine and so sold at two cents a pound, or about thirty-eight cents per vine. The Catawba yielded 105 lbs. and sold at five cents a pound, giving a total of about eighty cents per vine. About thirty varieties of grapes are fully described.

The secretary, in his notes on varieties, speaks favorably of the Victoria grape. He says, "The Victoria, one of the numerous seedlings raised by Mr. B. Miner, of Linden, N. Y., was this year a favorite white grape with me, and I am inclined to think that it will take a foremost place among white grapes. The bunches are well shaped; the skin has a fine waxen lustre and heavy bloom, and the berries are of good size and fair quality. The vine is very productive. By some this grape is called a white Concord."

Peaches.—In his notes on peaches, Mr. W. Hillborn, Superintendent of the South-Western station, says, "Alexander, Amelie's June and Early Canada are all practically identical. The four most profitable varieties to grow in this locality have been Alexander, Bernard's Early, Tylor's Seedling and Hill's (Chili). The two latter are perhaps the most hardy in fruit buds and give a good crop nearly every season. They are probably the best to plant in sections not well adapted to peach culture. Among new varieties the Fitzgerald is perhaps the most promising. It is of the Early Crawford type and apparently an improvement on that old favorite. The fruit buds are hardy and the young trees will begin bearing the second year after planting. The fruit is large; skin, bright yellow suffused with red; flesh, deep yellow, of best quality; stone, not as large as that of the Crawford. Its season of ripening is with or just after the Early Crawford. Bayle's Early is another quite new sort in this locality that is very promising. It is the first yellow flesh peach to ripen with me."

Strawberries.—Mr. E. B. Stevenson, strawberry specialist, describes forty-two varieties, placing the Greenville as the best for productiveness and among the best for quality. It is a large crimson berry originating in Ohio. The Hawerland he also ranks very high for productiveness. The Timbrell does not ripen evenly, and the Parker Earle rusts and cannot endure the drought. The Woolworth, he says, is well worth growing.

Gooseberries.—Mr. A. Morton, of Brampton, reports upon twenty-five varieties of gooseberries, mostly English. Mr. S. Elliott, Superintendent of the Simcoe gooseberry station, reports upon ten varieties. He speaks highly of the Pearl. He says, "Take it all around as a medium sized berry, the pearl is hard to beat. More vigorous and with better foliage than the Downing. It is bound to be generally planted. It yielded this year five quarts to the bushel all around. The Champion, a pear to the Pearl in vigor and foliage, is ahead of it apparently in productiveness and size. The berry is a cross of Downing upon a wild Rocky Mountain gooseberry, so the originator informs me. It is certainly unlike any other gooseberry I have seen in habit of growth and appearance and shape of berry. In quality, I do not think the fruit equal to the Pearl. I may say that by spraying with liver of sulphur, most of the English varieties may be grown successfully, but in my opinion, our fruit berry for general cultivation will be along the line of a cross between the so-called American varieties and the English."

Spraying for Fungi and Insects. That Paris green and kerosene emulsion still remain the leading insecticides, and that Bordeaux mixture is the best remedy for plant diseases, is the experience of the New York station at Geneva. The kerosene sprayer is generally useful, though extensive growers need a machine of greater capacity. The action pump should always enter the tank at the top, and the pump should be made of brass or of brass lined. Hand pumps should allow the weight of the body to be used on the handle while at work. Vermorel machines give a better spray than the dial machines. For spraying potatoes and sometimes a nozzle is needed which can be lowered between the rows and directed so as to force the spray up through the vines. The agitator is needed to keep the poisons in solution. The best forms work up and down in an upward tank, like a dash in the old churn. Where the pump piston has packing this should be often renewed. For killing cabbage worms and insects, no liquid has been found equal to dry Paris green applied with a hand after. Powder guns are useful for applying dry powdered poisons, pyrethrum, tobacco dust and sulphur. Emulsion extensors should be used in spraying large trees.

We never would make more better advice than is needed for our own hand. It will not pay.

HOGAN'S ALLEY CAMP

Troublesome Times at Tampa, Rice Lake—Escapade Innumerable.
(Special to the Times.)
Hogan's Alley Camp.

The escaped prisoner, Admiral Cervera Reiley, was recaptured yesterday shortly after sundown at Cobowick, in company with some Spaniards who were holding a council of war for the purpose of taking Camp Tampa by surprise. The plot was immediately foiled and the prisoners were escorted back to the fort under a heavy guard. The old war-horse takes his defeat keenly.

Early Saturday evening Commodore
Watson Spears set sail for Fort Spears to endeavor to capture Gen. Weyler Cavanagh, who it was thought was retreating behind a dense bush.
Troops were landed, protected by the fire from the flagship "Mary," and a sally being made it was ascertained
the Spaniards had divided their forces.
One-half under the lead of Gen.
Weyler Cavanagh beat a hasty retreat towards Havana, the other division, embarking on the Spanish transports ships and endeavoring to make a landing at Fort Jubilee, but were prevented from doing so by a well directed fire from the heavy guns on the fort. They then turned their attention to Fort Idylle Wild, but were repulsed by Watson before they did any serious trouble.

Gen. Toral Borlant is highly pleased with his treatment at the hands of the Americans and is putting on flesh.
Admiral Dewey Davidson is sufficiently recovered from his illness to resume command of the fleet. He personally made a tour of Rice Lake today for the purpose of inspecting the fortifications.

The two Cuban insurgent leaders,
Gen. Garcia Denno and Gen. Gomez
Luna, arrived at camp early this morning after two days and one night of forced marching. The object of the visit is to join their forces with Gen.
Shafter for the purpose of storming Bewdley.

"Middy" Quinn, of the flagship
"Mary," leave this evening for Peterborough to report Gen. Shafter's staff back to the camp, also to bring down a fresh supply of provisions and ammunitions, which were greatly diminished by the hungry Cubans.
Hobson Stevenson received promotion and is now in full command of the flagship "Maud," of the Mosquito fleet at Harward.

Peterborough by 6 goals to 1. The score was not by any means a criterion of the play, both teams playing fast, clean lacrosse. The combination work of the Checkers was understandable, but they were unable to beat down the stonewall defence of Lynch

RULES FOR HUNTERS

Representative Meeting Held at Brockville —Resolutions Passed Embodying Their Ideas.

In view of the queries sent out by Mr. E. Tinsley, chief game warden for Ontario, the deer hunters of that section met the other day at the St. Lawrence Hall, Brockville, to discuss the present game law, and to suggest changes. The gathering was a representative one of those who make an annual hunting tour. After a lengthy discussion a resolution was passed, plagiarism of their ideas. It expresses approval of the $2 fee charged hunters and the limitation of the number of deer allowed each hunter to two. The number being limited, the resolution was that the clause permitting the use of hounds be left as it is, and that the clause prohibiting the killing of deer in the water be repealed.
The greatest slaughter the huntman attribute to pot hunters out of season and they recommend that the money received from licenses be expended in engaging at good salaries efficient inspectors to watch the hunting grounds during the close season as well as the open season. At the request of the hunters present G. P. Graham, M.P., P. R. L. Jovnt, M.P.P., and G. A.

SCORING THE COUNCIL

Mr. McWilliams' Manly Action Recently Endorsed.

Editor Morning Times:
Sir—I cannot refrain from expressing my satisfaction through the columns of the Times at the manly action of Mr. J. R. McWilliams in his efforts to bring the council to order.

It is a disgrace to a town like Peterborough to have a body of men at the council board capable of refusing to legislate for the people—in the face of a direct order from the people to do so.

I hope Mr. McWilliams will not stop until he succeeds in forcing the council to give effect to the wishes of the people.

Mr. Shaw came up for a vacation with his father, Rev. W. H. Shaw, and appears to have combined business with pleasure.

AMERICAN PLAYS IN LONDON

The Invasion of England has Not Reached a Great Success.

London, Aug. 6.—The American dramatic invasion of London closed for the season when the curtain fell on "Sue," at the Garrick Theatre. Taken altogether, the invasion has not proven as formidable an onslaught upon the native drama as local managers feared, the playhouses of the English capital, however, Irving, Tree, Alexander, Wyndham and Hare, maintain their old-time pre-eminence in the affections of the public.

So far as concerns legitimate plays imported from America, none of them is destined to high rank in the season's annals. They have furnished each a month or two of interesting amusement and been shelved. Their year's experiences have taught the managers that English tastes present a problem not to be solved by the same rules which apply at home, for the conscious American success, "The Belle of New York," and the equally suspicious failure, "A Stranger in New York," were much on the same order of entertainment.

Charles Hoyt's London trip proved the most melancholy experience which has befallen him since his early attempts to float melodramas of the English stage. A vigorous and understanding of the critics visited upon him has seldom been gained here.
He declared that his style was coarse and vulgar, and one unfeeling writer remarked that the jokes were gathered from "the appalling chestnut tree," but all were willing to admit the talents of the actors who carried the skill—Harry Conner, Harry Gilford, and Amelia Stone. These stars suffered a harrowing fortnight, for struggle as they would to arouse the English to laughter, Hoyt's American humor seemed to inspire only solemnity and despair.

Annies Russell has succeeded in installing herself quite firmly in the esteem of the English public, though the medium of her appearance was not a fortunate one. The Daily Mail comments: "Sue" was not a great play, but she herself was greatly played.
"The Belle of Maryland" has suffered by comparison with London's first taste of American war drama and its success was also only moderate, the critics finding Mrs. Leslie Carter acting more to their fancy than Mrs.
Rian's stagecraft.

Mrs. James Brown Potter has been engaged by Beerholm Tree as leading lady to play Miladi in his version of the "Three Musketeers" next fall. England is swarming with American star-folk this month, some of them enjoying holidays, others pursuing their studies. Viola Allen, who has secured American right of Hall Caine's popular novel, "The Christian," is spending a month at the novelist's castle in the Isle of Man discussing the dramatization.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces—Interesting Statements Concerning His Experiences.

STELLARTON, N.B.—James E. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds.
Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited.
I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 28 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES E. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—Harvesting operations in the Province of Ontario are now busy. The weather in most districts has been all that could be desired. In the Western part of the province threshing has already taken place, and if the yield of wheat, says the Monetary Times, is as good as the early samples revealed in Toronto, it will, to use a grain merchant's expression, "beat anything on record."

—The authorities of Whitby are determined that punctured tires shall not be a result of the carelessness of its citizens in throwing glass, etc., in the public streets. One day last week a woman appeared in the police court on a charge of having thrown a broken lamp chimney into the street. The authorities are also after tank throwers. Property must be protected, and bicycles are valuable property.
—Friday morning Fred Enno, who drives Mr. J. C. Sullivan's delivery wagon in Amburnham, received a bad kick in the face from the horse.
The animal was standing in the yard and young Enno in passing took it by the tail, when the horse lashed out with its heels, striking him full in the face and knocking him insensible.
Mr. Mohr was summoned and found that besides being badly cut, the lad's lower jaw had been broken by the force of the kick.

The reply is the same as that given to other powers, repudiating all responsibility for the losses.

He said he was much impressed with the naval operations and the terrible execution of American guns, and ordered the purchase of similar guns for Turkey.

A Fatal Driving Accident

Toronto, Aug. 8.—Aas Brown, veterinary surgeon, and his daughter, of George street, near King, of this city, were taking a drive in a cart on the Kingston road Sunday. When about ten miles east of the city and near the village of Woburn some of the supporters of the cart gave way, throwing the occupants forward, causing the horse to run away, dragging Mr. and Mrs. Brown about fifty yards, where they were picked up, both being unconscious. They were carried into the residence of William Annis and Dr. Clapp, of Woburn, was summoned. He found that Mrs. Brown's left arm was badly bruised in other parts of her body. Mr. Brown's left ear was nearly severed from the head, being badly torn and lacerated. A life effort to regain consciousness. Mr. Brown being insensible for over three hours. They were brought home late evening, and although suffering a good deal of pain, were as well as could be expected.

McWILLIAMS SCORES

The Council Pass the By-law in Spite of Bitter Opposition

Councillor Langford Endorses to Minimize the Work of certain Colleagues—It Don't Go, However, and the By-law is now Law

A special meeting of the town council was held in the council chamber last night.

Those present were: Mayor Davis, in the chair, and Councillors Best, W. H. White, Robertson, Denne, Aiken, Hamilton, Dawson, McWilliams, Meldrum, Langford and J. M. White.

The reading of the minutes was on motion dispensed with was also the general business.

In view of this question was asked why the meeting had been called.

COUNCIL'S ACTION ILLEGAL.

The Mayor said in reply that the other day he had received a communication stating that the recent action of the council in connection with the third reading of the by-law reducing the number of councillors and providing for their election by a general vote was illegal. He then instructed the town clerk to place the matter before the town auditor and to call a special meeting of the council if so instructed. Mr. Edwards' instructions to the clerk left no room for doubt that the council's action was called accordingly. The Mayor then read the letter from the town auditor, which showed conclusively that the council in refusing to give the by-law its third reading had acted illegally.

COUNCILLOR LANGFORD.

Councillor Langford approved of the Mayor's course in calling a special meeting. He thought the statute in this connection was a good one and he had claimed introduced the by-law which was to put the same in operation, but he decidedly objected to the newspapers being used to coerce members of the council voting contrary to the opinions they had formed on the subject. He accused Councillor McWilliams of having been at the bottom of the newspaper articles and trying to bulldoze the council. Under the circumstances, had he been in a position, he would most decidedly refuse to change his opinion. The member of the council who had previously voted in opposition or against—and who suffered his opinion to undergo change owing to coercion was no man. He referred to the newspaper articles as being coercive in the extreme. He also accused Mr. McWilliams of acting in the interests of a class and pronounced this as outrageous. He had much pleasure notwithstanding the circumstances, in moving the third reading of the by-law.

COUNCILLOR McWILLIAMS.

Councillor McWilliams didn't propose to follow Councillor Langford in his rambling remarks. Mr. Langford was jealous but if he—Mr. Langford—was so childish and wished to pose as a "Big Baby" in the matter why rather than have him speak so hard he would drop out and allow Mr. Langford all the honor he could get from a simple performance of the duties the electors expected of him. Mr. McWilliams said, however, that the slight honor attached to bringing the by-law to the notice of the ratepayers was entirely due to him, but, as he had said before, if it would gratify or please in any way Mr. Langford, whom he designated as the "Big Baby," he was quite willing to relinquish his claims. His opponents on this question had raised the class cry, stating that he was promoting the by-law in order to lessen the chances of Roman Catholic representation in the council. This was false. Under the present system there was not a Catholic in the council and this he thought—considering that the council was composed of thirteen members—was very unfair and, in fact, decidedly unbecoming a large and progressive town like Peterborough. He asked to raise the cry of a demagogue like Mr. Langford. He was there to perform his duty—faithfully and to the best of his ability. This he was doing which was a great deal more than those councillors who were opposing popular opinion—publicly expressed at the time—could claim.

Councillor Best asked Mr. McWilliams who deputized him to act as he had done.

Mr. McWilliams said that his own sense of duty to the electors was the basis of his insisting on the popular will, as expressed at the polls, being carried into effect. He represented the ratepayers and their will was law. Working in the interests of a class had been thrown in his face. He had always dealt fairly by his Roman Catholic constituents but there were councillors around the board who had sworn—taken a solemn oath—not to employ Catholics in any position, private or public. Although an Orangeman he did not wish to be identified with a class to extreme in their views. The statute, he thought, was a good one. In fact he believed it did not go far enough. A reduction to five, instead of nine, would have been more acceptable so far as he and his constituents were concerned.

Councillor Meldrum was always in favor of the reduction of the number of councillors. He agreed with Mr. McWilliams that a council of five would do the business better than the present number. He objected to newspaper articles which were intended to convey the idea that intimidation was the basis of the opposition to the by-law.

ADJOURNMENT MOVED.

Councillor J. M. White moved that the council adjourn until Councillor (Cib), who was ill, recovered. He suggested this owing to the fact that Mr. Allen's case would be related with the opposition. Mr. Allen was not present at the last meeting and he was prepared to put him against Councillor Cobb in the vote which was to be taken.

at least very few—appeared to agree with Mr. White.

Councillor Dawson thought the by-law was an unjust one and directed the attention of the press to an alleged injustice done him. He thought the Ontario Government should have commenced the reduction process at once. He claimed that the county council was unpopular and ineffective since reduced in numbers. He, on account of certain newspaper articles, would oppose the passage of the by-law, to hand nail.

Councillor Best's opinion was not shared by the town auditor's advice. He thought that 90 per cent. of the people knew nothing of the statutes in this connection and due notice should have been given of the proposed introduction of such a measure. Moreover, the third option of two men for one ward, had not been presented properly and consequently the vote was unfair.

Councillor Meldrum upheld the by-law in a popular speech and claimed that according to the present law the proposed change was right.

The vote—after some further discussion—was then taken and resulted as follows:

Against the By-law—Councillors Best, W. H. White, Robertson, J. M. White and Dawson.

For the By-law—Councillors Denne, Allen, Hamilton, McWilliams, Meldrum and Langford.

Mr. Z. Holgett resigned the contract of street watering and the matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Councillor Dawson said that Mr. Holgett had not—in his position as street waterer neglected performing the duty, but that the rate paid was unsatisfactory according to the services performed.

RESOLUTIONS.

Councillor Denne moved, seconded by Councillor Dawson, that the price of two carloads of granite be paid as well as those of the Pigeon Creek destination—Carried.

STEAM ROLLER.

Councillor McWilliams objected to private tender; sealed tenders should be requested. The whole proceeding was irregular.

Moved by Councillor Hamilton that the work ascertain price of roller in use in Galt—Carried.

Coun. Meldrum was in favor of a roller and purchasing it at once.

Moved by Councillor Meldrum, seconded by Langford, that tenders be asked for a 15-ton road roller in the Montreal Gazette and Toronto Mail and Globe until 1st of Sept. and for immediate delivery—Carried.

The council adjourned.

PETERBOROUGH WON

They Defeat the Tecumseh-Elms, of Toronto Yesterday by 11 to 1

"They all look alike to Peterborough" is history—no tradition about it—after yesterday's lacrosse match. The much vaunted Tecumseh-Elms, of Toronto, sustained the most disastrous defeat since their organization at the hands of the Peterborough team yesterday.

Peterborough played a clean hard game from start to finish and deserved their well earned victory. It would be improper to praise the work of any particular player for they were all stars in their different positions yesterday.

At times the combination of the local team was beautiful to watch, the ball being passed from point down the field in regular order until lodged in their opponents' goal net.

Frequently the play had a tendency towards roughness, but in this the visitors took the initiative, and the Peterborough boys could not be blamed for retaliating.

The famous home field of the Tecumseh was simply not in it and their combination was confined to the centre of the field, while on the other hand the Peterborough home did not appear to be bothered at all in getting in on their opponents' defence.

The Peterboroughs have established a record for themselves in the last four games having scored 34 goals to their opponents 4. With a winning team like we have this year it is a shame to note the unsatisfactory receipts. Yesterday there was a crowd of fully 600 people, scattered about the grounds and fences and only about a third of these paid the admission fee. Now if the citizens of Peterborough take any pride in their team at all this is a very poor way of featuring it, and it is to be hoped that in the future others will fall in line before the box office, along with those true sports who support the team through thick and thin.

The management is negotiating a trip to Rochester on Civic Holiday for an exhibition game with the team of that city.

The next championship game will likely be played with Orillia about the middle of the month, the winner of which will go into the semi-finals for the International Championship.

The teams yesterday lined up in the following order:

Peterborough—Dobbin, goal; Lynch, point; Brown, cover; Mann, 1st defence; Glover, 2nd defence; McCabe, 3rd defence; King, centre; Hogarth, 3rd home; John, McCabe, 2nd home; Phelan, 1st home; Lipsett, outside home; Mooney, inside home; B. Doan, field captain.

Tecumseh-Elms.—Hallett, goal; Patterson, point; Reid, cover; Angus, 1st defence; Kyle, 2nd defence; Hall, 3rd defence; Slaters, centre; Kelly, 3rd home; Lennox, 2nd home; Burns, 1st home; O'Neil, outside home; Matthew, inside home; T. Craig, field captain.

Referee.—Dickson Davidson.

The games were scored as follows:

1. Peterborough—Phelan.
2. Peterborough—McCabe.
3. Peterborough—King.
4. Peterborough—Phelan.
5. Tecumseh-Elms—Kelly.
6. Peterborough—Phelan.
7. Peterborough—J. McCabe.
8. Peterborough—Lipsett.
9. Peterborough—McCabe.
10. Peterborough—Lipsett.
11. Peterborough—Phelan.
12. Peterborough—Mooney.

On Saturday night whilst wheeling out to McWicken's Landing with a party of friends, Bruce Ferguson met with a nasty accident through a fall from his wheel whereby his collar bone was broken. At the time of the accident both bicyclists were wheeling along the end path just on the other side of Lakeland, when Ferguson's wheel struck a stone resulting in his being thrown heavily to the ground. Young Hall wheeled back into Lakeland, and returned with Dr. Fraser, who ascertained that Ferguson's collar bone was broken. He was driven home and though rather sore this morning was able to resume his duties.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

FRUIT EXPERIMENTS IN ONTARIO.

Result of the First Year's Work in Testing Varieties.

Already the work of the experiment stations of Ontario is making itself known and appreciated. The first annual report, which has just been published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has six hundred pages of valuable reading matter and numerous tables showing the results of the first year's work in testing varieties. As the secretary says in his letter of transmittal, it would be impossible to have results so extended ready for publication this first year were it not that practical fruit growers of long and careful experience in their various lines have been selected as the experimenters. These men are able to draw lessons from the knowledge gained from years of careful work with that variety of fruit which is the specialty of each. In this way the reports from these gentlemen become most valuable to the country.

Apples.—Mr. W. H. Dempsey, Superintendent of the Bay of Quinte station, speaks well of the Winter St. Lawrence, Pawanke and Ontario apples.

He says the Pawanke is a large apple and more productive than the King and as good in quality. Of the Ontario he says, "It is one of the most profitable apples we have. My own Ontario apples sold equal to Spry in Montreal." Of the Alexander he says, "This variety is coming more into favor every year as one of the best selling table apples." Of the Red Astrakhan, "It is not desirable to grow here." To the Red Davis he gives twenty-three marks out of a possible forty, and adds that its chief value consists in its long keeping qualities.

Grapes.—Mr. M. Pettit, Superintendent of the Wentworth station, gives an interesting table showing the actual production and the various prices per pound which he received for certain varieties in 1897. Thus the Agawam, which was harvested October 22nd, yielded 17½ lbs. of grapes to the vine, of which all but a half pound were first grade, the average selling price was three cents a pound, giving a total income of about fifty cents per vine. The Concord yielded nineteen lbs. per vine and so sold at two cents a pound, or about thirty-eight cents per vine. The Catawba yielded 18½ lbs. and sold at five cents a pound, giving a total of about eighty cents per vine. About thirty varieties of grapes are fully described.

The secretary, in his notes on varieties, speaks favorably of the Victoria grape. He says, "The Victoria, one of the numerous seedlings raised by Mr. B. Miner, of London, N. Y., was this year a favorite white grape with me, and I am inclined to think that it will take a foremost place among white grapes. The bunches are well shaped, the skin has a fine wax-like lustre and heavy bloom and the berries are of good size and fair quality. The vine is very productive. By some this grape is called a white Concord."

Peaches.—In his notes on peaches, Mr. W. Hillborn, Superintendent of the South-Western station, says, "Alexander, Amos's June and Early Canada are all practically identical. The four most profitable varieties to grow in this locality have been Alexander, Harvard's Early, Tyburn Seedling and Hill's Kent. The two latter are perhaps the most hardy in fruit buds and give a good crop nearly every season. They are probably the best to plant in sections not well adapted to peach culture. Among new varieties the Fitzgerald is perhaps the most promising. It is of the Early Crawford type and apparently an improvement on that old favorite. The fruit buds are hardy and the young trees will begin bearing the second year after planting. The fruit is large, skin, bright yellow, suffused with red; flesh, deep yellow, of best quality; stone, not so large as that of the Crawford. Its season of ripening is with or just after the Early Crawford. Boyle's Early is another quite new sort in this locality that is very promising. It is the first yellow flesh peach to ripen with me."

Strawberries.—Mr. E. B. Stevenson, strawberry specialist, describes forty-two varieties, placing the Greenville at the head for productiveness and among the best for quality. It is a large crimson berry originating in Ohio. The Harvard he also ranks very high for productiveness. The Timbrel does not ripen evenly, and the Parker Earle rusts and cannot endure the drought. The Woodworth, he says, is well worth growing.

Gooseberries.—Mr. A. Morton, of Brampton, reports upon twenty-six varieties of gooseberries, mostly English. Mr. S. Spillert, Superintendent of the Simcoe gooseberry station, reports upon ten varieties. He speaks highly of the Pearl. He says, "Take it all around a medium sized berry, the Pearl is hard to beat. More vigorous and with better foliage than the Downing, it is found to be generally planted. It yielded this year five quarts to the bushel all around. The Champion, a peer to the Pearl in vigor and foliage, is ahead of it apparently in productiveness and size. The berry is a cross of Downing upon a wild Rocky Mountain gooseberry, a good originator informs me. It is certainly better than any gooseberry I have seen in habit of growth and appearance and shape of berry. In quality, I do not think the fruit equal to the Pearl. I may say that by spraying with lime of sulphur, most of the English varieties may be grown successfully, but, in my opinion, our future berry for general cultivation will be along the line of a cross between the so-called American varieties and the English."

Spraying for Pests and Insects. That fruit grown and exposed to insecticide, and that borax mixture is the best remedy for plant diseases, is the experience of the New York station at Geneva. The knapsack sprayer is generally useful, though extensive growers need a machine of greater capacity. The suction pump should always enter the tank at the top, and the pump should be made of brass or bronze lined. Hand pumps should allow the weight of the body to be used on the handle while at work. Vermorel nozzles give a better spray than the dish machines. For spraying potatoes and tomatoes a nozzle is needed which can be lowered between the rows, and directed so as to force the spray up through the vines. The agitator is needed to keep the poisons in solution. The best forms work up and down in an upward tank, like a dash in the old churn. Where the pump piston has a backing this should be often renewed. For killing cabbage worms and insects, no liquid has been found equal to dry paris green applied with a hand sifter. Powder guns are useful for applying dry powdered poisons, pyrethrum, tobacco dust and sulphur. Bamboo extensions should be used in reaching large trees.

We never would make more better calves than we needed for our own herd. It will not pay.

ELECTRICITY AND CROPS

THE CURRENT HELPS THINGS TO GROW WITH GOOD RESULTS.

Frenchmen Know the Secret—Seed, Flow, or, Grapes, Strawberries and Vegetables Showing Extraordinary Results When Electricity is Applied.

It has long been known that the electricity in the atmosphere plays an important part in the stimulation of vegetable growth, but hitherto no practical use has been made of this knowledge. The results recently obtained by some French scientists, who have been experimenting with the effects of electricity on plants indicate that a most valuable aid to agriculture has been discovered. A plant deprived of atmospheric electricity by covering it with a network of fine steel wires a couple of inches apart, and when artificially stimulated by an electric current it blossoms far more vigor than in a normal condition.

With these data to work upon the experimenters moistened seeds with water and then subjected them to the influence of an electric current. The seeds thus treated grew with far more vigor and came to maturity sooner than those not so treated. They even succeeded in making date-stones germinate, which is a very unusual thing to happen in France.

Peas, beans and maize grew with astonishing swiftness when treated with the powerful current of a Ruhmkorff coil and the yield was greater than ordinary. Experiments with batteries were not so successful when the current was passed through the earth, because of the difference in the resistance of the soil in various places to the passage of the current. The resulting crop was uneven in character, according as one particular section received more or less of the electric current. With the powerful electrical machines much more satisfactory results were obtained. Strawberries in particular were ripened in a remarkably short time.

Electrical machines are far too expensive, however, for a farmer to use, and though all right in theory they are too costly in practice. The new invention is called the geomagnetifer, and consists of an ordinary pole forty or fifty feet high, surmounted with a echeval de frise of copper spikes, designed to act as a conductor of atmospheric electricity. This conductor is insulated from the pole by a porcelain knob, and connected with a copper wire (also insulated from the pole), which transmits the current to a network of wires which are laid under the soil at a depth of about six feet. These wires are made of galvanized iron, and their cost is not large.

By the use of this apparatus the production on a given area has been increased 50 per cent. The grapes from vineyards in which the geomagnetifer is used are richer in sugar and milder than ordinary grapes. Flowers have a stronger perfume also when stimulated in this manner. The exact chemical action which the current has upon fruits and vegetables cannot be determined. It is only certain that such action takes place. Some hold that it acts by adding the plants to assimilate the azote of the atmosphere, while others think that it favors the assimilation of certain mineral salts in the soil. The experiment can be tried on any lawn or flower bed as long as the pole is away from the house. If too close it acts as a lightning conductor, but without giving any protection.

It is estimated that a geomagnetifer sixty feet high will reach the soil to the same degree as ten times its cost in manure. At the present time a successful farmer has to be somewhat of a chemist, and it now seems as though he will have to be an electrician, too.

A NEW CURE FOR ERYSIPELAS.

Colorless Liquid With an Extraordinary Name by Dr. Marmorek Has Been Found.

It is reported that a Parisian physician, Marmorek by name, has discovered a new serum for the cure of erysipelas, purpura, fever and bronchitis pneumonia. This recently discovered remedy has been given the peculiar and lengthy name of Anti-streptococcique. It has been seen at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, and is a thin, colorless liquid, resembling water in almost every detail. No word has come so far as to its success or whether any really definite cures have been made.

As a matter of fact, there is only a very small quantity of it as yet in existence—little more than a tiny vialful, indeed, but this is sufficient to have aroused pretty nearly all Paris—that section of it is least which takes an interest in medical affairs and in the science of curing diseases—into making frequent inquiries regarding the discovery, as of great practical importance. Dr. Marmorek says that he is beset on every hand with requests for a small quantity of the serum on the part of both physicians and sufferers, and he has been obliged to shut out the public and the medical fraternity for a time until he has prepared more of the precious liquid.

His reason for so acting is his remembrance of the time of the discovery of the antitoxine cure, when the Institute was besieged by anxious crowds demanding the new remedy and offering large sums of money for even a little of it. When the doctors then explained to them that it was impossible to give them what they wanted, because there was no supply of it on hand, the crowd returned and upbraided the Pasteur physicians violently, calling them unhuman and brutal. Marmorek is anxious that such a scene shall not occur in connection with his discovery. In a month and a half Marmorek claims that he will have an ample supply and will meet all demands that may be made upon him.

Deadly Work of the New Bullet.

Str. Benjamin Baker, in a paper on "War and Engineering," calls attention to the devastation which the small-bore rifle effects in the human body. He says: "The magazine rifle bullet, though no larger in diameter than a lead pencil, does not simply perforate a bone, but 'the part is always pounded; fragments are frequently carried out through the wound, which is commonly converted into a gaping orifice, the muscles are pulped, and, in fact, the limb mangled and damaged beyond repair.' It may not unreasonably be contended, therefore, that by supplying soldiers with a weapon which kills or maims for life everyone a bone of whose body is touched by a bullet even at a mile's distance, and further, by making victors and vanquished suffer equally and in a manner that is not to be compared with the suffering of the world will ever be able to make, however much they may endeavor to direct attention.

CANARIES

They Are Subject to Many Diseases—How They Should Be Treated.

To neglect the cleanliness of food, cage or water is a sure means of bringing on disease. The cage should be kept clean and the feeding dish should be changed and kept clean enough to prevent the bird from getting its plumage in its beak.

Fishes which are too small are a source of misery to the bird. They should be taken of the same size throughout—about twice the diameter of a common lead pencil.

If a young canary is observed to sleep more than usual or if it has the appearance of a puff ball, it should be taken in hand at once. Probably it is suffering from indigestion, arising from unwholesome or stale food, or from being given too many different things. The bird should be caught and a couple of drops of castor oil dropped down its throat, or the drinking water may be removed from the cage for a couple of hours and then put back with a few drops of cod liver oil floating on the top.

Either of these remedies will probably afford relief. The bird should then be removed to a dry, warm place and fed on crushed hemp for a few days.

Diarrrhoea is caused by giving too much green food, food which is wet or decayed or stale food. Bad drinking water is another frequent cause.

When the first symptoms of moults are observed, give a little magnesia in the drinking water, or if it is given in a small leaf, changing it every day.

To catch cold when moulting is almost always certain death to the bird. Therefore avoid drafty places for the cage.

At this time an abundance of food is necessary, and must be given by additions of a little hemp seed, white bread soaked in milk and lettuce or cress. The bird should also be kept warm.

Canaries are subject to many diseases. A common complaint is asthma. This generally arises from indigestion and yields to plain food and rape seed moistened with water as the sole food. In very bad cases leave off hemp seed and rapeseed only, give abundance of bread soaked in water and pressed, lettuce or watercress, according to season; twice a week give a little bread and milk ball about as large as the end of the thumb.

This is made by throwing a piece of the crumb of bread into a cup of milk, boiling and stirring with a wooden spoon till it is of the consistency of pap. It must be given cold and always freshly made. If allowed to sour, it will give indigestion. This paste acts as a purge and its effects must be watched.

For overgrown claws and beak use sharp scissors and take care to avoid drawing blood. The long claws are a source of discomfort and danger, especially when the female is nesting.

A bird which is egg bound needs immediate treatment. Give castor oil and drop some sweet oil into the food—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Singular Pet.

In a "Tour Around Hawaii," written in 1888, is an amusing description of an old pet, the favorite of two native women. When we reached the house of our host, the head man of Kapaeha, we met a cordial reception.

Two of the Hawaiian females are with us, a pet, usually a dog. Here we observed a species of favorite that we had not seen before. It was a curly tailed dog about a year and a half old, three or four feet long and in tolerable order. He belonged to the sister of our host and joined the small circle around the evening hearth.

During the evening he closely followed every movement made by his mistress, and as supper put forth his nose and received his portion at her hands. According to custom they washed their hands after the meal, and then passed the bowl to the dog.

At the usual time for retiring to rest these two ladies spread their mats and rugs on the ground in one corner, and, as is the usual practice, lay down to sleep with their clothes on. The dog waited very quietly till they had taken their places, when he marched over their heads and stretched himself between them. The large tugs that covered them all were then drawn up by one of them to his ears, after which she reclined her head on a pillow by his side.

I could not forbear smiling broadly at seeing the three heads in a row. This disconnected the women a little, and they raised their heads and the dog grunted.

The brother said that his sister had a great attachment for the dog, having fed it since it was a few days old, and he did not like to have it sleep out with the other dogs in the cold, adding that if it were put out it would make such a noise all night at the door that no one in the house would be able to sleep.

Klondike Gold.

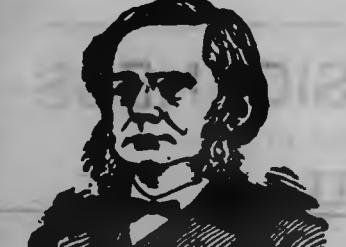

He had spent two or three winters in the Klondike country, or said he had, and he was telling his friends about it.

"It isn't so awfully cold up there when you get used to it," he said.

"Well," he continued, "I don't really suppose it is; it is just to the one that's used to it. He doesn't know a thing about it. He's been from to death a month by this time."

"Oh, indeed," exclaimed the inquirer, who seemed to be disturbed by the sad fate of the person accustomed to it.

M. Fremont has finished the head of the enormous statue of the late Countess of Lonsdale which is to be placed at the entry of the new canal. The statue is to be a representation of the Countess, seated with an Arab attendant, and pointing toward the new waterway opened up to navigation. On one of the sides of the pedestal—will be a medallion containing the portraits of the Countess and the late Lord Lonsdale.

The Health of the Hair is indicated by its condition. When the natural secretions decrease; when the hair becomes dry, splits at the ends and comes out in combing; when the gloss disappears and the hair becomes gray or faded, the ill health of the hair is indicated. The success of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is due to the fact that it restores the hair-producing organs to their natural vigor. It encourages and promotes the secretions of the hair follicles, and thus gray or faded hair regains its original color, new growth begins, and lost lustre is restored.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

for fifteen years. It causes the hair to keep its natural color and is a positive cure for baldness. — T. A. WEYANT, Weyant, Pa.

IMMIGRATION.

There are some interesting features in the report of the United States Immigration Commission at Boston for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1898. The total arrivals at that port from trans-Atlantic ports in the year footed up to 12,725, a decrease of 949 as compared with the preceding year. These figures, of course, only represent the arrivals by sea. The largest number were from Ireland which sent 5,591; England came next with 3,272 and Scotland sent 508. In point of numbers Sweden, however, was third, its figures being 1,180. Denmark sent 119 and Norway 248. There were 110 from Germany, 473 from Russia, 246 from Finland and 120 from Poland. No other country sent out over 100. France and Corsica combined only furnished 53. The number from the Canadian Provinces is very small. "Canada" is down for 70. Nova Scotia 7; Prince Edward Island, 7; and New Brunswick, 8. One can hope that these figures actually represent the exodus from the Maritime Provinces by sea. These immigrants had $153,836. Of the total 12,725 only 379 were unable to read or write, and only 111 were given relief from the immigrant fund. By sex the numbers were 5,633 males, 6,638 females. The alien labour laws do not work very severely, for only five persons were deported from Boston in the year as contract labourers; 49 were sent back as likely to be public charges. The whole number sent back was only 69.

NEW-CHWANG.

The town of New-Chwang, of which Russia is said to have taken possession, is one of the ports opened by European trade and settlement by the treaty of 1858. The old town is about 40 miles up the river Liao, but the new town, where the trade is conducted, is 30 miles farther south. The port is closed by ice nearly five months in the year. Nevertheless, its trade in 1893 amounted to $15,442,846. Three hundred and ninety-seven vessels touched at the port, of which 52 per cent. were British, 25 per cent. German, 14 per cent. Chinese and 6 per cent. Japanese.

The injury to British interests by Russia's action is apparent. It was England which, by a successful war against China, opened this, with other ports, to commerce. While Englishmen by their greater enterprise were able to reap the chief benefit from this opening, they left to other nations the same opportunities which they themselves enjoyed. Russia, however, failed to take any advantage of these opportunities. Yet now appropriating the port, Russia will monopolize its commerce, thus overthrowing rights which England won by the sword and shared with the whole world and which Englishmen have enjoyed uninterrupted for 37 years. There is both a sentiment and an actual commercial interest which impel England to resist the action of Russia, especially as this is clearly but a step, and not the first step either, toward undermining England's power and influence and destroying her commerce in Northern China.

OUR TOWN COUNCIL.

In common with my fellow citizens I am pleased to see that the Council at its last meeting carried out the wishes of the people by abolishing the Ward system in this town. Councillors Best, W. H. White, J. M. White, Robertson and Dawson voted against the By-law, and consequently against the wishes of the people. But the most startling episode of the discussion in the Council was a speech delivered by Councillor Langford. It will be remembered that at a former meeting the Council had refused to carry out the By-law, and although one member, Mr. McWilliams, warned the Council, that they were acting illegally, they persisted in the wrong, and there was no way left to Mr. McWilliams but to call the attention of the public as well as of the Council to the facts of the case, and this he did in a straight forward, manly way, which had a very convincing effect upon the refractory "rump" of the Council, when they saw clearly that they were violating an Act of Parliament, and must suffer accordingly.

And for this timely warning through the press Mr. McWilliams is severely blamed by Councillor Langford. Here are Councillor Langford's own words, as reported, in speaking of Mr. McWilliams' letters in the press, Mr. Langford says it "is a high handed measure," and that "it simply would have the effect of making those members stick to what they had done even if they knew it was wrong." They would not be men if they did not stick to it under the circumstances.

Now it is needless to say that the principles laid down here and endorsed by Mr. Langford, if carried out, would not only to its foundations, but according to Mr. Langford's logic, the thief, the liar, the burglar, the murderer and the whole criminal fraternity should persevere in their criminal career, because somebody had warned them in the press against their evil ways. "They would not be men if they did not stick to it."

The most charitable construction we can put upon Mr. Langford's speech in the Council is, that he is either a very silly or a very unsafe member of society. Rayesay.

So his ex. of British Columbia has turned down Turner. Sic semper McInnes.

Cervera whose bottled fleet was destroyed by the Yankees, blames Captain General Blanco for the order which ended so disastrously. In his official report to the Spanish Government Cervera says that he went into Santiago harbor and out of it on Blanco's orders, and both times much against his own judgement. The Spanish Navy Department refuses to make the truculent report public on the ground that it is a confidential communication.

Mr. J. N. Greenshields, of Montreal returning from England, says, "The eyes of England are upon Canada. We are looked upon as having entered upon the greatest era of success that the Dominion has ever known. There is any quantity of English capital ready to invest in Canadian enterprises. You have only to show that your undertaking is honest and has a fair chance of success; then if it be of Canadian enterprise the capital is easy. They look upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a great man. Politics do not enter one's mind when speaking of the present Government of the Dominion. It is the man, not his politics."

A company organized to extract gold from sea water by some mysterious process carefully guarded by its inventor now finds itself in trouble by the disappearance of its chief promoter, Rev. P. F. Jernegan, who has carried with him a considerable amount of the funds of the company. He sailed for that mecca of "delinquent promoters," Europe, and although said to have been bound for Paris, he unaccountably disappeared between Havre and that city. The inventor of the wonderful process and the only one who possessed sufficient knowledge of it to manipulate the machinery disappeared first, and Mr. Jernegan says that he has gone in search of him. The works at North Lubee, Me., have been closed and the stockholders, who had the most implicit faith in Mr. Jernegan, are wondering what the outcome will be. There is considerable money on hand, and the officers of the company assert that everything will ultimately be straightened out and stockholders lose none of their original investment. The report is that Mr. Jernegan has been misled in the matter and that the real culprit is the man who first disappeared, variously known as Fisher and Phelan. The works at North Lubee are being investigated to find out if the process is a bona fide one, with real results, or whether it is all a hoax.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles!
Symptoms—Molasses intense itching and stinging; most at night; worst by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and become very sore. Swyer's Ointment stops the itching, soothes the inflamed skin, and in many cases removes the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swyer & Son, Philadelphia, Lyman, Son & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. Positively refuse all substitutes.

Blacking.

Liquid blacking, such as is now used, was invented early in the present century. Previously various mixtures were used. There are many allusions in last century literature to shoeblacks and blacking. In the London World of Jan. 31, 1784, Edward Moore, describing the miseries of an author, says that he would rather have had the money to buy or credit to procure "a stool, brushes and blackball." An old kind of blacking consisted of ivory black, very coarse muslin sugar and water, with a little vinegar. A mixture of whale oil and soot was used in Gay's time. The author of "Trivia" has several allusions to the "black youth" who stood at street corners then, as he does to his don't stand, and the shoe shine beneath his only hand.

De Foe makes his Colonel Jack describe himself when a boy as a dirty vagabond, "like a 'Black your shoes, your honor!' a beggar boy, a blackguard boy or what you please, despicable and miserable to the last degree."

Here is another quotation from "Trivia" (1715):

"His treble voice resounds along the mews, and Whetstone echoes, 'Clean your honor's shoes!'"

—Notes and Queries.

Quick Journeys Made New.
A French statistician has just drawn up an interesting document showing at various periods in what time certain frontier towns could be reached from Paris. The years chosen are 1650, 1784, 1834, 1884 and 1897. In 1650 it took five days to go from Paris to Calais. One hundred and thirty-two years later, in 1784, the duration of the journey had been reduced to 60 hours. In 1834 it had fallen to 28 hours and in 1884 to 8 hours 40 minutes. Today one on the boat expresses takes 8 hours 45 minutes.

The journey to Strasbourg took 818 hours in 1650, 108 hours in 1784, 10 hours 40 minutes in 1834 and today a matter of 2 1/2 hours 80 minutes. The difference for Marseilles is still more phenomenal. From 16 days in 1650 the duration of the journey was reduced to 80 hours in 1834, and today it takes 18 1/2 hours. The distance from Paris to Bayonne two centuries ago took 388 hours. Today it occupies 11 hours 11 minutes. Even now it is reached in 18 hours 27 minutes, while in 1850 it took 270 hours. Finally, for Havre, 97 hours was considered quick traveling in 1650. It took 1 1/2 hours in 1784 and 17 hours in 1834. Today it is a matter of 5 hours 15 minutes. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Where He Worked.

The prisoner was making his appearance before the magistrate for the hundredth time.

"Well," said the magistrate, "you have again."

"Yes, your worship," responded the prisoner.

"What's the charge?"

"Vagrancy—same as before, your worship."

"It seems to me you are here about half your time."

"Rather more than less, your worship."

"Well, what do you do for? Why don't you work?"

"I do, your worship, more than half my time."

"Ah, now," said the magistrate, surprised, "if you can tell me where you have ever worked I'll let you off."

"In prison, your worship," replied the prisoner, and the court kept the word.

Songs That Ring Themselves.

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophones are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvelous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine for entertainment at home. It has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. Soiled Death Councillor W. L. Allen left on the noon train yesterday to attend the funeral of his mother in Bowmanville. Mrs. Allen has been a sufferer from nervous prostration and heart trouble for some time, but when Councillor Allen left for Bowmanville last week, after a short stay, her illness was not regarded as being serious at the time. A telegram received yesterday, however, apprised him of her sudden death morning.

Ontario's Death Rate
We are in receipt of a copy of the monthly report of the Provincial Board of Health and from it we learn that there were 222 deaths in Ontario during June. The greatest death rate was from tuberculosis, 160 persons having died from this disease, representing a percentage of 1.1 per 1000 of the population per annum. Following this were 29 deaths from diphtheria, 9 from scarlet fever, 10 from typhoid fever, 7 from measles and 7 from whooping cough. The average death rate for the three months ending June 30th was a little more than seven persons per day.

Drowned in Belmont Lake
On Friday evening last, a boy named Willie Chase, 16 years of age, was drowned while bathing in Belmont Lake. The accident occurred on the east shore. The boy, who could swim only a few strokes, got beyond his depth, and his struggles attracted the attention of a companion on shore, Alfred Lake, a young man about 21 years of age. Lake hastened to the rescue, but being unable to swim he waded out within about five feet of the drowning boy without being able to reach him. He hurried to the shore and called a policeman, but on returning to the water young Chase was too far gone to grasp it, and he sank to rise no more in life. Efforts were at once made to recover the body, and it was brought to the surface by grappling at one o'clock the following day.

COMMENCED OPERATIONS

McDonald's Saw Mill at Point St. Charles Again in Working Order

The new saw mill erected by Mr. Alf. McDonald at Point St. Charles to replace the one destroyed by fire some months ago, commenced operations yesterday with a full staff—Mr. McDonald, personally, operating the mill and turning out a piece of timber for use on the Trent Valley Canal.

Talk about a structure rising phoenix like from its ashes and this new building furnishes the best kind of an example. It is just five weeks to a day since Mr. McDonald concluded to erect a new mill and now a splendid structure, beautifully designed, equipped with modern machinery and in complete working order graces the site of the old mill.

The speedy accomplishment of the work is in a great measure due to Mr. Thom. Rutherford, who had the contract for the erection of the new building, and Mr. Dennis McMartin, millwright. These two gentlemen are noted for the despatch with which they accomplish their engagements, but in this instance they exceeded themselves—in fact they beat all previous records.

Mr. McDonald is certainly to be congratulated on securing the services of such hustlers as Messrs. Rutherford and McMartin.

The mill is now one of the best in Central Ontario and will afford employment to a large number of men. The least recognition the town council could make of such commendable enterprise on the part of Mr. McDonald would be to furnish him proper fire protection by placing a hydrant near his mill.

The new building greatly improves the appearance of Point St. Charles.

CITY LIGHTS AND SHADES

Happening in Town and District During Past Week—four hours

Yesterday was Lindsay's Civic Holiday.

—The Market and Street and Bridge Committees meet this evening.

—An abusive language case was dismissed in the police court yesterday morning.

—To-day the C.P.R. employees hold their annual picnic. It goes to Perth this year.

—The river will be entirely clear of the Rathbun Co. drive of logs before the end of the week.

—A charge against a young man of using insulting language was dismissed at the Police Court yesterday morning.

—At the request of several parties the City of Peterborough will run the regular weekly trip to Hastings to-day as usual.

—Mr. R. M. Roy has been asked by the committee at Winnipeg to act as official photographer for the Dominion meet in that city on Labor day, September 5th, but owing to pressure of business he will not be able to be present.

—A desperate attempt was made to burn McKie & Haly's brewery, at Colborne, on Monday night. The desperadoes broke into the Government Supply House and stole a quantity of coal oil. With this they started a fire in the building, and then set fire to it. When one of the brewery employees opened the establishment in the morning the place was full of smoke. With a few buckets of water he succeeded in putting out the fire.

NAVIGATION NOTES

Movements of Vessels and Other Paragraphs of Interest

The Government boat, the Empress, spent a couple of days on a tour at "Hells Gates," opposite Stony Lake this week.

The last of the Rathbun drives have pulled out of the Little Lake, under charge of Jack McCarthy, foreman, who with his cookery also takes all the captain's cribs remaining. The first boat to leave was under the charge of Geo. Jackson, a local man. The second was commanded by P. Light, and will one of the first to reach Rice Lake. A representative of the Times was entertained by Jack McCarthy and his chief cook, Dan. Donaldson, and can say that the meal was simply "all the way." The Times wishes to thank Mr. Geo. Wims, of Hespington, Ont., who is clerk for the Rathbun Co., for his kindness in giving all information in connection with the Rathbun Co.

The Spanish gunboat, Quilich, left yesterday morning for Hastings with supplies (lumber etc.) for the army, under command of Capt. Chas. Calcutt and Engineer R. Loder.

Capt. Wm. Scollard, of the str. Majestic was in town yesterday. He reports business unusually good on the lakes.

LEGAL COMMITTEE

Of the Town Council Met Last Night and Transacted Considerable Business

The Legal Committee of the town council met last night in the clerk's office.

The letter from Messrs. Kerr & Kerr in reference to the grant to the Fire Brigade Band, was brought up and was allowed to stand.

A resolution was adopted to recommend that Messrs. Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson be paid $15 in settlement of a claim of Mrs. Hrough's for injuries received by falling on the sidewalk on Water street at the post office, and the clerk was instructed to write the Dominion Minister of Public Works in reference to the condition of the sidewalk.

It was also recommended that the clerk write the Grand Trunk Railway Co. to fence their line where it passes through Lot 11, south of Townsend and west of George street.

The town solicitor was instructed to take such action as may be necessary to protect the town's interest in the island in the Otonabee River reserved by the Canadian Pacific spur line. The committee then adjourned.

Enclaved Houses

The Dominion Government has issued a book containing a list of unclaimed balances which are now lying in the chartered banks of Canada awaiting the owners. The book incites all sums up to the 31st of December last.

SQUIRE LANG DEAD

One of the Earliest Settlers in the County Passes Away Yesterday

William Lang—better known as "Squire" Lang—one of the earliest settlers in the county, died yesterday morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John Loder, Keene, after an illness of eleven months' duration.

He was a native of Scotland, born 93 years ago at Kiltbrachin. There he was united in marriage to Jane Stewart, and shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Lang came to Canada, settling in Otonabee, where he engaged in farming. He formerly lived at what is known as Hope's mill, near Allandale, and for some time carried on the mill. Many years ago he retired from active service and came to live in Keene. Mr. Lang was a prominent and public-spirited citizen. He was for many years a member of the township council and in 1860, at the time of the visit of the Prince of Wales, Warden of the county. He was also for many years a Justice of the Peace and the popular name "Squire" Lang has long been applied to him. He enjoyed the highest degree of respect and esteem and was known far and wide in the district as a man of unusual ability and irreproachable character.

For the past ten years he has been blind, but retained his mental faculties to a high degree. His memory was especially active and it was a pleasure to hear the reminiscences which Mr. Lang could recall, especially those connected with the early history of the township and county. In religion Mr. Lang was a Presbyterian and in politics a prominent Liberal. Twenty-one years ago to-day his wife preceded Mr. Lang to the better land. He leaves behind him only two children—Mr. John Lang, Meaford, Ont., and Mrs. Loder, Keene, with whom he spent the last years of his life. Five other children are dead, viz., Mrs. Jas. Fife, Mrs. Richard Howe, Mrs. John Lang and Mr. George Lang, all of Otonabee and Dr. Lang, whose family at present resides on Gilmour street, Peterborough. In the passing away of Mr. Lang the few remaining pioneer settlers lost one of their most prominent members, for more perhaps in any township or county was longer a resident or better known and more highly respected than Mr. Lang. The funeral takes place to-morrow at 2 o'clock p.m. from the late residence to the cemetery.

A Postal Convenience

The post-office has been supplied with the new postal notes which the Government has lately printed, and any person can use them as freely as the post-office order. The postal notes are for certain fixed sums of money ranging from 20 cents to five dollars, and the rates are one cent for 20 cents and up to 40 cents; two cents for 50 cents and up to $1; and three cents for sums over $2.50. They are quickly made out, and will prove a great convenience to the public in making remittance of small sums of money, instead of buying postage stamps. Every postal note is payable in cash at any office it is presented.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

LACROSSE

The play off with Orillia will probably take place some time next week, and the Peterborough's should be in the pink of condition for the match, which will doubtless take place on the Toronto Island. The lacrosse club will run a cheap excursion to the city for the event if President Lennor orders the match to be played there.

The Capitals play in Orillia on Monday next. Campbellford wants a game with the 11. Peterboroughs. The local juniors are therefore asked to turn out strong for practice during the next week.

CRICKET

Toronto Globe.—The match between Toronto-Rosedale and Peterborough was played on the Rosedale grounds yesterday, and resulted in a hollow victory for the home team by 300 runs and three wickets to spare. The visitors won the toss and went to bat. A bad start was made, five wickets being down for ten runs, but on Goldsmith and W. Hamilton becoming partners they carried the score to 62, both playing excellent cricket. The innings closed for 79. The home team then went to bat. Hills and Mckenzie were sent to the end of this month. He was at the wicket for three hours and twenty minutes. At the call of time the score was 398 for 7 wickets. The highest score ever made in Canada was 395 for 8 wickets, by Rosedale against Peterborough four years ago. It was in this match that Geo. S. Lyon got 238 runs. The Beaverbrook Checkers play at Orillia to-day.

TROUBLE WITH RUSSIA

Lieut. Caranza Sails for Liverpool To-day

IMPERIAL ORDER THE CAUSE

Militant Anarchists Shoot Several Persons at Brussels

The Friars in the Philippines—The Frege and Corbett-McCoy Fight will not Take Place in Erie County, Ontario

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—Following in the footsteps of the Novosti, the Novoye Vremya eulogizes the Marquis of Salisbury for the wisdom with which he keeps in check the Russo-phobic outbursts of members of his party and the prudence with which he endeavors to obviate all pretext for misunderstanding between Great Britain and Russia.

The paper says it observes that "unfortunately more than half the British public share Mr. Chamberlain's view," but cannot understand "why the Russo-phobes are apprehensive of the Russians at Port Arthur."

The Novoye Vremya then says: "The results of the mission to Russia of Port Arthur and Ta-Lien-Wan will not show themselves for some time to come. A considerable period must elapse before these ports can serve the purpose for which they were intended by the Russian foreign policy, that of providing a permanent outlet in the Pacific Ocean. Quite otherwise in Russia's position on the Indian frontier, where everything has been long organized for military action if some extreme excess of ill-will upon the part of Great Britain should drive Russia to such action."

Lieut. Caranza is still here, but he has engaged passage on the Dominion Line-Stratfordman, which sails on Saturday for Liverpool.

EXPULSION BY IMPERIAL ORDER

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Hon. David Mills this morning on being asked what is the status of Lieut. Caranza, he has been expelled from Canada, and returned without leave, refused to answer, stating that he could only answer that question to His Excellency. It must be remembered that the Canadian minute of Council exists in this case, the expulsion having been ordered by the Imperial Privy Council. Another high legal luminary accustomed to dealing with such questions was asked the same question, and replied:

"Lieut. Caranza was expelled, not under any Canadian law, but by Imperial order. He was expelled for an offense against a friendly nation connected with a war then going on. The war has ceased, and the occasion of offense being removed no offense can exist in his returning. He may not be persona grata to Canadians, but we in this country have room for everybody."

THESE ANARCHISTS SHOOT

Brussels, Aug. 12.—While a policeman was arresting a militant anarchist named Williams, the latter shot and wounded the officer, and then escaped. The anarchist also shot several persons who attempted to capture him, but he was finally arrested and lodged in jail.

Later the police visited Williams' lodgings, where they found two anarchists, who promptly opened fire on the officers. A policeman replied to the fire, fatally wounding one of the anarchists. The companion was captured.

THE FRIARS IN PHILIPPINES

London, Aug. 12.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "The fate of the religious orders in the Philippines excites much interest, because it is believed that both the Americans and the natives will insist upon, if not the expulsion of the orders, certainly a disestablishment of their property. Though it is admitted that some such reforms are needed, the Government is bound to approach the subject cautiously, in order to avoid offending the Vatican and playing into the hands of the ultramontanes and Catholics."

WILL NOT FIGHT IN ERIE COUNTY

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A meeting of ministers, representing every denomination was held here this afternoon for the purpose of adopting action to prevent the proposed Corbett-McCoy prize fight from being held in Erie county. Thirty-five ministers were present. Rev. P. B. Merrill, presiding, declared the fight as conducted at that time a violation of the Horton law. Continuing, he said:

"The issue is plain, the membership of the church as a whole, the Horton law is a violation of the Horton law. Continuing, he said:

Expedition Urged in the Formation of the Terms of Peace—Spanish Peace Commission

Madrid, Aug. 12.—The Spanish Government this morning notified the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, M. Delcasse, of its acceptance of the protocol and asked the French Government to transmit to M. Cambon, the French Ambassador at Washington, such power as, in conformity with President McKinley's expressly formulated desire, will authorize him as Ambassador of France at Washington to sign the protocol.

SIGNING OF THE PROTOCOL

Washington, Aug. 12.—The peace protocol will not be signed prior to the Cabinet meeting, but will be signed some time to-day. The French Ambassador up to 10.30 o'clock had not received the authorization to sign the protocol. No doubt is entertained at the Embassy that the formal execution of the preliminary peace agreement will take place during the day.

COMMISSION SITS IN PARIS

London, Aug. 12.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "The Cabinet to-day considered the protocol, which arrived Thursday morning. President McKinley accepts the Spanish reply, with slight formal modifications."

The first condition of the protocol is an armistice. This will be declared immediately. The conditions are the same as those proposed by President McKinley. Senator Sagasta has asked M. Cambon an authorization to sign the protocol, to which keep the Queen Regent had already given assent. The Cabinet Council also discussed the instructions to be given the Spanish plenipotentiaries for the negotiation of peace. The question of the Philippines will be the chief point for consideration and on this the plenipotentiaries of the American Government are not known.

The impression prevails, however, that the powers will not regard the problem of the Philippines with the same passivity as they showed towards Cuba and Porto Rico. The American and Spanish plenipotentiaries will meet immediately in Paris. The Cabinet at Washington urging expedition.

SPANISH PEACE COMMISSION

Madrid, Aug. 12.—The press now considers peace a foregone conclusion, and expects the general impotence to see a termination of hostilities, and to know the programme of the Peace Commission at which it is believed it is believed either Senor Mors or Puke Alcala de Rio will preside. It is believed that the negotiations will extend into the second half of September.

AVENGED BY LIGHTNING

Red Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 12.—A story of avenging lightning and the destruction of life and property, the body of West Virginia's greatest outlaw comes from over the mountains, two counties away.

A young woman on Sunday, in Boone County, found the bodies of Wade Counts and his son. They had been dead, it was found afterward, two days. The two men were going from Clay County to their homes in Kentucky and stopped on a ridge between Boone and Boone County.

They were during a terrible thunderstorm. They sought shelter under a tree which struck the tree and killed both. Every bone in Wade Counts' body was broken, but there was no abrasion of the skin, except where the deadly bolt entered his head as it jumped from the tree down which it ran.

In spite of his long life of crime, Wade Counts was never brought here to face with justice. For years he and a band of cut-throats, known as the Consolidated Band had infested the northwest corner of Boone County; they were bound together by what was known as the "black on th," which was never repeated to one, not a member of the gang.

A list of the murders which he had committed on second Creek, August 10, 1877, arrested, but no indictment.

The Rev. T. P. Ryan said in his own words by someone on the outside, "He was a very anxious to get to his home at Columbus, O., and being without means I recommend him to you for your consideration."

RULE TO GUIDE JUDGE

Detective Wilkes Again in the Box

"WILLIES" IN THE BANK

Argument by Counsel as to Who Should Try the Case

Naperville, Aug. 12.—At the preliminary robbery hearing this morning Detective Wilkes was again put in the box. He said when he first came on the case there were three "Willies" in the bank, but denied ever having killed the bank books. His evidence of last year was taken into court taken as read. The detective addressed a few words to the court denying that he had any personal animus against the prisoners.

Charles Fogart, manager of the Dominion Bank at Montreal, was sworn but gave no evidence. The testimony he gave at last year's trial was put into court and taken as read. The same was done with Wm. J. Norman's evidence regarding Ponton's purchase of a bicycle.

Then counsel argued by Mr. Oiler and Mr. Fogart as to whether the Magistrate should try the case or not. Mr. Oiler claimed that the Magistrate should not try the case because all three prisoners did not exist. He said this was the case that guided a county judge. Mr. Fogart claimed that this was not the case and that the Magistrate should not try the case because all three prisoners did not exist. He said this was the case that guided a county judge.

Scrofula is Snake-Like

In its subtlety. It lies hidden for years in the ambush of the blood, and when it strikes it voids its venom alike on strength and beauty, disfiguring the one and undermining the other.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

is a specific for scrofula in its worst and most malignant forms. Scrofula is a blood disease. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a blood purifying medicine. Mineral medicines only drive scrofula below the surface. Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a vegetable remedy and it eradicates the disease. There is no remedy for scrofula equal to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"I was cured of a long-standing case of scrofula by Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The disease first manifested itself when I was a child, by breaking out in red blotches all over my body. I was not free from the trouble until I took several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. That effected a permanent cure."—Mrs. E. H. Stevens, Lakewood, Pa.

THE BREAKING UP OF AN EMPIRE

The stagnant civilization of China was for a very long time the wonder of the world. As boys we reckoned the great wall of China one of the great marvels, and we were given to understand that the records of the Celestial Kingdom stretched far back into the remote past. Now, however, it seems that all conquering change must invade the changeless realm. In the earlier years of this century Britain and France knocked rudely at the doors of the Chinese domain. Its outer edges were opened to the commerce of the world. In the same period, missionaries of various churches have manifested unselfish heroism in seeking to carry to the "heathen Chinese" the message of the Cross. Now more radical changes are taking place; and after long preparation the movement is more rapid. Lord Rosebery's statement, made only four years ago, reads now as if it belonged to a still more distant past. We have hitherto been favored with one eastern question which we have always endeavored to half as something too portentous for our imagination; but of late a Far Eastern question has been super-added, which I confess to my apprehension is in the dim vistas of futurity infinitely graver than even that question of which we have hitherto known.

The Far Eastern question is now very much alive. The recent action of Germany and Russia has quickened it and forced it to the front. China can no longer remain in comparative seclusion. That vast country and unwieldy empire must now come into immediate contact with the restless forces of the western world. What will be the final result is at present difficult to foresee, but it is quite safe to say that the immediate future will bring forth changes of great importance to China and the world. At present Russian diplomacy seems to be successful, and her power in that quarter great. Germany carries favor with the Northern Power, that she may get her slice; and France must perforce play the game of her new-found ally. This is no doubt a powerful combination, but its stability may be doubted.

One can scarcely wonder if British statesmen are sometimes staggered at the greatness of the question, and feel that they are called to bear more than their share of the burdens of this weary world. But in the country itself there never was more heart or hope, or more real determination that the "tight little island" shall continue to play its part in the life of the world. For the last thirty years various governments have allowed British commercial interests to look after themselves; but it is now felt that more intelligent and earnest activity is needed.

This, however, is only one side of a many-sided question; but even this slight sketch of the situation will show that even here it might be well if the new world was called in to redress the balance of the old, and so we are glad to note that America also is taking a more real interest in China.

It is not for the good of the world that the vast Empire which is falling to pieces, should be controlled by two or three despotic rulers, and our faith in the beneficent progress of events, leads us to think that this calamity will be averted.

BRITAIN'S WARNING.

The announcement of a British supplementary estimate to the tune of forty million dollars was not unexpected; its significance lies in the language in which the motion was clothed. Earlier in the session Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and Mr. Chamberlain had been severely criticized for their unceremonious remarks regarding the ultimate arms of Russia and France; since then the action of the Foreign Office and the speech of the First Lord of the Admiralty show that the Cabinet as a whole is now convinced that the once landed policy of splendid isolation is no longer tenable.

Until the publication of the Blue Book containing the despatches, which passed between St. Petersburg and London upon the Chinese question, there was a tendency among an influential section of politicians to urge upon the Cabinet a rapprochement with Russia regarding the British interests in the East. But the Blue Book revealed the fact that Count Muraviev, after informing the British Ambassador that Russia had no intention of holding Port Arthur—except as a free commercial port—went back on his word. The change in public opinion since this exposure has been very marked. Mr. Chamberlain, with his usual astuteness, at once went to work to counteract the friction which had been growing between Germany and Great Britain, a friction largely due to exaggerated reports of some eccentricities and indiscreet expressions of the Emperor, which received too ready credence in certain British and American journals.

The less noisy but more reflective an influential section of public opinion is now realizing that to enforce the policy of the open door for commerce Britain must have allies, and the question is asked with what foreign powers do British interests least conflict?

To the somewhat shady diplomatic victory which Russia achieved over Port Arthur is primarily due the almost affectionate reconciliation between the bulk of American and British public opinion; for the first time it seems to have been realized at Washington that the aims of the foreign policy of both nations is identical and that an extension of the area over which the Union Jack floats means an extension of the unfettered opportunities for the expansion of American commerce also.

Count Muraviev's smartness is also responsible for the more amicable feeling between London and Berlin and for the fact that Britain has gained the alliance of Japan without losing her influence with China.

Japan has played such a virile part both in the field and in the Council Chamber during the last decade, that the opinions of her public men are worth consideration; despite the blandishments of St. Petersburg it is interesting to learn that they believe the interests of peaceful progress will be best served by a friendly understanding between Britain, Germany and the United States and themselves.

No one maintains that such an alliance could be made as those which bound together the despots of the past, or which, at the present time govern the relations between Russia and France on the one hand, or Germany and Austria on the other. Neither America or Japan would be greatly concerned by a renewed struggle about the Rhine or the Bosphorus, but when new geographical areas are to be brought into contact with what is called the civilized world, it is certainly the common interest of Britain, Germany, America and Japan that such areas should be free from the restrictions upon their enterprises which have been recently imposed by France in Madagascar and Tonquin, and by Russia, in Asia Minor and her eastern possessions.

In either of the four countries would any religious or race question come into exercise the disturbing influence which the pretensions of the Slavs and the Clerics cause in Russian policy, nor is there the desire to acquire territory for purposes of revenge or consolidation as in France; the common aim is security for the peaceful development of trade and commerce, a motive for united action quite as righteous as that which has prompted more than one "Holy Alliance."

The result of peace negotiations between Spain and America, and the attitude which France and Russia take when Khartoum is again under British control will afford a pretty definite clue as to the nature of those secret diplomatic manoeuvres which are now engrossing the attention of the leading Cabinets of the world.

Saved from Paralysis and Death by Paine's Celery Compound

Wells & Richardson Co.,
Dear Sirs—I have much pleasure in recommending Paine's Celery Compound for nervousness and weakness, with which I was sorely afflicted for a number of years, and for which my doctor could give no relief. I became very weak and had a stroke of paralysis. I was confined to my bed, and the doctor requested me to try a course of your medicine as the last thing that could be done. I did as recommended, and before I had finished the first bottle I experienced a change. I am glad to say that I am cured through the use of Paine's Celery Compound. I have recommended it to others and they have been benefited by it. It has worked miracles for me. Yours truly,

Canada's Great Exposition.
Many new and interesting features will be offered at the Toronto Exhibition this year, which is to be held from the 29th August to the 10th September. The harvest throughout the Dominion is good, and with the return of better times and the unusually low fares now being given by the railways, many will be induced to visit this great exhibition which perhaps would not otherwise do so. The entries in all departments will be great, and the attractions offered will be of a character to draw among the many will be realistic representations of the present Cuban-American War, the blockade, bombardment and battles of Santiago, or Havana, firing and explosion of shells, explosion of submarine mines and blowing up of vessels on the lake in front of the exhibition grounds, exhibitions by Maxime and Gatling machine guns, etc., all of a specially interesting nature at the present time. The programme of attractions promises to far exceed that of last year, which is saying a good deal. The exhibits will include many from Great Britain, France and the United States, while almost every section of the Dominion will be represented.

Scene in the Chamber of Deputies When the Members Straggled.

Upon arriving at the anteroom of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense number called in a stentorian voice for "Le pauvre" or a faint demander "M. Constant" or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it usually was—advanced toward the smiling member, who never looked bored, the mask of hospitality being probably the same in this respect throughout the legislative "allot" of the world. At last M. Talatier appeared and got me a place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representative hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little locked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Borel, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Left, or radical, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted and gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and they quieted down lest he might put on his hat and adjourn the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the dock or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always, the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'état, yet I heard it said about me that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign. One saw at a glance how much profounder political differences must be in France than with us.

Married on Thirty Minutes' Courtship.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once, "but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 a. m. A few miles further on at another small station a big strapping looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her.

"I panned his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river tiler of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 35 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want to get hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but 30 minutes, but we both like, an she's willin an so'm I. Whur's the nearest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to be the cake and other special prices offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louis A. Possibility.

A REMARKABLE CONTEST.

A Sick Woman's Struggle to Outlive an Invalid for Her Children's Sake.

A remarkable case developed at Morristown, Ind., says The St. Louis Republic. Morgan Chandler, a banker and a resident of Greenfield, several weeks ago executed his will, dividing his large estate among his nearest relatives. Among them was Eliza Burton, to whom he had bequeathed $30,000, which she was to receive providing she was not living with her husband, Charles, at the time of the testator's death, she having married Burton against his wishes. It was also stated in the will that, should the testator survive the niece, the bequest was to go to the legatee named in the will, not to Burton nor his heirs.

Soon after the will was drawn Burton died, leaving Mrs. Burton to support the children, which she did, by taking in washing, sewing, etc. Several weeks ago the niece was taken ill, and at about the same time the wealthy uncle was also stricken. Both grew constantly worse. The neighbors and friends of the widow took great interest, wishing her to survive the uncle, having learned the provisions of the will.

Greenfield and Morristown have telephone connections, and the friends of the widow were kept constantly informed as to the condition of the uncle. Both patients grew weaker. At times the mother would seem to be breathing her last, but stimulants would be administered and she would revive, or long enough to enquire as to the condition of her relative, when she would return to a comatose state.

This was continued thirty-six hours, and all hopes of prolonging her life longer were virtually abandoned. Finally a message came from Mrs. Burton that she had died. Mrs. Burton had endured the tortures of death long enough to secure a fortune for her children. They were summoned to her bedside, and with a blessing upon them she closed her eyes and passed away. Cashier McDonald of the Union Bank has been appointed their guardian.

The New Millionaire.

I ran across a new millionaire the other day whose name I have not yet seen in the papers. I found him and his family in a little room from whose windows one could see the lake.

The living that my friend Mila needs many servants and a palace to make a suitable great grandly on here in one room and an alcove. Three servants, Love, Willingness and Good Nature, to all the work gratis. On the looking glass was pinned this little poem of Lucy Larcom's:

"ALL THINGS ARE MINE."

"I do not own an inch of land, But all I see is mine. The orchards and the mowing fields, The winds my tax-collectors are. They bring me tidings divine— Of joys and subtle ecstasies. A tribute rare and free: And more magnificent than all, My wisdom keep for me A glimpse of blue immensity, A little strip of sea."—Chicago Record.

The "Speedy" Bazaar.

A wild bear hunt was the exciting sport a number of the young men of South Jacksonville had looked forward to last week with a great deal of pleasure. The wild bear bazaar, which was held in a pen and fed with red pepper, gunpowder and dynamite, and became as fierce as his reputed cousin of the Black Forest.

On the day of the hunt a cavalcade assembled at the meeting place armed with javelins and spears made of bamboo with bunting knives tied to the end.

The wild bear was liberated and trotted away into the woods. He quivered a half-contented, inquisitive, squall the rest of my family sort of a squall with no thought of the pursuers who spurred and whipped their horses into furious pursuit.

The wild bear trotted along—just simply and coolly trotted. He did not seem as if he was going, but the gun flashed the pursuers, and they were robbed of the pleasure of "la chasse" him full of holes.—Florida Times Union.

The French Peasant.

The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers, they at least will own a house and garden and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and these may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on saving, yet with all their individualism, they combine for common and mutual interest. This is illustrated by the organization of the syndicate for buying at wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, lending each other horses and making up teams. Every commune has a field, which is common property and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze. After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gross total and the other details are allowed to roam at large.—Contemporary Review.

STRAWBERRY CULTURE—FIG. 3.

therefore the weakest in growth and in fruit stems. This was the final operation in the year's care which, as you will see, is marked with minute attention to details at every period of the year. The varieties grown are those which produce large and beautiful berries like making up for any deficiency of prolific numbers in berries.

This year my friend grew Wm. Bell, Marshall, Voltaire, Prince, Timbrell, Belle, Brandywine and Harton. He hired his picking done by the quart, 2c; but the berries are carefully sorted as picked, the picking being done by girls, who boss themselves, and are trustworthy and honorable in their service. Being thus fortunate in his picking, my friend is saved the expense of a foreman. In fruitful seasons more than 200 bushels per acre are harvested, and the selected fruit, which amounts to more than 80 per cent. of the entire yield, sells at 2c per quart. The quart more than the average market price. In fact, it has never sold for less than 8c per quart wholesale, and generally brings 10c, and from that to 15c. Gluts, which affect common offerings, never make any difference with the demand for this gift-ed stock, which is consumed by those who use only the best to be had, whatever the price.

The matter of thinning I consider so important that in closing I again refer to it with a diagram explaining or illustrating the manner.

Fig. 2 shows five original plants with the runner plants allowed to root around the original plants. These were set out in the spring and later on, say about the middle of July, the children in the form of runners were allowed to take root, being pulled so each would have a fair share. Still later more took root from runners, continuing to grow and escaping the hand of the person who weeded and cared for the plantation. These are those marked a in the drawing, and show the result of the thinning of the blossoms they were cut out with a chisel or knife. These plants being the latest to root were weaker than the others and their room is better than their company, as their removal leaves air and light as may be seen in the drawing. The plants between the third and fourth group counting from the left, as indicated by the clumsy arrows. The usual way is to thin uniformly as near as may be to equal distances. A thinning of this practice would in the present instance leave many young plants marked a and take out stronger plants marked b in Fig. 2. The thinning intended to be illustrated by this drawing is the removal of four plants in Fig. 2 are left out, but the runners remain showing where they grew.

Had the thinning been done the September before, it would not have done roots very much, but as my friend waits until late spring to make his selection of the condemned plants, it is plain that removing those marked a would not greatly injure the roots of adjacent plants, while at the same time it gives room to those remaining. I might add that in theory it is possible to make a model row with each plant equally distant from every other, but in practice it is very different, especially with the varieties which show the very highest type of fruit. Take all high bred animals or vegetables they are somewhat capricious and it is not often that every plant put out two and a half feet from its neighbor makes headway enough to fill its quota of ground; hence unevenness and imperfection.—L. B. Pierce, in Country Gentleman.

upon the ground. The wooden teeth, or tines, are the teeth from a cast-off dog rake, and are fastened to the handle by rolling off, while the wood piece is stout enough to hold the handle, its sides and the tines firmly. The tines can be placed near enough together to lift all the potatoes, or only those above a certain size, thus sorting them.

A Cheap Trip.

Arrangements have been made by which dinner will be supplied passengers on the str. City of Peterborough at Jubilee Point, Gore's Landing or Idyl Wyld. Boat leaves Peterborough daily at 9 a. m. Fare for return trip at any of the above points, including dinner, 50 cents.

For Evening Entertainment.

A couple of fine new concertgraphophones to rent for evening parties, entertainments, socials, etc. These instruments can be heard to the remotest corner of any large hall, and are superior to any similar instruments in Peterborough. They may be seen at the Times Bookstore.

First! First! Sticking It.

Symptoms—Moisture intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and become very sore. Swine's Ointment stops the itching as bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Wynne & Son, Philadelphia, Lyman Bros. & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. Positively refuse all substitutes.

Songs That Sing Themselves.

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophones are not merely songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. BILIOUSNESS bosses many a body and burlesque many a mind. You can't enjoy the food you like because you are bilious. You take all sorts of precautions, and yet the bilious attack leaps on you like a tiger from ambush. You know the feeling! The blood seething on fire with a dull heat; the boring pains in the eyes; the head swelling to open and shut; the horrible nausea. You know the irritability which precedes and the languor that follows the attack. It's miserable, isn't it? Why not cure the trouble? There's a pill that will cure biliousness. Dr. J.C. AYER'S PILLS are an acknowledged specific for this derangement.

A. Swanger, Texarkana, Tex., writes: "For fifteen years I have used Ayer's Pills, and find them very effective in bilious complaints. I have yet to see the case where they have failed to cure."

THE FUTURE OF SPANISH AMERICA.

As good very often comes out of evil so also may benefit to the world at large, and especially to the immense section of the new world which is known as Spanish America, be looked for from the present war between the United States and Spain. In the term "Spanish America" are embraced not only Cuba, Porto Rico, and the other direct Spanish possessions on this side of the Atlantic, but those sections of this hemisphere which have long since thrown off the yoke of the mother country, yet which still remain more or less Spanish like Mexico, and the different republics of Central and South America. In this important connection, we have been very much impressed with the remarks of a Mexican paper on the probable effects of the war on what it terms Latin America, and we believe that our readers will agree with us in saying that civilization at large will have reason to rejoice if the result be anything at all like that foreshadowed in this instance. The paper referred to is the Mexican Financier, which lately said:—

While the pride of the race, a sentiment most worthy of respect, must in all Latin America be gratified by the gallant behavior of the Spanish soldiers and sailors in the present war, so disastrous to Spain, it is certain to be perceived by the statesmen of these countries that the so-called Latin ideals will not serve the purposes of modern and ambitious nations. This is the age of the sternly practical, as Germany found out long ago when she gave up philosophizing about the infinite and determined to be a power in Europe, and made herself great and respected, and today is one of the chief nations of the planet. Spain has come to a crisis in her career. She cannot go on with all the belated enthusiasm of a misdirected patriotism in considering herself still a potential factor in the world's affairs. She has to set aside the ideals of the torrid and the romantic, and learn to be practical, educate her people, and so advance abreast of the rest of Europe. She will even, when the war is over, begin to see much that is worthy of imitation among the Americans themselves. Beaten by science, practically applied in modern warfare, she must inevitably discern the cause.

That most lucid intelligence, the Pope, a genuine statesman, is reported as much distressed over the present war, and small wonder, for he sees, as do the clever Italians of his entourage, that the northern nations, in which the doctrines of rationalism are powerful, are triumphing all along the line. The effect of the war on Church policy will be noted by future writers dealing with the closing years of the present century. The Catholic Church in the Pontificate of the thirteenth Leo has shown its ancient vitality, and has been to some extent inspired by the spirit of modern times. We believe that the Catholic Church in the first third of the soon-arriving twentieth century will have more Cardinals from England and the United States than now, many more; that German Catholics will have a large representation in the Sacred College, and that the Church will detach itself more and more from purely Latin ideals. This policy will be reflected in ecclesiastical appointments in Latin America, and a breath of oxygen will penetrate into the mediocrity of the Church as represented in Central and South America. The Church will identify itself with the cause of popular education, the intellectual level of the priesthood will be raised, as has been accomplished in New Mexico and Arizona, and just as in the United States, the Catholic Church, competing with Protestantism, has become wholly modern and intellectually aggressive, so will the same influence grow in Latin America.

With Cuba free and independent, with Porto Rico separated from Spain, so will the cable of thought connection with the sacred mother country be cut; Latin America will find Spain seeming very remote, and the influence of the men who speak English and German will grow. Should, by a miracle almost, a Spanish republic be established and show power to maintain itself, and men strong of brain rule at Madrid, Spanish prestige will revive in Latin America. But of one thing we are very sure, and that is in, all these countries, from Mexico to Argentine, men of rule and influence are going henceforth to pursue with more ardent practical ideals. In this country the Indian blood which flows in the veins of many of the leading men imports much for the good of the country, for we have many practical examples of the progressive instincts of the aboriginal people of this land. Mexico is Iado-Luto, and therein lies much hope for her future, for her complete identification with the modern spirit, for popular education, and the general advance toward a higher level of life.

AN IMMENSE BEE TREE

The largest bee tree ever discovered in this section of the country was found some time ago by William Hepler, of the Hepler Sawing Company, says the Smith-ton (Pa.) Register. It was a line tree between C. C. Pore and Francis Hough, and the owners agreed to let the sawing company cut it down, provided it would give them the honey and clear away the brush, which it willingly consented to do. The tree measured 4 feet 9 inches across the stump. Pore and Hough were right on the spot with their tubs for the honey, which, after the bees had settled, was taken out. It filled two tubs and weighed 197½ pounds. The tree will make 5000 feet of lumber.

LAI'D BEFORE A TRAIN.

Their Victim's Legs Were Cut Off, and He Died Next Day.

Pittsburg, Pa., August 13.—John Donovan, a trackwalker on the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroad, was attacked by members of a fishing camp near Porters Hollow last night. After beating him into insensibility he was robbed of his month's pay and placed on the railroad. A train passing later ran over his legs, inflicting injuries from which he died today. The police are after his assailants.

French Growing Intemperate.

It is a well-known fact that the French are no longer the temperate people they were formerly, and that within the last twenty years the consumption of spirits has grown enormously, that of their own light wines falling off in proportion. Nowhere has this change been more marked than in Normandy, where the population has actually diminished by 30 per cent during the present century, and once the cream of French peasantry, they now show a larger proportion of rejections among the conscripts than any other province. A young graduate, Dr. Chomman-Duboisson, in his thesis, analyses the social, vital and criminal statistics of Normandy, and shows in various ways the deterioration of the people; the increase in the crimes of violence and insanity (formally almost unknown), the deaths due to alcoholism, of still-births, of syphilis, of scrofula and rickets among children; the reduction of the mean duration of life by one-half, and the growing prevalence of illegitimacy. In 1800 such births were one in 27 of the whole; in 1874, one in four, and in 1892, one in three!

Four ball croquet sets, 90 cents; six ball sets, $1.20; eight ball sets, $1.50. Times Bookstore.

A couple of fine new concert-graphophones to rent for evening parties, entertainments, socials, etc. These instruments can be heard to the remotest corner of any large hall, and are superior to any similar instruments in Peterborough. They may be seen at the Times Bookstore.

Arrangements have been made by which dinner will be supplied passengers on the str. City of Peterborough at Jubilee Point, Gore's Landing or Idyl Wyld. Boat leaves Peterborough daily at 9 a.m. Fare for return trip to any of the above points, including dinner, 50 cents.

File! File! Icting File! Symptoms—Misture intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed as ulcers and become very sore. Dr. J.C. Ayer's Ointment stops the itching as it cures the disease, and in many cases removes the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. J.C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U.S.A. Putatively refuse all substitutes.

A MIDDLE-AGED GENTLEMAN OF wealth and position is desirous of opening a correspondence with a lady of education and refinement, with a view to matrimony. Address Alpha, Herald office.

"Well," mused Miss Sophia, drawing a long breath, "I really wish I dare do it. There can be any harm in trying, anyway. Wouldn't Aaron be astonished if I should get married, after all?
and I don't know why I shouldn't, I am sure," she said, tossing her head, as much as to say, who dare contradict her? An hour later found Miss Sophia on her way to the postoffice, with a letter hidden in her pocket, which was her heart's probably every time she thought of it.

The letter was sent, and an answer anxiously awaited, which came in due season, addressed to "Angelica," in rather stiff, unnatural hand, she thought, but then her correspondent might be devising his handwriting, as she had hers. Miss Sophia now made frequent excursions to the postoffice, and one day she returned home in quite a flutter, and ran up to her room at once, where she again perused the letter which she had received, walking slowly home along the quiet country road.

"Oh," murmured Miss Sophia, "oh,
dear! what shall I do? I am all in a flutter to think of seeing him so soon, for he wants me to appear at a meeting, and of course I must. As soon as possible," he says. Dear me! how anxious he is to see his own Angelica, as he calls me, and I'll own to myself I'm just as anxious to see him. I do wonder what he is like!
He must be nice, anyway, for he writes such charming letters; it is really delightful to read them."

A few days subsequent to Miss Sophia's soliloquy, on a beautiful, bright May morning, she dressed her most becoming apparel, and quietly leaving the house, made her way to the one hotel of which the village boasted, where she called for a private parlor, and sat down to await, with what patience she might, for the coming of her correspondent. A few moments of anxious expectancy, then the door slowly opened, and some one entered, closing it behind him.

Miss Sophia, peering through her thick veil, saw no handsome stranger, but—could she believe her eyes!—her brother, Aaron Allen! He approached her.

"Angelica!" he said, softly.

Miss Sophia threw aside her veil, and sprang to her feet.

"Aaron Allen!" she cried, "what are you doing here?"

"Why, my dear Sophia?" stammered
Mr. Allen, utterly confounded by this sudden denouement. "You here?"

"Yes, I am here, Aaron Allen, and I want to know what you mean by addressing me by that name?" demanded his sister.

"What name?" asked Mr. Allen, utterly bewildered.

"Angelica," answered Miss Sophia, blushing furiously, in spite of herself.

"I—oh! I made a mistake in the person—that's all," replied Mr. Allen, blushing in his turn. "I'd like to know what you're doing here, Sophia."

"That's my business," she interrupted, sharply. "And now I want to know what it was you mistook me for?"

"Well, Sophia, I might as well tell you that I am engaged to be married," said Mr. Allen, sheepishly. "And came here by appointment to meet my intended."

"And I am also engaged," simpered Miss Sophia, "and am here to meet my intended."

"Who lay about—indeed?" demanded Mr.
Allen, a fearful suspicion beginning to dawn on his mind.

"I have known him by the name of Alpha," she replied.

"By Joe's? Sophia, that's my name," said Mr. Allen, "and I'm sure you know it." "And the best thing we can do is to go home and live as we have done for so many years, and let matters alone for the future."

And the Sophia thought so, too.—

THINKING ALOUD.

A Man Which Housed Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the secrets of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion, if a story told of him may be credited. He was to spend the evening at the house
of a friend and ordered his carriage
early, as he had a long drive back to his
own home.

When the hour arrived, the carriage
was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by
the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer
was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very ac-commodable one. Lord Dudley took his seat
and immediately relapsed into silence,
his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low, but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say:

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer.
I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Alas! followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and
was probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the silence.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted
with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated
Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke
against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous,
and from that night the two became
fast friends.—Youth's Companion.

TORE DOWN CUBAN FLAG

American Sailors Show Their Disapproval

THE PEACE COMMISSIONERS

Spain is Perplexed Over Choice of Representatives

Monseigneur Merry Del Val Spoken of—Negotiations to be Prolonged—The Cuban Debt one of the difficulties

New York, Aug. 15.—The Herald this morning says that sailors from the battleship Texas and the torpedo boat Winslow paid a visit to South Beach Staten Island, early Sunday morning. There they fell in with men of the Fifth Artillery, stationed at Fort Wadsworth, and members of the two companies of the Third New Jersey Volunteers, camped on the Government reservation at Fort Wadsworth. The sailors were severe in condemnation of the Cubans. The sailors were parading the board walk with 50 or 60 soldiers when they saw Cuban flags in front of a merry-go-round. These were quickly torn down, as was a large Cuban flag floating over the roof of a ticket box in front of a Ferris wheel. At a large dancing pavilion there was a profuse decoration of the flags of all nations, the American and Cuban flags predominating. Here the Cubans flags were also removed.

NEGOTIATIONS PROLONGED

New York, Aug. 15.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: The Government is perplexed over the choice of men to represent Spain on the peace commission. The names of those mentioned are: Senor Leon y Castillo, now Spanish Ambassador to France, and at one time Minister of the Interior; Senor Maura, formerly Minister of Justice and reputed author of the first scheme of autonomy for Cuba which the Cortes rejected; Senor Alvarez, Minister of the Colonies in 1894 under Sagasta; Senor Villaverde, now the Spanish Minister to Belgium; and Mr. Merry del Val, Spanish Ambassador at the Vatican.

SPAIN'S POSITION

Spaniards think the treaty negotiations in Paris will be prolonged and laborious unless America shows a conciliatory disposition. The press notes with disappointment that the protocol seems to limit the action of the peace commission with respect to Cuba and Porto Rico to mere evacuation measures, and is silent about the Cuban debt and other points which Spain will have to raise in Paris. Spaniards welcome peace, but persist in believing that at Spain's request America will force Cuba to assume part of the Cuban debt.

PRAYER FOR MCKINLEY

London, Aug. 15.—The Times this morning comments upon the general feeling of prayer for the President of the United States. It says: "If foreign newspapers might presume to have an opinion upon his conduct, it would probably be that President McKinley has kept his countrymen upon the most solid ground and has known how to stimulate and direct national thought without too markedly supplanting the movement. Everything has been done in the open, every move has been disclosed as a possibility all over the United States before the Government has irretrievably committed one way or the other, and the result of this cautious tentative policy is that where he stands at this moment the President has the whole American people at his back. We do not know that there can be any higher scholarship for a President exercising under the constitution of the United States."

TO RECOVER PREMIUMS

Then Mrs. McGinnis gave up her long-kept secret and the matter was placed in the hands of Lawyer Thomas Hays. Proceedings were brought against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to recover the premiums on the ground that the agent had obtained the lady's consent by misrepresentation and Judge McGinnis heard the case this morning.

KEPT HER SECRET WELL

Insured Her Husband Without His Knowledge

KNEW IT NOT FOR YEARS

The Story was Told in the Division Court Yesterday

And the Premiums Must be Repaid by the Insurance Company—The Company's Agent Represented Such a Proceeding as Proper, Notwithstanding a Warning from the Official not to do so

Toronto, Aug. 15.—The old adage that a woman cannot keep a secret was exposed this morning in Judge Morrison's Chambers, where it was shown that she could, at least as far as her husband is concerned. Perhaps that may make a difference as a lawyer who was present sagely observed.

In June, 1892, as Mrs. Jas. P. McGinnis of 22 Grant Street, was engaged in her household duties, there came a knock at the door, and on answering she found herself confronted by a persuasive and honey-tongued agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Mr. Baycock. He talked and the lady listened, and the result was that she took out a policy in her husband's name for the sum of $1500. "Not more than enough to bury him," she explained to the court this morning.

KEPT IT FROM MR. MCGINNIS

Mrs. McGinnis signed her husband's name to all the papers, the application, medical examination, and so on. Mr. Baycock told her it was all right, and paid the first premium himself. Mrs. McGinnis kept it a profound secret from her husband, and paid the twenty-five cents a week out of the money given her by him for household expenses. This went on for years.

Mr. McGinnis being unaware that he was insured until April last, there he discovered the fact that a wife cannot insure her husband without his consent and knowledge, and happened to tell his partner of it. "Why, I've got you insured," said Mrs. McGinnis. "Then the policy is null and void," replied her husband.

TO RECOVER PREMIUMS

Then Mrs. McGinnis gave up her long-kept secret and the matter was placed in the hands of Lawyer Thomas Hays. Proceedings were brought against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to recover the premiums on the ground that the agent had obtained the lady's consent by misrepresentation and Judge McGinnis heard the case this morning.

KEPT HER SECRET WELL

Insured Her Husband Without His Knowledge

KNEW IT NOT FOR YEARS

The Story was Told in the Division Court Yesterday

And the Premiums Must be Repaid by the Insurance Company—The Company's Agent Represented Such a Proceeding as Proper, Notwithstanding a Warning from the Official not to do so

Toronto, Aug. 15.—The old adage that a woman cannot keep a secret was exposed this morning in Judge Morrison's Chambers, where it was shown that she could, at least as far as her husband is concerned. Perhaps that may make a difference as a lawyer who was present sagely observed.

In June, 1892, as Mrs. Jas. P. McGinnis of 22 Grant Street, was engaged in her household duties, there came a knock at the door, and on answering she found herself confronted by a persuasive and honey-tongued agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Mr. Baycock. He talked and the lady listened, and the result was that she took out a policy in her husband's name for the sum of $1500. "Not more than enough to bury him," she explained to the court this morning.

KEPT IT FROM MR. MCGINNIS

Mrs. McGinnis signed her husband's name to all the papers, the application, medical examination, and so on. Mr. Baycock told her it was all right, and paid the first premium himself. Mrs. McGinnis kept it a profound secret from her husband, and paid the twenty-five cents a week out of the money given her by him for household expenses. This went on for years.

Mr. McGinnis being unaware that he was insured until April last, there he discovered the fact that a wife cannot insure her husband without his consent and knowledge, and happened to tell his partner of it. "Why, I've got you insured," said Mrs. McGinnis. "Then the policy is null and void," replied her husband.

TO RECOVER PREMIUMS

Then Mrs. McGinnis gave up her long-kept secret and the matter was placed in the hands of Lawyer Thomas Hays. Proceedings were brought against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to recover the premiums on the ground that the agent had obtained the lady's consent by misrepresentation and Judge McGinnis heard the case this morning.

ANOTHER BIG GOLD FIND

SIXTY DOLLARS PER DAY

Canadian Territory Again the Scene of a Stampede of Miners

Over a Thousand Prospectors Have Already Started for the Locality—Miller a Lucky Man

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 10. via Seattle, Wash., Aug. 15.—What is regarded as an important discovery of rich placer diggings is reported to have been made on Pine Creek, a small stream emptying into Atlin Lake, a feeder of Lake Tagish. The discovery is located in the Canadian Northwest Territory.

The news has caused a great stampede from Juneau and other south-eastern Alaska points, and it is estimated that at least 1,000 prospectors have started for the locality. An reported here the find was made two years ago by George Miller, of this city, about the time the Klondike was made known. Miller allowed his discovery to remain dormant, and went to the Klondike. Last June he returned and taking a few friends into his confidence revisited the place and struck out claims.

SUMMER PLACER

Walker Carter, who has just returned here from the diggings, says: "I saw four men there, in twenty-six ounces in two days, one pan from bed to containing four dollars. This was on discovery claim. Pine Creek is about fifteen miles long and will average 75 feet in width. The current is very rapid. The digging of summer placer, is a very claim is about eight miles from the mouth of the creek. The bed rock is only five feet from the surface and is of a granite nature. Miller has five men at work, averaging into some boxes and he pays $12 a day each, setting every night with claim taken from the boxes."

"The men are taking out 500 a day to the man, Captain S. K. Miller, of the famous Mounted Police, and several other men are already on the ground and have staked claims for themselves and are waiting the Government claim. When I left 33 claims had been staked and the balance of the creek is reserved to the Canadian Government. When I was coming out Juneau I met a large party of prospectors going into every day along Tagish Lake trying to find the spot which they had heard of, but who obtain they did not know."

PROVISIONS GETTING SCARCER

Postmaster, Wash., Aug. 15.—A letter received here announces the arrival at Kotzebue on Sunday, July 15, of the steamer Ekl, which sailed from this port early in June with a party of prospectors for the month of the Mackenzie river. The letter states that there are more than 500 people on the steamer. A ready provision is scarce. Parties have commenced prospecting in the mountains and along the various streams emptying into the Kotzebue Sound, but no strikes have been reported. Many who are short of supplies are making preparations to return south. The only good reported from the vicinity of Kotzebue found this season is about $15,000 which is in possession of three men who had arrived at Dutch Harbor just before the sailing of the Ekl. They refused to give the exact location of their mine.

DAY OF THE CLIPPER PAST.

In the Steamship Has Disappeared For Good From Most American Shores.

"Stunna out of fashion!" said the skipper as he puffed vigorously at his old pipe, which he had been smoking the Horn at most as many times as its owner. "Well, they may be, but it is because of the steamship. However, an old shipmate of mine who is a bit of a crank and left this port the other day, still carries a topmast tuncail. It may be for sentimental reasons, just as a Confederate veteran might display the flag under which he went to bat, but stunnails are just as practical today as ever.

"Studding sail," you say? Oh, yes. Studding sail may be literally correct, but Jack says 'stunnail.' He objects to studding sail, and words with long and ending participles and words with long and ending participles except run. The corruption of language by sailors is proverbial. Stunnail may be a corruption of studding sail. But studding sail itself is a corruption of studding, which is the original sail. The stunnail, although used only in moderate weather, was a driving sail. Our yacht carries stunnails today in the form of the immense side sail that is called the spinnaker.

"It costs to fit a ship with a set of stunnails. Their use means extra labor for the crew, or a larger crew, and their storage takes valuable cargo room. This means expense for the ship, which her earnings in these days of railroads and ocean trampships do not warrant. The cargoes that sailing vessels carry today do not demand quick transportation, with its high freight rates. The modern sailing ship is little better than a floating warehouse. It is not driven. Spars and canvas are not pressed as they were before the advent of the steamship. Sailing a ship to make a short passage is one of the lost arts. There is no demand for auxiliary canvas such as stunnails. The Yankee clipper is out of it—dead.

"Away back in the middle of the century the stars and stripes floated over ships that were really clippers below and aloft. In competition with one another and with foreign craft our clippers carried valuable cargoes from China, coffee from Rio and fancy merchandise to San Francisco. The steamships do the tea and coffee carrying now. It was not in those days a go as you please run. The clippers were under orders to get there to catch the top of a market. Hours were spent on their feet, long through the night, meant many dollars for all concerned. Ships were driven then with canvas that fairly smothered them in fair weather and foul, and Yankee seamanship, with its characteristic judgment and nerve, was recognized and rewarded.

"But all this is merely a memory now. I can fancy the clipper of the fifties coming head on, rising against the clear sky of the lower latitudes, her sails mounting above the blue horizon, tier upon tier—sky-scrapers, moonrakers, cloud cleaners—snow white pyramids, an angel's footstool, as Jack says. Did they carry stunnails? Ay, up to the royal yards."

The Black Cap.
There is one particular part of the dress belonging to the order of the coat—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their wigs when passing sentences of death. Little is known of the meaning of this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sergeant Pulling, in his work "The Order of the Coat," says: "The black cap, or sentence cap, of the judges and sergeants is certainly not the coat, as Lord Campbell repeats only states. It is, on the contrary, the covering expressly assigned to roll the coat on the only occasion when the coat was required to be hidden. By the ancient privileges of the sergeants the royal was not to be taken off even in the royal presence. The chief insignia of the order was to be displayed when sitting on the bench or pleading at the bar, but this rule came always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death.

"The head of the administrator of justice was then covered, as a token of respect, by the black sentence cap. This covered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, as it is sometimes termed, is a piece of black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder, and then the judge places the cap on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death."

Analogous Reasoning.
A poet professing his work to an editor said:

"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read it the editor put it into a drawer and, handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:

"This is a small coin, but I am as bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its purity. It is nearly all silver."—San Francisco Examiner.

"Lay" Plots.
In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to remove the most valuable or artistic plates for the "lay service." The scheme of providing does not permit the guest to be without a plate before him, and between the courses plates are laid at each corner, one laid down while the used plate is removed. Good-looking Copeland and Royal Worcester china are much liked for "lay plates."—Philadelphia Press.

A REMARKABLE CONTEST.

A Rich Woman's Struggle to Outlive an Invalid for Her Children's Sake.

A remarkable case developed at Morristown, Ind., says The St. Louis Republic. Morgan Chandler, a banker and a resident of Greenfield, several weeks ago executed his will, dividing his large estate among his nearest relatives. Among them was Eliza Burton, to whom he had bequeathed $50,000, which she was to receive providing she was not living with her husband, Charles, at the time of the testator's death. She having married Burton against his wishes. It was also stated in the will that, should the testator survive the niece, the bequest was to go to the legatee named in the will, not to Burton nor his heirs.

Soon after the will was drawn Burton died, leaving Mrs. Burton to support the children, which she did, by taking in washing, sewing, etc. Several weeks ago the niece was taken ill, and at about the same time the wealthy uncle was also stricken. Both grew constantly worse. The neighbors and friends of the widow took great interest, wishing her to survive the uncle, having learned the provisions of the will.

Greenfield and Morristown have telephone connections, and the friends of the widow were kept constantly informed of the condition of the uncle. Both patients grew weaker. At times the mother would seem to be breathing her last, but stimulants would be administered and she would revive, or long enough to enquire as to the condition of her relative, when she would return to a comatose state.

This was continued thirty-six hours, and all hopes of prolonging her life longer were virtually abandoned. Finally a message came that Morgan Chandler was dead. Mrs. Burton had endured the tortures of death long enough to secure a fortune for her children. They were summoned to her bedside, and with a blessing upon them she closed her eyes and passed away. Charles McDonald of the Union Bank has been appointed their guardian.

The New Millionaire.
I ran across a new millionaire the other day whose name I have not yet seen in the papers. I found him in a little room in a little town where windows one could see the lake. The living that my friend Midas needs many servants and a palace to make possible goes grandly up here in one room and an alcove. Three servants, Love, Willingness and Good Nature, in all the work gratis. On the looking-glass was printed this little poem of Lucy Larcom's:

"ALL THINGS ARE MINE."
"I do not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchards and the mowing fields,
The lawn and garden here,
The winds my tax-collectors are,
They bring me thistles divine—
Wild geese and subtle swans,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all,
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity,
A little strip of sea."

The Speedy Horseback.
A wild horse hunt was the exciting sport of a number of the young men of South Jacksonville had looked forward to last week with a great deal of pleasure. The wild horse was a raven-black mare. He was installed in a pen and fed with red pepper, gunpowder and dynamite, and became as fierce as his reputation. The Black Horse. On the day of the hunt a cavalcade assembled at the meeting place armed with javelins and spears made of bamboo with hunting knives tied to the end.

The wild horse was liberated and trotted away into the woods. He squealed a half-contented, inquisitive, the rest of my family sort of a squeal with no thought of the pursuers who spurred and whipped their horses into furious pursuit.

The wild horse trotted along—just simply and coolly trotted. He didn't look as if he was going, but the gait soon distanced the pursuers, and they were robbed of the pleasure of the "jabber" full of holes.—Florida Times Union.

The French Peasant.
The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers, they at least will own a house and garden and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and these may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on saving; yet, with all their individualism, they combine for common and mutual interest. This is illustrated by the organization of the syndicate for buying at wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, lending each other horses and making up teams. Every commune has a field, which is common property and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze. After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gros betail and the other betail are allowed to roam at large.—Contemporary Review.

SCORING A HOG.

H. A. Jones, Sec'y International U. I. C. Record Association, Shows How With Figures and Explanation.

In the course of pure-bred stock breeding comes many a new idea, which may be beneficial to the breeder. It is advocated to-day by many that "there is more in feed than breed," and the same old adage will ever be handed down from generation to generation, without doubt, by those who do not, by nature and education, understand the principles of stock breeding. In dealing with this subject, I shall not venture to go into the entire subject, but concentrate upon the one branch of the industry and deal only with the hog. There is presented here an outline of a hog, and I will endeavor to show before closing these papers, that the axiom "feed first and then feed," will ever be the guide to success. I realize full well there are many choice grade hogs in this country that for the black will bring just as many dollars as the pure-bred. This we all admit, but the facts go to prove the finest grade hogs in this country, the finest grade hogs in the world, are for pork. The grade, then, is never worth more than for pork, or its products, while the pure-bred, no one can get the value of as a breeder.

In the outset, I desire to say these papers will not be written in the interest of any particular breed of hogs, nor any undue respect shown to any breed or breeder. This is a free country, and we all have our likes and dislikes, but only in grade hogs, but in pure-bred as well. I propose also to show wherein we can improve our hogs, and the condition of the breeder by adhering more closely to the principles underlying the breeding of pure-bred.

During the past half century much has been said to bring about desirable results in pure-bred swine. Some prefer black, others red, spotted or white. While some prefer the large hog, others prefer the smaller or medium, but when the desired results are asked for, all agree that the hog that will make the greatest number of pounds of pork for the food consumed, in a period of six or seven months, and have sufficient bone to carry the carcasses, is the most profitable for the general markets and the average farmer.

This may be true to a certain extent.

POINTS OF A HO

The following Roman figures denote the score showing how to score a hog: 12345678910. Line A shows the head upon level running parallel with the ground. 1 shows upper and snout bone line. 2 shows head and tail line. 3 shows lower side or upper of belly line. 4 shows lower side or lower of belly line. 5 shows shoulder and side line division. 6 shows shoulder and side line division, and where to rest hind legs. 7 shows rear and hind line division. 8 shows center of hind line. 9 front ham line. 10 rear ham line. Both lines meet at dot on front of foot. 10 shows the stern of back square of outline. All other figures are to denote the various divisions of the score card.

I believe it is, but it is not conclusive. To illustrate, there are two brothers who have an equal amount of this world's goods, made of equal value and improvement, and they make a bet for existence. One is a careful, painstaking, practical conservative man and devotes his energy to study his business, investigate the causes of other's success, and applies his findings to profit in his own business. He breeds pure-bred stock of all kinds, commencing with only a pair of pigs, and in the course of time every year or two makes an addition to his herd, by exchange, or otherwise, of a good sire. He avoids promiscuous breeding and breeds for a purpose solely of owning the most profitable hog. He has at the end of the year a value he cannot count, while his dollars may be counted as many as his brother's.

The brother is a careful, easy-going, hedonistic, hard-working, conservative, and a little doubtful that he will not get as many dollars in immediate benefits as he is asked upon to pay, and he pursues the policy, "let the money come and I will reap the profit." He pursues that course and finds his investment worth no more in ten years than when he commenced, and then he is forced to realize there are ever changing conditions beyond his control, and that he must wake up and hustle or he will soon be a back number. While his brother's stock is increasing and abundance he is simply awed and reaped his harvest year by year. His herd and stock were the same each year, and he could do no very marked improvement. He had no outside calls, at good prices, for pigs from his dairy, sows or stags from his pen, simply for the reason he grows only ordinary common stock.

Now, is this not a waste of one's capabilities? If not, what is it? Do you desire to improve your hogs? Then is there any other way than the one of the pure-bred, and a good sire, all of the highest standard of excellence which your purse will allow you to get, and from genuine pedigree breeders, who are not afraid to open his stock book and show you the record of the breeding of any particular animal, and who is not afraid to ship any of his choice breeding stock across the water to guarantee that the animal possesses a certain number of desirable points and is of the breeding certified by the secretary of the Record Association, and of which there can be no doubt, and that satisfaction is then guaranteed to you by every member of the association, in the which your animal received his record number.

Now come the people. What are they and how successful? Whatever breed of cattle, sheep or swine you desire to purchase, ask the breeder to send you the high and true record of the association in which his animals are recorded, and then study out for yourself what the quality of the stock is which the breeder has to offer, and then order your pig. Then require the breeder to certify the animal across (or possess) a certain number of points, and to be delivered as such, and satisfaction guaranteed to you, and you will have no cause to regret the purchase. It is a veritable saying: "Put up the hog, that the hog can't get out." The various Record Associations offer you the best of the breed, and you can be sure of it. In case you are not satisfied, your remedy is to appeal to the association where the animal is recorded, after the record is made, to satisfy any dissatisfaction in any case.

In the foregoing, you have the facts, essential points of pure-bred swine as an essential part of the score card, as shown last. Read by: The people who control the breeding.

PLUCKING THE INNOCENT.

One Fair Who Was "Dead" by the Farmers.

"No," said the soap fair to a group of people that had gathered around him, "there is no use talking to me about the innocence of the countryman. He may buy a gold brick occasionally or take a black sheep and lose his farm, but as a rule, he can take care of himself just as well as the rest of one and generally a little better. If I knew as much as some farmers I wouldn't be in this business, and you can justify on that."

"Why, say, do you know what happened to me the last time I was in what the country? I got plucked, that's what I did. I got my money out in front of the hotel in a little town about thirty miles out west of here and began to do a few tricks to draw a crowd."

"And you made an egg disappear and pulled a few knots open for them, I say? Now, gentlemen, I'll go to show you a trick that nobody else on earth has ever attempted. You see my hat here? Well, we'll imagine for the time being to a flower pot. Out of that hat I'm going to make a gold grow up, and when I've done that I'll make every lead on it turn into gold."

"What? Did I do it? Or course I did. But, say, do you know what came of it? I imagined if they didn't at me and they did for a month, when the master of the house said was contrary to the station made and provided. 'Well, I sort of had a bankers' to know whether they did it in good faith, and because they thought I was easy money, and what do you think I found out? Why, the people of that town hadn't paid any taxes for eight years. They'd actually been running things by plucking just such innocent fellows as me."

"Now, gentlemen, there's a $1 bill to one of these little packages. Who will get it first? The first shall be—Cleveland Pluck Dealer."

A Curiosity.

"I hear that Jenkins the politician was found in his flat in a starving condition."

"Tough fellow! He must have been hungry."

READ WHAT PHYSICIANS SAY OF POND'S EXTRACT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29, 1894.
I have used "Pond's Extract" for many years and always insist upon my patients getting "Pond's," not the ordinary Extract, which is often a very poor article. W. K. BROWN, M. D.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, 1895.
I use Pond's Extract a great deal in my practice. I think it very valuable in all venous enlargements. J. L. BRADFORD, M. D.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894.
I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of druggists insisting they can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. I use Pond's Extract a great deal as an antiseptic in combination with glycerine and carbolic acid. I think it far superior to any antiseptic known. F. G. FLOURNOY, M. D.

I have been a constant user of Pond's Extract since 1853, and do not expect to discontinue it while I live. S. ARMOR, M. D.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

A Big Fish
Dan Foley caught a 23-pound lunge at Jubilee Point yesterday and shipped it to Mr. Williams at Oshawa. Geo. Plunkett is trying to locate a mate for "Dan's" capture.

Wanted
100 men for the Rat Portage Lumbering Co. Limited, for to work in the woods and mill. Steady employment until spring or longer.
Wanted to leave Tuesday, Aug. 23rd, on a m. train.

Jumped at conclusions
A prominent tailor of George street was at his shop door on Saturday, talking to some friends, when a wagon gun load of live hogs passed up street "Hello," said Sam, "there is an excursion from Toronto."

Drunk and disorderly
P. C. McGinty last night about 11:30 landed in the cells a bowling drunk with money to burn and well defined gregarious proclivities. "Chalire" was the better man of the two and although slightly winded succeeded in preserving his uniform intact.

George took a ride
About two o'clock this morning the night watchman at the Bank of Commerce telephoned the police authorities that three men were acting very suspiciously around the bank premises. P. C. McGinty was soon on the scene and succeeded in arresting Geo. Cook of Ashburnham. The other two made their escape.

Dead at London
Sunday Mr. Timothy Hurley, of town, received a telegram conveying the intelligence of the death of his son William. He was at the time in London, and his condition becoming serious his mother was summoned to London and was with him when he died. His father left for London yesterday morning. Deceased, who was married, was well-known in town, having been employed as clerk here with Mr. John Garvey, with whom he was employed in London. The relatives will have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

A SERIOUS CHARGE

Two Citizens Arrested Last Night on a Charge of Aiding in Attempting to Procure an Abortion

The Young Woman in the Case in a Critical Condition at Nichols' Hospital—Police Magistrate Dumble will Investigate the Matter this Morning

It was with astonishment akin to dismay that many of the friends of a well-known young man in town and a prominent medical practitioner, also resident in town, learned of their arrest on the serious charge of aiding in attempting to procure an abortion on a young lady whose home is in the west end.

Two arrests were made about eight o'clock last evening and the young man in question occupies a cell in the police station, while the medical man was released on $500 bail.

Both parties will appear in court this morning at nine o'clock before Police Magistrate Dumble to answer the charges preferred against them.

The specific charge in the case of the young man is that he advised the young lady to procure a miscarriage, while in the medical man's case it is that he aided in attempting to procure a miscarriage.

The young lady, as a result of this alleged advice and assistance—carried into practice by herself—is now lying in the Nichols' Hospital, and is reported to be in a critical condition.

It would be unfair at this stage of the case to give further details, particularly when there are so many conflicting stories abroad, and the limited chances a still hunt at midnight affords for verifying rumors.

When informed of the medical man's arrest last evening, many of his friends, prominent men in the town, refused at first to credit it, and when at length assured of its truth, professed to believe that there must be a mistake somewhere. They all spoke in the highest terms of his straightforward character and his reputation, gained during half a lifetime in town, for upright dealing. They think that he will yet be able to explain away the charges against him.

The friends of the young man are also confident that he will be able to clear himself.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The Managers Within Our Gates and Other Paragraphs of a Personal Nature

Miss Ada Fisher, of Fraserburg, is visiting Mrs. Lightfoot.

Mrs. C. and T. Thomas have gone to Milton to spend their holidays.

Mrs. Whyte, of Mulbrook, is spending a few days in town with Mrs. Melville.

Mr. Reg. H. Turner returned on Saturday evening from a week's visit to Kingston.

Miss Sterling, of Toronto, who has been visiting her friend, Maggie Cox, returned to Toronto yesterday.

Mr. Jos. Hill, of Oshawa, bridge engineer, is in town and went to Lakeside yesterday on business for the Hamilton Bridge Co. He leaves this morning for Hamilton on his way to Galt, where he has a contract for erecting a large bridge.

Yesterday's Toronto papers announce that Fred J. Sawyers of Peterborough, has won the Wellington scholarship in classics, $50 and three years' free tuition at the recent matriculation examinations of Trinity University. The same Peterborough boy also obtained first class honors in Latin and Greek and in English and History, and secured nine honors in mathematics, German and chemistry.

A Narrow Escape
Mr. Charles Wright, of Hindon township, Haliburton county, narrowly escaped a fatal injury the other day. While he and his brother were splitting rails in the bush a huge limb fell from a tree overhead, tearing a hole in his hat and injuring his knee slightly. A difference of an inch would have meant the fracture of his skull.

See what's Goin' On Robbysen Independent: See here! We, the people of Ontario, want two or three jobs of work turned out with a rush, and the Legislative Assembly will be good enough to deduct all time occupied in this wind-pounding over the Address. The wage bill alone is $540 a day. We are not going to pay that money for the protection of hog-wash. We, the people of Ontario are mad all through at the thought of being charged up $540 a day for such humbug. There are now two little dirty parties, one of work to do, and we want those done without any "hush-hush" in other words, play ball, and quit this mouthing around the band stand.

Wanted
Good paint and varnish maker at once. Address: Tyrrell, Campbellford.

THE BEAR MEANT BUSINESS

A Galway Prospector Has An Exciting Experience the Other Night

The life of the prospector is not a bed of roses by any means and they frequently meet with startling adventures and hairbreadth escapes. A recent adventure out in Galway—Sagapon a Galway, by the way—goes to prove what we have already stated. A pugonous bear in the vicinity of a spring of refreshing water and a tired and thirsty prospector furnish the fundamental points of this narrative.

Last fall a couple of Hamilton men spent several weeks prospecting for precious metals in Galway township, and they finally located what appeared likely to prove a promising vein of silver-bearing ore. As it was late in the season they deferred further operations till spring, and in April last they went north, erected a log shanty, and when the soil was in condition they planted about a quarter of an acre with vegetables of various kinds to give a relish to their salt bacon, bean and canned goods.

The above details have but a neagreg connection with the bear story, and are merely given as illustrating the thoroughness with which numerous prospectors are seeking to unearth the treasures that so many believe are hidden in the large territory north of this town. But we again digress.

One evening recently the men were about to retire to their bunkers. It was found that the pall of fresh water from the bubbling spring, about 100 yards away, had been forgotten. A member of the party, named Wanser, whose thirst was an altogether superior article—finally volunteered to make the trip, and grasping the bucket he started off, his companions shouting after him to "look out for bears."

The stars were shining brightly, but the narrow trail was buried in the deep shadows cast by the high over-arching trees on either side. Having filled his pail and taken a long drink Wanser started back to camp, and when he had covered about half the distance he noticed a dark object on the path some yards ahead. Recalling his friends' caution to "look out for bears" he at once concluded that they had planned to frighten him, and picking up a piece of root he aimed it at his supposed tormentor at the same time uttering a loud war-whoop. The result was startling, the figure of the bear, in a flash, reared up, and a second war-whoop "froze" on Wanser's lips as he found himself almost face to face with an angry bear standing on his hind legs.

The situation was an extremely awkward one, but the denouement was ludicrous—Wanser still held the pail, and having no other weapon, he raised it, dashed the contents over his head, and the bear, startled by the unexpected shower, turned back and plunged into the underbrush and disappeared.

Wanser, without a drink and made his way to camp with all speed, where his tale was received with shouts of incredulous laughter, but he had his revenge next morning as the bear's tracks were plainly visible in the damp soil.

Visited Robinson
Robbysen Independent: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dunford, of Peterborough, are spending a few days in town. Mr. Dunford is now one of the very few connected with the first settlement having no other weighty position. A few months of sixty years since Mr. Dunford came to Verdun and Robinson.

Beat it if You Can
The bear trip of the other holiday—one that will certainly be a pleasure with a relish—will be that offered by the North Star. Take this popular steamer in the morning down the river to Gore's Landing for dinner. Then after dinner sail up Rice Lake, past Idyl Wild to the Serpentine Mountains, and having no other weighty position. A few months of sixty years since Mr. Dunford came to Verdun and Robinson.

Beard From His Whiskers
The Toronto Telegram, in its report of its debate on the Address, makes the following reference to the genial and popular member for East Peterborough:

"Tom Beaudry, the inveterate, as he is called, to the pure untruthful, flung fairly in the party's teeth, tore his whiskers till they looked as if an angry woman had made free with them, a fearful adornment for two straight hours of unbridled temper. And yet Beaudry never spoke. For Hardy looked so kindly at Beaudry, that Beaudry looked resignedly at Hardy. Though several seats apart their spirits clung and hands and the compact still exists in its entirety."

Chapin's Retreat
The clergy of the diocese of Peterborough went into retreat at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday. Rev. P. Cassidy, S.J., of Montreal, will preach the retreat. Those who enter the retreat are: His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Laurent, V. J. Lindsay; Very Rev. J. Brown, V. J. Peterborough; Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Peterborough; Rev. Father Lynch, Port Hope; Rev. Father Murray, Cobourg; Rev. Father W. J. Kelly, Toronto; Rev. Father Larkin, Grimsby; Rev. Father McGuire, Hastings; Rev. Father T. O'Connell, Barrie; Rev. Father C. B. Brereton, Dryden; Rev. Father W. J. McCloskey, Campbellford; Rev. Father W. J. McColl, Ennismore; Rev. Father J. Sweeney, Victoria Road; Rev. Father J. Nolan, Fenelon Falls; Rev. Father D. J. Skelton, North Bay; Rev. Father T. Fleming, Bracebridge; Rev. Father M. F. Fitzpatrick, Young's Point; Rev. Father A. F. Kelly, Trent Creek; Rev. Father C. J. Phelan, Lindsay; Rev. Father M. J. CITY LIGHTS AND SHADES
Happening in Town and District During Past Twenty-four Hours

—There was no police court yesterday morning.

—Schools in the rural district opened yesterday morning.

—The police have the mouth-piece of a cornet or band instrument for which they want an owner.

—If artists were only able to copy some of the moonlight capers shown on summer evenings their fortunes would be made.

—Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works will open the Peterborough Central Exhibition on September 30th.

—The Street and Bridge committee is called to meet at ten o'clock to-day when the question of the new bridges will be considered. It is also probable that the tenders for the permanent pavement on Charlotte street will be opened.

—Mr. Jas. W. Woodward, late foreman of the wire department at the Canadian General Electric Company's works, was persecuted on Saturday last by his late employees with a beautiful five o'clock tea and also a mild silver salt and pepper set. Mr. Woodward has accepted a position with the Royal Electric Co. at Sherbrooke.

—A solemn and impressive ceremony was celebrated in the chapel of St. Joseph's convent in Lindsay yesterday morning when a mortuary, Miss Kate Ryan, daughter of Mr. Michael Ryan, of house street, town, and formerly a teacher in the Murray street Separate school, was received into the community of the Sisters of St. Joseph. She will be known in religion as Sister St. Mary James.

—The Winnipeg Telegram of the 10th inst. contains the following: The Mrs. Bradshaw mentioned at one time resided in Ashburnham. She was the widow of the late Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, at the time pastor of St. Luke's church. A quiet wedding took place yesterday morning at St. John's Cathedral when Mr. A. Hogue, of the firm of Emmerson & Hogue, was united to Mrs. Bradshaw, widow of the late Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, who was at one time Rector of Christ church, succeeding Rev. Canon Pentecost. After the wedding ceremony at which Rev. Canon Matheson officiated the happy couple drove direct to the Northern Pacific train, which was boarded and left for Paul, where they will spend the honeymoon. Mr. H. H. Smith gave the bride away.

Home Again
Mr. S. Dickson Hall, of the firm of R. Hall & Son, arrived home Sunday morning from his visit to the Eastern markets. In his search for the latest and best in the markets of the old world he visited England, Scotland, France and Germany, and his purchases include the newest things in millinery, mantles, lace, curtains, dress goods and French novelties. This enterprising firm by purchasing direct from the manufacturers place themselves in a position to sell at the very lowest prices. Mr. Hall sailed from Liverpool on the 4th on the Dominion line S.S. Yorkshire, arriving in Montreal on Saturday. He had a pleasant return voyage and is in the best of health.

Low Water at Stony Lake
No great has been the waste of water caused by the driving of logs through the lower lakes that it is now impossible for steamers from the west to get beyond Burleigh lake, and a number of excursions have had to be cancelled by steam boatmen during the past week. A sharp rock penetrated the hull of the Crandella a few days ago while attempting the passage below Burleigh, but the injury was not serious owing to the stout quality of the plank. The Lindsay Post, referring to this matter, says: "The steamboat men blame Mr. R. B. Rogers, of Peterborough, superintendent of the Trent Valley canal, as the water was let go on his order, and they were not a bit sorry when they learned that the Government yacht, Empire had struck a rock and would have gone to the bottom in deep water but for the timely assistance of the St. Ronbeam."

Blanco Resigns.

HE IS DISGUSTED WITH THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT

The Governor of the Philippines Sneaks off on a German Vessel—Inhabitants of Spain Assist the Rebels to Evade Capture

Havana, Aug. 16.—General Blanco yesterday published the following address to the inhabitants of Cuba: "It having been resolved by the Madrid Government to conclude peace with the United States I consider my mission in this country ended and have solicited my relief from duty. I could not urge upon you a pacific solution of the existing struggle, when not long ago I advised you to maintain the war in any event."

"I came to the island of Cuba, as is well known to all, in critical circumstances, without fear of the difficulties which I must encounter and animated by the hope of pacifying the island and saving it for Spain with the co-operation of all political parties and without any other ambition than to render a service to my country, which I so fervently love. The lack of faith and the distrust of some of the prejudices and errors of others were insuperable obstacles to my desires and aspirations; but despite the grave difficulties perhaps the day was not far distant when we could have realized so happy a purpose. I thought one so contrary to the wishes of the enemies of our race and the domination of America. We had to accept the struggle at a moment when it was least expected and under most unfavorable conditions. Nevertheless we sustained the campaign with vigor, and our army has already let the invaders feel the weight of our arms, and I was willing at the head of the army to continue disputing inch by inch the land which, with such valor and at the cost of so much blood, we were defending."

"Since the nation's Government, which is supplied inspired by the great interests of patriotism and a desire also to assure your proper interests and those of the other colonies, has decided the moment has arrived to make peace, it is our duty faithfully to acquiesce in her purpose, but I cannot but feel that I am the one called upon to perform a political duty which does not agree with my former declarations with my acts and with my convictions. I see myself obliged to leave you at the present painful and difficult moment. Nevertheless I will not do so without advising you to maintain the common sense and prudence so necessary to save the legitimate interests of Spain in Cuba, which represents the fruits of your labors, and thus I think I have rendered my last and most disinterested service to Cuba, to her inhabitants, and especially to the city of Havana."

The address is dated Aug. 12.

Along Hong, Aug. 16.—It was rumored here last night that Manila had surrendered, but no news is obtainable from the Spanish Consul. General Augustus refused to speak. The German Consul was called upon, and he informed the correspondent that the outbreak of Manila was a surprise to the Americans and that the city surrendered. No damage was done to the city proper, only the outskirts being bombarded. The date of the bombardment was unknown to the German Consul, who refused to say more.

General Augustus told a lady that Almirante Dewey demanded the surrender of Manila in an hour. The Spaniards declined to surrender, and Dewey began the bombardment and the Spaniards hoisted a white flag. General Augustus immediately jumped into a German launch which was in waiting and went to the Kaiserin Augustus, which sailed before the bombardment was concluded. The bombardment occurred on the 13th.

EARLIS EVADE TROOPS.

London, Aug. 16.—The Daily Mail's Madrid correspondent says: "The troops sent in pursuit of the band of Carlists which appeared recently at Alcala de Chiverra in Valencia, failed to capture the members of the band owing to the complicity of the inhabitants who are all Carlists, and feed and conceal the fugitives and give their pursuers false information."

"Many prominent Carlists have settled at Bayona, Biarritz and Saint Jean de Luz, close to the Spanish frontier, as many did previously to the last Carlist rising, their object being to establish easy contact with the petty local leaders in the Basque provinces and in Navarre. Spanish detachments have been despatched by the Government to watch them. The fact that all letters from Don Carlos are now taken into Spain by couriers is regarded as proof that they contained orders to his followers, and therefore must not fall into the hands of the Government. Carlist recruiting agents in several parts of Spain are offering men two pesetas a day. A Carlist colonel has been arrested at Bayona."

"Accounts sent to Spain by visitors to Don Carlos at Lucerne have occasioned the greatest alarm, and despite public declarations it is clear that everything is ready for a Carlist rising immediately upon the conclusion of the peace negotiations. It is believed that Don Carlos will wait until the army returns from Cuba before ordering an insurrection, as he hopes the Cuban army will return disorganized and ripe for revolution. Carlist agents have been working in Cuba for months past."

GERMANY IS OBSEQUIOUS.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—The Vorwaerts Zeitung comments upon the fact that France is openly attacking the Spanish cause and that the Russian press is displeased with the American victory.

REIGN OF TERROR AT MADRID.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—A Record special from Madrid says: "A perfect reign of terror prevails here. The editors of several Republican newspapers have been thrown into prison and others have sought safety in flight."

The press censor examines the whole newspapers before publication. Some of the journals appear with many columns blank and some have suspended publication altogether. The foreign correspondents dare not tell the truth, as they would be expelled if they do. Hence their reports are colorless, and even then all are not passed."

I am managing to send some scraps of truth by means of a subterfuge, which, of course, I cannot now reveal. The impending revolution is slow in coming, but when it does come all the authorities now occupying the scene will fall without resistance. They are utterly incapable of defending their position."

One thing that makes me think the Carlists mean to make an early move is that the private secretary of Don Carlos and the Marquis of Salamanca, both of whom I have known, affirm that the Carlists for the moment disapprove of an uprising in his favor."

As Don Carlos has a reputation for faithfulness, and as one of his notorious habits has always been to keep the public secret and to keep the friends of his party by announcing unapprovingly when it is one of the question, the more intelligent people infer from his present public declarations that he is preparing to do something serious. In fact there are constant rumors here of Carlist agitation in the provinces."

A fire broke out in the magazine, which was immediately flooded, while the ship steamed bare at full speed, escorted by the Baudin. This is the second occasion on which a fire has occurred on the ship, due, it is said, to the defective construction of the magazine.

The dispute is thus settled to Italy's satisfaction.

BURGLAR ATTACKED A WOMAN.
Berlin, Ont., Aug. 16.—A burglar gained an entrance into the house of Mrs. F. A. Baker at an early hour yesterday morning. Mrs. Baker had occasion to go down stairs for some thing for the boys, when she was accosted by the midnight marauder who endeavored to choke her. Her screams were heard by her brother, who was in the house. He quickly got his revolver and chased the burglar away, firing three shots after him. There is no trace of the thieves, who got little or nothing.

Emperor and Czar—Persistent Rumor that the Kaiser will Meet the Autocrat of Russia in September Next

Singapore, Aug. 16.—The following intelligence has been received here regarding the fighting with the Somalis in the extreme north of the East African Protectorate. Forty-one men of the 10th Bombay Rifles, under a native officer, were ambushed at the end of June near the Hellier Pass on the Juba river by a large body of the enemy. A small party of the enemy appeared on the right of the troops and attempted their attention, and then a numerous force, hidden in the grass, attacked them in the rear. A jemadar and twenty-six men were killed and four wounded. The affair is reported to have been due to the native officer's negligence in carrying out his instructions regarding precautions to be observed on the march. Major Quentin at Camp Yule, commanding the wing of the right, has asked for 400 men from Mombasa, as his present force is insufficient.

CORBETT SENIOR DYING

CYCLONE STRIKES TORONTO
Toronto, Aug. 16.—A cyclone struck the city at 5:30 p.m. this morning, and there was a heavy rain for some minutes. The rain fell in a steady stream, and the streets were soon flooded. The wind was very strong, and many trees were blown down. The damage done was considerable.

CUBANS ACTING UGLY.
Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 16.—Trouble with the Cubans is increasing. Their attitude is one of sudden hostility towards America. The better class in Cuba favor the annexation of the island to the United States and a majority of the masses are ready to work and accept the shelter and protection afforded by an American protectorate; but they are influenced by a certain class of rabid orators and breeders of sedition and rebellion against anything smacking of law and order. This inflammatory class demands and urges the recognition of Cuba for Cubans and spurns all offers or suggestions tending to prosperity under an American protectorate and excites popular discontent.

Their advice to the Cubans is to repudiate all offers of peace or a cessation of hostilities, and to look upon the armistice as an agreement between the United States and Spain on their own account and not binding upon the free and independent state of Cuba, whose army not only repudiates participation but will also be the strongest to the point of continuing to wage war and shooting every Spaniard in the field.

UNCLE SAM WILL HAVE TO PAY THEM.
Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 15, 11 p.m.—A bitter meeting was held tonight at the Palace between the commanding officers of the American army and the Cuban leaders. The strictest secrecy was maintained, but it can be said with great authority that General Garcia was present. The meeting lasted one hour and a half. The information obtained is to the effect that the Cuban situation was thoroughly reviewed, and that it was resolved to disband the Cuban army, and that the United States should pay the cost of this. This involves the expenditure of $15,000,000, but it is most important to the prosperity of the island, whose wealth is entirely agricultural. Nobody planter or farmer, daring to cultivate his lands while insurgents are in the field, raiding and burning.

Navigation Notes.
It is rumored that two Rochester, N. Y. gentlemen have secured a monopoly of the popular resort on the lake known as Idle Wild, and intend erecting a $5,000,000 on the property in time for next season's trade.

The Erie Express has the contract for moving the Rathbun logs, etc., over the lake.

The "Tail" of the Rathbun Cigar Co. reached the new Benford bridge Sunday night. P. Light, foreman, was in charge, has been relieved and is now in the back country fighting fire on the C&N line.

CANARIES

They Are Subject to Many Diseases—How They Should Be Treated.

To neglect the cleanliness of food, cage or water is a sure means of bringing on disease. The cups should be so arranged as to be easy of access for the bird's head, and the feeding dish should be shallow and large enough to prevent the bird from injuring his plumage in his vigorous plunges.

Parasites which are too small to be seen of injury to the bird. They should be when of the same size throughout—about twice the diameter of a common lead pencil.

If a young canary is observed to sleep more than usual or if it has the appearance of a puff ball, it should be taken in hand at once. Probably it is suffering from indigestion, arising from unwholesome or stale food, or from being given too many delicacies. The bird should be caught and a couple of drops of castor oil dropped down his throat, or the drinking water may be removed from the cage for a couple of hours and then put back with a few drops of cod liver oil floating on the top.

Either of these remedies will probably afford relief. The bird should then be moved to a dry warm place and fed on crushed hemp for a few days.

Diarrhoea is caused by giving too much green food, food which is wet or decayed or stale food. Bad drinking water is another frequent cause.

When the first symptoms of moult are observed, give a little magnesia in the drinking water, 10 or 15 grains to a wineglassful, or put in the fountain a small leaf, changing it every day.

To catch cold when moulting is almost always certain death to the bird. Therefore avoid drafty places for the cage.

At this time an abundance of food is necessary, and must be given by additions of a little hemp seed, white bread soaked in milk and lettuce or suet. The bird should also be kept warm.

Canaries are subject to many diseases. A common complaint is asthma. This generally arises from indigestion and yields to plasters and rapeseed moistened with water as the sole food. In very bad cases leave off hemp seed and use rapeseed only, give abundance of bread soaked in water and pressed, lettuce or watercress, according to season; twice a week give a hulled bread and milk ball about as large as the end of the thumb.

This is made by throwing a piece of the crumb of bread into a cup of milk, boiling and stirring with a wooden spoon till it is of the consistency of pap. It must be given cold and always freshly made. If allowed to sour, it will give indigestion. This paste acts as a purge and its effects must be watched.

For overgrown claws and beak use sharp scissors and take care to avoid drawing blood. The long claws are a source of discomfort and danger, especially when the female is nesting.

A bird which is egg bound needs immediate treatment. Give coarse brown sugar and drop some sweet oil into the drop. Philadelphia Ledger.

A Singular Pet.

In a "Tour Around Hawaii," written in 1885, is this amusing description of an odd pet, the favorite of two native women: "When we reached the house of our host, the head man of Kapapala, we met a peculiar reception."

Two of the Hawaiian females are with one pet, usually a dog. Here we observed a species of favorite that we had not seen before. It was a curly tailed hog about a year and a half old, three or four feet long and in tolerable order. He belonged to two sisters of our host and joined the social circle around the evening hearth.

During the evening he closely followed every movement made by his mistresses, and as supper put forth his nose and received his portion at their hands. According to custom, they washed their hands after the meal, and then passed the bowl to the hog.

At the usual time for retiring to rest these two ladies spread their mats and tapes on the ground in one corner, and, as the usual practice, lay down to sleep with their clothes on. The hog waited very quietly till they had taken their places, when he marched over their tapes and stretched himself between them. The ladies then turned them all was then drawn up by one of them to his ears, after which he reclined his head on a pillow by his side.

I could not forbear smiling broadly at seeing the three heads in a row. This discovered the women a little, and they raised their heads and the hog grunted.

The brother said that his sisters had a great attachment for the hog, having fed it since it was a few days old, and did not like to have it sleep out with the other hogs in the cold, adding that if it were put out it would make such a noise all night at the door that no one in the house would be able to sleep.

Kiandike Gold.

He had spent two or three winters in the Kiandike country, or said he had, and he was telling his friends about it.

"It isn't so awfully cold up there when one gets used to it," he said.

"Well," he hesitated, "I don't really suppose it is; anyhow, it isn't so the one that used to it. He doesn't know a thing about it. He's been from to death a month by that time."

"Oh, indeed," stammered the inquirer, who seemed to be disturbed by the sad fate of the person accustomed to it.

THE MORNING TIMES, PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1898

FANTASTIC VAGARY.

A PUBLIC MAN WHO CONSULTED THE OUIJA BOARDS.

This is One of the Grounds on Which It is Brought to Show That He Was Incapable of Making a Proper Will—The Estate Involved is a Large One.

The Ouija board, that curious little device which attracted so much attention many people a few years ago, has got into the courts. It is cited as evidence of a man's mental weakness, and his incapacity to make a proper will.

This man was Charles M. Pond, once State Treasurer of Connecticut, a Senator in the same State and a director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. A suit is now under way in New York to break his will. It was instituted by his brother, Asa Phelps Pond.

According to the property which Charles M. Pond inherited from his father was the Prospect Hill farm, on the outskirts of the city of Hartford, and this, with about $400,000 worth of other realty, he willed to Hartford. The disputed farm or homestead, which Hartford proposes to turn into a public park, is now valued at about $250,000.

The claim is made by the contestant that his brother had no right to devise away this tract, and counsel bring forward his father's will in substantiation of this position, and quote that part of it which reads: "And it is my express desire that my said son, Charles M. Pond, will not alienate or sell my farm known as the 'Prospect Hill Farm,' but that the same may descend and be from time to time devised to my lineal descendants."

Among the testimony already introduced is that of Mrs. Frank A. Porter, a sister of the Pond, which it is said showed the deceased brother to be an extraordinary and eccentric person.

In his public career Charles M. Pond was known only as a man of rare judgment and brilliant parts, but it seems that for some time previous to his death his mind was clouded or weakened by disipation, and he displayed qualities of intellect that were entirely at variance with his character as the public and all but his intimates knew it.

According to Mrs. Porter's statement, some of the evidence that would be important and valuable as corroborative proof has been deliberately destroyed. The destroyed evidence consisted of works on Spiritism and the several Ouija boards that were the property of Charles M. Pond, and were used by him.

It is said that the dead man was a firm believer in Spiritism and was an ardent devotee of mediums. Luther R. Marsh was not more thoroughly fooled by Miss De Bar than he was by the men and women who pretended to be able to materialize those who had passed to the shining shores.

After the death of his wife, it is said, he was almost constantly under the influence of mediums. He had implicit confidence in the oracular qualities of the Ouija board which is a rudimentary sort of planchette. In the latter case the spirits are supposed to communicate with their friends in the flesh by means of writing, in the former the spirits have not got so far in the three R's, and they spell out their communications.

A planchette is a small heart-shaped bit of wood, mounted on two tiny legs with casters, and having for the third leg a pencil. When the little table is placed on a sheet of paper and the hands are permitted to rest lightly upon it, the pencil moves, and some people pretend that the hand-marks made by the pencil are legible messages, and they go through the solemn formality of reading them.

Charles M. Pond had several of these Ouija boards and he consulted them from one of his rooms. Through them he communicated with his dead wife. The story is told that often he would arise in the midst of a group of friends, excuse himself and hurry off to another room to ask Ouija certain questions.

These Ouija boards with all of her brother's Spiritistic books, Mrs. Porter says, she burned. Her statement is that she went to the office of one of the executors of the will and to his absence obtained from his father, who drew up the will, permission to remove the books and boards from the house, which she did and made a bonfire of them.

This is only one of the strange proceedings of the executor, it is claimed. There is a great deal of secrecy about the proceedings and a whole lot of mystery, but the plaintiff feels confident that he will be able to show the mental infirmity of his brother to make a will as well as to elude his own right to the disputed part by the restricting clause in his father's will, which insists that the property shall not be devised away from the family.

The dissipated habits of Pond's brother have been pretty well established. He seems to have had a wild and terrible mania for morphine and administered it to everybody and everything on his place, even the dogs. The Ouija board weakness, though, appears to be the most fantastic of his vagaries.

Tactics in the Hand. A colonel in the French army, who had a great eye for neatness, but not much of an ear for music, took occasion one day to compliment his bandmaster on the appearance of his men. Their uniforms are neat, said the colonel, and their instruments are nicely polished and kept in order, but there is one improvement that I can make upon them.

What is it, colonel? You must train your men, when they perform, to lift their fingers all at exactly the same time and at regular intervals on their instruments, so—once, two! one, two!

The Military College. The Kingston Military College is a very expensive luxury to the people of Canada, and some of the items we have to pay for are very peculiar. An open plain, $100; a day's wages hunting birds, $10; an emigrant's suit, $7.50; a new red, twelve feet long with three joints, $1.00; a lawn tennis bat, $2.71. The college cost is $70,000. No wonder there is a delicate—Buckville Recorder.

PLUCKING THE INNOCENT.

One Fair Who Was "Dosed" by the Farmers.

"No," said the soup fair to a group of people that had gathered around him, "there is no use talking to me about the innocence of the countryman. He may buy a gull-brick occasionally or sign a blank check and lose his farm, but as a rule, he can take care of himself just as well as the rest of us and generally a little better. If I knew as much as some farmers I wouldn't be in this business, and you can gamble on that."

"Why, say, do you know what happened to me the last time I was down in the country? I got plucked, that's what I done. I got my mitts out in front of the hotel in a little town about thirty miles east of here and began to do a few cases to draw a crowd."

"After I'd made an egg disappear and pulled a few knots open for them, I says: 'Now, gentlemen, I'm going to show you a trick that nobody else on earth has ever attempted. You see my hat here? Well, we'll imagine for the time being to be a flower pot. Out of that hat I'm going to make a bush grow up, and when I turn this hat a 90 degree angle it will turn into a 45 degree angle.'"

"What? Did I do it? Of course I did! But, say, do you know what came of it? Plucked! If they didn't arrest me and throw me into the jail, which was the justice of the peace said was contrary to the statutes made and provided."

"Well, I sort of had a hankering to know whether they don't do in good faith or just because they thought I was easy plucked, and what do you think I found out? Why, the people of that town haven't paid any taxes for eight years. They'd actually been running things by plucking just such innocent fellows as me."

"Now, gentlemen, there's a $1 bill in one of these little packages. Who will give me 10 cents for the first chicken?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Curiosity.

"I hear that Jenkins, the politician, was found in his flat in a starving condition."

"Poor fellow! He must have been starved."

THE HALIBURTON MINE

A Stamp Mill will be in operation shortly. Assays show $10 to $15 to the ton.

Everything is running smoothly at the new mine near the village of Haliburton at present, and every foot shows up better quality of ore and higher values of gold and copper. An immense reefing has been made on the face of the mine at a point about 100 feet from the top. The cutting is about fifty feet in height and thirty-five feet in from the face. At this point a shaft fifteen by eight feet is being sunk to the depth of fifty feet for the purpose of examination. The shaft is at present down a thirty feet, and shows up a better quality at every step.

An idea of how easily this mine may be worked, says the Lindsay Post, may be taken from a single blast, which consisted of about one lb. of dynamite and exploded in a mass of four cubic yards, the amount of ore blown out by the explosion was estimated at fifteen tons. This, at $20 per ton for dynamite and four hours work, representing $3.75 for labor, places the cost at four dollars for fifteen tons or approximately 30 cents per ton for miner. However, the mining engineer in charge estimates, at the highest, to mine this ore at $1 per ton which, with $20 for milling, would make this mine pay if it only runs $250 to the ton. The latest assays show ten to fifteen dollars to the ton on the average. The company have directed Mr. Keith to purchase a stamp mill immediately, and it is expected that it will be in active operation in about two months.

The mine is at present in a condition to deliver 100 tons of ore per day, so that it is a mere matter of getting the stamp mill there and up, when the mine will be in a paying condition.

THE ABORTION CASE

Evidence of Catherine Johnston Taken at Nicholls' Hospital

Other Witnesses Examined—Dr. Pigeon, one of the Accused, Committed for Trial but Released on Bail—William Hayes Remanded Until Friday to Also Out on Bail Full Particulars of the Case

The abortion case—a general outline of which appeared in yesterday's Times—came up in the police court yesterday morning.

Dr. Pigeon was charged with having unlawfully used an instrument called a sound with intent to procure an abortion in the case of one Catherine Johnston. Through his counsel, Mr. Stone, he declined to elect in what manner the charge should be tried—summarily or otherwise.

Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, appeared for the crown.

The first witness examined was Dr. Halliday, who testified that he was called on Thursday, August 11th, between three and four o'clock in the afternoon, to see Catherine Johnston, at 280 Reid street. He was summoned by telephone. At the house he saw Catherine Johnston and two women, whom he subsequently learned were the girl's mother and sister-in-law, and a priest, Rev. Father O'Sullivan. The girl was in bad down stairs. His friend in an excited condition and feverish, and there was a very bad odor in the room about the bed.

He questioned the patient. She told him that she had had an operation performed to procure an abortion—on Thursday morning. She said it was done in Dr. Pigeon's office or house. She said he used an instrument. She said she had considerable pain in the uterine region. Her temperature was 100.35 and her pulse 120. Witness made an external examination. He found the uterus distended and tenderness in the abdomen. He judged that the girl was about four months advanced in pregnancy—judging from the size of the uterus from an outward examination. He told the priest that he wanted another physician called. Dr. Halliday came and the doctor made a vaginal examination and found a fetus presenting, which was removed without difficulty; the associated membranes etc. coming away. Two omelette had set in in the fetus and membranes. Witness thought that the uterine contents had been disturbed two or three days previously. He went on to describe minutely the conditions he found, including a perforation in the posterior membrane. He could not say positively whether these conditions were produced by natural causes or by external agency. There was no evidence of condition to account for the results described. There was nothing to show that the birth was natural and nothing but the fact of its having taken place to show that it was unnatural. His subsequent attention upon the girl furnished no evidence of the miscarriage having been produced by artificial means. The membranes were particularly perfect. The girl was now in the hospital; she showed some signs of blood poisoning, high temperature and quickened pulse.

To Mr. Stone—The high temperature and quickened pulse are not unusual after a case of the kind in question. He had attended many similar cases and could not always tell the cause. In this case different causes might have produced the results and all the conditions described might have been present without an operation having been performed.

To the Magistrate—The girl was apparently about 26 years of age.

To Mr. Stone—Such conditions are often the result of over-excitation or the act of the woman herself.

Dr. Pigeon testified that he was called in consultation with Dr. Halliday on Thursday, August 11th, to see Catherine Johnston. Heard Dr. Halliday's evidence and agreed with what he said. It would be impossible from what was seen to pronounce as to the cause of the miscarriage.

To Mr. Stone—From what I saw it would be impossible to tell if the miscarriage was brought about by artificial means. They are often brought about by various causes. Witness supposed that under such circumstances girls often told misleading stories. All the conditions present might have been there if an operation had not been performed.

To Mr. Wood—The conditions were not natural—not the conditions he would expect to find if the miscarriage had been produced in the natural way. He was not prepared to say what caused the opening in the placental membrane. It might be thought have been there a day or two. This opening would bring about the results that took place.

To Mr. Stone—The conditions witness found might have been present without artificial means.

At this stage Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, father and mother of Catherine Johnston, were called and not appearing, Police Constable Adams testified that he had served summons upon them and as they did not appear warrants were issued to compel their attendance.

The hearing was adjourned till four o'clock to permit of Catherine Johnston's evidence being taken. Catherine Johnston, sworn, said: I am the daughter of Benjamin Johnston and have been living at 280 Reid street, Peterborough. I became pregnant about two months ago. I did not know there was anything the matter with me until I went to Dr. Pigeon on Thursday, Aug. 9th, about

5 p.m. He told me I was pregnant. That was all that day. I was alone. William Hayes, the prisoner before me, is the father of the child. I saw him that Thursday night at my father's house. I told him what the doctor said. He said he would be down the next night. I saw Hayes again Friday night. He told me to go and see Dr. Pigeon. He thought he might give me something—some medicine. I went to Dr. Pigeon in the first case in consequence of what Hayes told me. I had told him I thought there was something the matter with me. He said no. I said I would go and see Dr. Pigeon. He said all right. On Friday morning he told me to go Saturday morning and see Dr. Pigeon and see what he could do for me and what he would charge. On Saturday I went about 10 a.m. to Dr. Pigeon. I went alone. He said if I would give him $25 I would be all right in a couple of days. I could pay $10 cash and the balance when I saw him. He said I would go the Monday or Tuesday following. Then I saw Hayes on Friday afternoon about 3 p.m. at the house. I told him what the doctor had said. He told me he would give me some money on Monday. I saw him Monday night at my house. He gave me $10. I went to Dr. Pigeon Tuesday at 10.25 a.m. I went to his office. I told him I had the money. He took the money and told me to wait in the chair. He brought in an instrument and used it. (The witness here described the instrument and of the effect of its use upon herself. I did not see. After the operation he told me to go and I went home. I lay down and in about two hours afterwards I got better. Before leaving I said to him I suppose you will be down and see me. He said that it was very far from him. He said I was very sick. Thursday and telephoned for him. I asked him if he could do anything for me and he said no. He said he would be back after dinner and appeared greatly excited. At suggestion of Father O'Sullivan I sent for Dr. Halliday.

Witness examined. I was at the doctor's office on Thursday and Saturday, and on Tuesday three times. I told him I thought I had been pregnant about seven weeks. I asked if he could give me something and did not threaten to brown myself if he did not. I did not know he was going to perform an operation. Though he was only going to examine me and give me some medicine, I have kept company with Hayes since last March. Got into trouble with him on the 7th of April. Did not tell my mother. Hayes gave me $10 and I gave it to the doctor. I am struggling. I never intended to have an operation performed on me and had I known such was the intention would have refused. No one advised me to have an operation performed. No one advised me to perform an operation. I was in conversation with Hayes there was no talk of an operation. He did not counsel me to use any means to procure a miscarriage. Friday night he asked me to see the doctor and see if anything could be done for me.

Witness did not tell me where he got the money and I do not know where he got it. I went to the doctor to get medicine to relieve me of my trouble. Hayes gave me the money to pay the doctor for what he was to do for me. Hayes knew for what purpose I went to the doctor. On the conclusion of the evidence the magistrate formally committed Dr. Pigeon to stand his trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction, and after he was given his liberty on $500 bail.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and prepared one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." Mrs. H. F. FARM, Degraaf Street.

Hood's Pills cure liver bile; easy to take, easy to operate. 25 cents.

There was not the man who had called at the shop, and that he had never seen him before. He said that the detective Wilkes was the man. His evidence was unshaken by cross-examination.

James Robin, clerk in a store adjoining the bank, swore that he heard voices the night of the bank robbery, such like the sound of falling silver.

George Mohard, a. s. corroborated his statement, as he was in the same room at the same time.

The next witness was Mr. P. G. Carwell, exmayor of Napanee, who is a very highly respected citizen, and John T. Grange testified that a man could not stand in Centre street and see the windows of the bank. He remembered seeing Miss Baldwin on top of the stairway in the Grange building which leads to Ben's room, about ten days previous to the robbery.

Wm. Templeton, editor of The Banner, gave evidence to the effect that a man could not stand on Centre street and see the rear window of the Pennington Bank. He following down the stair leading to Ben's room he might have been the burglar.

AN INDIAN CRADLE SONG.

Swing thee low in thy cradle soft,
Sleep in the dusky wood!
Swing thee low and swing aloft—
Sleep as a papoose should.
For safe in your little birchen nest
Quiet will come and peace and rest,
If the little papoose is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold,
And the owlet hoots in the tree,
And the big moon shines on the little child
As it slumbers peacefully.
So swing thee high in thy little nest
And swing thee low and take the rest
That the night wind brings to thee!

Father lies on the fragrant ground,
Dreaming of hunt and fight,
And the leaves rustle with mournful sound

All through the solemn night;
But the little papoose in his birchen nest
Is swinging low as he takes his rest,
Till the sun brings the morning light.

THE DERELICT.

BY CHARLES A. LEVY.

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the brig sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I swung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past us. I may have been overcareless or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift up my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself aboard. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I knew by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point; next she had been floating about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her decks, but masts and yards and boats and booms had gone clear off her as they fell. She had settled down until her scupper holes were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper. As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Breton. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a fore-and-aft ship instead of having a deckhouse for the crew. The cabins or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the fore-cabin were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuits in tins. I wanted water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went so deck and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As near as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 2,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was soon before I began an examination of the lumber to see how I should fare for provisions. I found flour, wine, table water, preserves, boxes of biscuits, choice bacon, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storeroom, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the men. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the fore-cabin, I found boots, oilskins, sou'westers and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boats. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had scarcely glanced around the horizon and given no thought to rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.

When morning came again I made a more thorough investigation of the cabin. In rear of the captain's stateroom I chanced upon a closet which had escaped me the day before, and here I made a great find. There was about $1,000 in French gold and notes, $1,300 in English goldpieces and exactly $7,000 in goldpieces just struck off at the Australian mint. The money was in two tin boxes, but whether it belonged to the ship, her captain or to other people I could not determine. It was a big fortune to a poor sailor, and I remember that I acted very foolishly over the find. I counted it over and over again, and when I at last realized that I was rich I rushed on deck, with a wild hope of seeing a mail close at hand. But for the money I believe that the long days and nights which followed would have been rather contentful for me, isolated as the situation was. I had plenty to eat and drink, there was nothing to break my sleep, the wreck might drive where she would, but there was no danger of her going down. The discovery of the money was followed by a hope of rescue, and this again by worry and anxiety. I wanted to go ashore to enjoy my wealth. I feared that when rescue did come I should be robbed. I conjured up a thousand senseless fears, and the upshot was anything but beneficial. I have spoken of the general situation in a careless way. As a matter of fact, being a navigator, I took observations regularly when the weather permitted and picked off the drift of the wreck on the chart. On the average the weather was fine, but there were days and nights when gale and sea tumbled the waterlogged craft about until only a sailor could have lived through it. Instead of lifting her the waves ran over her, and at such times the decks were two feet under water and the cabin was flooded. The cargo was afloat with the water in the hold, and as the wreck rolled and pitched the timbers rubbed together and produced noises which would have frightened landmen into fits.

I kept an accurate reckoning, and I had been on the wreck just 49 days when I caught sight of my first sail. No doubt ships had passed and repassed me by day and night, but I could get no signal by day and from the first I slept all through the night. This sail was discovered early one morning, coming up from the south, and her course was such that she must see me. I had put the money into bags and the bags into bundles of clothing in view of a rescue, and therefore had nothing to do but wait. The stranger, which proved to be an English merchantman bound for India, but considerably off her course, was within four miles of me and had sent a signal to gladden my heart when a big whale suddenly broke water close to the wreck. He was followed half a minute later by a second, which attacked him with great fury. The monsters put up a terrific battle, lashing and biting each other and kicking up a sea like a gale of wind. They at first drew away from me, but after a few minutes made a circle which brought them back. What I had feared from the first came to pass after a quarter of an hour. Half blinded by pain and fury, or feeling itself overmatched and desirous of getting away, one of the whales suddenly whirled about and came for the wreck head on. He was fully 60 feet long, and he came like a moving mountain. I made sure of my hold as I saw him coming, but he struck the wreck on her port side with such force that I was thrown across the deck and into the sea beyond. I heard the crash of planks and timbers was tossed about by the waves, rubbed against the whale as he sounded and reached the surface to find the wreck a hull no longer. It was simply a heap of floating debris. The strange ship drew nearer, lowered a boat, and I was picked up as I clung to a plank. The money was gone, all else but the timbers which composed the cargo had disappeared, and my adventure, surprising as it had begun, had ended in a manner strange enough to satisfy even the most imaginative novelist. I was carried to India by the rescuing ship, and I know that the French consul at Calcutta, on inquiries on foot regarding the fate of the crew of the Marie. While they amounted to I never learned, but have always felt satisfied that all perished when their craft was dismasted. But for the fight between the whales I believe the brig could have been pumped out and sailed into port, but fortune is a jade who robs Jack Tar far oftener than she smiles upon him.

CARRIED INTO THE AIR

Story of a Cyclone near the Village of Marmora

About six miles south of Marmora, in the township of Newton, a cyclone came Tuesday night between six and seven, and caught John Livingston's barn and completely demolished it, taking it about 20 feet from its original place. The wind was torn away, and both ends out of the drive house. Mrs. Livingston, who was down cellar at the time, ran up and out toward the wind for thirty of forty feet. "Come by the lightning struck a cow belonging to John Barlow. The cyclone took the cow about twenty feet high, whirled it round and round, and then it fell to the ground and was found to be dead. The Livingston family had a very narrow escape.

The storm also skirted the village of Hiram and did a lot of damage to standing crops and buildings. At Coburn the storm was very severe. Lightning struck the town clock and the firemen had difficulty in putting out the fire. The loss was about $300. Two firemen who had gone out before the storm, had to be rescued by the lifeboat crew.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT

Young Man's Arm Torn off by the Cylinder of a Threshing Machine

The detail of a terrible accident in Carden township, says the Lindsay Post of Thursday, reached to-day. A young man by the name of Richard Hicks was assisting at a threshing bee yesterday on the farm of Mr. Richard Killinaworth, in Carden, and while cutting grain and assisting the feeder his right hand became caught in the cylinder and was drawn in until the arm was pulled out of the socket, to emerge in a mangled condition on the straw carrier. A doctor was at once sent for, but the severed arteries could not be ligated and the poor fellow died of shock and loss of blood. The unfortunate young man was a general favorite, and the sad fatality has cast a gloom over the entire neighborhood. Mr. Joseph Hicks the father is a well-to-do and highly respected farmer, and will have the sympathy of all in his terrible affliction.

All Crocked.

Miss Debuté—Why do they talk so much about the immortality of the bit?

Mr. Crotch—Because there are so few upright riders, I presume.

Very Debuté Comment.

"My wife," said the man who wanted to air his private history, "actually thinks more of a little shrike, sausage-shaped dog we've got than she does of me."

"And I'll venture to say," said the man with the talent for saying mean things, "that it isn't much of a dog at that."—Indianapolis Journal.

No Common.

"No, we don't permit our names to go in the directory, you know."

"And why not?"

"So deuced common, don't you know. Why, last year my name was sandwiched in between a 'Gingerbread' and a 'City Councilman'! It's a fact, 'pon my oath.'—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Common.

Mr. Cawker—You and I were born too soon, old man.

Mr. Cunn—What makes you say that?

Mr. Cawker—What a pudding a horseless carriage would have been when we were courting?—Judge.

A Sinner.

"The warmest day that I can remember," said the old man reminiscingly, "was one in August, 1876. On that day it was so hot that, going out of the room for a minute, when I returned my father was smoking."—Philadelphia North American.

That Was All.

"You two attorneys look like brothers," said the client to the partners in a law firm.

"But we are not," replied one.

"No," added the other, "We are only brothers in law."

"I want a suit I can fly round in," said the woman who had just come in, "something really smart." And the partner, who was not a player in the game of being a lawyer, but a player in the game of being a lawyer.

Fruit of the Maracantha Syam.

Nothing of the kind in this world can be more impressive than the way in which an audience of 6,000 French radicals receives that wonderful air (the "Maracantha"), says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic. I observed that the chorus of young men who led the singing never once looked at the notes and few even had any, so familiar was it to all. There was a perfect hush in that vast audience while the softer parts were sung, and no one joined even in the chorus at first, for everybody was listening. The instant, however, that the strain closed, the applause broke like a tropical storm, and the clapping of hands was like the taking flight of a thousand doves all over the vast arena.

Behind them twinkling hands the light of the ladies and the blue blossoms of workingmen seemed themselves to shimmer in the air. There was no coarse noise of pounding on the floor or drumming on the seats, but there was a vast cry of "Bis Bis!" sent up from the whole multitude, demanding repetition. The moment the first verse was sung through for the second time several thousand voices joined in the chorus. Then the applause was redoubled, as if they had gathered new sympathy from one another, after which there was still one more great applauding gust, and then an absolute quiet.

Nothing Remarkable.

Smith—Hear about the fire over on the West side this morning? Nine persons barely escaped with their lives. Remarkable, wasn't it?

Brown—I fail to see anything very remarkable about it.

Smith—Why not?

Brown—Well, suppose they had escaped without their lives, then it would have been remarkable.

STRINGY MILK.

A Consideration of the Scientific Reasons Given For Its Presence.

Mr. John Speir, writing to The Scotch Farmer on the subject of "stringy milk," says: Bacteria plays a most important part in all dairy matters, and all bacteriologists who have directed their attention to stringy milk have arrived at the same conclusion—viz., that it is caused by bacteria. These investigations have also brought to light the fact that the form of bacteria may cause stringy milk, and that stringy milk cannot be produced without infection. In Norway and Sweden a certain class of "stringy milk," called "lange milk," is sold as an article of commerce, and this milk is said to be produced by feeding the cows on a particular plant. Tests made by bacteriologists did not, however, produce such an effect, and at the present time all evidence seems to point to every case being the result of infection.

The bacillus which is supposed to be the principle cause of stringy milk has been found by Guillemin to retain its vitality in September in a sample of milk to which it had been inoculated in March. It is generally supposed to live on the floors, walls and air of the byre, on the udders and bodies of the cows, and on the vessels which hold the milk or by which it is carried. It is said to be very difficult to kill, and nothing but the most scrupulous cleanliness in everything, from the cow to final delivery of the milk, including milkers' hands and clothes, will get rid of it. While in Switzerland in 1894 at the conference of the British Dairy Farmers' Association, I had a conversation with Professor Freudenreich on this subject, and he said that the bacillus of this complaint was probably more common in Switzerland and Norway than in any other country. At one of the conferences in Bern he showed these present samples of milk, all from one pure source twelve months before, each of which had been inoculated with a different culture of some bacillus causing trouble in the dairy. He dipped his pencil into the milk to which a cultivation of this bacillus had been added, and when lifted up the milk, a simple wash-bowl, drawn out into a string one to two feet long. Later on, in his laboratory, I had an opportunity of seeing other samples of good and bad bacteria which are commonly found as causes of stringy milk, and heard from him the extreme difficulty of killing a bacterium or dairy of this bacillus.

While warm weather enables this bacillus to increase, it should also give us a correspondent a favorable opportunity of thoroughly disinfecting his whole premises, cows, utensils and people. Lime wash, with some strong disinfectant, should be freely used; the dairy utensils should be thoroughly steamed or boiled longer than usual for several days successively; the cows' udders and bodies should be washed with some weak disinfectant; the clothing of the milkers and those handling the milk should be entirely renewed, and the milkers' hands washed after every cow. If these precautions are carefully carried out, the mischief may reasonably be expected to be got rid of.

The robin, that "merry" bird, is very quarrelsome, and it was one to watch him wending the precise hours of food in hunting another hungry robin in up and down, and round and round, till the sparrows have cleared the board. The blackbirds, too, are very annoying in the way that they snatch up a lump of bread and fly off with it, only to be chased about for the rest of the morning by other blackbirds, while a sparrow makes a squeal meal off the morsel taken under a shrub. But sometimes as they are in pursuit, the curious fact is that the pursuer stops, perks up his tail, and being promptly charged by the other, becomes in his turn the pursued. But who to both when the meal thrust comes. He is pitiless in pursuit, and I have seen them pass my window time after time in the course of a morning, the storm-cock heard on the "beak" of the blackbird. And when they overtake them what happens? For myself, as I have often said before, I believe the meal thrust is a contest. At any rate, I attribute some of the dead blackbirds and thrushes that one finds about the grounds to this cruel beak. He watches for birds for hours at a time, like a bird of prey, and attacks them like one. I have often suggested a chase which I knew could only end one way.—Contemporary Review.

A Possibility.

"He has learned to ride a wheel now," said his father, "he will walk first, or he may never."

FRUIT EXPERIMENTS IN ONTARIO.

Report of the First Year's Work in Testing Varieties.

Already the work of the experimental stations of Ontario is making itself known and appreciated. The first annual report, which has just been published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has sixty-four pages of valuable reading matter and numerous tables showing the results of the first year's work in testing varieties. As the secretary says in his letter of transmittal, it would be impossible to have results so extended ready for publication this first year were it not that practical fruit growers of "big and careful experience in their various lines have been selected as the experimenters. These men are the best fruit growers from the knowledge gained from years of careful work with that variety of fruit which is the specialty of each. In this way the reports from these gardeners become most valuable to the country.

Apples.—Mr. W. B. Dempsey, Superintendent of the Day of Quinte station, speaks well of the Winter St. Lawrence, Pearsall and Ontario apples. He says the Pearsall is a large apple and more productive than the King and as good in quality. Of the Ontario he says, "It is one of the most profitable apples we have. My own Ontario apples sold equal to Spys in Montreal." Of the Alexander he says, "This variety is coming more into favor every year as one of the best selling fall apples." of the Red Astrachan, "It is not desirable to grow here." To the Jon Davis he gives twenty-three marks as value out of a possible forty, and adds that its chief value consists in its long keeping qualities.

Grapes.—Mr. M. Peritt, Superintendent of the Westworth grape station, gives an interesting table showing the actual productiveness and the various prices per pound which he received for certain varieties in 1894. Thus the Agawam, which was harvested October 2nd, yielded 174 lbs. of grapes to the acre, of which all but a half pound was first grade; the average selling price was three cents a pound, giving a total income of about fifty cents per vine. The Concord yielded nineteen lbs. per vine and so sold at two cents a pound, or about thirty-eight cents per vine. The Catawba yielded 164 lbs. and sold at five cents a pound, giving a total of about eighty cents per vine. About thirty varieties of grapes are fully described.

The secretary, in his notes on varieties, speaks favorably of the Victoria grape. He says, "The Victoria, one of the numerous seedlings raised by Mr. B. Miner, of London, N. Y., was this year a favorite white grape with me, and I am inclined to think that it will take a foremost place among white grapes. The bunches are well shaped; the skin has a fine wax-like lustre and heavy bloom, and the berries are of good size and fair quality. The vine is very productive. By some 'this grape is called a white Concord.'"

Peaches.—In his notes on peaches, Mr. W. Hillborn, Superintendent of the South-Western Station, says, "Alexander, Amos's June and Early Canada are all practically identical. The four most profitable varieties to grow in this locality have been Alexander, Bernard's Early, Tyhurst Seedling and Hill's Peach. The two latter are perhaps the most hardy in fruit buds and give a good crop nearly every season. They are probably the best to plant in sections not well adapted to peach culture. Among new varieties the Fingerling is perhaps the most promising. It is of the Early Crawford type and apparently an improvement on that old favorite. The fruit buds are hardy and the young trees will begin bearing the second year after planting. The fruit is large; skin, bright yellow suffused with red; flesh, deep yellow, of best quality; stone, not as large as that of the Crawford. Its season of ripening is with or just after the Early Crawford. Early's Early is another quite new sort in this locality that is very promising. It is the first yellow flesh peach to ripen with me."

Strawberries.—Mr. K. B. Stevenson, strawberry specialist, describes forty-two varieties, placing the Greenville at the head for productiveness and among the best for quality. It is a large crimson berry originating in Ohio. The Haverland is also ranked high for productiveness. The Timbrell does not ripen evenly, and the Parker Early runs and cannot endure the drought. The Woolverton, he says, is well worth growing.

Gooseberries.—Mr. A. Morton, of Brampton, reports upon twenty-six varieties of gooseberries, mostly English.

Mr. S. Spillet, Superintendent of the Simcoe gooseberry station, reports upon ten varieties. He speaks highly of the Pearl. He says, "Take it all around as a medium sized berry, the pearl is hard to beat. More vigorous and with better foliage than the Downing. It is bound to be generally planted. It yielded this year five quarts to the bushel all around. The Champion, a peer to the Pearl in vigor and foliage, is ahead of it apparently in productiveness and size. The berry is a cross of Downing and Pearl, and is a most desirable variety. The originator informs me. It is certainly unlike any other gooseberry I have seen in habit of growth and appearance and shape of berry. In quality, I do not think the fruit equal to the Pearl. I may say that by spraying with liver of sulphur, most of the English varieties may be grown successfully, but in my opinion, our future berry general cultivation will be along the line of a cross between the so-called American varieties and the English."

Spraying for Fungi and Insects.

That Paris green and bordeaux emulsion still remain the leading insecticides, and that bordeaux mixture is the best remedy for plant diseases, is the experience of the New York station at Geneva. The knapsack sprayer is generally useful, though extensive growers need a machine of greater capacity. The suction pump should always enter the tank at the top, and the pump should be made of brass or be brass lined. Hand pumps should allow the weight of the body to be used on the handle while at work. Vermorel nozzles give a better spray than the disk machines. For spraying potatoes and tomatoes a nozzle is needed which can be lowered between the rows, and directed so as to force the spray up through the vines. The agitator is needed to keep the poison in solution. The best forms work up and down in an upward tank, like a dash in the old churn. Where the pump piston has a packing this should be often removed. For killing cabbage worms and insects, no liquid has been found equal to dry paris green applied with a hand sifter. Powder guns are useful for applying dry powdered poisons, pyrethrum, tobacco dust and sulphur. Bamboo extensions should be used in carrying large tanks.

We never would make more better calves than we needed for our own herd. It will not pay.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued its use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." Mrs. SUMNER, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

Police Court

At yesterday morning's session of the Police Court, Mrs. Quinn preferred a charge of assault against Mrs. O'Brien. The evidence was contradictory that the magistrate dismissed the case.

Dennis Daley, charged with vagrancy, admitted he had neither money nor home, and was accordingly given six months at hard labor at Castle Neill.

Remembered by Her Friends

The many friends of Miss Evelyn Morrison, who left for Glenora, Man., yesterday, gathered at the home of Mrs. McGowan, 414 York street, on Thursday evening and presented her with a handsome Bible and an address appropriate to the occasion. There were about fifty young people present and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Down the River

Say, the summer is passing and you have not been down the river for the prettiest sail in this province. Or, perhaps, you have been down and promised yourself the sail again. Well, remember that Capt. Martin is again in charge of the North Star, and that this popular steamer will run daily trips to Rice Lake points. The steamer will leave the wharf at 9:15 a.m. each day except Saturday. On Saturday she leaves at two o'clock in the afternoon. The best of attention is received on the North Star.

Stony Lake Regatta

The second annual regatta at Stony Lake was held on Thursday and was favored with fine weather. The regatta interest was taken in the racing and several of the events were intensely exciting. There was a very large crowd present. The races and the winners were as follows:

Boys' tandem paddling race—1, B. G. Smith and Dunn; 2, W. Bell and F. Collins.
Ladies' tandem paddling race—1, Miss Birdall and Miss B. Rosburgh; 2, Miss Cox and Mrs. E. Griffith.
Men's singles—1, R. B. Griffith; 2, H. Hamilton.

Men's tandem—1, B. G. Smith and Dunn; 2, Strickland and Richardson.
Tub race—1, B. G. Smith and Dunn; 2, Strickland and Richardson.
Single scull—1, B. G. Smith; 2, Piper.
Mixed tandem—1, Miss S. Robinson and V. M. Williams; 2, Griffith and Mathias.

Hurry-a-urry—1, B. G. Smith; 2, Mathias.
Upset race—1, B. G. Smith; 2, Mathias.

Sailing race—1, Cameron; 2, Rosburgh.

In the evening a hop was held in the pavilion, when a most enjoyable time was spent.

College of Music

The Toronto Junction College of Music and School of Art will open for the first term on Thursday, Sept. 1st. The unique success of the college in its first year is proof of the great need of such an institution at the Junction. Mrs. Macmillan has made several valuable additions to the teaching staff and in every department the most thorough instruction is promised, while the very low rate of tuition should more than double the attendance of next year. (Miss Macmillan will be assisted in her work of piano teaching by Miss McQuillan and Miss Little. Miss A.T.C.M., a graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. A number of scholarships will be given this year, in excess of last year. The Heintzman half-year scholarship will be competed for at the end of the first term. Mr. Francis Firth will have charge of the vocal department in Mr. Macmillan's absence. Mr. Firth has been the pupil of the best Italian masters, and his method of training the voice is unexcelled. The fact that he is teaching here at such a moderate rate will doubtless insure a large class in this line of musical work. Those intending to compete for any of the scholarships should make early application. Miss Fletcher will donate a half-year scholarship to the one taking highest marks in the kindergarten classes next year.

Centrepieces, all ready stamped for working for 10 cents at Miss Melville's, Hunter St.

OVIO HOLIDAY

A Very Quiet Day in Town—Excursionists well Patronized.

Fine holiday was a very quiet day in town. There was a general exodus of citizens on the many excursions to outside points. Our fleet of passenger boats was taxed to the utmost to carry away the big crowds in the morning, while all the yachts and small boats were carried into requisition. The day was a beautiful one and no accident occurred to mar the enjoyment of the pleasure seekers. About 300 took in the L.O.O.F. excursion to Rochester and report the trip as a most enjoyable one. There wasn't a hitch in the arrangements and the committee in charge are deserving of praise for the efficient manner in which the trip was conducted.

The Catholic Order of Foresters held a very successful outing at Stony Lake. Nearly 250 people took in this trip.

An excursion to Stony Lake under the auspices of the Charlotte street Methodist church was patronized by fully 200 and a delightful day was spent among the islands by the excursionists.

A large crowd took in the Court Peterborough C.O.F. excursion to Jubilee Point and spent a most enjoyable day.

The Salvation Army excursion down the river per steamer "Empire" was also well attended, and a lively day was enjoyed. The brass band was along and made music for the crowd.

The North Star had a big crowd on her special trip to Gore's Landing and the mountains. Capt. Martin was in charge again and everything was in first-class shape and the trip was most pleasant. It made a capital holiday outing.

The popular trip of Court Little O.N.F. to Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo attracted a big crowd as usual and the early C.P.R. trains were well crowded with excursionists.

WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK

A Toronto Lacrosse Expert on the Conflict Between Peterborough and Oshawa.

James Stuart, the Toronto News-lacrosse expert, discusses the situation in this district as follows: In the North-Eastern district championship race, the two favorites, Oshawa and Peterborough, are at the head of the parade, running away for a particularly hard finish. Both clubs have beaten the Beaverton Checkers at home and in Beaverton, while Midland is hardly a factor in the race, and cannot affect the standing of either Oshawa or Peterborough. Each team is credited with 5 wins and 1 loss. Oshawa lost in Peterborough and Peterborough in Oshawa. Both teams have some excellent material. In Oshawa, Brown, Glover, McCabe and Lissett. The Peterboroughs have five men as good as to be found anywhere. Oshawa with McKay back on the defense, supported by the addition of "Mickey" Connor, should Curran be given a place on the home field, gives Oshawa an exceptionally strong team. To balance the twelve, a heavy, hard player should be put on the home in the person of Connor. The two rival teams will soon meet and a great contest is sure to result.

WM. HAYES COMMITTED

To Stand His Trial at the Next Court of Oshawa.

On a charge of counselling Catharine Johnson to procure a abortion, William Hayes appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court yesterday morning.

The Crown was represented by Mr. R. S. Wood and the accused by Mr. W. A. Stratton.

The evidence of Dr. Halden and Dr. Poucher as given at the previous trial was put in and this with the evidence given by the young woman made up the case.

Mr. Stratton asked for a dismissal of the charge, but the Magistrate committed the accused for trial. Bail was first fixed at $500, but upon the Crown Attorney stating that the accused had jumped bail in the United States the Magistrate withdrew the bail and left the question of granting it to the County Judge, although Hayes' lawyer denied the charge in regard to the bail in the States.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, the parents of the young woman, were in court, and were bound over to appear when wanted.

The Reception was a Magnificent
One—Great Day in New York

There was a Demonstration of Patriotism such as New York Has Never Witnessed Before. Thousands Viewed the Pageant

New York, Aug. 20.—The reception given to Admiral Sampson's squadron by the people of Greater New York today was a magnificent one and was participated in by hundreds of thousands of wildly enthusiastic citizens.

Long before the sunrise gun was fired in Governor's Island the people were out and about. Crowds were hurrying to the river to be early on the boats. Long before the time when the ferry boats and street cars are usually crowded, great throngs of people hung on the straps, tried on each others' feet and jammed into conveyances to points all along the river fringes. The New York and New Jersey shores were literally black with people, all cheering

There was very little friction in the carrying out of the program and no delay. The City's Committee left the City of Portland on the steamship Albatross on an early hour and proceeded down the bay, followed by a "long" train of all sorts and descriptions of craft. At Tompkinsville the Mayor and committee embarked on the flagship Greenwich. The welcome ceremonies were short but impressive. The ceremonies over, amid the striking of brasses over and the striking of steam whistles and the cheers of the throngs, the Mayor and committee returned to the Green Island.

Then came the event of the day. There was a contest between the Japanese battleships and the fleet of the United States. The Japanese fleet, consisting of nine battleships, began to move up the bay. The seven of the United States fleet, consisting of three battleships and four cruisers, were waiting for them. The Japanese fleet was defeated. The United States fleet was victorious. The Japanese fleet was destroyed. The United States fleet was victorious. The Japanese fleet was destroyed. The United States fleet was victorious.

And so it was all the way to Grant's tomb where there was a final demonstration of patriotism such as New York has never witnessed before. The agent was viewed and cheered by hundreds of thousands of people. It was a magnificent and indescribable scene, one never to be forgotten.

The GRAPHOPHONE
Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It reproduces all the music of the world, orchestras, vocalists or instrumentalists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut and dried subjects specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. A MARVEL.

An old astronomer there was
Who lived up in a tower
Named Ptolemy Copernicus Flammarion McOwen.
He said: "I can prophesize
With estimates correct,
And when the skies I contemplate
I know what to expect.
When darkling clouds obscure my sight,
I think perhaps 'twill rain,
And when the stars are shining bright
I know 'tis clear again."
And then abstractedly he scanned
The heavens hour by hour,

THAT SEDAN CHAIR.

"I repeat it," said Jacques d'Elit-gnac, with an emphasis so curious that all turned to look at him; "it gave me the fright of a lifetime."

"A sedan chair?"

"Yes. Listen, if you would know all about it." And he told us the following story:

"A love tale," said he, "of the city of Lille, of my twentieth year, and my pretty cook's daughter, a mere child, but so pretty, so sweet, so adorably coquettish; moreover, so admirably skilled in all pertaining to her father's business. Nowhere else could I buy such cake, such buns, such sugared almonds. And the stacks and stacks of rich confections that I devoured each day to prove my devotion!"

"The fire of my love—which she returned to me—the smiles bestowed upon her father's customers—alone saved me from gastritis by consuming the heaviness of my stomach."

"This was the state of things, when, one day, I chanced to find the pass key of 'le pere,' who spent half his time in the winery across the way and the other half gossiping at his door with his equally idle neighbors."

"Determined to profit by this piece of luck, I managed to speak a word to Victoire, my little sweetheart, and to propose to her a visit to the theater that evening, if she could elude the vigilance of her mother and join me unseen. She could easily re-enter by means of the pass key."

"Victoire was charmed with my inspiration, and six hours after I had conceived the project we had carried it into execution. Although it was the middle of the winter the night was superb, a late rising moon, but thousands of brilliant stars shining from every quarter of the heavens. Victoire trembled like a leaf in the wind, but I was filled with such burning ardor that it mounted to my head like a drink of wine."

"We were young, you see; the theater for us was a scene of enchantment, in love with each other and more than happy. Our hearts, like the strings of some delicately tuned instrument, vibrated to the slightest touch. In fact, we forgot everything but each other and never thought of moving when at last the final curtain fell until the lamps appeared to turn on the lights."

"Happily then to the street, we found that the night had changed. The stars were gone, the moon hidden under a canopy of clouds, a cold, penetrating rain beginning to fall and all the sedan chairs gone with the stars."

"No, I was wrong; one was left standing by the roadside a little way below us. At sight of its fatal idea popped into my brain. It was not yet very late, and I had still so many beautiful things to say to Victoire. Why not get into that chair, a refuge from the chilly rain, and talk everything all over again?"

"The clock at the corner was just striking 12 as we slipped into our movable apartment, rather cramped, to be sure, but both of us were light and thin; so, drawing close and snug like birds in a nest, we awaited the passing of the shower—cheerfully awaited it, too—when all at once something very strange occurred."

"Assured of solitude and a clear coast, they descended to the street, bearing in their arms a heavy burden. Just at that instant the moon slid from under the clouds, and we distinctly saw that this burden was a human being wrapped in a long cloak closely muffled about the face and shoulders."

"This was startling enough, but fancy our horror when the bearers of this strange load moved straight to the chair where we crouched in terror, and one of them already had his hand on the door when Victoire uttered a stifled shriek, answered by a frightful oath, and quick as a flash the men were gone as they had come, and the door reclosed as softly as it had opened."

"The whole thing had passed so quickly that we might have believed it some fearful vision, only doubt was not possible—we had seen it—both of us had distinctly seen the same thing, and without a spoken syllable were filled with the same blood-freezing thought—murder—a murder doubtless committed in this very house, from which the murderers were now seeking to carry away and to conceal all traces of the crime with the victim's body."

"Oh, let us go, let us go!" moaned Victoire tremblingly. "Let us go at once, Jacques. I am so frightened!" "Go? Yes, I was willing enough, but how? For as Victoire spoke, two men emerged from the darkness around us—we could barely distinguish them, as the moon had gone behind a cloud again—caught up the chair and were bearing us away into the dismal night."

"This was a predicament. We were stupefied. What must we do? Cry out, and make a dreadful scandal? Betray Victoire, and expose myself to the risk of discovery? Never! It was not to be thought of! It was not to be thought of! It was one of those times when trust in chance was the only resource, hoping by blind confidence to propitiate her favor."

"Perhaps this was our case; perhaps,

and I am inclined to think the latter, we were both so frightened that we had neither the strength nor the courage to attempt anything. Victoire had unconsciously thrown herself into my arms. Her warm breath fanned my cheek. Her little hand held fast to mine. No matter what threatened us, it was something, at least, to have gained this happiness; we would die together, her last sigh on my lips."

"For these men—we were sure of it—were accomplices of the first two, and by a previous arrangement they had been engaged for the carrying off and concealing of the dead body. Deceived by our joint weight, they believed they had it, and we, instead of the murdered victim, were hurrying away through the shadowy gloom."

"True, so we were, but where were we hurrying? Where were we heading, as the men trotted on with swift, untiring steps, at times almost a run? What were they going to do with us—their minister burden?"

"Presently we saw that we were passing one of the city gates leading into the distant country. Again I was tempted to cry out, to call to the sentinel, but fear for Victoire deterred me, Victoire, whose mother believed her slumbering sweetly under her little white curtains."

"What should I do? What could I do? I was nearly distracted."

"By this time we were clear of the suburbs, but still swept onward. Another lightning of the sky, and I saw ahead of us a glistening sheet of water, the river Deule. I knew it well—a deep, rapid stream, the running of whose current we even now could hear."

"Undoubtedly the wretches were going to fling us into this seething vortex. This time I would have cried out, but Victoire, mad with fright, clung so tightly to my neck, clasping me with such force that my voice died in my throat, my eyes closed and the cry was strangled."

"How long a time elapsed I never knew. I was brought back to consciousness by the chair striking the ground. They had set it down preparatory to—yes, but where, where? Decidedly not in the river! It was a room, on the contrary, the dirty grimy chamber of a low country winery, where a crowd of rough, coarse men were drinking, swearing and rolling about a lot of boxes, barrels and packages, like merchandise."

"Mme. Jervaise, Mme. Jervaise!" they shouted in chorus, as our bearers set us down. "Have you brought us Mme. Jervaise?"

"She is here," the bearers replied.

"To work, to work, then! We have no time to lose."

"And the chair door was thrown open. But scarcely had they caught sight of Victoire and me, crouching half dead in the bottom of the chair, when a wild stampede took place, a helter skelter rush for the outside. The lights were extinguished, the thud of feet was heard pounding away into the night, and then a deep, bloodcurdling stillness."

"We were alone in black darkness."

"Luckily I had noticed the direction of the door. To leap from the chair, seize Victoire's hand and make my way to it was the work of a second. The clouds had not deepened, the rain had ceased, and by the purest miracle we found the road back to the city. By daylight we were safe at home."

"A fortnight later perhaps an article in a morning paper gave me the key to the mystery of that hideous night in which we (Victoire and I) had been so strangely involved. The article announced the capture by the police of a band of smugglers who had installed themselves in an old, abandoned wine-shop in the outskirts of Lille—a regular magazine, as it turned out, of contraband goods, which they had smuggled in and out of the city by means of a manikin representing a sick old woman, partly paralyzed, and which, muffled in wraps and placed in a sedan chair, they carried back and forth under the very nose of the gendarmes without the slightest fear of detection."

"An invalid ordered by the doctor to take the steam baths," they told the officers of the law, by name Mme. Jervaise."

"Mme. Jervaise! The name told me all and explained everything that hitherto had seemed mysterious and inexplicable in our midnight adventure. Happily for us our nocturnal escapade had never been suspected, and Victoire and I escaped a summons to appear as witnesses before the court of assizes. All the same from that day to this the thought of a sedan chair gives me goose flesh down the spine."—From the French in Cincinnati Enquirer.

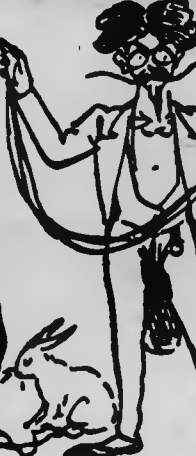

Compressed Flour.

The British admiralty and the war department are testing, under various climatic conditions, the new method for preserving flour. One objection to the establishment of national granaries has been the difficulty of storing grain for any length of time. The grain germinates and is ruined, and to keep large quantities in sound condition has been pronounced impracticable. Experiments are being made with a system of compression into bricks by hydraulic pressure. The trials show that the flour so treated is not affected by damp, even under unfavorable conditions, and is free from mold. The compression destroys all forms of larval life and the flour is thus rendered safe from the attacks of the insects. The saving in storage is enormous, as the cubic space occupied by 100 pounds of loose flour will hold more than 300 pounds of the compressed article.—Scientific American.

High Flows.

Mrs. Minnie E. Leo says: "In a Paris cafe I asked the maid whether she did not think the name on the menu, 'demi tasse cafe au lait trappe a la glace,' was very inflated for such a small cup of cold coffee and milk. 'Yes, madame,' she replied, 'it swells the mind as well as the stomach.'"

WORKS

A REMARKABLE CONTEST.

A Sick Woman's Struggle to Outlive an Invalid for Her Children's Sake.

A remarkable case developed at Morristown, Ind., says The St. Louis Republic. Morgan Chandler, a banker and a resident of Greenfield, several weeks ago executed his will, dividing his large estate among his nearest relatives. Among them was Eliza Burton, to whom he had bequeathed $10,000, which she was to receive providing she was not living with her husband, Charles, at the time of the testator's death. She having married Burton against his wishes, it was also stated in the will that should the testator survive the wife, the bequest was to go to the legatee named in the will, not to Burton nor his heirs.

Soon after the will was drawn Burton died, leaving Mrs. Burton to support the children, which she did, by taking in washing, sewing, etc. Several weeks ago the wife was taken ill, and at about the same time the wealthy uncle was also stricken. Both grew constantly weaker. The neighbors and friends of the widow took great interest, wishing her to survive the uncle, having learned the provisions of the will.

Greenfield and Morristown have telephone connections and the friends of the widow were kept constantly informed as to the condition of the uncle. Both patients grew weaker. At times the mother would seem to be breathing her last, but stimulants would be administered and she would revive, or long enough to enquire as to the condition of her relative, when she would return to a comatose state.

This was continued thirty-six hours, and all hopes of prolonging her life longer were virtually abandoned. Finally a message came that Morgan Chandler was dead. Mrs. Burton had endured the tortures of death long enough to secure a fortune for her children. They were summoned to her bedside, and with a blessing upon them, she closed her eyes and passed away. Cashier McDonald of the Union Bank has been appointed their guardian.

The New Millionaire

I ran across a new millionaire the other day whose name I have not yet seen in the papers. I found him and his family in a little room from whose windows one could see the lake. The living that my friend Midas needs many servants and a palace to make passable guests grandly dine here in room and an above. Three servants, Love, Willingness and Good Nature, do all the work gratis. On the looking-glass was printed this little poem of Lusy Larcom:

"ALL THINGS ARE MINE."
"I do not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchards and the mowing fields,
The lawn and garden fine.
The winds my lute play for me,
They bring me life's divine—
Wild scents and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and precious—
And more magnificent than all,
My windows keep for me
A glimpse of blue luminosity,
A little strip of sea."
—Chicago Record.

The Speedy Hazzard

A wild bear hunt was the exciting sport a number of the young men of South Jacksonville had looked forward to last week with a great deal of pleasure. The wild bear was a raccoon dog. He was installed in a pen and fed with red pepper, gunpowder and dynamite, and became as fierce as his reputed cousin of the Black Forest.

On the day of the hunt a cavalcade assembled at the meeting place armed with javelins and spears made of burnt wood with hunting knives tied to the end. The wild bear was lashed and trotted away into the woods. He squealed a half-contented, inquisitive, where's-the-rest-of-my-family sort of a squeal with no thought of the pursuers who spurred and whipped their horses into furious pursuit.

The wild bear trotted along—just simply and coolly trotted. He didn't look as if he was going, but the gall soon distanced the pursuers, and they were robbed of the pleasure of "jabbing" him full of holes.—Florida Times Union.

The French Peasant

The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers, they at least will own a house and garden and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and there may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on enlarging, with all their individualities, their common and material interest.

This is illustrated by the buying of wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, leading each other horses and making up teams. Every commune has a field, which is common property and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze. After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gross benefit and the other details are allowed to roam at large.—Contemporary Review.

CANARIES

They Are Subject to Many Diseases—How They Should Be Treated.

To neglect the cleanliness of food, cage or water is a sure means of bringing on disease. The cage should be so arranged as to be easy of access for the bird's head, and the bathing dish should be shallow and large enough to prevent the bird from injuring his plumage in his vigorous plunges.

Fishes which are too small are a source of misery to the bird. They should be of the same size throughout—about twice the diameter of a common lead pencil.

If a young canary is observed to sleep more than usual or if it has the appearance of a puff ball, it should be taken in hand at once. Probably it is suffering from indigestion, arising from an unwholesome or stale food, or from being given too many delicacies. The bird should be caught and a couple of drops of castor oil dropped down its throat, or the drinking water may be removed from the cage for a couple of hours and then put back with a few drops of cod liver oil floating on the top.

Either of these remedies will probably afford relief. The bird should then be removed to a dry, warm place and fed on crushed hemp for a few days. Diarrhoea is caused by giving too much green food, food which is wet or decayed or stale seeds. Bad drinking water is another frequent cause.

When the first symptoms of moults are observed, give a little magnesia in the drinking water, 10 or 15 grains to a wineglassful, or put in the fountain a small leaf, changing it every day.

To catch cold when moulting is almost always certain death to the bird. Therefore avoid drafty places for the cage.

At this time an abundance of food is necessary, and must be given by additions of a little hemp seed, white bread soaked in milk and lettuce or radish. The bird should also be kept warm.

Canaries are subject to many diseases. A common complaint is asthma. This generally arises from indigestion and yields to plainness and rape seed moistened with water as the sole food. In very bad cases leave off hemp seed and use rapeseed only; give abundance of bread soaked in water and pressed lettuce or watercress, according to season, twice a week give a boiled bread and milk ball about as large as the end of the thumb.

This is made by throwing a piece of the crumb of bread into a cup of milk, boiling and stirring with a wooden spoon till it is of the consistency of pap. It must be given cold and always freshly made. If allowed to sour, it will give indigestion. This paste acts as a purge and its effects must be watched.

For overgrown claws and beak use sharp scissors and take care to avoid drawing blood. The long claws are a source of discomfort and danger, especially when the female is nesting. A Singular Pet.

In a "Tour Around Hawaii," written in 1825, is this amusing description of an odd pet, the favorite of two native women: "When we reached the house of our host, the head man of Kapapala, we met a cordial reception."

Few of the Hawaiian females are without a pet, usually a dog. Here we observed a species of favorite that we had not seen before. It was a curly tailed hog about a year and a half old, three or four feet long and in tolerable order. He belonged to two sisters of our host and joined the social circle around the evening hearth.

During the evening he closely followed every movement made by his mistresses, and as supper put forth his nose and received his portion at their hands. According to custom, they washed their hands after the meal, and then passed the bowl to the hog.

At the usual time for retiring to rest these two ladies spread their mats and tapes on the ground in one corner, and, as is the usual practice, lay down to sleep with their clothes on. The hog waited very quietly till they had taken their places, when he marched over their tapes and stretched himself between them. The large tape that covered them all was then drawn up by one of them to his ears, after which she reclined her head on a pillow by his side.

I could not forbear smiling broadly at seeing the three heads in a row. This disconcerted the women a little, and they raised their heads and the hog grunted.

The brother said that his sisters had a great attachment for the hog, having fed him since it was a few days old, and did not like to have it sleep out with the other hogs in the cold, adding that if it were put out it would make such a noise all night at the door that no one in the house would be able to sleep.

Klondike Gold.

He had spent two or three winters in the Klondike country, or said he had, and he was telling his friends about it.

"It isn't so awfully cold up there when one gets used to it, isn't it?" asked a listener. "Well," he hesitated, "I don't really suppose it is; anyhow, it isn't to the one that's used to it. He don't know a thing about it. He's been frozen to death a month by that time."

"Oh, indeed," stammered the inquirer, who seemed to be disturbed by the sad fate of the person accursed to it.

A SAD STORY OF RUIN.

GREATEST OVERFLOW IN THE HISTORY OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

The "Father of Waters" Has Inundated Many Cities Towns and Counties. The Vast Valley Wholly Under Water—A Scene of Desolation.

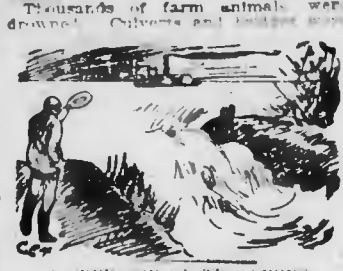

A Submerged Church.

It is the record of the innately Mississippi. Seven states walled and floundered in the muddy torrent, and thousands of people were sailing over their farms and into the flooded forests on logs. On the small islands that were above the deluged lands in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana, little groups of half-starved men gathered with their families and farm animals waiting for the rescue that came so slowly.

And still the tide rose and swelled and widened and sang its long song of death and disaster through the "Father of Waters," and still the six-foot waves of Minnesota and the Dakotas melted and poured their vast volume into the unprecedented current.

Leaves from St. Louis to Vicksburg are broken and destroyed. Crabs are everywhere. Twenty thousand men fought, night and day, the roaring waters.

In the backwoods and isolated lowlands of Arkansas and Mississippi thousands of poor settlers were deluged and cut off from communication or rescue. Thousands of farm animals were drowned. Cattle and horses were washed away and railroad traffic interrupted. Houses, barns and inadequate. Up to the date of writing the following table was a fairly accurate estimate of the loss of life and property in the great Mississippi flood of 1897:

A CREVASSE ON THE LEVEE.

Total number of lives lost—	250
Total amount of property made homeless—	150,000
Total number of refugees reported—	50,000
Unaccounted for, but probably rescued—	100,000
Total number of farm animals drowned—	10,000
Total square miles of land submerged—	10,000
Total damage to property—	$100,000,000
Number of men fighting the flood—	20,000

A Scene of Desolation

On the 10th of April the whole of the Yazoo Valley on the Mississippi, a largely unpopulated section of the Mississippi Valley, was a desolate place for home-seekers, from a point ten miles south of Memphis to Vicksburg, was one vast sea. Death, desolation and destruction marked the length of the river. The suffering in terrible and the loss is great. A few incidents will be sufficient to give an accurate idea of the situation. The correspondent embarked in a skiff at Greenville, Miss., and traversed a territory 50 miles long and 25 miles wide, riding over the fertile acres, whose yield had made this country famous. Through palatial homes of the Mississippi planters, a skiff loaded with schools of fish gambled in the luxurious parlors. Terrapins lounged upon the embroidered ottomans and slim reptiles stretched their lazy lengths on the cushions of the room. Unfrightened through the lady's chamber. Lovely homes, whose bells had resounded to the mirthful peals of childhood laughter, were now abandoned to the ravages of the water.

"Threading our course," he says, "through the farm yards, fields and gardens, and sometimes rowing through the open hallway of a deserted house, we met now and then a skiff loaded with refugees coming from the country. Once we saw a lone negro astride a log, propelling himself as best he could with a pole. Another time we passed a family—father, mother and a few small children—with all they had saved from their home, hunting a place of refuge. Their raft was made of planks torn from the floor of their dwelling."

Scattered everywhere on the bed of the rising water may be seen every imaginable article of household furniture which is capable of floating. Lowing of cattle in distress and the howling of dogs make a most unpleasant comment to the dreary picture which confronts the beholder. Every few moments a log or a branch of a tree or a piece of timber floats by with a burrden of living freight. Contained in a plank bearing eleven partridges. Another time we rescued a lone rabbit. The creature made no effort to flee, but seemed glad of success.

"Nine miles to the northeast a ridge of three or four acres was out of water and was literally alive with deer, hares, bear and domestic animals, all forming one harmonious family. The worst danger is not from drowning, but from slow starvation or sickness caused by exposure."

Great Floods in History. The first great calamity of which the Bible treats is the flood, which if the Holy Scriptures are to be believed, literally, came so very near eradicating the whole human race. The upshot of history has been the most destructive of all elements, the most hostile to man and his works. Historical records date their origin from some great flood. The tradition of the deluge is handed down from Continents in War to the present day. The Greeks and Romans, the ancient Germans, and among the American Indians very few tribes have been found who were not able to relate stories of a flood which devastated their lands hundreds of years ago.

It is a well-known fact that Europe was a score of centuries before this era, much greater in extent, France and England were not separated by the present English channel. As late as the beginning of the English century, a dry road led from Constantinople in Turkey to the present island of Jersey. Within two months the sea submerged all, swept its way into the Province of Neustria, mutilated the coast of Brittany, and left, in its place, a few barren islands in a place where vast forests had stood.

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How—Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health.

The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach promptly digests food, and thus prepares nourishment. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now it is certainly a fact that no medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is literally true that there are hundreds of people alive and well today who would have been in their graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon as a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your system in good health by keeping your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which absolutely cures when other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Simple Cure for Venereal. A mustard plaster on the elbow will cure venereal in the face, and one on the back of the neck will cure venereal in the throat, and the reason of this is that the mustard is said to touch the nerves directly it begins to tingle, so that if placed upon a part where no nerve exists it will be of no use.

Defeated Rochester. The Rochester team arrived home from Rochester Saturday, and report having enjoyed the trip immensely. They were royally entertained by the Rochester team. The exhibition match played on Friday was easily won by the Peterboroughs by a score of four goals to two. Our cousins across the border had a good deal yet to learn about Canada's national game.

Business Troubles. S. C. Fisher, lumberman, West Bay City, Mich., is in financial difficulties. He has large quantities of lumber on the Georgian Bay shore, and they may have to be sold. Eight Detroit banks hold $100,000 worth of his notes. Graham, Horne & Co., lumber merchants, Fort William, have assigned to C. C. Abbott.

Lang & Kemp, dry goods merchants, have made an assignment to P. L. Morrison.

A. Winton saw mill owner, Sylvester Morrison has assigned to N. M. Moore.

Down the River. Say, the summer is passing and you have not been down the river for the prettiest sail in this province. Or, perhaps you have been down and promised yourself the sail again. Well, remember that Capt. Martin is again in charge of the North Star, and that this popular steamer will run daily trips to Rice Lake points. The steamer will leave the wharf at 9:15 a.m. each day except Saturday. On Saturday she leaves at two o'clock in the afternoon. The best of attention is received on the North Star.

Arrests. The following telegram was received at the police headquarters Saturday morning: Toronto, Aug. 20, 1898. Chief Constable, Peterborough: "Sergeant Duncan for passing bogus money in the city yesterday. Age 26, height 5 ft. 11 in., fair, prominent teeth filled with gold. Sergeant said he was a Christian. Was formerly street car conductor in Peterborough where his father resides. Has a brother John in Lindsay. Left here this morning and will be either at Lindsay or Peterborough. If found, arrest and search for bogus money." H. J. GRASSETT, Chief Constable.

Constable McGinty arrested Duncan Saturday afternoon at Fairweather's corner, an dog searching him found $24 in bills on his person. It is not known as yet whether the money is "queer" or not. Constable Adams telegraphed to Toronto notifying Chief Grasset of the arrest.

Wanted on the Fraud Case. A peculiar case of fraud was heard recently at the Toronto police court which will be of great interest to commercial men. John H. Eager, commercial traveller, was charged with defrauding his employers Taylor, Scott & Co. brush manufacturers. The alleged fraud consisted in charging up against the firm as legitimate expenses such items as liveries, cigars and drinks for customers, contrary to the rules of the firm. A large number of commercial travellers were in court listening to the case and several of them gave evidence showing that Mr. Eager had simply pursued the ordinary custom. One witness pointed out that in whatever way he charged up such items he managed to keep even. The police magistrate said that commercial travellers appeared to keep their accounts in a very irregular way. Under the evidence he could do nothing but convict the defendant and remanded him for sentence when called on.

AN EXCITING ADVENTURE

A West End Citizen has an Experience with Hornets which he will Remember.

The other day a resident in the west end—whom we will designate Mr. Blank, owing to his aversion to having his name appear in print—had an adventure with hornets which he will remember as one as he lives.

A couple of weeks ago Mrs. Blank began to notice numbers of hornets flying around, and was puzzled, as the house is well supplied with window screens. A laborer who does odd jobs about the place, discovered a large hornet's nest in the garret, and reported it to Mrs. Blank. She at once wanted him to remove the nest, but he said he was afraid of being stung. The matter was explained to Mr. Blank, and he remarked that he had often killed hornets as a boy, and he guessed he'd try his hand at these. Mrs. Blank tried to dissuade him, but he guessed he'd try and said the hornets would be killed the following morning. After supper Blank got some barrel hoops and built a sort of bird cage, which he covered with mosquito netting. This he proudly explained, was to protect his head from the hornets. Next morning, armed with his head-protector, a pail of scalding water and a club he went to the garret. First he removed his coat and vest, then he placed the pail of water directly under the nest. He then adjusted the head-protector and then climbed the ladder. The next moment Mrs. Blank heard a loud rattling and a hornet came darting at Blank's head, but he fastened on his arms and body and had no trouble pushing it away with his club. In his retreat Blank left down the stairs and here Mrs. Blank bravely came to the rescue and drove off the remaining hornet. Blank looks like a "professional" fighter, but the doctor says the swelling will be gone in a couple of weeks.

TOO MANY ALDERMEN

Belleville will Reduce the Number from Twenty One to Ten

A light vote was recorded Friday, at Belleville, on the by-law for abolishing the ward system and reducing the number of aldermen from 21 to 10. The vote was for the by-law 51, and against 112. The majority for the by-law was 401.

Peterborough took the lead in civic reform by abolishing wards. Belleville followed suit, and now there are a dozen towns in Ontario taking the question up. Lindsay votes on a similar by-law today.

Adviser for an Owner. It is not generally known that persons finding lost articles are legally bound to restore them to the owner if they know him. To hold them or to secrete them is under the new criminal code regarded as theft and punishable accordingly. A reward cannot successfully be demanded. If any trouble or expense is necessarily incurred in connection with the found article, such expense can be recovered. The newspaper is the proper medium by which to discover the owner and the finder is expected to advertise at once.

Town's Telephone. As an indication of the prohibition sentiment in the province, the fact is interesting that eight or nine towns have applied to the Government for and received permission to take a special census, with a view to maintaining their present number of licenses under the present License Act. The applications of several other towns are in. When a municipality is willing to go to the expense of a special census to maintain the number of its licenses, it does not look like as if the people there were anxious to be rid of license altogether.

Telephone Competition in London. In order to head off the proposed competitive telephone company in London, the B.C. Co. has proposed to pay the corporation $1,000 a year for the privilege of a five years exclusive contract. It further agrees to reduce the price of telephones for house service, unlimited, to $20 per annum, drugstore and doctors $25 per annum, but to allow business telephones to remain at the old figure of $40 per annum. The offer of the People's Telephone Company was to give a business service for $25 and a house service for $15, or both combined for $42. The City Council has granted the new company a fifteen year franchise which has been accepted and the company will begin at once to install a plant. As a result of the competition Bell Telephone rates have come down in London.

THE PROHIBITION PLEBISCITE

Campaign Supposed to be on but it is Not Much in Evidence as Yet

The plebiscite campaign is supposed to be on, but it has not made itself visible to the average observer. The people have not felt the shock of battle, and unless something is done on one side or the other to stimulate popular interest in the question, the voting day will come and go and few people will know it. Outside the circles of persons who live by the liquor business and are conscientiously devoted to the cause of prohibition, the people are few, people who know just what the plebiscite is, or just what is the question which is to be put to them at the polls. It is not the less true that the organizers on both sides of the question are alive to the fact that the minds of the people are not sufficiently enlightened to enable them to make a proper judgment of the individual is going to rank pretty high from what we can gather from the campaign on either hand, they seem to recognize the fact that the people at large know as much about the prohibition question as the man in the street, or at least as much as they are willing to learn. It is true that arrangements have been made for a series of meetings throughout the country by the prohibitionists, but the announcement, so far as the general public is concerned, appears not to have awakened the slightest interest.

Are the Brooming Bees? Higher moths, beetles and knotted bugs are rapidly becoming extinct in this town, as they are being exterminated by means of electric lights, which, during the first years they shone, killed thousands of these insects. School boys have a way been interested in bugs, perhaps from the fear they cause when alive, and in former days the young students had no difficulty in securing plenty of specimens for dissection or collection. They had simply to look around the base of an electric light which had been burning all night, and there were thousands of the foolish insects which had flown too near the light. Now the boys are complaining that specimens are hard to get, but it is not likely to be a large extent, but the fascination for bugs and the question is, have the bugs earned better or are they all dead? If the latter is true the electric light has done a service for humanity for which it has no received due credit.

The Immigrants of Europe. I have remarked for my part that the Americanization of the European immigrant is the result of success. The man who succeeds becomes American with a faculty truly prodigious but full remains European.

It is true that a certain part of Chicago constitutes a veritable international sink where the French, the Swedes, the Germans, the slaves, the Russians, dwell in groups, retaining their misery the distinctive marks of their nationality, the language and the habits of their race. On the other hand, the Americanization of the others is perhaps not so complete as it seems to be in appearance. The future one can tell. It remains true none the less that in a single generation Europe seems to have lost all influence over the sons of those who have abandoned her to find themselves in the new world, and who have been able to make any position for themselves there however humble. There is in the air they breathe in the life they live something which takes their youth, their enthusiasm and insulates it in some way from all the hereditary American possessions and ideas.

Correspondence. The Times-while its columns are free for the discussion of all questions of public interest—does not hold itself responsible for the opinions expressed by its correspondents.

In and Out of Prohibition. Mr. Editor, As you have generously invited discussion on prohibition through your valuable paper, I would like to take advantage of your offer, and gain some light before voting time comes. I am desirous of having the friends of the liquor traffic give me their arguments in favor of the sale of strong drink. In what way does the liquor traffic commend itself to the public? We are told by these men that prohibition will not prohibit, yet these same men oppose it. Why do they turn themselves with men and money fighting this question, when, as they say, more money can be made in the sale of liquor with prohibition than with the paying of a license? I must confess it is not a high standard of morality that inspires these men charged with the traffic to oppose it, as they are being punished every little while for violating what they term a good law, to say nothing of the violations never made public. As to the revenue—these philanthropic souls of the liquor traffic, who are the burden of taxation on the people. Well, if they are so considerate for their country's good, why not try prohibition for the good of the land they love so well? United prohibition has had, at least a quarter of as fair a test as the license law has had, not just can judge of its results. The following wise axiom is worth pondering at at this time: "What ever leads to wretchedness, misery and crime, every good citizen should discountenance." Liquor drinking leads to wretchedness, misery and crime, therefore every good citizen should discountenance the liquor traffic. Let our friends of the liquor traffic give us good, solid facts in justification of their position. Let me repeat—let the revenue alone. Is the liquor trade a social benefit? Do the men engaged in the traffic take pride in exhibiting the drunkenness, the sagged, staggering wife and children as the crowning results of their efforts? What have you to give us as an evidence of its usefulness, save as a means of a lazy livelihood. Has it given the poor man more money to buy meat, food and clothing, with? Do landlords say their rents are better paid because of it, or have doctors or merchants more paying patrons as the result of whiskey selling?

Postman still in Jail

W. H. Poston is still in jail at Naperville, and it is a question if he will accept bail providing it is forthcoming. An effort was made to have the bail reduced to $5,000, but Magistrate Daly would not entertain the request.

Large Excursion

Peterboro business men did an exceptionally large business on Saturday, owing to the fact that the City of Peterboro brought up about 400 passengers from Harwood and Gore's Landing. The excursionists took nearly $200 worth of goods out of town.

Business Transfers

Linz and Kemp, dry goods, Ottawa, have assigned to P. Lamont, Sylvester Morrow, saw mill owner, Winton, has assigned to N. M. Moore. Graham Horne and Company, lumbermen, Fort William, have assigned to C. C. Abbott. A meeting of the creditors of J. A. Stephens called for the 23rd inst.

Contract Awarded

At a special meeting of the Ashburnham Council held on Saturday evening, the contract for the construction of the waterworks system was awarded to McQuinn & Co. of Toronto, at the figure named in their tender, viz. $8,295. Reeve Adams notified the firm at the conclusion of the meeting of the effect that their tender had been accepted, and it is expected that the work of excavating will begin at once.

Remarkable surgical operation

A remarkable surgical operation was performed the other day at Belleville on a daughter of Hugo McKay, aged 4 years. She fell from a bridge, striking her head on a rock twenty feet below. The skull was fractured half way round the head, and a piece of bone about two inches square driven into the brain. By an operation this bone was raised up and the doctors now have some hopes of recovery.

Sound a Mystery

Ate Village of Bloomfield, four miles from Peton, etc. a mystery. Mr. Rogers, at the house of his brother-in-law, George Aulthouse, in July last, a popular group accuses Aulthouse of being concerned in the girl's death. Their intimacy had raised considerable scandal, and the doctor who attended the deceased believed that she died of a criminal operation. A coroner's jury is hearing the evidence.

The Little Queen's Picture

Wilhelmina, who is to be crowned Queen of the Netherlands on September 6 next, has personally sent to Mr. Bok, the editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, a portrait of her by birth—one of her private portraits for publication in the next number of his magazine. It is the last portrait which will be taken of the little lady before her coronation, and will be printed in connection with a specially prepared sketch showing the personality of the first Queen of Holland from every point of view.

An Old Timer

John Hughes, an old time printer, who has been on the tramp for a quarter of a century, walked into town yesterday from Lindsay. John never omits paying his respects to the Times, and on the present occasion presented us with an original poem, entitled "The City of Richmond—sung with a rattling success by Mr. Kennedy, at Owen Swift's Lindsay, June 22, 1898." John enquired, in a fatherly way, after the individual members of our staff, and on being informed that they were all as healthy as a lot of young steers, he withdrew to drink our health.

Lumbermen's Protest

The protest of the Michigan lumbermen against the action of the Ontario Government in inserting in all timber licenses a requirement that the logs be sawn into lumber in Canada has been forwarded to the Attorney-General, and a reply has been forwarded which takes firm ground in assertion of the exclusive right of Ontario to legislate in regard to its timber. H. H. Hardy argues strongly that the regulation imposed in December last was wholly within the scope of the powers and rights of the Legislature and the Government.

Death of Mrs. J. F. Raymond

Mrs. Jessie A. Raymond died at her daughter's home in Bay City on August 18th, the interment taking place in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, New York. Her death was caused by cancer of the breast, the result of a runaway accident which occurred in Peterboro about three years ago. Mrs. Raymond was born in New York City in 1815, she was the only daughter of late Louise and Thomas (Nichols), also niece of the late R. Burt and Charlotte Nichols, of Peterboro. She is survived by her only child, Mrs. John P. Hurley, formerly of Peterboro but now residing in Bay City.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Happenings in Town and District During the Past Twenty-four Hours

—Everybody reads the Times.
—There was no police court yesterday.
—The summer girl's reign is on the wane.

—The barber is always at the head in his profession.
—The toper would be only too glad to liquidate his debts if he could.

—The tramp should never fear death for "while there's life there's hope."
—At meeting of the Town Council in Committee of the Whole is called for to-night.

—It is rumored that Duncan is not the only Peterboro man implicated in the issue of bogus money.

—The new pavement in front of the Golden Lion will be adorned with the word "Fair's," to correspond with the sign which is on the establishment at present.

—Kelly & Mason, two popular farce comedians, will present a new comedy entitled "Who is Who" with specialty trimmings at the opera house to-morrow evening.

—The eighteenth session of the Synod of Canada meets in Montreal on Sept. 14. Among the delegates from this diocese are Rev. H. Symonds and Ven. Archdeacon Allen, Milbrook.

—The Cobourg Garrison of Artillery, in command of Capt. E. A. McQuinn, arrived in town by G.T.R. yesterday morning and left at noon by the C.P.R. for Quebec, where they are entered in the artillery competition.

—Miss Aggie S. Van Esy, of the Peterboro Collegiate Institute, has the honor to be the first to earn the scholarship given by St. Andrew's church bible class, which entitles her to a four years' course in Queen's University free of class fees.

According to the court's interpretation of the law, Ontario's wealthy men who wish to evade the Succession Duties Tax may do so by keeping their estate within the province under the value of $100,000, providing that the legatees are direct descendants.

—A. C. Rose, of West Flamboro, has just threshed 455 bushels of wheat off thirteen acres of land. He had five acres of another sort, which yielded 40 bushels per acre, and a quarter of an acre of still another variety, which yielded at the rate of 50 bushels per acre.

—Citizens who have had occasion to drive through the country of late say they never before saw so much grain scored in stacks. Burns are packed full, yet most farmers have from one to three stacks in addition. One farmer, we are informed, threshed for three days from one stack, and has the grain yet to attack. The threshers will turn many in bonus dollar this season.

PLEBISCITE NOTES

Campaign Not to Start Until Sept. For Vote Expected in Nova Scotia

Mr. W. W. Buchanan in a letter to Mr. F. S. Spruce, Toronto, states that he left Nova Scotia Sunday night for New Brunswick. He will be home to take a hand in the Ontario campaign early in September. In his days Mr. Buchanan has attended 68 meetings, and has assisted in the organization of 16 counties. He fears that there will be a poor vote in Nova Scotia.

Mr. George Bertman, M.P. of Toronto, has stated to have expressed the following opinion on the prohibition question: "My opinion is that prohibition is a very large minority, but the great question is to know just what the rights of the provinces are. Supporting that Quebec alone amongst the provinces votes against prohibition. Will it, or will it not be obliged to bow to the will of the other provinces? This is the kernel of the whole question. The provinces have incontestable rights, and I do not see how the majority of provinces can impose their views on the minority."

AN IMPORTANT JUDGMENT

In Connection with the Succession Duties Tax—How It May be Evaded

A decision to this effect was given at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning by the Queen's Bench Divisional Court. Mr. Justice Farnborough presiding, in the appeal of the Ontario Government against a judgment of County Judge McDougall, by which the estate of the late G. R. R. Renfrew, better known as escaped taxman Mr. Renfrew, was valued at over $500,000, but only $99,000 was within the province. Mr. A. B. Ayresworth, Q.C., argued the appeal on behalf of the Government. He contended that the intention of the law passed by Parliament was that where an estate left to direct descendants amounted to more than $100,000 the portion that was situated in Ontario was taxable, no matter how small or large it might be. Mr. D. T. Symonds of Kingston, Wood and Symonds appeared for the estate and pointed out that the act did not apply in the case in question.

The court took Mr. Symonds' view of the case and gave judgment in accordance.

General Greely's 77th Days of Suffering

The true story of those 77 days of suffering by Greely's heroic little band of explorers in the Arctic region has been told by General Greely himself, for the first time, for the October issue of Home Journal. For years Gen. Greely has kept an unbroken silence about his fearful experience and that of his companions, as they dropped dead one by one at his side, and it was only after the greatest persuasion that the famous explorer was induced to write the story.

Down the River

Say, the summer is passing and you have not been down the river for the prettiest sail in this province. Or, perhaps you have been down and promised yourself the sail again. Well, remember that Capt. Martin is again in charge of the North Star, and that this popular steamer will run daily trips to Rice Lake points. The steamer will leave the wharf at 9:15 a.m. each day except Saturday. On Saturday she leaves at two o'clock in the afternoon. The best of attention is received on the North Star.

RAILWAY NOTES

Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railway Paragraphs of Interest

—Passenger traffic on the C.P.R. is unusually heavy at present.
—The G.T.R. depot here, since the recent improvements have been made, is one of the finest on the line.

—The harvesters' excursions on the C.P.R. were never so largely patronized as they have been this year. Peterboro and vicinity contributed very large contingents.

—Another railway man has received orders to remove his family from Midland to Lindsay. The mover is Mr. Walter Bott, a non-law of Conductor Jack Britton.

—The new elevator at Midland is nearing completion. The steel tower, 45 feet high, and weighing 100 tons, has arrived from the Carnegie Steel Works at Pittsburgh, Penn.

—Last week Mr. H. P. Kennedy shipped fifteen cars off ice stock out of Peterboro, of the shipment five cars went to the western states, four to Buffalo and the remainder to Toronto.

The Grand Trunk Railway officials are much excited at the arrest at Port Huron of twenty-two Canadians who were travelling to Manitoba by their lines and were turned back because it was charged that they were going to work in Dakota. The matter has been put in the hands of the company's solicitors at Port Huron and Chicago, and will be investigated.

The storm Sunday night caused a heavy wash-out on the Canadian Pacific Railway about two miles east of Agincourt. Through the courtesy of the Grand Trunk Railway, the regular Canadian Pacific express leaving here at 9 o'clock was sent out on the Grand Trunk by Port Hope. Men were at work all night, and the road was fixed by this morning. The express from the east was a couple of hours late, but the express going east was sent down the usual way.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

BASEBALL

Kirkby Baker broke the Toronto team's streak on Saturday, and the victory sent the Islanders back again to second place, although they lost again on Sunday. The Islanders played one game since Friday, and in losing it, they retired to third position. Montreal won two and lost one in the same time, and has still a fair lead in the race. The leaders go west today for exhibition games—Toronto with Hamilton at the Island, and Montreal at London. On Monday they meet in Toronto for the critical struggle of the campaign. The record:

Montreal	56	43	565
Toronto	54	47	534

A PETERBOROUGH MAN

In Bad Company—Gets into Trouble in Toronto

Yesterday's Toronto News contains the following: Detectives Davis and Tully got up very early Sunday morning, and paid a visit to Rosedale to see who could be seen there. Reports of burglaries, men robbing robbers, and some raids have been numerous of late, and the locality is said to be infested by thieves. The officers found four young men, who gave the names of Henry Baker, James Moore, Thomas Brady and David McGowan. In court Baker told a very fair story and showed that he was a married man, living in Peterboro, and had a sister living at 604 B. by Market street. He was discharged, but the other three pleaded guilty and were each fined $1 and costs or thirty days.

HOMES OF THE SPIES

Elmhurst Who is Under Arrest is a Labor-Sold Man

Meller and Elmhurst, the two Spanish spies arrested in the United States were at one time residents of Kingston where they acted in "A" Field Battery. Elmhurst is supposed to have fled from Lakefield, Ont. Meller served through the North-West rebellion, and both were employed here by Lieut. Carranza, who supplied them with funds. All the spies arrested, with the exception of these two, have been released. It is asserted that Elmhurst and Meller will be court-martialed and undoubtedly shot.

WARKWORTH FATALITY

Three Escape Drowning but Their Boats Sink and Lose Their Life

News has reached town of a drowning accident at Warkworth. Geo. Yule, aged 25, and two other boys were playing with a boat in Mr. McQuinn's pond, two miles from Warkworth, on Sunday, and accidentally upset it. They all went into the water. Yule, being the only one that could swim, got his friends safely upon the bottom of the boat, but the boat sank and did not rise. His body was recovered about two hours afterwards.

GOLDEN CITY BURNED

About Two o'clock This Morning at the Dock in Lakefield

A special despatch to the Times was received this morning from Lakefield stating that the steamer Golden City was on fire at the docks at that place. At the time of going to press the fire was burning fiercely. The origin of the fire is unknown. There was some insurance on the boat.

AN INDIAN ORACLE SONG.

Bring thee low in thy cradle bed,
Sleep in the dusty wood!
Bring thee low and swing aloft—
Sleep as a papoose should.
For aie in your little broken nest
Quiet will come and peace and rest,
If the little papoose is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold,
And the owl hoots in the tree,
And the big moon shines on the little child
As it slumbers peacefully.
So swing thee high in thy little nest
And swing thee low and take the rest
That the night wind brings to thee!

Father lies on the fragrant ground,
Dreaming of hunt and light,
And the pine leaves rustle with mountainal sound

All through the solemn night,
But the little papoose in his birchen nest
Is swinging low as he takes his rest,
Till the sun brings the morning light.

THE DERELICT.

BY CHARLES D. LEWIS

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the breeze sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I swung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past us. I may have been overcautious or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift up my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself inboard. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I knew by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point; next, she had been floating about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her deck, but masts and yards and boom and bows had gone clear off her as they fell. She had settled down until her uppermost beam were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper. As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Brest. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a fore-and-aft ship instead of having a deckhouse for the men. The cabin or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the fore-cabin were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuits in tins. I wanted water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went on deck and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As star as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 2,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was soon before I began an examination of the treasure to see how I should fare for provisions. I found flour, wine, table water, preserves, boxes of biscuits, choice bacon, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storehouse, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the men. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the fore-cabin, I found boots, oilskins, sou'westers and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boat. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had carefully glanced around the horizon and given no thought to rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.

When morning came again I made a more thorough investigation of the cabin. In rear of the captain's stateroom I chanced upon a closet which had escaped me the day before, and here I made a great find. There was about $1,000 in French gold and notes, $1,300 in English goldpieces and exactly $7,000 in goldpieces just struck off at the Australian mint. The money was in two tin boxes, but whether it belonged to the ship, her captain or to other people I could not determine. It was a big fortune to a poor sailor, and I remember that I acted very foolishly over the find. I counted it over and over again, and when at last realized that I was rich I rushed on deck, with a wild hope of seeing a mail close at hand. But for the money I believe that the long days and nights which followed would have been rather contentful for me, isolated as the situation was. I had plenty to eat and drink, there was nothing to break my sleep, the wreck might drive where she would, but there was no danger of her going down. The discovery of the money was followed by a hope of rescue, and this again by worry and anxiety. I wanted to go ashore to enjoy my wealth. I feared that when rescue did come I should be robbed. I conjured up a thousand senseless fears, and the apoph was anything but beneficial. I have spoken of the general situation in a careless way. As a matter of fact, being a navigator, I took observations regularly when the weather permitted and pricked off the drift of the wreck on the chart. On the average the weather was fine, but there were days and nights when gale and sea tumbled the waterlogged craft about until only a miler could have lived through it. Instead of lifting her the waves ran over her, and at such times the decks were two feet under water and the cabin was flooded. The cargo was afloat with the water in the hold, and as the wreck rolled and pitched the timbers rubbed together and produced noises which would have frightened landmen into fits.

I kept an accurate reckoning, and I had been on the wreck just 48 days when I caught sight of my first mail. No doubt ships had passed and repassed me by day and night, but I could set no signal by day and from the first I slept all through the night. This mail was discovered early one morning, coming up from the south, and her course was such that she must see me. I had put the money into bags and the bags into bundles of clothing in view of a rescue, and therefore had nothing to do but wait. The stranger, which proved to be an English merchantman bound for India, but considerably off her course, was within four miles of me and had sent a signal to gladden my heart when a big whale suddenly broke water close to the wreck. He was followed half a minute later by a second, which attacked him with great fury. The monsters put up a terrific battle, leaping and biting each other and kicking up a sea like a gale of wind. They at first drew away from me, but after a few minutes made a circle which brought them back. What I had feared from the first came to pass after a quarter of an hour. Half blinded by pain and fury, or feeling it self overmatched and desirous of getting away, one of the whales suddenly whirled about and came for the wreck head on. He was fully 80 feet long, and he came like a moving mountain. I made sure of my hold as I saw him coming, but he struck the wreck on her port side with such force that I was thrown across the deck and into the sea beyond. I heard the crash of planks and timbers, was tossed about by the waves, rubbed against the whale as he sounded and reached the surface to find the wreck a hull no longer. It was simply a heap of floating debris. The strange ship drew nearer, lowered a boat, and I was picked up as I clung to a plank. The money was gone, all else but the timbers which composed the cargo had disappeared, and my adventure, surprising as it had begun, had ended in a manner strange enough to satisfy even the most imaginative novelist. I was carried to India by the rescuing ship, and I know that the French consul at Calcutta set inquiries on foot regarding the fate of the crew of the Marie. What they amounted to I never learned, but have always felt satisfied that all perished when their craft was dismantled. But for the fight between the whales I believe the brig could have been pumped out and sailed into port, but for the fate of a jade who rode Jack Tar far oftener than she smiles upon him.

Jinks—What! You don't mean to say you are engaged to the beautiful Miss de Pink?

Elkins—Yes, I do. Got engaged to her last night. This afternoon I am to bring her into town. She wants to go to an optician's. I believe. Now pair of glasses or something. She is nearsighted, you know.

Jinks—I say, old fellow, just slip round to that optician's and bribe him not to give her any better glasses than she has.—London Tit-Bits.

Nothing of the kind in this world can be more impressive than the way in which an audience of 6,000 French radicals received that wonderful air (the "Marceline"), says Colonel T. W. Higginson in the Atlantic. I observed that the chorus of young men who led the singing never once looked at the notes, and few even had any, so familiar was it to all. There was a perfect hush in that vast audience while the softer parts were sung, and as one joined even in the chorus at first, for everybody was listening. The instant, however, that the strain closed, the applause broke like a tropical storm, and the clapping of hands was like the taking flight of a thousand doves all over the vast arena.

Behind those twinkling hands the light dresses of the ladies and the blue blouses of workwomen seemed themselves to shiver in the air. There was no coarse noise of pounding on the floor or drumming on the seats, but there was a vast cry of "Bis! Bis!" sent up from the whole multitude, demanding a repetition. The moment the first verse was sung through for the second time several thousand voices joined in the chorus. Then the applause was redoubled, as if they had gathered new sympathy from one another, after which there was still one more great applauding gust, and then an absolute quiet.

Nothing Remarkable.
Smith—Hear about the fire over on the West Side this morning? Nine persons barely escaped with their lives. Remarkable, wasn't it?
Brown—I fail to see anything very remarkable about it.
Smith—Why not?
Brown—Well, suppose they had escaped without their lives, then it would have been a tragedy.

Miss Debate—Why do they talk so much about the immortality of the soul?
Mr. Catchy—Because there are so few spirit riders, I presume.

Very Desirable Comment.

STRINGY MILK.

A Consideration of the Scientific Reasons Given For Its Presence.

Mr. John Speer, writing to The Scottish Farmer on the subject of "stringy milk," says: Bacteria plays a most important part in all dairy matters, and all bacteriologists who have directed their attention to stringy milk have arrived at the same conclusion—viz., that it is caused by bacteria. These investigations have also brought to light the fact that several forms of bacteria may cause stringy milk, and that stringy milk cannot be produced without infection. In Norway and Sweden a certain class of "stringy milk," called "large milk," is sold as an article of commerce, and this milk is said to be produced by feeding the cows on a particular plant. From made by bacteriologists did not, however, produce such an effect, and at the present time all evidence seems to point to every case being the result of infection.

The bacillus which is supposed to be the principle cause of stringy milk has been found by Guillemin to retain its vitality in September in a sample of milk to which it had been inoculated in March. It is generally supposed to live on the doors, walls and air of the byre, and on the udders and bodies of the cows, and on the vessels which hold the milk or by which it is carried. It is said to be very difficult to kill, and nothing but the most scrupulous cleanliness in every thing, from the cow to final delivery of the milk, including milkers' hands and clothes, will get rid of it. While in Switzerland in 1894 at the conference of the British Dairy Farmers' Association, I had a conversation with Professor Freudenreich on this subject, and he said that the bacillus of this complaint was probably more common in Switzerland and Norway than in any other country. At one of the conferences in America he showed those present samples of milk, all from one pure source, twelve hours before, each of which had been inoculated with a different culture of some bacillus causing trouble in the dairy. He dipped his pencil into the milk to which a culture of the bacillus had been added and when lifted up the milk, by simple adhesion, was drawn out into a string one to two feet long. Later on, in his laboratory, I had an opportunity of seeing other samples of pure and bad milk, and he subsequently found associated with dairymen, and heard from him the extreme difficulty of ridding a byre or dairy of this bacillus.

While warm weather enables this bacillus to increase, it should also give our correspondent a favorable opportunity of thoroughly disinfecting his whole premises, cows, utensils and people. Lard wash, with saw strong disinfectant, should be freely used; the dairy utensils should be thoroughly steamed or boiled longer than usual, for several days successively; the cows' udders and bodies should be washed with some weak disinfectant; the clothing of the milkers and those handling the milk should be frequently renewed; and the milkers' hands washed after every cow. If these precautions are carefully carried out, the mischief may reasonably be expected to be got rid of.

The robin, that "plum" bird, is very quarrelsome, and it exasperates one to watch him wasting the precious hours of food in hunting another hungry robin up and down, and round and round, till the sparrows have cleared the board. The blackbirds, too, are very annoying in the way that they snatch up a lump of bread and fly off with it, only to be chased about for the rest of the morning by other blackbirds, while a sparrow makes a square meal of the morsel fallen mean while under a scrub. But recently we saw a pair in pursuit, the curious fact is that they seldom fight. If the pursued turns, the pursuer stops, perches up his tail, and being promptly charged by the other, becomes in his turn the pursued. But we to both when the chase through corn. He is pitiless in pursuit, and I have seen them pass my window time after time in the course of a morning. The above-mentioned on the "beast" of the blackbird. And when they overtake them what happens? For myself, as I have often said before, I believe the natural thrust is a contest. At any rate, I attribute some of the dead blackbirds and thrushes that one finds about the grounds to his cruel beak. He watches for birds for hours at a time like a bird of prey, and attacks them like one. I have often stopped a chase which I knew could only end one way.—Continental Review.

A Possibility.
"Has he learned to ride a wheel yet?"
"No, his father thinks he will teach him to walk first, or he may never learn."

ELECTRICITY AND CROPS

THE CURRENT HELPS THINGS TO GROW WITH GOOD RESULTS.

Frenchmen Know the Secret—Grows, Strawberries and Vegetables Grapes—Extraordinary Yields When Electricity Applied.

It has long been known that the electricity in the atmosphere plays an important part in the stimulation of vegetable growth, but hitherto no practical use has been made of this knowledge.

The results recently obtained by some French scientists, who have been experimenting with the effects of electricity on plants, indicate that a most valuable aid to agriculture has been discovered. A plant deprived of atmospheric electricity by covering it with a network of fine steel wires a foot withers away and dies; when artificially stimulated by an electric current it blossoms far more vigor than in a normal condition.

With these data to work upon, the experimenters moistened seeds with water and then subjected them to the influence of an electric current. The seeds thus treated grew with far more vigor and came to maturity sooner than those not so treated. They even succeeded in making dates grow in a desert, which is a very unusual thing to happen in France.

Pears, peaches and maize grew with astonishing swiftness when treated with the powerful current of a Ruhmkorff coil, and the yield was greater than ordinary. Experiments with batteries were not so successful when the current was passed through the earth, because of the difference in the resistance of the soil in various places to the passage of the current. The resulting crop was uneven in character, according to one particular section received more or less of the electric current. With the powerful electrical machines much more satisfactory results were obtained. Strawberries in particular were ripened in a remarkably short time. Electrical machines are far too expensive, however, for a farmer to use, and though all right in theory they are too costly in practice.

The new invention is called the geomagnetizer, and consists of an ordinary pole forty or fifty feet high, surmounted with a sheaf of fine copper spikes, designed to act as a collector of atmospheric electricity. This collector is insulated from the pole by a porcelain knob, and connects with a copper wire (also insulated from the pole), which transmits the current to a network of wires which are laid under the soil at a depth of about six feet. These wires are made of galvanized iron, and their cost is not large.

By the use of this apparatus the production on a given area has been increased 80 per cent. The grapes from vineyards in which the geomagnetizer is used are richer in sugar and alcohol than ordinary grapes. Flowers have a stronger perfume also when stimulated in this manner.

The exact chemical action which the current has upon fruits and vegetables cannot be determined. It is only certain that such action takes place. Some hold that it acts by aiding the plants to assimilate the gases of the atmosphere, while others think that it favors the assimilation of certain mineral salts in the soil.

The experiment can be tried on any lawn or flower bed so long as the pole is away from the house. If too close it acts as a lightning conductor, but without giving any protection.

It is estimated that a geomagnetizer sixty feet high will enrich the soil to the same degree as ten times its cost in manure. At the present time a successful farmer has to be something of a chemist, and it now seems as though he will have to be an electrician, too.

A NEW CURE FOR ERYSIPELAS.

Colonel Legard With an Extract—Paris.

It is reported that a Parisian physician, Marmorek by name, has discovered a new serum for the cure of erysipelas, pericarditis and bronchial pneumonia. This recently discovered remedy has been given the peculiar and lengthy name of Anti-erysipelo-coccid. It has been seen at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, and is a thin, colorless liquid, resembling water in almost every detail. No word has come so far as to its success or whether any really definite cures have been made.

As a matter of fact, there is only a very small quantity of it as yet in existence—little more than a tiny vialful, indeed, but this is sufficient to have aroused every nearly all Parisian—this section of it is less which takes an interest in medical affairs and in the science of curing disease—into making frequent inquiries regarding the discovery as of great practical importance. Dr. Marmorek says that he is best on every hand with requests for a small quantity of the serum on the part of both physicians and sufferers, and he has been obliged to shut out the public and the medical fraternity for a time until he has prepared more of the precious liquid.

His reason for so acting is his remembrance of the time of the discovery of the antitoxine cure, when the Institute was besieged by anxious crowds demanding the remedy and offering large sums of money for even a little of it. When the doctors then explained to them that it was impossible to give them what they asked for because there was no supply of it on hand, the crowd returned and upbraided the Pasteur physicians violently, calling them unhuman and brutal. Dr. Marmorek is anxious that such a scene shall not occur in connection with his discovery. In a month and a half Marmorek claims that he will have an ample supply and will meet all demands that may be made upon him.

Deadly Work of the New Bullet.
Sir Benjamin Baker, in a paper on "War and Engineering," calls attention to the devastation which the small-bore rifle effects in the human body. He says: "The magazine rifle bullet, though no larger in diameter than a lead pencil, does not simply perforate a bone, but the part is always powdered; fragments are frequently carried out through the wound of exit, which is commonly converted into a gaping orifice, the muscles are pulped, and, in fact, the limb mangled and damaged beyond repair." It may not be unreasonably be contended, therefore, that by supplying soldiers with a weapon which kills or maims for life everyone a bone of whose body is touched by a bullet even at a mile's distance, and further, by making victims and vanquished suffer equally, and the cost of killing a man to be incomparably greater than of old, engineering science has done more to make war unpopular than all the army tales of the world will ever be able to do, however much they may endeavor to the most atrocious.

Head and Limbs

All Covered With Eruptions—Could Not Work, the Suffering Was So Great—Hood's Was Cured.

"I was all run down with complaints peculiar to my sex, and I broke out in sores on my body, head, limbs and hands, and my hair all came out. I was under the doctor's treatment a long time without benefit. They called my trouble eczema. Finally I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after I had used three or four bottles I found I was improving. I kept on until I had taken several more bottles and the sores and itching had disappeared and my hair has grown out."

"I was all run down and had no appetite. I had a tired feeling all the time. I was advised to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and it benefited me so much that I would not be without it." Mrs. G. I. BURNETT, Central Norton, N. B.

The Emeralds.
The annual session of the Grand Council of the C.M.B.A. opened in Quebec yesterday, with about three hundred delegates present. Mr. James Bogue is representative of the local branch No. 40. The Grand Council was fortunate last year in fixing its annual session for Quebec on this date as the delegates will be able to be in the city with the representatives attending the international conference.

Will Enlarge Their Works.
A meeting of the George Matthews Co., Ltd., was held at the company's offices here yesterday, when company business was considered, among other things the question of enlarging their factory here as to increase its capacity. It was decided to double the capacity of the present factory by enlarging the building and equipment, on condition that the town grant exemption from taxation and allow the company to place a railway siding across the street into the works.

Registry Office Fees.
The appended extracts concerning the instruments registered at the local Registry Office are taken from the Annual Report of the Inspector—Number of instruments registered in 1896, 1,733; in 1897, 1,737; fees received in 1897, $6,011.15; patents registered 3, fees therefor, $12,500; mortgages registered 47, fees $520.20; mortgages discharged 267, fees $292.00; wills 48, fees $1273.00; leases 3, fees $5.10; abstracts 207, fees $355.70; searches 779, fees $230.10; mortgages 1, fees $2; other instruments 254, fees $344.85; fees earned and not received, $50; gross amount of fees for 1897, $2,769.70; gross amount of fees for 1896, $2,920.25; for 1898, $3,340.55.

Overseer Majority.
Yesterday's Lindsay Post says: Although unable to wait for the declaration of the returning officers relative to the ballots cast for and against the by-law to reduce the number of town councillors from 12 to 7, we feel we are safe in predicting that the result will be a victory for those advocating the direct responsibility of representatives to the whole people, and the abolition of the ward system.

The bulk of the voters were cast at 4 o'clock, and a few minutes later we were informed by parties who have kept track of the vote that 500 ballots had been marked, and that the majority for the by-law would be at least 100, and might possibly reach 200.

Worthless Bank Bills.
The Mail and Empire says: Chas. Pogue, a young man who boarded on Richmond street west, was arraigned in the police court today on a charge of stealing $10 from Mrs. Mitchell, 102 Richmond street west.

It is alleged that he paid the woman for board with worthless bank bills. Prisoner wept when charged with the offence, and pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until Friday. The detectives believe that Pogue was a "blind" for one "Scotty" Duncan, of Peterboro, who was arrested in that town on Saturday and was brought back last night by Detective Burrows. Duncan is alleged, passed the bills of the Bank of Commerce of Newburn, North Carolina, an institution which broke in 1890. These bills, the detectives state, were broke from curio dealers in Toronto at five cents each and they now think it is time that the law stepped in and prevented the sale of such articles.

Should a Timber Limit.
Mr. A. W. Parkin, of the north ward, returned last week from a tour through Monmouth and Cavendish townships, says the Lindsay Post, and in the course of which he closely examined a large cedar limit on which Mr. S. G. Parkin had taken an option. The limit was formerly owned by Mr. J. M. Irwin, and had passed into the hands of a Peterboro bank. Mr. Parkin found the quantity and quality of timber greatly in excess to his anticipations; a considerable portion of the limit is in a virgin state, and in the section cut over years ago trees have grown to large dimensions. The final payment was completed last Friday—just in time to bar out a Peterboro man who had arranged to inspect the property next week. Mr. Parkin has not yet decided whether to place a couple of camps in the limit this fall or have the cutting done by jobbers, but is inclined to the latter course, as he wishes to clean out his limit in Digby and at Cowan's bridge during the coming winter. The timber from the new limit will be floated down the Burnt River. Mr. Parkin recently purchased a considerable quantity of shingle timber from Mr. M. Boyd & Co., and has several jobs at work on Emily Creek.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Council Meet Last Night and Transact Considerable Business

The Geo. Matthews Co., Exemption—Pavement Cannot be Used for Advertising Purposes—Certain Issues in Connection with the Fire Department to be Threshed Out in Committee of the Whole Council.

The Council met in Committee of the Whole last night.

There were present Mayor Davis, and Councillors Deane, McWilliams, Best, Allen, Dawson, W. H. White, Langford and Robertson.

Owing to dissatisfaction with the contractors for the construction of the Charlotte street permanent walk, the following motion was submitted:

Moved by Councillor Dawson, seconded by Councillor McWilliams, that only the Charlotte street permanent walk from George street to Aymer street, be constructed this fall, and that the work be given to Dolan & Sheehy, provided they can complete it soon enough to avoid frost, and that in the event of their being unable to comply with this condition the contract be left open until next year.

Moved in amendment by Councillor W. H. White, seconded by Councillor H. Langford, that the Charlotte street contract be awarded Dolan & Sheehy, provided petitions are not received for permanent walks on Hunter and Sumner streets, but if walks are petitioned for on those streets then that tenders be asked for the whole work.

On a vote being taken the motion was declared carried.

Moved by Councillor Dawson, seconded by Councillor Deane, that the deposit cheques of the unsuccessful tenderers for permanent walks be returned.

A discussion issued in connection with the rights of business men to use the pavement for advertising purposes.

The majority of the councillors were decidedly opposed to allowing the pavement to be used for this purpose, and it was decided to strictly adhere to the regulations.

It was decided that business men will not be allowed to have their names on the walks.

The communication was read from Mr. P. Hamilton asking that the walk from King street to the C.P.R. station be eight feet wide instead of six feet as proposed.

Moved by Councillor Dawson, seconded by Councillor Deane, that the ground for the walk on George street from King street to the C.P.R. station be eight feet wide instead of six feet. Carried.

The following communication from the George Matthews Co., Ltd., was read:

"Peterboro, Aug. 23, 1898.

Mayor and Council, Peterboro.

Gentlemen—At a meeting of the directors of our company held here last evening, it was decided to enlarge our premises and erect new buildings in order to about double our present capacity, provided that assistance be not denied from the town. You are no doubt aware that the export business in broom has wonderfully developed during the past few years and it is the feeling in our company that we should either enlarge in Peterboro or build elsewhere, where there is a larger population, in order to keep pace in the growing demands of the trade. We have received substantial offers if we would move our business and plant from Peterboro, however, this we are not prepared to do if you will assist us to the extent of—

1. Exemption from taxes on all buildings, plant and stock, south of Wolfe street, east of George street, owned by us in Peterboro.

2. Permission for the C.P.R. to construct, operate and maintain a railway siding from a point on their track between George and Aymer streets, down Wolfe street, across George street, to enter our property at a point a few feet south of Wolfe street.

If there are any points upon which you want information we would be pleased to appear before your committee.

Kindly give this matter your early attention as it is necessary that we should begin operations at once if anything is to be done this fall.

Yours truly,

The George Matthews Co., Ltd.,

per T. F. Matthews, Secy. Treas.

Moved by Councillor Best, seconded by Councillor Allen, that the matter be referred to the Manufacturers' Committee. Carried.

No action was taken but the Committee from Mr. McParlane for two weeks service in the Fire Department.

This matter brought up several issues in connection with the Fire Department, and after considerable discussion it was decided to consider the several points raised to committee of the whole council at an early date.

Then council then adjourned.

Down the River.

Say, the summer is passing and you have not been down the river for the prettiest sail in this province. Or perhaps you have been down and promised yourself the sail again. Well remember that Capt. Martin is again in charge of the North Star, and that this popular steamer will run daily trips to Rice Lake point, leaving our wharf at 9:15 a.m. each day except Saturday. On Saturday she leaves at two o'clock in the afternoon. The best of attention is received on the North Star.

You will not know how much good Hood's Sarsaparilla will do you until you try it. Buy a bottle today and begin to take it.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles.

LACROSSE.

A swift game of lacrosse was played by the Minerva and Campdenford teams at Trenton on Wednesday which resulted in a score of 1 to 0 in favor of Minerva. Owing to other attractions taking up so much of the time the time for the game was limited to 25 minutes. The teams were evenly matched and the referee, W. B. Huyck, of Trenton, showed his knowledge of the game by warning the boys against any rough play and giving the most impartial decisions.

The team that will represent Peterboro in their match with Orillia on Thursday next will be made up of the following players—Dobbin, Lynch, Brown, Glover, McDonough, King, Horvath, McCabe, Phelan, Lipsett, Mooney and Doan, field captain. The boys have been practicing hard lately and are confident of winning.

CRICKET.

The cricket match which was to have been played on Thursday with the odds of Toronto, has been postponed owing to their being unable to secure a team. Some of their players are in New York. Mr. A. P. Pousselle received telegram to this effect last night.

HANDBALL.

Wickensville (United) Toronto, on yesterday, forced the Indians further down in the percentage table, although still leaving the man in third place. Buffalo is pressing hard on the third position, and only 15 points behind. The record:

Montreal	501
Wickensville	542
Toronto	529
Buffalo	509
Owen Sound	484
Syracuse	484

FRANK MELLER DEAD.

He was Accused of Being a Spanish Spy and Formerly Resided in Peterborough.

An Atlanta, Ga. despatch, dated yesterday says—The papers of Frank Meller, of Miller, who died of typhoid fever at Fort McPherson yesterday, have been examined by the officers there. Meller was arrested at Tampa, Fla., and was for fraudulent entry in the guard house waiting trial. A number of documents and telegrams sent from Montreal, indicated that he had acted as agent for one A. Siddell of that city. Among his papers was an official order, signed by Frank Meller, commander, Battery A, Royal Artillery of Canada, Naturalization papers made out by Frank Meller show date of May 19 at Tampa, Fla. The telegrams for the most part indicated that the sender was supplying Meller with funds. One telegram reads: "I must see you at once." Another reads: "Write fully regarding stocks at once. Will wire money and instructions on receipt." (Signed) A. Siddell.

Meller had an aunt in Montreal, to whom his effects will be sent. Meller, it is thought, might be a Jewish boy and one who lived in Peterborough for a time. He is thought to be a man by the same name who was in No. 3 Company of the 5th Hk. Lt.

—The new offices of the Grand Trunk in Montreal, plans of which have been completed, will be the largest railway offices in the world.

—Workmen while engaged removing the sidewalk in front of Mr. H. LeBrun's store on George street, discovered a rare and likely buried in the early part of the century. The coin bears the name of Leslie & Sons, York, Kingston and Dundas, which indicates that the coin was current at the time Toronto was known as York, and that in a good many years ago (in the other side of the half penny) are the words "Prosperity to Canada." "La Providence et la Candeur" with the cut of a plough in the centre. The age of the coin can be reckoned by those who have any idea when the firm was in existence.

IF LOVE WERE OTHER THAN PAPER

If love were other than a perfect thing,
Love were no gain, but only all a grief,
And better were to check its blossoming
Ere one poor bud could struggle into light
To fill it in the spring,
If love were other than a perfect thing.

If love were other than most sweet of all,
Love were the bitterest gift of bitter fate,
And better were to spare beyond recall
Its magic ray more poisonous than hate.
Its sweetness were but gall,
If love were other than most sweet of all.

If love were other than the love of you,
Love were a poverty, and nothing worth,
And all the task that memory had to do
Would be to loathe the hour that gave it birth.

Love were not sweet nor true
If love were other than the love of you.

But love is love, and you are you, and I Am I that dare to love you with a will,
Knowing that love is perfect, true and high,
And always greater than the greatest ill;
Knowing it cannot die,
Since love is love of you, and I am I.

Not What He Seemed to Be.

"My poor man, I have nothing for you. Why don't you?"

"Poor nothing! I've got dollars to your credit! I'm just back from the K'ondika, and I'm looking for my sister. Are you the slim-legged little whippet snapper she married?"—Chicago Tribune.

A MATRIMONIAL ADVERTISEMENT.

"Toast burned to a crisp! Coffee like mud, and beefsteak as tough as leather! I'd like to know how in thunder you think a man is going to live on such stuff as this! I'll die of indigestion in less than a month if I keep on this way!"

"Here!" take the mess away, and just pack up your duds and leave as quick as you ever did anything in your life," growled Mr. Aaron Allen, as he arose from the table, giving it a violent push that sent the dishes rattling.

Bridget suddenly rose to work, and Mr. Allen strode out of the room, banging the door behind him.

"Well," he muttered, as he reached his study and threw himself in a chair, "this is a go. Five cooks in as many weeks, and no prospect of anything better. It will certainly drive me distracted trying to do this way. I do hate to break up and board after keeping house so long, and if Sophia hadn't made such a goose of herself she might be here yet, and all would be well."

Mr. Allen was a middle-aged bachelor whose maiden sister, a few years younger than himself, had always directed his household affairs since the death of their mother, twenty years previously, when Sophia was a girl of sixteen. They had always lived peaceably enough until about two months since, when Sophia took mortal umbrage at her brother. Miss Sophia had a pet parrot, a beautiful, talkative bird, of which she was very fond. But one unlucky day she was unthinkingly left the cage door open, and went out calling. Her brother came from the office before she returned, and a sight met his eyes which set his quick temper in a blaze at once, for there on his table sat Poll, busily engaged in tearing into minute bits some of the most important papers and documents, which she had pulled from the half-open drawers, while over what few remained untouched by her bill, streams of ink were pouring from the overturned stand.

"Funt funt fine funt!" shouted Poll, pausing a moment in her work of destruction and cocking up one eye maliciously at the intruder.

"Yes, I'll make it fun for you, you—you!" sputtered Mr. Allen, using some, I am afraid, not very refined expressions, and seizing Poll unaware he thrust her into the cage, and being out of the street, sold her to the first person he met.

Miss Sophia soon came home, and, missing her bird, made inquiries, when her brother at once related the whole affair. His sister stormed and fumed, and raged, and ended by calling her brother a "cruel wretch," and other endearing epithets, and declaring she would not remain in a house where she was so abused.

Mr. Allen, in a passion, told her to do as she liked about it—it was immaterial to him whether she went or remained. So she departed, without even leaving her future address, but her brother had no fears on her account. She had relatives to whom she could go, and plenty of money, and she was certainly old enough to take care of herself. The coo, who had lived in the family for years, left when Miss Sophia left, declaring that she "could not be bossed by a man."

Mr. Allen, thinking it easy to fill her place, had taken five cooks in succession from the intelligence office, with what success we have seen.

"Hum," mused Mr. Allen to himself, a habit he had when alone: "If I knew where Sophia was, I'd send for her, even if she did act so foolishly, but I don't know, so there's an end of that. Heigh ho! what a house without a woman to manage it, anyway! Something's got to be done, and soon, too. I can't live this way any longer. I believe I'll get married! Wouldn't Sophia fume then? But there's nobody I exactly take a fancy to. Miss Bogg is too old, Miss Stepp is too vain and extravagant, and I don't know any nice widows."

He had a moment thinking deeply on this important matter, then a light broke over his face.

"The very thing! why didn't I think of it before!"

He sat down before his desk, and drawing pen, ink and paper toward him, commenced writing, and after frequent pauses and much reflection, finally laid down his pen, and read over what he had written.

"I guess that will do," he said. "What an old fool I am! But, then, no one will ever know I did it."

Miss Sophia, on leaving her brother's house, had immediately gone to a cousin's residing about sixty miles distant. Her relatives, not knowing her quarrel with her brother, received her cordially, and endeavored to make herself quite at home. The New York papers came daily and she always perused them with interest. One day in glancing over the advertisements, a certain one caught her eye, and she read it over carefully, then again with spare interest. These were the words which had arrested her attention:

A MIDDLE-AGED GENTLEMAN OF wealth and position is desirous of opening a correspondence with a lady of education and refinement, with a view to matrimony. Address Alpha, Herald office.

"Well," mused Miss Sophia, drawing a long breath, "I really wish I dare do it. There can't be any harm in trying, anyway. Wouldn't Aaron be astonished if I should get married, after all? and I don't know why I shouldn't, I am sure," she said, teasing her head, as much as to say, who dare contradict her! An hour later found Miss Sophia on her way to the postoffice, with a letter hidden in her pocket, which made her heart throb strangely every time she thought of it.

The letter was sent, and an answer anxiously awaited, which came in due season, addressed to "Angelica," in rather stiff, unnatural hand, she thought, but then her correspondent might be disguising his handwriting, as she had here. Miss Sophia now made frequent excursions to the postoffice, and one day she returned home in quite a flutter, and ran up to her room at once, where she again perused the letter which she had read while walking slowly home along the quiet country road.

"Oh!" murmured Miss Sophia, "oh, dear! what shall I do? I am all in a flutter to think of seeing him so soon, for he wants me to appoint a meeting, and of course I must. As soon as possible," he says. Dear me! how anxious he is to see 'his own Angelica,' as he calls me, and I'll own to myself I'm just as anxious to see him! I do wonder what he is like! He must be nice, anyway, for he writes such charming letters; it is really delightful to read them."

A few days subsequent to Miss Sophia's solitary, on a beautiful, bright May morning, she donned her most becoming apparel, and quietly leaving the house, made her way to the one hotel of which the village boasted, where she called for a private parlor, and sat down to await, with what patience she might, for the coming of her correspondent. A few moments of anxious expectancy, then the door slowly opened, and some one entered, closing it behind him.

Miss Sophia, peering through her thick veil, saw no handsome stranger, but—could she believe her eyes?—her brother, Aaron Allen! He approached her.

"Angelica!" he said, softly.

Miss Sophia threw aside her veil, and sprang to her feet.

"Aaron Allen!" she cried, "what are you doing here?"

"Why! why? I'm here," stammered Mr. Allen, utterly confounded by this sudden dejection. "You here?"

"Yes, I am here, Aaron Allen, and I want to know what you mean by addressing me by that name?" demanded his sister.

"What name?" asked Mr. Allen, utterly bewildered.

"Angelica," answered Miss Sophia, blushing furiously, in spite of herself.

"I—oh! I made a mistake in the person—that's all," replied Mr. Allen, blushing in his turn. "I'd like to know what you're doing here, Sophia."

"That's my business," she interrupted, sharply. "And now I want to know who it was you mistook me for?"

"Well, Sophia, I might as well tell you that I am engaged to be married," said Mr. Allen, sheepishly. "And came here by appointment to meet my intended."

"And I am also engaged," simpered Miss Sophia, "and am here to meet my intended."

"Who is your intended?" demanded Mr. Allen, a fearful suspicion beginning to dawn on his mind.

"I have known him by the name of Alpha," she replied.

"By Jove! Sophia, that's my name."

"What?" shrieked Miss Sophia, "you Alpha?" and she burst into a fit of hysterical tears and sobs.

"And you are Angelica?" asked Mr. Allen. He needed no answer, "Thunderation!" Sophia, what a consummate pair of fools we have been," ejaculated Mr. Allen. "I think the best thing we can do is to go home, and live as we have done for so many years, and let matrimony alone for the future."

And Miss Sophia thought so, too.—Grace Jewell.

THINKING ALOUD.

A Bone Which Housed Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the evils of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion, if a story told of him may be credited. He was to spend the evening at the house of a friend and ordered his carriage early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived, the carriage was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very agreeable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence, his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low, but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, who was unacquainted with him, heard him say:

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst is I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

His lordship followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and was probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary reticence.

The stranger proved magnanimous, and from that night the two became fast friends.—Youth's Companion.

The fourth annual convention of the Catholic Order of Foresters opened yesterday at Brantford. The High Secretary's report shows that the membership of the order has increased by 644 in the year. And the Treasurer shows receipts of $3,828, with an expenditure of $2,874.

A full house, greeted the musical farce comedy, "Who's Who?" presented in the Opera House last night by the two leading comedians Kelly and Mason, assisted by a strong company of twenty artists. The presentation was first-class—not a weak spot in the entire cast—and the singing, dancing and comedy sketches were of the highest order.

The Prize Lawns
Messrs. D. W. Dunlop and Adam Hall, have been inspecting the lawns of members of the Peterborough and Ashburton Horticultural Society with a view to awarding the prizes offered by the society to members having the best kept lawns. Yesterday the prizes were awarded as follows: 1st prize, Frank W. 2nd prize, Wm. J. Thompson, 3rd prize, Wm. C. 4th prize, Richard Hall.

Tramps for the Night
Chief Constable and Detective Ross, of the C.P.R., made out on a tramp yesterday morning and gathered in four beautiful specimens of the road. The names they gave were John Hammond, Jas. McDonald, James Whitten and Henry Hoffman. They were taken to the Oxford House. They were charged with vagrancy. The magistrate sent them up on the hill for a month at hard labor.

Remanded for Sentence
At the police court yesterday morning, Hector Baker, the young fellow arrested with three tramps in Toronto, and who was wanted here on a charge of theft, pleaded guilty to two charges. The first was that of stealing a pair of lard from Mr. R. H. Hunter and the second was for stealing a fifteen-pound box of blue from Mr. D. Kerneghan. When he pleaded guilty he was remanded for sentence until to-day.

Lost Her Hat
A Peterborough young lady journeyed to Toronto the other day, met with an embarrassing mishap. When approaching Springville she raised a car window and looked out to greet a friend whom she expected to see in the vicinity. No sooner had she got her head out of the window, than an inconsiderate blast of wind carried off her hat, which, by the way, was a marvel of beauty from the artist's modelling of it. The remainder of the journey was traversed by the young lady in her bare head and our lady readers will be able to form some opinion as to her frame of mind during the journey. The hat was recovered next day, and forwarded to Toronto, and when the young lady runs a similar risk again there will be two moons in the sky.

Mr. J. Jenkins, of Magnetawan, has been in town for the last few days making arrangements with the Peterborough Canal Co. for the construction of a steam launch. Mr. Jenkins is just fresh from the Klondike, and was one of the lucky ones, bringing out over $65,000 with him as the result of two years' work. He was one of the many who made the long weary march to town on foot. During his short stay in town he has been the guest of Mr. Wm. Irvine for whom he used to work in the Muskoka lumbering districts, and he tells many stories concerning his sojourn in the gold fields. With a party of six he struck it rich within eighteen miles of Dawson city, and after two years' work he sold out his share in the claim, and results of which together with his savings, have enabled him to buy considerable property at Magnetawan and to still have $50,000 to his credit in the Bank of Montreal. The watch chain which he wears is composed of nuggets about the size of beans connected by gold links and a pocket piece consists of a nugget of virgin gold weighing several ounces. Mr. Jenkins intends establishing a summer hotel at Magnetawan and is purchasing the steam launch for the accommodation of his guests.

LACROSSE

Lacrosse men are awaiting with interest further developments in President Lennox's projected tour of Manitoba and the west by a representative C.L.A. club.
The decisive game in the Northeastern District championship will be played off at the Island oval on next Tuesday afternoon between the Orillia and Peterboro teams. The inner-city series to decide who will play off with the winner of the present C.L.A. senior series will be started to-day when Peterboro is scheduled to play in Orillia.

The Cockatoo Lacrosse Club dispute Barrie's claim to the championship of the Senior Junior District and complain of the Judicial Committee's tardiness in dealing with their protest of the recent game won by Barrie. The Orillia team for their first senior match to be played at home with Peterboro to-day will be picked from several well-known players as follows: "Nellie" Hawley, "Mickie" O'Connor, "Barnie" Quinn, "Dobbin" West, D. O'Connor, "Jeff" O'Connell, "Indian" Thompson, "Winkie" Dunn, Ed. Dunn, C. Boyd, "Kondike" Mary, Curran, B.B. Watson, "Fanny" Grant, Tom Wilkinson, "Bunt" Armstrong and "Patty" Frost. The Orillia are in the pink of condition, and feel confident of closing their opponents out of the game entirely, as they claim to have the strongest defence field in the C.L.A.

Protest for Mr. Stratton
Toronto News.—J. R. Stratton is ranked rapidly in the scale of political importance. He is one of the "Globe" "Men of the Day," which must surely help his ambition to become a Minister.

A Horse on "Bob"
Mr. C. R. McAllister, town and Mr. Robert Stewart, the well-known driver, were out in South Monaghan the other day and called on Mr. Perrin, a farmer, that township, where a threshing was in progress. Our friend "Bob" always drives a spirited team of horses and these were tied a hundred yards or so from the threshing machine. In some unaccountable manner the team became frightened and bolted, running at a furious rate towards the horse-power which was in operation. So fast was the pace that the runaway horses landed, in some way, fairly on the centre of the horse-power. At this stage the horses operating the power became alarmed and commenced running at the top of their speed. Mr. Stewart's team remaining stationary on the table of the horse-power. It was a wild scene for a time, but finally one of the team fell and this fortunate occurrence brought the machine to a standstill. As soon as possible Mr. Stewart's horses were released from their perilous position, and, strange to relate, on examination being made, were found to have escaped entirely unharmed, while the buggy was smashed into kindling wood.

Mr. John Lang M.P. was in town yesterday interesting himself in the case of the man Embert, who is said to be arrested in the United States and is to be court-martialed as a Spanish spy, but the Embert is the son of Mr. Philip Embert of Otonabee. Mr. Lang is communicating with Ottawa to have the authorities there make inquiries into the case with a view to interfering in the young man's behalf.

A General dispatch announces that the statement Cotton Mill Co. has shut down on account of the strike of 20 girls who were employed as bobbin winders. The dispatch does not give the girls' side of the dispute but argues that they have no alternative whatever. About 500 hands will be idle as a result of the strike, the plan that the company has closed up the whole establishment to bring the girls to terms, promising to resume operations as soon as the bobbin-winders surrender.

Help the Boys by all Means

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir.—It is rumored around town that there is a strong likelihood of the lacrosse club disbanding for the season owing to financial distress. They have not been supported at the home games in the manner they should have been, not enough money taken in to pay the running expenses of the team. In consequence there is no surplus to draw upon to pay travelling expenses to other places. In the "intermediate" series there is only one game to play to decide the championship of the Midland District, as I understand it. The "senior" games follow on at once.

During the last two years, I understand, two young clerks have gone down into their pockets to the extent of $150 to pay the deficits for those two years. They can't be expected to keep this up, even if they are lovers of the game and officers of the club.

What I want to suggest is this: Let every clerk and merchant who has any liking for manly sport, and who takes an interest in pure amateur athletics, contribute his little mite towards a fund to put the club on its feet. Fifty cents a head is not much, but two or three hundred contributions of that amount will keep the club going for the balance of the season and we may see how a finish "on the top of the heap" is a good thing advertisement for the town and in fact the only thing that does advertise the town in the summer time.

Yours,
OLD TIMER

Obtaining the Train

To the Editor of The Times.
Dear Sir.—Not wishing to discuss those considerations which led to the narrowing of the new granite sidewalk, I would call the attention of the six fathers to the brick already passed for preventing motorists and others from taking goods or other obstructions upon the sidewalks and thus impeding traffic, and to the desirability of enforcing the same. Heretofore this law has been dead letter, but now that its enforcement has become imperative from the altered conditions let them see to it that they do their duty. Nothing brings law so much into contempt as to enact one and then neglect to enforce its enactments. Some of our merchants make it a point to deliver hanging goods from the depot until Saturday or some other busy day for the sake of publicity and thus deprive pedestrians of the use of the sidewalk at the very time they most need them. There are some who object to the provision of the law which in fact to them should be enforced against the others as well as those who disregard the same.

Yours etc.

"I have been more than satisfied with the piano purchased nearly fifteen years ago from Messrs. Newcombe & Co. After all these years of constant use. The piano is still in first class condition."

The Rev. M. T. Campbell, Ex-President of the Bay of Quinte Conference says: "I had a Newcombe Piano in my home for ten years—and when my daughter was married and wanted a piano it was the Newcombe I purchased for her."

AN INDIAN CRADLE SONG.

Swing thee low in thy cradle soft,
Drap in the dusky wood!
Swing thee low and swing slowly—
Sleep as a popoon should.
For safe in your little birchen nest
Quiet will come and peace and rest,
If the little popoon is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold,
And the coyote howls in the trees,
And the big moon shines on the little child
As it slumbers peacefully.
So swing thee high in thy little nest
And swing thee low and take the rest
That the night wind brings to thee!

Father lies on the fragrant ground,
Dreaming of hunt and fight,
And the pine leaves rustle with mournful sound
All through the solemn night.
But the little popoon in his birchen nest
Is cradling low as he takes his rest.
Till the sun brings the morning light.
—Southern Workman.

BY CHARLES A. LEWIS

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the brig sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I swung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past us. I may have been overcareless or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float, when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift up my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself inboard. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I knew by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point, next she had been floating about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her decks, but masts and yards and boats and binnies had gone clear off her as they fell. She had settled down until her copper holes were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper. As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Brest. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a forecabin ship instead of having a deckhouse for the men. The cabin or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the forecabin were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuit in tins. I wanted water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went to deck and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As near as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 2,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was soon before I began an examination of the binnies to see how I should fare for provisions. I found flour, wine, table water, preserves, boxes of biscuits, choice bacon, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storehouse, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the men. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the forecabin, I found boots, blankets, sou'westers and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boats. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had scarcely glanced around the horizon and given no thought to rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.
